Turkestan Workers Send Greetings to Kuomintang Party

TASHKENT, Russian Turkestan, April 26.—The Orenburg Soviet, the central executive committee of the Communist Party of Turkmenistan, and the central executive committee of the Communist Party of Uzbekistan have sent messages of condolence to the Kuomintang party, on the death of their leader and founder of the South China Republic, Sun Yat Sen.

"The Uzbek people, which was liberated from the czarist colonizing yoke by the October (November) revolution," says the message of the Communist of Uzbekistan, "and which owes to this revolution the possibility it has to ward off any attempt on the part of world imperialism to enslave once more the free republic of Uzbekistan, thoroly realizes how great are the difficulties facing your party in your gallant struggle for a China free from the colonial yoke.

"In our struggle, we and you pursue the same ends, that is, the emancipation of the oppressed nations from the yoke of imperialism. Therefore, we and you have one common foe—world imperialism."

New Loom Invented for Textile Work

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, April 26.—The electrician is likely to become one of the most important workers in the textile industry when American manufacturers adopt the jacquard loom invented by Dr. Thomas A. B. Carver in England. The loom workers can be taught to operate the new loom, but the electrician assumes greater importance in the work because the machine operates on an electrochemical principle.

The design is made on a metal plate and part of the paint, like a stencil, is taken out so that the needles touch first insulated and then non-insulated portions which makes the pattern variation. The looms are successful in Manchester, England, at present in damask linen and cotton manufacturing and can be extended for use in making ginghams.

DAVENPORT, ONCE SOCIALIST FORT, NOW VACANT LOT

Socialists as Hopeful as Gallows Victims

By TOM MATTHEWS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DAVENPORT, Ia., April 26.—Every sincere worker who still adheres to the decadent socialist party of America, Eugene Debs included, should examine the results of reformist socialism in a typically American city—Davenport, Iowa.

Here the socialist party achieved in its dying days the conquest of a city administration from mayor and chief of police to dogcatcher. The results?

The results are the break up of the local party organization and the envelopment of the former party members in a spirit of pessimism and despair.

Reformist Hopes.

The socialists of Davenport had hopes of bringing about reforms within the capitalistic system thru participation in local politics. With the best of intentions they succeeded in electing their candidates of office upon a popular reform program. What did they accomplish?

The first disappointment was the open treason of the mayor himself to the organization which elected him. The great hopes of the Davenport socialists tumbled like a house of cards.

No Workers Appointed.

The lack of real working class vision was further demonstrated by the appointment of lawyers and other middle class elements to the various minor officers of the city. Workers were "too uncouth"—"too ignorant"—"not dignified."

Only the chief of police showed any degree of working class vision. He used the police force to protect strikers, forcing the open shoppers to repeatedly secure injunctions against his administration. But Davenport socialism was not based upon the militant solidarity of labor.

No Longer "Socialist."

So Davenport no longer has a socialist party government. The former members of the party are extremely pessimistic. They are afflicted with the "blues." Having had an overdose of reformist socialism, they find themselves sickened of their own medicine.

The only remedy for these socialistic blues is the Communistic virility of the Workers Party.

Heed Workers Party.

And so the socialists of Davenport, at least a substantial minority of them, are listening eagerly to the message of the Workers Party because it is a message based on the practical realities of life which leave no room for poisonous reform and silly panaceas.

Communism adheres to the lines of Marxian socialism. Communism recognizes no struggle but the class struggle.

Sooner or later every sincere socialist in the United States must join the ranks of the Workers (Communist) Party.

The Davenports must be shaken by the message of Communism. Then we must select the best thinkers and most militant fighters for enrollment in the ranks of the Workers Party.

The poison of reformist socialism is not to be cleared from the air in an hour or a day. But sooner or later, as the result of persistent effort, the Communist movement will be reared upon a solid foundation of clarity and militancy—even in Davenport. Let us all unite for this constructing effort!

Reporters' Union of Wilkes Barre Fighting Publishers' Blacklist

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 26.—C. B. Strome, of the news writers' local union of Wilkesbarre, Pa., tells of the struggles of the hard coal town's reporters in a racy idiomatic way that made it as dramatic as the story of a miners' fight.

The Wilkesbarre reporters have not fared so well up to date, however. Since their 100 per cent membership organization was formed recently the publishers have countered by "chopping off the heads," as Strome put it, of the officers. He was one, but again has a job on the Sunday Telegram of Wilkesbarre.

The weakness of the Wilkesbarre reporters' union, said Strome, is the non-affiliation of the typographical men. Several years ago the typo men withdrew jurisdiction from the news-writers with the result that this newly formed local is that much less strong than it otherwise would be.

The Scranton reporters have an agremeent with their publishers and are still affiliated with the typos, having been formed before the new rule went into effect. The minimum wage in Scranton for 5-year men is $52; in Wilkesbarre less than $30.

BUILDERS AT WORK

ALL EYES TO THE EAST!

New York Swings Into Action.

Beginning with the District Executive Committee and down thru the branches to every Communist builder the New York comrades are moving toward their goal of 1,500 new subs by June 15.

For May Day orders for six thousand copies of the special twelve-page issue have already been placed and more are daily rolling in to swell the total. Among the orders of the advanced branches of the Advance Guard are:

English West Side	300	Y. W. L. No. 14	200
Jewish Downtown No. 3	125	English Williamsburg	800
English Bronx No. 2	100	Harlem Section	2,000
Lettish Branch	250	Russian Williamsburg	100
Jewish No. 1 Downtown	300	Shop Nucleus No. 11	150

The four thousand short term subs gathered in at the Press Pageant are now beginning to expire and every renewal secured will be added to the quota as a new sub—and that's where you, New York comrade, come in with a bang! Report to the city agent, Comrade L. E. Katterfeld, at 108 E. 14th St., to get some of those names that should not fall off the list of "Our Daily."

FUR WORKERS SUFFER SLUMP FROM FASHIONS

"All Stand Together," Is Shop Slogan

The strongly unionised manufacture of furs is suffering a slump at present in the making of all-fur garments but a change in styles will restore normalcy, is the opinion of manager J. Millstein, Local 45, International Fur Workers' Union. The present fashion of fur-trimmed cloth garments will give way again to the older style, he predicts. The making of fur trimmings is becoming, but affords less work to members of the craft.

The Chicago local numbers over 400 of whom 35 per cent are women. The shops are almost completely unionized under two-year agreements regularly made with the Chicago Fur Manufacturers' Assn. The present contract expires in July 1926. It divides the four branches of the craft into two groups according to skill with these weekly minimum wages: cutters $50 and $40; operators $45, $36; nailers $37, $30; finishers $35, $25. Any unionist working below the scale is disciplined and the manufacturer interviewed by the union manager.

Temptations to pay below the scale are greatest in the long dull season. The busy season when everybody has work begins July 15 and ends Dec. 15. Wages then rise above the scale, reaching the wartime peaks for the best workers. But in the rest of the year less than 50 per cent of the membership finds employment in the trade.

The solidarity of the Chicago local is evidenced by the approval with which the secretary records the slogan of one of the shop chairmen: "All stand together, when anything arises that the boss won't agree to. Everyone take off their aprons at once."

Wall Street Knights Calles

Wall Street has given the Calles government of Mexico its final approval. It has noted his courtly demeanor as he knelt before it, tapped him on the shoulder with its dripping blade and bade him rise—a full-fledged knight of American imperialism.

Capitalist dispatches tell of an interview handed out by Ambassador Sherman. This Wall Street tool gives Calles high praise:

> President Calles is the right man for the right place.
> From the satisfactory interview I had with him this week I am convinced that he is attempting conscientiously, fearlessly and energetically to carry out the program which he outlined at the beginning of his administration in December.
> He is a most satisfactory official to treat with because he knows his mind, makes decisions quickly, acts above board and says exactly what he means. One knows where he stands in dealing with General Calles. He never keeps one waiting when delay is not necessary.

Part of the program referred to consists of handing the Mexican railways over to Wall Street investors, breaking up the railwaymen's union, turning over the natural resources of Mexico, notably oil wells, mines and water power, to American plunderers, and preventing the breaking up of the big estates for the benefit of the peasants.

On the same day that the interview with the American ambassador appears is another news item announcing that all interests developing new oil wells in the vicinity of Mexico City will be relieved of taxation.

Calles has the full support of the official Mexican labor movement which means that the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor did a good job at El Paso and that, betrayed by their leaders, the Mexican masses have a long, hard struggle ahead of them—a struggle in which most of their energy will be absorbed by the needed effort to maintain living standards slightly above the level of a Digger Indian.

With the Panama Canal, a great American naval and military base, to the south of them, and the tremendous weight of the United States pressing on them from the north, the Mexican people are caught as in a vise. The pressure will squeeze from them untold wealth—copper, lumber, oil and golden streams of interest on the usurious loans forced upon the Mexican government.

The labor fakers of Mexico and America will share in the loot and weld the chains a little tighter on the Mexican workers whenever Wall Street so orders.

Under these circumstances the work of the Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League becomes of major importance. Its fight is for the freedom not alone of the Mexican workers, but of the toiling millions of Central and South America and the American workers strangled and sold by the imperialist tools in our labor movement.

War on Little Tyrants

One of the demands of the striking clothing workers in Bridgeport, Connecticut, is of more than usual interest—that foremen using abusive language to workers be discharged.

It may be an oversight on our part, but we do not recall having seen such a clause in strike demands for a long, long time. That it has been included in theirs by the Bridgeport workers shows that there is at last a recognition of the increasing tendency towards tyranny in American industry. It is time the underlings of the big bosses were handed a little of their own medicine.

Modern industry strives deliberately to create a slave state of mind in the workers, and foremen and superintendents are supposed to help this along by keeping the workers in their place. Resentment of abuse from foremen and straw-bosses is punished by instant discharge. This serves to cow the rest of the workers and the tyranny increases.

Just as important as higher wages and shorter hours is insistence by workers that they be treated as human beings. Machine industry takes enough toll from the bodies of workers without their misery being added to by indignities carefully calculated to make them feel inferior to the boss and his satellites.

Let the workers reverse the process, fire a few foremen and the rest of the slave-drivers will watch their step for a while at least.

It is a good thing to remember that the capitalist press is publishing just about as much truth about the situation in the Balkans, as they have been giving space to with regard to the struggle of the workers and peasants of the Union of Soviet Republics during the past eight years. Which is none at all.

The Big Boss Forgives

Joseph Caillaux, finance minister in the Painleve government, need not worry over the attacks of the royalists and extreme nationalists. His appointment to one of the most important posts—if not the most important—in the government has been sealed with the approval of the House of Morgan.

Caillaux was a "traitor" to France during the war. He was charged with illegal commerce with the "enemy," found guilty and sentenced to banishment. That was five years ago.

France won the war, or at least Germany lost. But it is beginning to look as if the only winning power was Wall Street, representing the American bourgeoisie. Today the American dollar is more imperious in Paris than the threatening notes of the kaiser when his great armies were goose-stepping their way to the Marne.

French finance is a jungle. The tigers who helped to arouse the French nation to frantic fury against Germany have retired from the field. The "traitor" Caillaux is called in as a pinch hitter for French capitalism. Clemenceau and Poincare grind their teeth with rage. But Morgan advises them to chew softly. His sensitive aural nerves are irritated by the rasping noise from the anti-Caillaux molars.

After all, Caillaux was only a traitor to one group of the French bourgeoisie, the pro-British group. In the eyes of the pro-German group he was a hero. And tho Morgan is the financial agent of the British government in America, this financial marriage does not prohibit other relationships. A sailor may have a home in every port, but practically every European government is a concubine of the House of Morgan.

So Joseph Caillaux may come to the United States to head the delegation that will seek to liquidate the debt quarrel between France and Wall Street. Morgan has given Caillaux a clean bill of health. "Regarding his war record," declared Thomas Lamont, "that is a thing of the past and forgotten." Sure. But had Caillaux been a revolutionist, out to overthrow the capitalist system, instead of being a tool of certain big French interests, he would now be rotting in prison as so many French workers are. The big boss forgives a useful tool of capitalism for his war-time indiscretions.

"Mutt and Jeff" are getting more publicity out of their hunting trip in Africa, than the decendants of Theodore Roosevelt, who are on their way to Asia for a similar purpose. This is only one indication of how the offspring of the "Bull Moose" have fallen.

Farrington's Non-Union Candidate

Farrington's handpicked candidate for the office of president of Sub-district 4, District 12, United Mine Workers of America, is not even a member of the union, altho one of Farrington's executive board members.

The attempt to substitute Freeman Thompson, the militant, by this kind of an individual, who, altho acting as a salaried officer of the union, does not take interest enough in it to pay his dues.

The exposure of the real status of Walker has made Farrington the laughing stock of Sub-district 4. The miners are remembering that Duncan McDonald was expelled by Farrington from the union on a technicality arising over dues payments made not being entered on the books and feel that Farrington has put himself completely out of court so far as having a real candidate for the office of sub-district president is concerned.

It is now clear to everybody interested in the dispute that Farrington made servility to his machine the real qualification for office and not loyalty to the union and the interests of the rank and file.

The boss-loving officials of the unions scan the dues payments of the left wingers with great care, but they are very lenient with their lackeys.

The red flag is raised over the embassy building of the Soviet Union, in Tokio, and the standard of the Communist International comes a little closer to the United States of America.

Forgeries and the Class Struggle

No imperialist plot seems to be complete these stirring days without a forged Zinoviev letter.

The markets for these forgeries have suffered in western Europe as a result of the exposure of the election fraud in Great Britain, but in the backward Balkans there is still some demand. The terrorist Zankov government of Bulgaria appears to be the latest purchaser of a complete stock of Zinoviev letters, but the British labor movement has risen to the occasion once more and the London Daily Herald, its official organ, publishes a complete expose of the manner in which these forged documents have been given international circulation.

A thriving business in forgeries is done by the czarist emigres in Berlin and whenever a Communist plot is needed they furnish the documentary evidence at so much per.

Such methods may be of some temporary value to the imperialists, but the class struggle does not consist of documents—forged or genuine. It is something far more purposeful and real as the Zankov government is learning thru the courageous struggle of the workers and peasants against its brutalities.

Tens of thousands of DAILY WORKERS distributed at the factory gates on Friday, International May Day, will mean a greater English-language Communist daily in the United States.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

BERTZ (Germany) reads the answer of the delegation of the Communist Party of Germany to the statement of Brandler and Thalheimer. In this answer, the statement of Brandler, Radek and Thalheimer is characterized as an obvious maneuver aimed at erasing the impression which the verdict of the highest party court of the Communist Party of Russia will surely have upon the Communist workers.

Brandler, Radek and Thalheimer are using the enlarged executive for the purpose of creating a legal platform for their factional activities, by means of a declaration of their pretended agreement with the decisions of the Comintern.

This maneuver will neither surprise nor confuse any member of the Communist Party of Germany. For more than a year, the right factional group in the Communist Party of Germany under the direction of Radek, and the faction-emigrants in Moscow, have pursued the same opportunist united front policy with respect to the executive of their own party, and the executive of the Comintern—as they have done in 1923 with respect to the menshevist class enemies.

THE policy of Radek and Brandler on the one hand, and the policy of Bolshevism on the other, are not yet exhausted historically; on the contrary, they are historically and practically more alive than ever.

It is necessary to continue and to intensify the ideological fight against Brandlerism and to exterminate its last remnants among the membership.

The statement made by Brandler, Radek and Thalheimer, to the effect that are fully in accord with the theses of Zinoviev, clearly reveals their intention of driving a wedge between the Communist Party of Germany and Communist Party of Russia, and between the Communist Party of Germany and the Comintern.

Radek, Brandler and Thalheimer have abused the Communist principle of democracy and the right of discussion, which they misused as offensive slogans against the German central committee. The Communist Party of Germany will ruthlessly suppress every attempt to carry on factional activities, every breach of party discipline, and every interference with its policy. The Communist Party of Germany realized that if it yields to the intentions and sentiments of Brandler, Radek and Thalheimer, it will be lost; that is why the party has conducted an ideological fight against Brandlerism even after October and until this very day, with such severity and intensity, down to the lowest units of the party.

In order to stave off the Brandlerist danger, the party had to expel a small group of factionalists. Today as ever, the Communist Party of Germany is ready to liquidate the last remnants of factional struggles, but a sure way of doing this is the complete extermination of Brandlerism. (Applause.)

RUTH FISHER. I only wish answer Clara Zetkin, since the German question has been so little discussed here. The Communist Party of Germany is in a very difficult situation, since the tendency in Germany is not an ascending one as in France, or a peaceful one as in Czecho-Slovakia.

The sham stabilization is giving rise to illusions among the workers, which renders the party's position more difficult. The party must judge the situation as it really is, and must pursue a correct political policy, altho the presidential election cannot automatically be compared with the reichstag elections, yet the relatively high numbers of social democratic votes and the low figure for the Communist was somewhat surprising.

In the industrial areas the results were comparatively good, but in the agricultural districts like Bavaria they were bad. Besides organizational defects, our errors consisted in the circumstances that the party, scared off by Brandler's tactics, failed to combine our irreconcilable attitude towards the social-democratic party with an unmasking of that party.

MOREOVER, the workers feel the constant monarchist danger. The question of monarchy and republic is very complex, since the best revolutionaries were murdered in the name of this bourgeois republic, yet we cannot take up a neutral attitude in the question of monarchy or republic. As regards the trade union caucuses, the figures cited by Zetkin are incorrect.

Passing over to the inner-party policy of Zetkin, the speaker points out that most of the complaints were all due to the parliamentary mandate involved in this case. After the party congress the central committee made peace with all districts, and carried out the trade union policy, when the right factional activities set in. The work of Bolshevization would have made greater progress, had not the right factions disturbed us in our work.

The right is carrying on a struggle against the Comintern and our party policy: they disturb our party work. This may end with a complete swing into the enemy's camp. That is why the central committee has fought and is still fighting against this factional activity. In the struggle against the right, the central committee will Bolshevize the party.

UNDER a storm of applause Comrade Zinoviev made his concluding speech. "Our statement on the partial stabilization of capitalism has given rise to an orgy of jubilation in the bourgeois and social democratic camps. The Vorwaerts wrote: 'It is the end of the world revolution.' I look upon the session of the executive not as a stabilization conference of capitalism, but as upon the Bolshevization session of the Comintern.

"We must not draw any false and exaggerated conclusions from the partial stabilization of capitalism. Since 1917 we are living in the period of imperialism, and partial occurrences do not change the situation as a whole. We must not confuse the world with Europe, or Europe with Germany. No exaggerated conclusions should be drawn from the German stabilization. It is true that in Germany there is no acute revolutionary situation, yet the world situation remains objectively revolutionary.

"WE must learn to see the difference between the class struggle in the pre-war period and the class struggle after the war. The present class struggles are permeated with elements of civil war—even in the stabilization period. Imperialism reigns but its domination is limited by its fear of the proletarian vanguard and the Comintern.

"Even Lloyd George considers England's position bad, and in case no improvement sets in—as catastrophic. In France there is a crisis; in the Balkan countries there is not a sign of stabilization; and in Germany there are signs of a revival in the labor movement, despite the Dawes plan.

"In Russia, there was between 1907 and 1917 a stabilization of czarism. But the Bolsheviks continued the revolutionary struggle, because they recognized the importance of the subjective factor.

"No one knows how long the stabilization period will last; that also depends upon the working class and the Communist Parties. During revolutionary periods, the pace of history is a quicker one.

"After the revolutions of 1848, 1871, 1905, the working class was crushed. At present there is no crushed working class, only the revolutionary forces are not yet mature.

"EVEN in Hungary, Finland and Esthonia, the movement is experiencing a revival. The characteristics of our epoch are different from those of former revolutions.

"In the first place, the Russian working class has already won a definite victory; in the second place, the eastern peoples are awakening; in the third place, we are now living after the world war, and in a period of perparation for new world wars, with a more experienced working class; fourthly, the class struggle is permeated with elements of civil war; fifthly, the peasantry is awakening—a factor that was absent in 1871 and in 1905; in the sixth place, the working class is not crushed, as in former revolutions, but its forces are merely not yet mature for victory; and in the seventh place, the Comintern exists.

"I am opposed to the view that the partial consolidation of capitalism necessarily means the weakening of our parties. Between 1907 and 1917, the mensheviks ridiculed us, and pronounced the revolution dead. But the Bolsheviks held out for twelve years and in October they were able to say: it is the end of the social democratic gang, but not of the revolution. . ."

ANALYZING the results of the German presidential elections, Comrade Zinoviev says: "We have lost many votes because the presidential elections interest the workers less than they did in Finland and in America. The polling was lower. The Germany workers fear the danger of a monarchy. The Communist Party fights for a proletarian republic, but it must treat the question of monarchy or republic in a Bolshevist manner. The view that the monarchy and the republic are the same to us is false, and revives the errors of Lassalle in connection with the 'compact reactionary mass.' The party must know the parties and factions of the bourgeois well.

"We must understand the psychology of the working masses, and we must know, tho not share, their republican illusions. We are going thru a period of reaction, but the German recess will not last long, since Germany is vanquished, the working class is strong, and the imperialist epoch is on."

POLEMIZING against Kreibich, Zinoviev says that Kreibich was Radek's agent. Kreibich speculated on differences of opinion in the Comintern, and Comrade Bucharin has already pointed out that these were but the gossip of the bankrupt right. Kreibich's tone was that of Crispien and Levi. As a Communist, Kreibich is politically and innerly bankrupt. Kreibich and Rutchik represent the right dangers in Czecho-Slovakia, just as Brandler, Rosmer and Souvarine represent the right dangers on an international scale.

Kreibich has broken his inner connections with the Comintern. The speaker fears that Kreibich's present visit in Moscow is his last one. He warns Kreibich that the eleventh hour has arrived for him.

The matter of Vercik has been decided by the International Commission of Control, whose verdict can be appealed only at the world congress. It does not suffice to accept the theses in words, as does the Czecho-Slovakian right; the theses must be carried out in practice. What would Lenin say now? He would say: (1) Learn; (2) Remain Bolshevik mass parties; (3) Fight against the right without making any concession to the extreme left; (4) The period of partial stabilization of capitalism should be the period of the stabilization of the Comintern and the period of Bolshevization; and (5) Do not underestimate the subjective factor, i.e., the vanguard of the proletariat, the Communist Party. There are two perspectives: (1) Crises of discouragement, and (2) To differentiate the situation in each country, and to make of the Communist Party the only party of the working class—in spite of all reaction. The Bolshevik is recognized best in periods of depression. The Bolshevik is able to hold out. We do not worship stabilization kneeling; we Bolshevize our parties and make of them the party of the working class. (A long stormy salvo of applause; the International is sung.)

Thereupon, the political resolution was adopted.

SHIPPING PLUTES ASKED TO TELL CAL WHAT TO DO

Why Not? It's Their Government

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 26—A national conference of commercial agricultural and shipping interests will be organized by the United States Chamber of Commerce to meet President Coolidge's request for assistance in formulating a permanent government policy toward the American merchant marine, it was announced here today.

The chamber of commerce will attempt to provide these suggestions by a thoro investigation of the shipping situation. Their primary purpose, it was said, will be to offer recommendations toward maintaining the American flag on the seas.

Four broad questions will be considered:

1—Relation of shipping to American foreign trade and the national defense; 2—Government regulation of the shipping industry; 3—Government aid to shipping, and 4—Disposal of government owned merchant ships.

No Nearer Solution.

The inquiry will be conducted by special committees on which all interests, commercial, industrial and agricultural, will be represented. The findings will be submitted to the president and to congress.

"This problem is one that involves the economic welfare of all branches of trade and industry and all sections of the country," said Richard F. Grant, president of the national chamber. "In spite of all the billions expended, it is no nearer a solution now that it was before the war."

Dual Building Trades Councils Amalgamated

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND — (FP) — Tentative agreement has been reached on a plan to amalgamate Cleveland's warring trades councils. Officials of the building trades department of the A. F. of L. have patched up a truce between the unrecognized council, composed of painters, carpenters and a majority of building workers, and the council chartered by the A. F. of L., composed of sheet metal workers and four other locals. Locals affiliated with both councils were scheduled to make nominations for officers of the joint council April 25 and to vote May 2. The elections will be supervised by the A. F. of L.

Affiliation of the carpenters, numbering 9,500, was declared essential in forming the new council and concessions were made to the unauthorized council to obtain its adherence to the amalgamation plan.

international solidarity of labor and that the Irish workers have stomachs as well as souls or spirits as the fake politicians like to picture that part of the human being that is conscious of its existenece at least, if not of anything else.

NEEDLESS to say, it is not all smooth sailing for the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee. The Free State supporters in the United States try to discredit the committee on the ground that it is run by Communists and that there is no famine. The Irish World, leading Irish catholic and nationalist paper in the United States, refused to accept an advertisement appealing for funds for famine relief. This paper did not even have the courtesy to reply to our communications offering the advertisement. But it publishes a scurrilous attack on the committee written by a contemptible louse named Frank Green, who is about as green as his name, politically.

THIS fellow pretends to be a Communist and was kind enough to write to party headquarters of his intention to join the Workers (Communist) Party after he had attacked the Communists in the columns of a bourgeois sheet. Wise Aleck! He would not consent to accept party discipline until he first did his dirty work thru a reactionary catholic nationalist-capitalist publication. He spewed his venom against the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee, because the secretary spells catholic with a small "c" and commits other crimes, including criticism of DeValera and opposition to dual unionism.

THIS purveyor of "green-goods" stooped to the most contemptible form of lying, known to adepts in the art of intellectual perversion. He concocted phrases out of the whole cloth, put them in quotes and attributed them to the secretary of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee. A distressing feature of the case is, that this fellow Green is American correspondent for The Irish Worker of Dublin, and no doubt, pollutes the pages of that publication with the offscourings of his diseased brain. The rat did not have the courage to mention the name of the Communist he slandered in the columns of the Irish World, but even tho he used a Gaelic translation of his green cognomen, he was smoked out of his burrow.

WE expect this kind of thing from the Spargos, Wallings, Varneys and other renegades who went back to their vomit in return for the shekels of the bourgeoisie. We loathe those people and rightfully so. But compared to this whitened sepulchre of treachery, the stoolpigeons who have come out openly and plied their tirade before our eyes are paragons of political virtue. The path which the workers must tread on the way to their emancipation is not only strewn with thorns, but also with the slime of the weasel-brained weaklings who lurk in the darkened doorways of the working class movement.

LABOR FILMS MUST ANSWER THE CANNED LIES OF TRUSTS' MOVIES

Uncle Sam's department of agriculture has a very extensive motion picture department which knows its stuff, like all other sections of the capitalist state. Now it is going to help the real estate interests of sunny California sell large gobs of climate to harassed farmers and wage workers in other parts of the country.

Under the auspices of the University of California the county agents and leading (land-owning) farmers from every county "will make a five-day tour of a selected section of the state to observe and study agricultureal conditions and developments therein. . . . The department of agriculture will make a film record of this conference and tour, which will round off the pictorial history of agriculture from the days of Spanish mission farming to the present time. A story or thread of romance will run thru the picture to give it human interest as well as educational value."

Canned Propaganda.

The thread of romance is going to be heavy enough to hang many a poor nester who will believe all he sees in the canned propaganda so obligingly furnished the real estate boomers by their department of agriculture. Why not? The department of the interior finds the oil for the trust, why should not the department of agriculture advertise their real estate?

Labor Film is Answer.

This only one tiny instance of the use of the motion picture in support of the capitalists and their order. The use of the printing press is old stuff to them, and the film camera is new and immeasurably more effective. The labor movement must take a page from their enemy's book.

We recognize the need of fighting the bosses' press with our own papers. We must come to the point of fighting his films with our own. A small but constantly growing list of workers' films has been prepared by the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago. A list and full particulars on expense and other details will be furnished on request. The labor film is the only effective answer to the celluloid propaganda of the employers.

U. S. MINISTER TO BULGARIA INCITES MASSACRE OF WORKERS TO PROTECT MORGAN'S LOANS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 27.—That the ocean of blood of the working class being shed by the murderous regime of Premier Zankov is chargeable directly to the United States government, is revealed in the fact that the American minister, Charles S. Wilson, deliberately persuaded the Bulgarian government to ignore the fact that Jugo-Slavia was behind the bomb explosion in the cathedral and to use the occasion as an excuse for the most barbarous massacre of the working class in the history of the Balkans.

United States Ordered Massacre.

The U. S. minister, acting in the interest of the House of Morgan, which has heavy loans to both governments, and directed by the state department of Washington, persuaded the Zankov government not to go to war with Jugo-Slavia, altho all evidence pointed to the fact that Jugo-Slavian interests were directly behind the explosion. Instead, Minister Wilson urged the Zankov military dictatorship to murder the workers and peasants in order to crush the Communist movement under the guise of reprisals against a mythical attack by "Moscow."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE lying press agents of the Bulgarian government that has fastened the cathedral bomb explosion on the Communist International took good care not to publish the manifesto issued two weeks before the recent revival of mass-white terror by the Communist Party of Bulgaria, to the workers and peasants, warning them that there was a plot on foot to provoke the masses into rebellion, so that the Zankov government could have an excuse to murder its political foes. While it is likely that the cathedral bomb plot was the work of nationalistic terrorists aided by the Jugo-Slav government, there is no doubt but Zankov had everything ready for a blood bath and he was not slow to take advantage of the situation.

AS a matter of fact members of the Zankov cabinet at first blamed the disaster on Jugo-Slavia. But the blame was soon switched to Moscow. It has now leaked out that it was the American minister to Sofia who had [illegible] Zankov that it would be much better to attribute the blast to the Communist International than to Belgrade. The hint was taken. It is very likely that the American minister made a significant rattle in the pocket where he keeps his small change while he talked to the fascist chief. And yet our rulers talk about Soviet interference in our domestic affairs."

PROFESSOR TIMOTHY SMIDDY, who represent the Free State government in Washington felt peeved because some reporter wrote that Smiddy "as minister extraordinary in Washington has no power to negotiate with the American government independently of the British ambassadar." We agree with the reporter that Smiddy is a very "extraordinary" ambassador. But he should have no kick coming, tho he narrowly escaped getting his head kicked off when he collided with the ground, a la the Prince of "Walls," while horseback riding in Washington recently. The Free States flunkey had the honor of running into an automobile which contained a couple of female parasites associated with the Dutch embassy.

THERE are lots of people worse off than Smiddy even tho he can do nothing but twiddle his thumbs diplomatically. He has enough to eat and drink and can afford to hire a steed and gallop around the public parks in the Teapot Dome capital. But while Smiddy burns up money in Washington, thousands of Irish workers and peasants are starving in Ireland and the Free State government instead of helping to relieve their distress does everything possible to prevent news of the calamity from getting to friendly people on the outside.

PEASANTS' INTERNATIONAL ISSUES CALL FOR IRISH FAMINE RELIEF

The famine situation in Ireland which jeopardized the lives of 750,000 Irish peasants and workers is drawing on the sympathizers of the working class in all countries.

The following manifesto was issued by the Peasants' International, urging affiliated bodies in all lands to rally to the aid of their starving brothers and sisters in Ireland:

The Peasants' International—To the Peasants of the Whole World.

Rally to the Relief of the Irish Peasants!

Support the Workers' International Aid!

More than 750,000 Irish peasants and workers are starving.

Last years' crops are almost completely ruined by a natural catastrophe. Our brothers only reaped bitter distress from their fields. Misery and distress invaded their cottages. In the western districts of Ireland since many

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 27.—Five men lost their lives in an explosion in the mine of the Westmoreland Coal Co., at Mill Grove, Pa., according to D. J. Parker, chief engineer of the United States bureau of mines rescue station here, who returned to Pittsburgh after the bodies were recovered from the mine today. An investigation to determine the cause of the accident will probably be made by the bureau, Parker declared.

IRWIN, Pa., April 27.—One man is known to be dead and little hope is held for four others entombed by an explosion in a mine of the Westmoland Coal Co., at Mill Grove, 12 miles south of here, it was said at the company's offices here today.

The five men were working in the mine last night when an explosion blew one of them to bits and entombed the other four.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 27.—A rescue team of six men headed by D. J. Parker, chief engineer at the United States bureau of mines station here left on a special train early today for Mill Grove, Pa., where four men are entombed in a mine of the Westmoreland Coal Co. The rescue workers have not yet reported back to their office here, and it is not known whether or not any of the entombed men have been saved from death.

HERRIN, Ill., April 27—Harry L. Benton, deposed editor of the Herrin Herald, official klan organ of Williamson county, reclined in the Marion jail today, charged with grand larceny.

Benton was jailed at the behest of the Herald's board of directors. His arrest came as a climax to the defeat of the klan faction in the recent city elections.

Benton, according to the directors, destroyed certain affidavits and documents in connection with the publication of a special "S. Glenn Young edition," the slain klan leader. Benton maintained he destroyed only his

MANY PROBLEMS FACE THE T.U.E.L. GENERAL MEET

Special Report on Negro Labor Congress

The regular meeting of the Chicago Trade Union Educational League general group will be held Wednesday, April 29, at 8 p. m., at North West Hall, corner North and Western Aves. An interesting series of reports on the progress of the militants in the Chicago trade union movement will be given. All militant and progressive trade unionists are invited to attend this important meeting.

The report of the Chicago executive committee of the T. U. E. L. will deal with the further steps to be taken in organizing all the progressive and left wing forces in the local unions to put over the left wing programs. In the unions of each industry there exist many burning issues upon which important groups are willing to fight against the bureaucrats. To raise these issues and weld the left wing rank and file together on the basis of these issues is the outstanding task confronting the local T. U. E. L. at the present moment.

Report on Negro Labor Congress

A special feature of this meeting of the T. U. E. L. will be a report by E. L. Doty, organizer of the Negro plumbers in Chicago, on the coming Negro labor congress to be held in Chicago this summer. The question of the organization of the thousands of Negro workers in Chicago is of great importance to the entire trade union movement. The years of experience working among the Negro workers of this and other industrial centers qualifies E. L. Doty to make a thorough report on this question.

CHILD LABOR OF ILLINOIS IS EXPOSED

Investigator Shows Child Slavery

Article One.

By LILLIAN R. BORGESON.

An investigation has been carried on because of a noticed tendency on the part of many of the workers to believe that Chicago was a favored spot of capitalism in the respect that it harbored no child labor.

The workers have been reading of the beet-fields of Michigan, of the cotton fields of the south, of the wollen mills of New England, of the truck farming in Maryland, of the textile mills of Georgia, of the mines of Pennsylvania, and have been feeling, "Oh, well, that may be in other parts of the country, but it isn't here in Illinois."

Illinois Fifth in Line.

And yet Illinois is rated by the childrens' bureau of the United States department of labor as the fifth largest employer of child labor in the United States. This bureau, it must be remembered, tho it carries on many investigations, displays the capitalist tendency of toning down the facts found and it specializes in what the social workers call "conservative estimates." The states named in the order of largest number of children under fourteen who are employed "in gainful occupations" follow:

Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

"No Statistics" Says Bureau.

One child out of every 12 between the ages of ten and fifteen years works. The children's bureau has no record of children under ten, altho it states that in "home work, agriculture and many industries such children do work," but "statistics are not available."

Eleven and seven-tenths per cent of Illinois children work in manufacturing industries, 5.8 per cent work on the farms and 19.4 per cent are engaged in other occupations, home work, stores and the like.

Other articles exposing child labor will follow this one, the first of a short series.

Cleveland Carmen Find Out Promises Lead to Open Shop

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 27.—The streetcar men who were bamboozled into calling off their strike last year in order not to "inconvenience" the republican convention, are tasting the fruits.

When it developed that the company was not going to keep their promise and would offer them only a five cent raise, they "went to law" in the capitalist courts and the case was taken to the Ohio supreme court.

Now the company issues a warning that if they do not drop the litigation, the company will declare an open shop war and deal with the men only "as individuals."

The case looks bad for the workers either way, for, so declares the company, if the sugreme court decides in favor of the company it will at once institute a fight for the open shop on the basis of the decision.

MARY MACSWINEY, IRISH REPUBLICAN LEADER DECLARES THERE IS FAMINE IN IRELAND; SCORES FREE STATE

Mary MacSwiney, T. D., and one of the outstanding leaders of the Irish republican party, in an interview to the DAILY WORKER, emphatcially declared that there was a famine in the west of Ireland and scored the Free State government for its cynical and brutal attitude towards the thousands of workers and peasants who are starving with hunger and are subject to disease from malnutrition, as a result of the famine.

If the Free State government used the resources of Ireland to bring relief to the suffering people on the west coast, there would be no need for outside help, declared the republican leader. Speaking rapidly and forcefully, Miss MacSwiney outlined the causes of the famine, attributing it partly to natural causes and in addition to the negligence of the Free State government which permits English trawlers to destroy the young fish around the coast and thus ruin the fishing industry the main source of livlihood of the hardy peasant fishermen on the west coast.

TREASON OF GERMAN SOCIALISTS TO WORKERS OF GERMANY BASIS FOR VICTORY WON BY HINDENBURG

BERLIN, Germany, April 27.—"The victory of the monarchist, von Hindenburg, was due to the treachery the socialists committed against the working class," the Communist daily, Rote Fahne, declared in summing up the results of the German presidential elections.

The socialists, the largest single political party in Germany, had not only taken part in actual corruption, such as the Barmat scandal, but also proved a weak and servile tool in the hands of the international bankers, headed by Wall Street.

The socialists willingly accepted the Dawes plan which enslaved the German workers, and made a virtual colony of the German republic.

The masses of Germany, in the reaction, elected the monarchist-fascist candidate, von Hindenburg.

Bankers Worried Over Boodle.

The foreign governments are concerned in the election from the standpoint of their bankers. The universal question among the foreign capitalist nations is, "Will the monarchists be able to prevent us from getting our Dawes plan plunder?"

The world powers are prepared to force the monarchists to keep the German workers under the yoke of foreign imperialism just as the socialists did.

BERLIN, Germany, April 27.—The Communist Party of Germany gained several hundred thousand votes in the election which swept the monarchist, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, into power over Wilhelm Marx, socialist-catholic candidate, by a plurality of close to 900,000.

The vote for Ernst Thaelmann was 1,931,593, with the probability that the

'Where Does the Money Go?' Ask Miners

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

W. FRANKFORT, Ill., April [illegible]—Workers' relief has begun in the storm district. The International Workers' Aid is represented by [illegible] White, a miner of Sesser, Ill., assisted by James McCollom, F. C. [illegible] and Mike Rukavina of West Frankfort, who compose the committee.

There is much dissatisfaction in the cyclone zone with the manner in which the Red Cross is conducting its relief work. There is talk hereabout of discrimination and there is much wondering where the $3,000,000 in contributions is finding a resting place since most of the relief is in the form of clothing and necessities that have also been donated and since living quarters, tents, cots, etc., are being supplied by state and government authorities.

Red Cross Makes Money.

It is reported also that [illegible] collected from the miners of [illegible] local unions are being sent to district headquarters where they are turned over to the Red Cross.

Needless to say, conditions in the storm area are very bad. Even the coal sections hereabout not affected by the storm are witnessing almost as much suffering on the part of workers and their families due to the mines shutting down. Grocery bills are months over-due, credit is exhausted. Miners in and out of the storm area, if not faced with actual starvation are certainly due for a prolonged period of the worst kind of poverty.

The Workers' International Aid is now in a position to handle any amount of supplies and money for relief of working class families in southern Illinois. Financial contributions should be sent to the national secretary, George Maurer, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill. Supplies of clothing and necessities can be sent direct to W. Frankfort, care of Storm Relief Committee, James McCollom, 720 S. Logan St., W. Frankfort, Ill.

BARBERS' UNION OFFICIALS FLEE FROM MEETING

Rank and File Aroused Against Reactionaries

The barbers of Chicago at their membership meeting here last Sunday in the Ashland Auditorium gave their pro-boss officials and the International President Shaughnessy who had been summoned here by them to handle the aroused membership a hostile reception and the latter fled from the meeting leaving his dignity behind him.

The meeting had been called in order to "inform the journeymen of the result of the arbitration award." This refers to the recent wage award handed down by arbitrator Bendheim, a tool of the master barbers, who disregarded entirely the demands of the journeymen and decided that the bosses were correct. What the arbitrator said was final and binding according to the fakers. Therefore no one had a right to demand rejection of the award.

Soon as the award was read amidst the jeers and boos of the entire membership, Joseph Giganti, one of the progressives who had been forewarned not to speak at this meeting under penalty of being slugged introduced a resolution disapproving the award. This was greeted with thunderous applause. From then on the meeting

INTERNATIONAL RED AID ISSUES APPEAL FOR VICTIMS OF BULGAR WHITE TERROR AGAINST WORKERS

The American section of the International Red Aid, issued the following statement today on the recent terrorism of the Zankov government of Bulgaria:

The most unpopular government in the world, the fascist dictatorship of Bulgaria under the leadership of Premier Zankov, "The Hangman of the Balkans," is at the present time conducting one of the most vicious and merciless reigns of terror known to history.

This terror is not new. It has been going on since Zankov assumed power by a military coup on June 9, 1923.

CUBAN SUGAR AND AMERICAN IMPERIALISM CALLS FOR THE ATTENTION OF WORKERS PARTY

By RICARDO MARIN

Europe has not yet recovered its balance from the grave economic disturbance produced by the last continental war. Neither the dictatorship of terror nor the treasons of the social democrats are capable of saving capitalism. The working classes are commencing to comprehend, slowly, and after eight years of crisis, that the situation begun by the war has no outcome than the proletarian revolution.

But the entrance of the United States in the conflict marked one of the most interesting dates in the process of capitalist disintegration. It meant not only the beginning of German collapse, but also the starting point of the domination of the dollar over the economic life of almost all countries. The Communist International comprehends it thus, and studies now with great care the processes most necessary to crush the economic power of the United States.

Weakness Makes Easy Victims.

Wall Street seized in its sphere of in fluence, almost all the Latin-American countries. The veniality of the professional politicians and the lack of revolutionary orientation, when not of labor organization, in the Latin American countries, favor extraordinarily the work of the Yankees.

To recount in detail the assaults and immoralities of the agents and representatives of Wall Street would be too extensive. Haiti, Santo Domingo, Panama, Venezuela, (whose president, Juan Vicente Gomez, is a historic blackguard from which the United States will not easily clean itself), are living examples of the political and economic voracity of the United States.

An Example of "Nordic" Rapacity.

The last little business of each one of these countries and the rapacity of the industrial enterprises of the "Nordics" have most firmly consolidated the control of North America over the economic resources of these unhappy countries.

In Cuba, a land of which we wish to speak particularly, General Crowder imposes presidents, finances the treasury, reforms the cabinet, speculates with the income from the lottery and rejects or approves all the political decisions that might weaken or strengthen the power of the United States over the island. The Cuban bourgeoisie accepts the burlesque pretense of liberty and democracy, at which the United States can laugh with impunity.

Yankee Monopoly.

As is well known, the principal source of wealth in Cuba is that of sugar production. Whoever controls the customs house and the plantations of sugar cane, will be master of the island. Well, then, there are in Cuba some 150 sugar plants of which more than 100 are in the hands of North American capital.

The General Sugar and the Cuba Cane Sugar corporation are able to say that they have under their control eighty per cent of Cuban sugar production. The rest is in the hands of Spanish proprietors, timid speculators, with little capital, whose existence is due to vanish in the jaws of the great North American corporations.

Tools of Big Capital.

Located between the capitalists and the proletariat of the country, there is an intermediate class of small holders, mostly Cubans, whom the capitalist of the United States are controlling and using against the proletariat.

But the logical process of capitalist development makes certain that in a not far distant time, these small holders also will have disappeared, absorbed by large industry.

In order to attain this end, banking enterprises have been established for some time now, dedicated to bankrupting the small holders by loaning them money at usurious interest.

Only Workers Fight Imperialism.

The fight against North American imperialism may be truly said to be developed only and exclusively by the working class. The Cuban bourgeoisie and the Spanish capitalists are bound hand and foot by American-imperialism.

Cuba is not a country of great proletarian turmoil, however, some important things have taken place there in recent years. The fight in the sugar plants is a recent example. Only at the end of the last year have they acquired the experience necessary to organize themselves and then next exactly against the government of Cuba.

Last Year's Struggles.

In the month of November, 1924, the Railway Workers' Union of northern Cuba, whose trains cross the most important sugar zone of the island, set themselves energetically to the task of organizing the sugar workers.

In the month of November last year, the peasants' organization, numbering 35,000 members, sustained a strike against the Cuba Cane corporation in which they paralyzed 16 plants and some 14,000 workers, among whom were a good number of sympathetic railway men. Later, it struck against the plants of the General Sugar.

Recently, the DAILY WORKER brought us the news of a strike in the "Chaparra" and "Delicias" plants, perhaps the most important two on the island and owned by the cousin of the ex-president, hated by the working class, Mario Garcia Menocal.

Peasants Weakened by Anarchism.

We do not trust in the resistance of the peasant organization. Apart from the extraordinary interest the United States will have in destroying it, there is in the rural working class a nefarious anarchist influence which the wage working class must force itself to erase. But these are reasons which counsel us to ask the Workers Party a careful study of the problem of Cuba and an energetic assistance to all the workers of that country.

The fight against imperialism in the United States is a most urgent proletarian task of America. It will require all our attention, all our enthusiasm, all our sacrifices. The workers' organization of America must make itself inter-continental, because, above all, both continents are impaled on the claws of Wall Street.—(Translated from the Spanish by H. G.)

WILL THE EMPLOYES OF BIG TRUST EVER OWN THOSE INDUSTRIES? ASK FEDERATED PRESS EXPERT; HE KNOWS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Binkerd's Joke About Popular Ownership of American Industry should be the title of a report prepared for the Academy of Political Science by R. S. Binkerd, vice-chairman of the public relations committee of the eastern railroads. He sees great significance in the fact that the number of individual owners of America's largest industries has doubled since 1918.

Figures in the report show that the number of stockholders in 97 corporations representing major industries increased from 2,537,105 in 1918 to 5,051,499 in 1925. The figures are: Railroads from 660,645 stockholders to 989,949; street railways 275,000 to 550,000; gas, electric light, power 1,250,000 to 2,611,279; telephone and telegraph 107,038 to 371,604; meat packers 65,000 to 100,000; 10 oil companies 23,502 to 161,179; 5 iron and steel companies 130,923 to 223,149; 10 miscellaneous manufacturing and distributing concerns 25,002 to 44,339 stockholders.

These increases are due in considerable measure to the so-called employe and customer ownership campaigns, as shown in the following table which distributes the new stockholders:

Increase in Stockholders from 1918 to 1925	From Employes	From Customers	From Public
Railroads	70,262	47,999	211,043
Street railways	15,000	—	260,000
Gas, electric light and power	75,000	815,955	470,324
Telephone and telegraph	62,649	—	201,922
Packers	7,000	—	28,000
Oil	21,153	800	115,724
Iron and steel	87,696	—	4,530
Misc. manufacturing and distributing	—	—	19,337

The figures, says Brinkard, "show that we are fast creating an economic society in which every responsible adult is tending to become directly—or at one remove thru the savings banks or insurance company—interested in corporate conduct and corporate profits."

Shows Real Situation.

This looks pretty good. Where's Binkerd's joke? you will ask, particularly if you are a conservative university economist who sees a great peaceful revolution taking place in America. Distribution of the common stock of the U. S. Steel corporation shows the real situation pretty clearly.

In the 10 years the number of U. S. Steel stockholders has increased by about 50,000 coming practically altogether from the employes. The 49,152 employe stockholders today own 538,553 shares of common stock. But the corporation's books on March 13 show 24 stockholders connected with the New York financial oligarchy holding approximately 700,000 shares, or nearly a third again as many as the 49,000 employe owners. In fact, 100 big stockholders control 1,123,994 shares of the steel trust's common stock, about 50 per cent of all the shares represented at the annual meeting.

These U. S. Steel figures show the real significance of Binkerd's facts. The corporations are distributing as widely as possible the psychology of ownership without in any sense letting the control slip out of their fingers. It is the latest dodge to combat the labor movement.

Protest Release of Kluxer

INDIANAPOLIS, April 27.—Resolutions protesting the release of David C. Stephenson former K. K. K. leader on bail pending his trial on charges of murdering Madge Oberholtzer were filed with the county prosecutor and criminal court judge today by a committee representing every church and club in Irvington, the suburb where Stephenson and Miss Oberholtzer lived.

Asking swift justice, the resolutions expressed the indignation of 500 citizens at the alleged act of the former klan leader. Stephenson is charged with criminally attacking Miss Oberholtzer and causing her death by refusing medical aid after she swallowed poison tablets.

Stephenson and two defendants were to have received a hearing on their bail petition today but another murder trial caused an indefinite delay.

SMITH VETOES N. Y. TEACHERS SALARY RAISE

Gov. Refuses Aid to 27,000 Union Members

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 27.—Hopes of the 27,000 teachers in New York's public school for the 20 per cent wage increases called for in the Ricca bill that passed both houses of the legislature have been dashed by Governor Al Smith's veto. In turning down the demand of the teachers, Smith passed the buck to the board of estimate and apportionment of New York City, claiming that it had the power to make such increases as it saw fit to do without putting the issue up to the state. It was a home rule issue, he argued.

Dr. Henry Linville, president of the New York Teachers' Union, said his organization was holding, a special meeting to form plans for the teachers' next move. Data in the possession of the union shows that the cost of living in the last twenty-five years has risen faster than salaries: the proposed increases would merely have raised the teachers' standards to approximately what they were at the opening of the century.

Lower Taxes, Bigger Budget in Russia as Industry Improves

MOSCOW, April 27.—People's commissoray of finance, Sokolnikoff, stated at the session of the co-operative conference, that in spite of a considerable reduction of the agricultural and other taxes, the budget of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics for the financial year 1925 has been estimated at 2,700,000,000 rubles, as against the 2.5 milliard rubles budget of the current working year.

The main reason why the increase is possible is that the rentability of the state industries has improved.

MARY MACSWINEY TELLS OF FAMINE

WORKER reporter a copy of Sinn Fein, the official organ of the Irish republican party. The paper carried a lengthy article from the pen of Mrs. Despard, giving an account of the distress she witnessed while on a visit to the famine region.

Rumors were floated that the leaders of the Irish republican party had concurred in the official statement of the Free State government, on the famine situation. Mary MacSwiney denied this. What republican leaders stated, she said, was that it was inaccurate to compare the present situation with the famine of 1847, as was done in some British papers.

Asked if there was any truth in the report that the republican party was considering the question of changing its policy in regard to participating in the sessions of dail eireann, Miss MacSwiney said that this was out of the question.

Bitter Against Labor Faker.

She was bitter in her criticism of Thomas Johnson, official spokesman for the Irish labor party. He is an imperialist from the soles of his feet to the roots of his hair, she declared.

In reply to a question whether she would favor an alliance between the people of Ireland, India, Egypt and other exploited colonies of Great Britain for a common fight against the robber empire, Miss MacSwiney said she was in hearty accord with the idea and declared that the republicans were willing to co-operate with any elements in the struggle to bring about the downfall of British imperialism, and the freedom of Ireland.

Relief Conference Called.

The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee will hold a mass meeting in North Side Turner Hall, on May 8, at which John P. McCarthy, recently returned from the west of Ireland will speak on the famine situation. A conference to organize on a wider scale for the purpose of raising funds for the famine sufferers will be held on May 11 at 180 West Washington street. Labor unions and all organizations interested in this work are invited. Robert Totten, member of the Napper Tandy Council of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic and also of the Plumbers' Union, is secretary of the provisional committee of the local conference.

DRUGS, COAL AND MILK GIVE HUGE PROFITS TO CAPITALISTS AS WORKERS GET WAGE CUTS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Patent medicines, toilet preparations, cosmetics, and all the other devices for enticing dimes and quarters out of consumers' pockets produced profits equal to $15.18 a share for United Drug Co. stockholders in 1924. This establishes a record for the international drug trust, which operates 1,000 retail drug stores in the United States and Great Britain.

Drug Profits.

United Drug made an operating profit of $7,686,020 on $70,112,113 worth of sales, showing that about 11c out of every consumer's dollar went into the profit bag.

Liggetts International in the English branch controlled thru ownership of the common stock. This year it added $1,200,000 to the earnings of United Drug by a special dividend. Complete merger of the two companies is going forward.

When coal profits are reckoned on actual money invested instead of on an excessive capitalization, they appear large enuf to make workers and consumers sit up and take notice. For 1924 the $2,426,570 Island Creek Coal profits meant a return of $17.91 a share to common stockholders. But par value of the stock is $1. So the year's return is 1,791 per cent. Of course that doesn't measure up to the 2,039 per cent of 1923 or the 2,643 per cent of 1922. Still a year's return of about 18 times what you put in ought to be fairly satisfactory.

Anthracite profits also afford no ground for complaint. The Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Co., part of the Morgan combine, reports $7,181,608 remaining for stockholders after all interest, depreciation and taxes have been taken care of. The company's statement shows that it cost $21,444,549 to produce coal which sold for $33,240,922. Stockholders got a return of more than 40 per cent.

Milk Profits $30 on Every $100.

The milk industry which provides a prime essential to the healthy growth of the nation's children, is being steadily organized into a tribute-gathering agency of the dominant financiers. Autocratic governments have always collected revenue by monopolizing certain essentials of life and forcing arbitrarily high prices. There were centuries in which the poor were unable to obtain sufficient supplies of such a common necessity as salt.

So today when we read that 1924 profits of Sheffield Farms, a leading distributor of milk to New York, were at the rate of $30.78 on each $100 invested in common stock we can picture hundreds of children, deprived of sufficient milk because their parents are unable to pay the excessive tribute tacked on to the real cost. The report shows that the actual cost of $44,666,750 in sales was only $24,785,036, that the inflated operating and selling expense introduced to afford an excuse for the tribute added over $17,000,000, and that the net profit amounted to $2,457,668.

Children From the Steel Mills Take Music Prizes From Offspring of Rich

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the yellow press, that toadies to the rich as its first duty, is quite startled in admitting that children of the Gary, Ind., steel district have come out first in a musical contest participated in by children from the "gold coast" districts to the north of Chicago, that know only of the steel mills thru the red glare that comes across Lake Michigan, and of the stockyards thru the odors carried on the wind from Packingtown, to tantalize aristocratic nostrils.

The kept press is as snobbish as the class it speaks for. It labels as the exception anything extraordinary achieved by workers.

It is aghast at the success of children whose horizon is marred by the ugly plants of U. S. Steel, Standard Oil and Portland Cement, to mention only a few, in competition against children who live continuously in an atmosphere created by well-kept lawns, far-spreading trees, singing birds and spacious gardens.

Yet that is what has happened. The Gary team took first place with an average of 740 out 750 points, while the team from Wilmette, the north shore millionaire colony, had to be content with second place, with another exclusive center of the aristocracy, Lake Geneva, third. This was for the grade schools. The Gary high school team didn't do so good; only managing to tie Lake Geneva for first place. The overwhelming majority of the children of labor are robbed of the opportunity of going to high school.

This achievement is only an indication of what the children of the working class could accomplish if the heavy burden of capitalist industry were only lifted from their youthful shoulders, if they could only have an opportunity to develop. But the blight of the black capitalist plague falls upon them, even before they are born. It takes huge toll among them while they are young; children, especially when they are babies, die fast in the shadow of the steel mills. Young men, if they remain in Gary, are fed to the steel mills with the same indifference that pig iron, coal and coke are poured into the hungry maw of this industry. Every ounce of steel carries within its hard surface the aspirations and hopes as well as the blood and agony of the workers. The longing that leaps the privately owned steel industry's high barricade of obstacles to a higher life must be strong indeed. It usually dies stillborn. Poets tell of the great power of music. It must have power to live in the hearts of children in the steel district.

The names of these children from Gary, who won the music prizes show their nativity alien to 100 per cent Americanism. There is Earl Mallinger, Alex Kahn, Charles Seaman, Robert Buchsbaum, Lois Klingman, Charles Bruce, Anna Petro, Mary Petro, May Berg, Cecelia Brunswick—echoes of Italy, Germany, the British isles, and other distant lands. These are the children that the American ruling class is trying to keep out of the United States with its restricting immigration quotas.

• • • •

"Capitalism has but one future for children; to develop them into "hands",—"hands" for its industrial machine.

It does not care to develop them for anything higher than its immediate industrial needs. This is shown in the capitalist conduct of the public schools. How glaring the contrast in the Union of Soviet Republics, where the development of all children for the big things of live is the first consideration of the new social order striving for complete realization thru Communism.

No wonder, then, that in this as well as in every capitalist land the ranks of the children grow in the struggle against the capitalist beast that is their worst foe. The armies of Red Youth, in every nation, the Red Youth of the working class, continue to grow in numbers, with the slogans upon their lips, "Capitalism must go!" "Hail Communism!" Greater youth masses are coming to realize that there is no escape for them under capitalism; just as the whole working class, with greater unanimity, rallies for the final triumph over the last oppressing class.

The brilliant success of the steel district's children is a prophecy of what the whole working class, once released from capitalism's binding chains, binding upon mind and body, can achieve. The day of that release is coming with the triumph of Communism, the victory of the workers.

Officials of the Barbers' Union Flee From Meeting was no longer in control of the officials.

Attacked by Chairman.

A. D. Albright, another progressive attempting to get the floor to speak was almost struck by the gavel in the hands of the enraged chairman, W. S. Leidig who tried to stem the growing opposition from the rank and file in this manner. Albright to protect himself leaped on the platform, and attempted to wrest the gavel from the hands of the chairman. Then Frank Panko, the secretary of the union aided by an extra brave copper tried to beat him up but the aroused barbers rising as one man surged to the platform to protect their cvhampion. At this the brave official beat a diplomatic if undignified retreat.

The DAILY WORKER was very much in evidence everywhere, and credit is due it for exposing to the barbers the truth about the award.

The meeting adjourned in disorder with a newly enlightened membership, and with sadder and wiser officials.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE REPORTED IN SHAM BATTLE

A Mere Incident to U. S. Imperialism

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

HONOLULU, April 27.— "Loss of life has been heavy," is the umpires' report on the great naval and army maneuvers taking place as a test of strength between the theoretical "enemy" and the defensive forces of the United States at Pearl Harbor naval base.

This "loss of life" is, of course, a mere incident in the minds of the umpires. It is reckoned among the price of victory for the stronger of two imperialist powers contending for dominance over the resources and oppressed peoples of the Far East. It is the symbol of what may be expected, however, in the real war that is coming with Japan.

The maneuvers are undoubtedly, intended to demonstrate that both the navy and the army, both in the sea and air, must be strengthened. The other purpose is to show the teeth of American imperialism to the Japanese, in order to make Japan more tractable in the division of China, the hunting ground of all great imperialisms.

Light naval craft and airplanes were the feature fighters of today's maneuvers, two destroyers and a mine layer of the "blue" forces were sunk by land batteries and the "blacks" also lost one boat.

Tom Lewis to Speak at Los Angeles May Day Celebration

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 27.—Tom Lewis, the new district organizer of the Workers Party, District 13, will speak at big May Day celebration that will be held on Friday evening, May 1 at the Co-operative Center, 2706 Brooklyn Ave. Comrade Lewis is a fine speaker. This will be his first public appearance in Los Angeles. The entertainment is provided by the Young Workers' League and the Junior Groups of Los Angeles. They announce a musical program and — — surprises. Leaflets and DAILY WORKERS are distributed prior to the meeting and every means of propaganda is employed by the comrades to get workers to attend this meeting and make this May Day celebration the biggest and best held in Los Angeles.

Begin Freight Rate Hearing.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — With domination of the profitable northwestern coal markets at stake, the interstate commerce commission today opened hearings on the Great Lakes coal cargo controversy.

The issue, involving fifty-five railroads and a score of coal operators, was drawn over a report from one of the commission's examiners, recommending sharp decreases in railroad rates on coal shipments from Pennsylvania and Ohio fields, with increased rates for coal shipments from West Virginia and Kentucky fields.

REACTION CAME, SAW—AND GOT ITS NECK BROKE

Cleveland A. C. W. Has Skirted Slugger

By A. WAGENKNECHT

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 27. — The Amalgamated Clothing Worker shops in Cleveland are alive with a story that has been verified time and again by each successive group of rank and file members interviewed by the DAILY WORKER reporter. The story was first secured from a group of needle trades workers gathered near a restaurant they patronize during lunch hour. And the story, in short, is, that the policy of the reactionary officialdom of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, to starve all those who do not agree with it by taking away their jobs, made its debut in Cleveland several days ago.

Ben Peppercorn is the local manager for the Amalgamated. He secured his office and job thru the support of the left wing element. He knows this, but denies it today. Peppercorn suddenly discovered that the leaflet issued by Local 5 of New York was being distributed in Cleveland, and was to receive a final distribution at a meeting of Local 112 called to discuss the new agreement.

An hour previous to the calling of the meeting, Peppercorn visited Sarah Holzman at her shop and first pleaded with her and then warned her not to distribute this leaflet at the local meeting. Sarah Holzman answered that she thought it entirely within her rights to distribute the leaflet and intended doing so.

Enter, the Villianess

Upon entering the Labor Temple, where the local meeting was to be held, she was met by Mrs. Pepple, a member of the union, who seemed to have secured the authority from somewhere to stop Miss Holzman from distributing the leaflet. The conversation between Sarah Holzman and Mrs. Pepple brought to light that she (Mrs. Pepple) had been engaged to forcibly restrain Miss Holzman from distributing the Local 5 leaflet. Enters here a new Amalgamated phenomenon—the female slugger!

While a group of members were discussing in the hall the threats made against Miss Holzman, a worker rushed to them from the hall to tell them that a motion had been made in the meeting that all those guilty of distributing the leaflet would be taken off the job. In this group in the hallway was the chairman of the meeting and the group was surprised to learn, as they hurriedly entered the hall, that Manager Peppercorn had himself called the meeting to order in a rush to put something over on the left wing members.

"Biblical Interpretation" of Local 5

After this group entered the hall, protests were made against these back alley methods and demands were made by members for an explanation of the reasons for the suspension of Local 5 of New York. Mamie Santora, general organizer and member of the G. E. B. of the Amalgamated then arose and talked about most everything except the reasons for the suspension. She called the left wingers scabs, disrupters, and said that if we are to discuss the differences between Local 5 and the G. E. B. than we may as well discuss religious differences and biblical interpretations at union metings.

Questions from the left wing group were put by the dozen but answers were refused. Then Sarah Holzman took the floor and amid much interruption stated that whereas the official journals of the Amalgamated did not give Local 5 an opportunity to place its case before the membership, that therefore it was the thing to do to issue a leaflet in explanation of their action.

For Free Speech by Members

She talked against taking members off of jobs for voicing their opinion regarding occurences in the Amalgamated and told the rank and file present that this method of persecution and that this onslaught against free speech would not be long endured by the members of the Amalgamated.

Jos. Shiffer, special organiser for the Amalgamated in Cleveland, also spoke against the motion and called the attention of the meeting that all this matter was out of order because the meeting had been called to discuss the new agreement. While talking Shiffer was attacked by a slugger, kept at hand for purposes of subjugating members who want to voice their opinions. As this occurred there was a rush for the door and the meeting broke up.

Reaction Starts Rough Stuff

Sarah Holzman also rushed to the door to distribute the Local 5 leaflets, thinking the meeting had disbanded. While she was distributing the leaflets, Peppercorn took a vote upon the motion among his own followers and announced the motion carried by a vote of 18 to 68. The alarm was then given that the leaflets were being distributed, and presto, the female slugger appeared upon the scene, attacked Sarah Holzman, tore her blouse, grabbed the leaflets Miss Holzman had in her hands and tore them up. Having her hands free to do some fighting on her own account, Miss Holzman began giving Mrs. Pepple a bit of her own medicine until seperated by other members.

The next day Sarah Holzman came to work at the usual hour. Peppercorn however, was already there. He told Miss Holzman, in present of the shop boss, that she could not work there any more.

Peppercorn Gets Stepped On

Last night the local joint board held its meeting. It could be readily seen, that altho only one day had passed since the discharge of Miss Holzman, the Peppercorn group had already sensed the unfavorable reaction of the rank and file to his action. However, as a gesture to the established Amalgamated policy to take away the bread and butter from all those who are not fully with the reactionaries, Peppercorn suggested a motion to suspend Sarah Holzman from the joint board. But not a single member of the joint board arose to make the motion.

Mamie Santora, G. E. B. member, seeing which way the rank and file wind was blowing the reactionary straws, arose and began to plead for the reinstatement of Sarah Holzman on the job. She also tried to muddle the question by bringing in jurisdictional disputes between the local jorneymen tailors and the Amalgamated, charging the left wing with playing into the hands of the tailors. She informed the joint board members that the Local 5 leaflets had already done much harm, because it had led many of the unorganized to discover that the Amalgamated was officered by Jews. Many more unfounded statements were made by her.

Sarah Holzman answered that she was not looking for their pity nor for charity, that she intended to stand by the principles she believed in, that she was much obliged for the recognition given her as an active and loyal fighter for the Amalgamated in the Cleveland needle shops by those who the other day attacked her and encouraged sluggers. She denied disloyalty to the organization and pledged herself to fight for the Amalgamated just as loyally in the future as she had in the past.

In this Cleveland case the Amalgamated reactionaries will have to go slow. The rank and file in Cleveland know Sarah Holzman, are fully acquainted with her years of service in the Cleveland union field and the shops will continue humming with protest which will finally express itself in concrete action against this starvation policy of the Amalgamated bureaucrats.

PREPARE FOR NEXT CONVENTION AND FIGHT FOR PROGRESSIVES' PROGRAM, IS CALL TO MINERS

By ALEX REID

The human auction block of the sunny south, with all its tragedy, the selling into slavery of colored workers to tend the plantations and homes of the degenerate "blue bloods" of the southern aristocracy, was—as an institution—a preacher's heaven, pure and decent, compared to the annual sale of human flesh and blood held by the officials and delegates to the American Federation of Labor conventions.

The English language cannot furnish words harsh enough to condemn and expose the delegates to the last convention in El Paso. And leading this parade of class traitors, was our "own" delegates, Green, Lewis, Farrington, et al. Feeling secure in their office, they brazenly and defiantly betrayed the workers in every move made, and as a coal miner, I ask: "What are we going to do about the betrayal by our miners' delegates? What are we to do to prevent similar betrayals in the future?"

Miners' Delegates All Reactionary.

Nowhere in the record is found a miners' delegate supporting a progressive policy. Everywhere with voice and vote they consistently sold the wage slaves to their masters.

They voted for the private ownership of the country and all that goes with it. Bill Green, our traitorous representative even repudiated his former position of government ownership or even regulation of railroads. He sold himself to capitalist monopoly and today enjoys his reward as chief of the A. F. of L.

They endorsed insurance schemes, "labor" banks, "B. & O." class collaboration, indulged again in a red baiting orgy, threatened all progressives in the land, endorsed Davis' policy of deporting progressive workers across the seas for inquiring into business affairs, endorsed fake "workers'" education by the A. F. of L. bureaucracy, endorsed militarism, snowed under all relief proposals for unemployment, all proposed amalgamation and finished up with booze and bull-fighting in Mexico.

First Must Clean Out Traitors.

Brother miners! How much longer are we going to permit our officials to betray us. We are paying them enormous salaries and expenses for representation we do not get. We will never be able to fight our enemies, the coal maguates, while our officials are continually betraying us. Our first fight is against our treacherous officers. We must clean them out of office if we intend to get anywhere.

What the hell do unemployed and starving miners care about labor banks? They have no money to buy oatmeal, far less to put in banks run by labor fakers. Why did Lewis, Farrington and the "Guesser" Green refuse to bring up the terrible unemployment situation at El Paso? Because it would be unpleasant, irritating and even embarrassing. The very idea! Expecting consideration for workers at an A. F. of L. convention!

A $3,000 Joke.

Phil Murray was another one "our" delegates, as he also was the joke of the International Mining Congress in Europe, acting as self-appointed delegate to the continent as he was not elected by the miners, but just the same traveling abroad at the cost of $3,000 to the miners while their families were starving to death of unemployment with "no funds" in the treasury to help them.

The bi-annual convention of the U. M. W. of A. is drawing close again. That is the time for action. Now is the time for propaganda. The A. F. of L. convention is supposed to deal with the labor movement as a whole. Already steps are being taken to line up the American labor movement with the Amsterdam International of class traitors, and it is necessary for us to use all power to agitate for affiliation with the Red International of Labor Unions in line with our militant English brothers.

Prepare for Struggle

Our delegates are going to do nothing behalf of international unity with the R. I. L. U. unless we, in our U. M. W. of A. national convention, lay down the policy which must be followed by our delegates to the A. F. of L. convention.

An amendment to the Miners' International constitution is necessary, making it mandatory on all delegates to A. F. of L. conventions to work and fight for the policies laid down in our Miners' International convention, with proper constitutional penalties for its violation.

Control Your Delegates.

In this manner we will be able to control the delegates and to that extent get representation which we do not get now. Remember that at our last convention Farrington made a bitter tirade against the instructed delegates and was ably seconded by "Weeping" Walker, who tried to get the delegates to betray their instructions from the slaves of the picks. "Let your instructions go to hell, and vote the way we tell you," said Farrington. The delegates stood true, however.

If the delegates go to Indianapolis next January determined to have a constitutional guarantee enforcing obedience to your instruction by delegates to the A. F. of L., other organizations will soon follow the miners.

Fight for the Union.

Now for immediate work. Miners everywhere must get busy. The union faces greater battles than ever before. Our officials are fighting on the side of the enemy, the enemy which hopes to break our union. We miners must not permit it. We will fight with any and all means, even death, for our union. But they are trying to cut our wages, lengthen our hours, steal our conditions for which we have fought for so many years of bitter struggle.

These conditions are written into our contract with the blood of our sacrificed brothers, yes, burned into it with the fire that has charred their bodies in the flaming pits. These conditions will be destroyed only if we are destroyed. Pana, Ludlow and W. Virginia have not been in vain and woe unto them who attempt to destroy our union!

The Progressive Program.

The progressive miners' program calls for fight against wage cuts, no clas collaboration with operators, the six-hour day and five-day week, unemployment insurance from the industry, guaranteed minimum weekly wage, one year contracts, nationalization of the mines with workers' control, immediate alliance with railway and transport workers, a convention of all workers' unions in America to form plans for defense and offense against the assaults of the capitalists and to consider affiliation to the labor unions of the world.

Brother miners! Nothing is given without you fight for it. Our program must be fought for. Our officers who give up to the enemy without a struggle are our deadliest enemies and must be removed from our unions. Take up our program under "good and welfare" in all miners' unions, with your buddies and neighbors in the mine, at the switch, when you meet for lunch, on the streets, in your lodge, everywhere and all the time. And organize! Organize your progressive miners' committees to fight for the progressive policies!

Locals Do Good Work While Reaction Rules Seattle Central Body

SEATTLE, Wash.—While the Jepsen gang of reactionaries are enjoying, if they can, their "victory" of unseating the Communist delegates from the Central Labor Council, local unions which are progressive are joining in the work of the Labor Defense Council to defend workers persecuted by capitalism.

The following locals are now affiliated to the local Labor Defense Council: Boilermakers' No. 104; Building Laborers' No. 242, Coopers' Union No. 120; Machinists No. 79; Maintenance of Way No. 316.

Capitalists Have No "Democracy" to Spare for Jailed Wobblies

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—The state supreme court has denied a rehearing in the case of 27 I. W. W. members arrested in Los Angeles and convicted of criminal syndicalism. The case will not be appealed to the U. S. supreme court, for the defense cannot afford the expense. J. C. Robinson, convicted with the other 26, had decision reversed and has been released from San Quentin, where the others must serve from one to 14 years each. The supreme court states that the San Pedro strike, the cause of the arrests, was "riotous and tumultuous," without mentioning that the riot and tumult all came from the ship owners and their allies—as witness the destruction of the Marine Transport Workers' hall and the scalding of I. W. W. children with boiling coffee.

CAPPELLINI BAWLED OUT BY MINERS

Members Hurl Defy at Operators' Lackey

WILKES BARRE, Pa., April 27.—At a special meeting of Local Union 1483, U. M. W. A., Wilkes Barre, Rinaldo Cappellini, district president, was called on to give an account of himself and his administration in permitting several grievances of the local union to rest with the boss-controlled conciliation board for now nearly two years without settlement.

Accompanied by a battery of other officials, Cappellini, speaking alternately in the Italian and English languages, tried to convince the miners assembled that he was the best president they ever had, and that he was fighting every minute of his life for them against the operators.

Lots of Excuses.

Glossing over the fact that during the eighteen months of his administration there has been so far 610 strikes and thousands of grievances yet unsettled which ultimately will bring more strikes, he made the weak excuse that he has many enemies, mostly his field workers, using their office in order to build a machine to effectively fight and embarrass him.

He didn't state why he didn't fire these field workers, since they are but his appointees. Accusing the deposed local officials of the Pittston field for being the paid employees of the coal company and responsible for the recent strike of the 12,000 miners of the Pennsylvania Coal company, he didn't take the trouble to state why the coal company refused to work the mines affected after the strike until the local officials were removed.

In a recent press statement Cappellini accused Brennen, ex-president and candidate again, for getting the men to strike so as to embarrass Cappellini.

Skins Cappellini Alive.

The miners listened attentively until Cappellini was thru, and then the fireworks began. Cappellini expected applause, but applause at that meeting was about as scarce as frog hair or hen's teeth. In fact, there wasn't any.

The first spokesman of the rank and file was Pat Toohey, who, in a lengthy review of the administration of the faker, literally tore the hide off of him. Exposing the union-splitting tactics of the Lewis gang, of which Cappellini is a part, Toohey recounted the revocation of the charters of the twelve "Pennsy" locals, the present situation at the Woodward colliery arising from their charter being revoked some time ago by Cappellini.

The "conciliation board" also came in for a scorching when the speaker explained slowly and in detail to the miners the procedure of this board and who controls it, and the reason why the grievances are unadjusted and when they are "adjusted" why it is that the miners are the ones to be usually on the losing end. Toohey was greeted with prolonged applause when he told the faker to his teeth that he was not capable of conducting a banana stand, let alone a district organization.

Rank and Filers Take the Floor.

Miners and officials from many other locals were present so that they, too, could pay their respects to the faker. Cappellini has not been seen much of late, and getting him to a local union was an opportunity that couldn't be missed.

Man after man, in their broken languages, told Cappellini exactly what they thought of him. In rebuttal Toohey was the prime object of attack by the faker. He didn't take the trouble to answer the charges and statements made by Toohey but launched into a long-winded personal attack.

This local union, at their last regular meeting nominated the progressive slate for district offices.

Trade Union Militants in New York City to Dance on Saturday

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Eastern District and the Needle Trades Section, Trade Union Educational League, has arranged a grand May carnival and ball for Saturday evening, May 2, at Harlem Casino, 116th St. and Lenox Ave. This will be a regular get-together of all active trade union militants.

Many attractive features have been arranged for to make this affair one to be nremembered. An excellent orchestra has been engaged to supply the music for the occasion. Many features have been provided for, but about that there will be more later. Just watch the press.

The purpose of the affair is not only to give the comrades a good time, however. There is money needed to conduct the work. With the summer months approaching there is very little money coming in, but the work must go on.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub or two, will make a better Communist of you.

Minneapolis Painters Find International Lined Up with Fakers

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The appeal of Painters Local No. 186 to the building trades department of the A. F. of L. against the refusal of the local Building Trades Council to seat its delegates because it was a "red" local, is receiving no consideration from the officialdom.

On January 22, five delegates were elected by Painters Local No. 186 as delegates to the Minneapolis Building Trades Council. They appeared at the next meeting and presented their credentials only to have them turned down because the local had issued a statement to the labor press in reply to an attack launched against it by the Minneapolis Star, in which they stated, "that our membership as individuals shall at all times enjoy the right to affiliate themselves with any church, klan, political faction, political party, or social sect that they so desire, without being persecuted by our organization."

This statement was issued in reply to the charge made that the local was under Communist influence and control, and met with disfavor among the right wing because they had endeavored to drive the painters into the same witch-burning campaign that was being carried on by the reactionaries.

After the refusal of the Building Trades Council to seat their delegates, the local union appealed the case to the building trades department. In due time a reply was received that the matter must be taken up by the local thru the Painters' International which was immediately done.

A few days ago a reply was received from Chas. J. Lammert, general secretary-treasurer stating that the letter, "has been received and will be submitted to the general executive board for information."

Not a word to indicate that they would fight to protect the interests of the local union in the controversy.

The delegates of the local were denied seats on January 22, four months ago, but yet not a hand has been turned to compel the council locally to live up to the constitution of the department.

BRICKLAYERS AND PLASTERERS HAVE PRIZE FAKERS

Masters at Making Members Scab

By UNION BRICKLAYER.

NEW YORK CITY, April 27.—At a conference of the building industry held here pertaining to the supposed tieup of $22,000,000 worth of building construction, it was brought plainly and positively to the notice of the workers how the bricklayers and plasterers' "representatives" sell them to both the sub-contractors and general contractors.

This occurs whenever it happens to meet with these representatives' financial approval, as in the southern affair, and not in the interest of the workers. As William Bowen, president of the Bricklayers and Plasterers Union, stated at the said conference, he was working for the sub-contractors' interest and not for the union, as quoted in the New York World.

Union Imports Scabs Against its Members.

Union bricklayers recall the scabby affair of the same bunch of labor fakers, Bowen, Preece and company, when they used the union members of Local 37 of New York city as scabs against the local of Rochester, N. Y., paying their fare to Rochester to scab on their fellow workers for the interest of their masters—who paid them well for the faithful performance of their "duty."

Again, union bricklayers and plasterers recall Vice President Thornton's action in January, 1924, selling Local No. 1 members of Philadelphia to Mr. Adkins, a scab contractor.

And again union men recall the Boston open shop drive in 1921, when the official gang allowed the big boss, whom they pretended to fight, to establish the open shop on our eastern local unions.

Even the Capitalist Paper Says They Break Strikes.

It is laughable to think that these labor fakers can be bought so cheaply by the masters and still expect the bricklayers and plasterers to look up to them as labor leaders when the very same master who buys them so cheaply tells the world thru their capitalist papers that they are strike breakers.

The New York Journal of April 17, 1925, stated that the Bricklayers' and Plasterers' International Union imported their so-called unino men into Syracuse, N. Y., to break a strike and prevent the workers there from getting a living wage.

The officials of this union are among the champion strike breakers of the U. S. A.

Workers in Big Buildings Slaves, Says Professor

NEW YORK, April 27. — "You say you don't like militarism in America," Dr. Cornelius Gurlitt, president of the German Town Planning Institute and professor in the Technical University at Dresden, remarked, "but the workers in your big buildings do not do things of their own volition. They are obeying orders from many people all day long. The men who live and work here seem more like numbers."

The professor is attending the International City and Regional Planning conference in New York and was commenting on the famous skyline of Manhattan. "The skyline is fantastic but you see nothing but a series of jagged peaks. Not one of the towers seems to have any relation to another. The skyscrapers have dignity for everything great has dignity, but it seems to me they take away the individuality from the thousands of clerks who work in them."

Amadur-Reisberglars Invent Hold-Up

By JOSEPH MANLEY.

American trade union leaders of the reactionary sort show real American inventive ability in devising schemes to retain their crumbling fortunes and leadership. Amongst these latest schemes are those of labor (?) banking and co-operative housing. But the very latest scheme of exploitation of union workers, by those who are suppored to fight against exploitation, comes from staid old Philadalphia. This scheme originated in the fertile (?) imagination of Comrades (?) Amadur and Reisberg, as soon as the details become public no doubt Brothers (?) Hutcheson, Lewis, et al, will gladly and with profit follow suit.

The Amadur-Reisberg scheme has not yet been patented, neither have papers of incorporation been filed in Delaware to exploit it nationally for the benefit of the brilliant discoverers. The scheme is such that every other labor faker of the caliber of Amadur and Reisberg can apply it to those he has expelled from his (?) union.

Anything not Nailed Down

Following the method adopted by Amadur and Reisberg, other labor fakers can now in addition to expelling the militants, rob them not alone of their hard earned cash, but when that is exhausted can take their watch and perhaps their clothes.

The General Executive Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers recently ruled that the expelled members of the organization in Philadelphia were to be reinstated in the organization. The action of Amadur and Reisberg in expelling the militants—the very life and soul of the Philadelphia union—has brought the Philadelphia organization to ruin and almost virtual destruction.

The industry in this great city is in a frightful condition for the workers. Dressmakers who once earned over $30 a week when the union was in its prime, are now forced to slave long hours to earn a bare $12 or $14 per week.

Open Shop Followed Expulsions.

Open shops are everywhere and the workers are being ruthlessly exploited by the the bosses who are triumphant because of the criminally stupid and reactionary methods of Amadur and Reisberg against the left wing.

Following the action of the G. E. B. in relation to the expelled, Amadur and Reisberg proceeded to put it into effect in their own sweet way. It is of this that we write.

Following the ruling of the G. E. B., Amadur and Reisberg announced that the expelled could come back in the organization provided that the cloakmakers paid $40 and the dressmakers $30. Many other provisions were attached to the conditions.

Out on Parole.

For some of the most militant cloakmakers the conditions amounted to a parole, that they would not be allowed to participate in union meetings for two or three years, and if, in the meantime, they misbehaved (?) and broke their parole, then they would be automatically suspended. Herein lies the secret of this new money making scheme of Amadur and Reisberg.

In spite of the objectionable features of the whole business the militants prepared to pay the money demanded. Now we discover the rottenness of the entire scheme. One of the expelled named Salzey, having been out of work for a long time, partly caused by the persecution of Amadur and Reisberg, paid his "instalment" of $20 on the total amount, $20 being all that he could scrape up.

Last week Salzer appeared at the joint board office; he offered to pay the remainder just as soon as he went to work. The worthy Amadur refused to accept the $10 saying that unless the full amount was paid Salzer could not get work.

Highwaymen at Work.

A few days following, the shop in which Salzer worked again started up. No sooner had Salzer begun to work than the chairman of the shop stopped him, saying he was doing so on the instruction of Amadur. An argument ensued. Salzer again offered the $10, but the chairman refused, say that he had been ordered by Amadur to stop Salzer from working until the full amount of $40 was paid.

The excitement caused thru the stoppage of the whole shop on the orders of the chairman acting as the agent of the shark Amadur, ran high.

The next morning Salzer again appeared at the shop and this time offered the $10 together with his watch, no doubt thinking to shame the chairman. This caused several workers to put up the remaining $10, but just then word arived from Amadur, that Salzer could not go to work, and that the money should not be taken.

Robbery on Instalment Plan.

This is the most scandalous behavior of which any labor faker has yet been guilty. Amadur and Reisberg no doubt will set themselves up in the permanent "business" of expelling militants and left wingers, then taking them back on the "instalment plan." It will probably be more profitable than the "union business," they have been following. On the present expulsions they stand to collect several thousand dollars. It is from this that they have no doubt gotten their "inspiration."

The needle trades militants of Philadelphia will fight against this new scheme originated by Amadur-Reisberg and Company. The rank and file of the tailors of both the cloakmakers and dressmakers are thoroly opposed to the tactics of Amadur and Reisberg.

Out with Them!

If a fair election was to take place neither of these beauties could be elected to the job of dog catcher in the city of Philadelphia. The needle trades section of the T. U. E. L. will drive this pair from office, it will carry on its fight to reorganize the union and to organize the industry. Let Amadur and Reisberg hang out the pawnbroker's historic sign, the Trade Union Educational League is here to stay.

Before the Sun Sets This May Day.

BEFORE THE SUN SETS THIS MAY DAY hundreds of meetings will be addressed by hundreds of working class speakers, tens of thousands of papers and pamphlets will be sold, millions of leaflets will be distributed, all sounding the call of international working class solidarity.

BEFORE THE SUN SETS THIS MAY DAY hundreds of thousands of workers that ordinarily have no thought beyond the humdrum of their daily grind will gain a new hope, will have their vision raised to a wider horizon, will be inspired with realization of the approaching dawn of a new day.

BEFORE THE SUN SETS THIS MAY DAY these thousands of workers who ordinarily would not subscribe for a Communist paper will do so if you but ask them to.

BEFORE THE SUN SETS THIS MAY DAY you can DOUBLE the circulation of the DAILY WORKER if you will take advantage of this favorable sentiment and ask these workers to subscribe. Start early and keep it up and you will get results.

BEFORE THE SUN SETS THIS MAY DAY every subscriber to the DAILY WORKER should get at least one new subscriber. Make up your mind right now to get yours. Take this copy of the DAILY WORKER and show it to the next worker you meet. Keep on showing it and asking for subscriptions until you have won at least one new subscriber, at least one new recruit for the cause of international working class solidarity—

MAY DAY FAREWELL TO FIFTH GROUP OF RED RAY COMMUNE, SATURDAY

A May Day celebration and farewell party will be held this Saturday, May 2, at 7:30 p. m., at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St., in honor of the fifth group of the agricultural commune Red Ray that is leaving for Soviet Rucsia in a few days. The group is taking along atractor, a lathe and tools for the sum of about $3,000.

The comrades that left for the commune some time before are writing enthusiastic letters. In the last letter they tell that out of the 19 cows of the commune 12 had little ones. About 50 pigs were born on the grounds of the commune lately, and there are 500 eggs in the incubator.

The celebration and party promises to be a lively one. An interesting program is being arranged. There will also be speakers, dancing, etc. Arranged by Russian branch Workers Party and the Red Ray Commune.

SHOE WORKERS OF LYNN WORK FOR AMALGAMATION

Stitchers Local of 2,500 Leads Way

By M. SHARAF.

LYNN, Mass., April 27.—The district council of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers' Union voted to assess the membership twenty-five cents a week for the next ten weeks.

The purpose of this assessment is to start a campaign to organize the open shops. The movement of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union to gobble up the Amalgamated Union, ended desperately for the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. It is admitted by those responsible for the movement that if the results could be foreseen, they would never introduce it to Lynn.

Sent Scabs Against Other Union.

Among the arguments raised by the Lynn shoe workers was the fact that the B. and S. W. U. sent scabs into the Sigman & Cohen factory in Brooklyn, N. Y., at the time the members of the American Protective Union were out on strike.

The American Protective Union was created by the bosses to smash the former United Shoe Workers' Union. In order that this union should not fall under the control of the rank and file, the bosses made the constitution so that it is impossible for the membership to unite with another shoe workers' union.

But with all the tricks of the manufacturers they couldn't stop the militants in that union carrying on a campaign for amalgamation. Your correspondent is informed that so far four conferences were held between the American Protective and the Protective Shoe Workers' Union The outcome of these conferences will undoubtedly be the merging of these two unions.

Amalgamation Movement Strong.

The militants of Lynn, after they succeeded in smashing the assault of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, again revived the movement for amalgamation.

The first move was made by the stitchers' local, with a membership of 2,500, which voted to instruct its delegates to the district council to take up the question of calling a conference of all independent shoe unions.

It will be remembered that the last convention of the Amalgamated elected a committee to call a conference of the independent unions, but that thru the efforts of those favoring the action of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, it was stalled.

A Conference Soon.

Now that the stitchers have taken up the question, it will not be long until the conference will be called. It is also quite certain that the independents are ready for that movement.

Davis' Pal on Bench

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27.—E. J. Henning, assistant secretary of Labor and close friend of Secretary Davis, has been appointed by President Coolidge to the federal district bench at Los Angeles. He was a lawyer in Milwaukee and counsel for the Moose order until he came to Washington with Davis in 1913. Harry Hull, former Iowa congressman, is urged by Sen. Commins for Henning's place in the labor department.

SCAB CONTRACT WRITTEN UP BY FARRINGTON

But Johnson City Men Refused It

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JOHNSON CITY, Ill.—April 16 Local 3192 of the United Mine Workers had its regular meeting. President Farington was present.

The mine has been closed down since February 25, on account of screenings. The company asked the miners to take a wage reduction, that the company was going to take up shooting and drilling for 12 cents per ton.

The men refused to take the company proposal, but some of the 100 per centers insisted on Farrington and the company going ahead and negotiating a new contract. So Farrington and the general manager of the company go together some time in February and drew up the plan.

Farrington Draws Up Scab Contract.

In that plan the company asked for 12 cents reduction and for some of the conditions to be given up that we had under the old contract, but especially the plan provided that the union would not have anything to do with those men who would take the shooting and drilling job, and that the company would have the right to fire any man off that job without explanation.

This proposition was turned down flat in February. But the company want a new contract and arranged with somebody to get Farrington. So he came down April 16 and spoke to Local 3192.

The Usual Bunk.

He talked like all fakers do: "Boys, this is a critical time. We have 318 mines in Illinois shut down. You can have your mine started up if you want to, and I can help you do that. I don't want you to take any reduction. I am opposed to any reduction—but, you have got to co-operate with the operator. How are you going to help the operator? Do it by making better coal, so he can find a market for his product. Our union is in danger and you can serve," and so on for an hour and a half.

He never said a word about the miners' conditions. He said not a word about the pledges made by Governor Small, made to the miners when Small was seeking re-election. He never said a word about the three-year contract. He never said a word about organizing nonunion fields.

A Farrington Puzzle.

But Farrington did not forget to say, in a hinting way, that the Workers Party members were "spies" in the union, trying to break it up. This is the stock lie. He said that they were "paid by the operators." But he went on to say that the operators are not trying to destroy the U. M. W. of A. So, the reader may take his choice of puzzles, why should Farrington want miners to co-operate with the operators who hire spies to go into the union to break it up—or, for that matter, why do the operators pay spies to break up the union if they are not wanting to destroy the union.

This is a Farrington puzzle. He also said there were "elements" in the union who accused him of many things, but they could never prove anything against him. A fellow who can lie that way about what the operators are doing and not doing in the same breath has a lot of gall to ask for more proof.

No Applause for Faker.

But as to applause, when he finished, there wasn't any applause of any kind, and the hall was packed full. He didn't seem to make much of a hit.

Then the meeting was opened for discussion, for local members only. The proposition was discussed pro and con and a motion made to leave the matter entirely in Farrington's hands and let him make a contract with the Old Ben Coal corporation.

A Progressive Forces a Vote.

A progressive miner, however, moved to amend that the contract must come back to the local union for acceptance or rejection. The maker of the motion would not accept the amendment as a part of the motion, but the progressive forced a vote and the amendment carried by 200 votes to ten.

The men here are in desperate condition, but it is certain that if Farrington brings back his scab contract it will be turned down.

There is one small mine here that tried the same game, but the coal came down in one solid chunk and the men would have to kill themselves at that. So the mine had to shut down.

The motto of organized labor should be—Down with class collaboration! Down with labor fakers! Long live the Red International of Labor Unions!

Visit Dead, Meet Dead

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 27.—Returning home after viewing the body of a friend who died Saturday, Michael McGing, 30, was instantly killed and Patrick Munroe, 27, and Martin Canavey were seriously injured when they were run down by a fast Baltimore & Ohio freight train at the Eleventh street crossing at Braddock, Pa., near here this morning. Munroe may die, it was reported at the hospital where he was taken.

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time with time, place and speakers are:

GARMENT UNION WAITS DECREE OF 'MEDIATORS'

But Expect Little of Smith's Commission

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, April 27.—New York cloak and suit workers are waiting for results from the elaborate and lengthy arguments of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union counsel and lawyers for jobbers and contractors before the governor's special mediation commission. The present agreement of the union with manufacturers does not expire until July 16 but workers in the industry are anxious to get the recommendations from the commission which will justify its existence to the union as a substitute for striking.

Little new ground was covered in the last arguments of the lawyers representing the union, jobbers' and submanufacturers' associations. Their briefs, however, will be exchanged and opportunity for further rebuttal in writing given. All the material will then be submited to the mediation commission for final considertaion and the looked-for recommendations.

Union workers are hoping that their demands for limitation of the number of sub-manufacturers, guarantee of 32 weeks' employment, and for the 46-hour week with 10 per cent wage increases, will be recognized by the commission as just in spite of hinted threats of jobbers, particularly, that such demands granted would force them to disband their association and dissolve the union contract.

Union workers are determined not to give up the week work system won with such effort from manufactuers, altho the latter have attacked the change and asked for reversion to piece work. The union workers believe that limiting jobbers to six steady contractors, or sub-manufacturers who hire workers and compete with other contractors now for orders from jobbers or wholesalers, is one of the surest ways of establishing more order in the industry.

As in the dress industry, the many competing little contractors make the enforcement of union conditions difficult and force down wages. The unemployment insurance fund and disposition of superannuated workers are important problems awaiting the word of the mediators.

Y. W. L. CAMPAIGN ON TO ORGANIZE NEGRO WORKERS

Phillips to Visit All Chicago Branches

A committee elected by the last city central committee of the Young Workers League Local Chicago for the Negro work, has just met and outlined a plan of preliminary activities for a campaign to organise young Negro workers, the most exploited of all the young workers.

All the branches and nuclei are instructed to get information from their membership thru inquiry of the factories employing young Negro workers in their territory, as well as Negro residential districts, so that a city wide campaign may be started, participated in by every branch and nucleus.

Survey Under Way

Comrades of the committee were charged with gathering information on the industries employing young Negro workers in the city of Chicago, others were instructed to gather information on organizationse wher many young Negro workers hold membership, clubs, etc. so that we can approach them there.

A systematic plan of work has been proposed for Branch No. 3, so that its program will be balanced and the Negroes gotten into the League and kept there on the basis of our demand, our program and our activity and not merely on sentimental, social or racial lines. They must be drawn into League activity at once and the city executive must at once prepare a series of lectures on the various phases of league work to be presented at the branch by capable comrades. Shop talks should be encouraged and wherever possible, nuclei should be formed at once.

A committee was appointed to draw up a propaganda leaflet containing a combination membership and YOUNG WORKER sub blank. Street meetings and noon-day meetings should be arranged at stockyards and other places where possibilities exist.

Phillips To Visit All Branches

The city is also touring Comrade Phillips thru all the branches to acquaint the membership most thoroughly with our program and our campaign among the young Negro workers and to get the branches 100 per cent behind this activity.

Our goal is to get 100 young Negro workers into our ranks in the next two or three months and with the active support of all the branches in the campaigns planned, with the Negro committee elected by the C. C. C. on the job and with the cooperation of the Workers Party which is also planning a campaign, there is no reason why this modest goal should not be surpassed.

SURPLUS OF UNEMPLOYED MEN DISPLACE WOMEN IN COTTON MILLS AT EVEN LOWER WAGES

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

An increasing surplus of low-paid male labor available to industry appears to be reversing the trend which brought tens of thousands of women into the cotton mills. A study of the industry by Ethelbert Stewart, U. S. commissioner of labor statistics, finds a steady decrease in the proportion of women operatives since 1850.

Women constituted 64 per cent of all cotton mill operatives in 1850, he says. By 1870 the percentage was 62. After a decade of wonderful development of machinery in the industry female employes had dropped to 57 per cent in 1880. From 1880 on the decrease became more rapid, dropping to 44 per cent in 1909, 42 per cent in 1914 and rising slightly to 43 per cent in 1919 as a result of the war shortage of men.

From 1907 to 1924 the bureau of labor has full payroll data for selected occupations from a large number of mills. The percentage of women to the total employed in four of these occupations was:

Percentage of Women in Cotton Mills.

	Frame tenders	Speeder tenders	Spinners	Weavers
	Pct.	Pct.	Pct.	Pct.
1907	52	78	93	57
1908	50	76	91	58
1909	50	73	93	56
1910	45	73	93	54
1911	40	74	90	55
1912	42	73	92	53
1913	49	72	93	54
1914	47	71	93	53
1916	49	63	94	53
1918	61	68	95	57
1920	55	62	95	56
1922	53	58	92	51
1924	46	55	90	48

The decrease in the proportion of women operatives, altho interrupted by the shortage of labor during the European war, is obvious.

Men Work for Less Wages than Women.

Comparative hourly earnings of male and female workers in the occupations shown in 1924 were: frame tenders, male 29.5 cts., female 31.1 cts.; speeder tenders, male 39.4 cts., female 41.1 cts.; frame spinners, male 36.9 cts., female 31.9 cts.; weavers, male 44.9 cts. and female 42.9 cts. Cotton mill owners are finding plenty of men willing to work for approximately the wages paid women operatives.

This suggests a partial explanation of the rather unexpected trend. When power spinning first created cotton mills, women were forced to take jobs at wages far below those to which men were accustomed because the machines had deprived men of their craft. But the enormous productivity of modern machines has created an increasing surplus of male labor, swollen by the thousands who are leaving the unprofitable farms. In this new surplus of labor the cotton mill barons are finding plenty of men at low wages.

U. S. S. R. Buys 357,000 Tons of Flour

MOSCOW, (By Rosta).—It is reliably learned that up to March 20th, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has purchased abroad 357,000 tons of British and American wheat flour.

New Soviet Decree to Stop Landlords' Abuse of Peasants

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, (By Rosta).—The Presidium of the central executive committee of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has approved the bill depriving the former landlords of noble stock and their families of the right to use and live in the goods that had belonged to them prior to the nationalization of land in 1917. This law will affect 5,123 ex-landlords, who have still been living in their former goods covering a total area of some 65,000 dessiatins (2.71 acres) of land.

In the motives produced in explanation of the new decree, it is pointed out that seven years' experience has amply demonstrated that not only did those landlords who were left on their lands fail to carry on cultural economy, but, on the contrary, in most cases, they have been ruining the property which the state had left them in charge of, sabotaging government efforts to raise the general level of agricultural industry in the Union of Soviet Republics, and—generally— trying to exploit the peasants in some way or another, thus often causing sharp dissatisfaction among the farming population.

PRICELESS ART OBJECTS IN THE MOSCOW MUSEUM

Numerous Additions of Famous Paintings

A special article in the cultural section of the Russian Review for May 1, describes the remarkable progress accomplished since the revolution by the famous National Hermitage Museum of Leningrad.

The collections, which had for the most part been evacuated to Moscow for safety, have not only been restored, but numerous additions of priceless paintings, sculptures and other art objects have been made.

Famous Rembrandt Room.

Despite the enormous difficulties and hazards of such an undertaking the evacuated art collections were returned unharmed to the museum early in November of 1920. Scarcely a week after the arrival of the material, the Rembrandt room, probably the most famous art group in the world, was opened to the public, and within six weeks all the twenty rooms of the picture galleries had been restored.

Among the new exhibits opened by the Hermitage Museum is an important one covering the applied arts of the middle ages and the Renaissance, which consists of 15 rooms in a reserve wing occupying one-half of the winter palace. The porcelains in this division are of such wealth and completeness as to arouse the envy of any European museum.

Eastern Collection.

Many other precious acquisitions have been made and interesting new exhibits have been organised by the museum, including a collection of laces of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and sections of Egyptian, Mussulman, Scythian, and Chinese art.

In connection with the various exhibits a number of splendid illustrated catalogs have been published by the museum.

AS WE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty of Ireland. A copy of Sinn Fein, official organ of the republican party of Ireland has an article by Mrs. Despard, member of the Workers' International Relief Committee in Dublin, which draws an awful picture of the conditions under which the Irish peasants are now living. But the government tha shot down Liam Mellows, Rory O'Connor and many other rebels and spent millions of dollars in murdering and scattering the republican fighters for Irish freedom, allow the peasants—the backbone of Ireland—to die with hunger and disease brought on by hunger.

IT is to prevent such a consummation that the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee was organized in the United States, on the authority of the Workers' International Relief which has a section in Ireland, in charge of Robert Stewart. On this committee in Ireland are such women as Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington, Mrs. Despard and Maude Gonne McBride, Peadar O'Donnel of Donegal, well known republican revolutionary leader is also a member. The Irish workers in the United States should lose no time in coming to the aid of their kith and kin at home. The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee, with headquarters at 19 S. Lincoln street, will see that donations go to the needy.

DID you ever hear of the Industrial Round Table? This is an institution which invites prominent business men and labor leaders to luncheon occasionally in order to discuss the problems of industry from the capitalist point of view. Secretary of Commerce Hoover and William Green, head of the A. F. of L., were the headliners at a recent meeting of this outfit in New York. The New York Times is happy in the thought that Green is less violent than his predecessor Gompers. This is funny.

ONE labor leader said he believed in democratic control of industry provided industry was properly controlled. What did the labor leader mean? Surely he does not think that industry should be controlled by the workers! That would be Bolshevistic. Old socialists were fond of rolling their tongues around such phrases as "government ownership, democratically controlled." But the big question was, who should do the controlling?

ONLY a short time ago, the bosses were making great strides in organizing company unions. But since "B. & O." Bill Johnston invented his famous plan of union class collaboration, and the employers discovered that it is ever so much more efficient than a union officially under their control, they have devoted their energies to turning the labor unions into company unions. The labor fakers, usually antagonistic to any kind of a theory for fear the germs of Communism might be lurking inside of it, developed the idea that the real function of a labor union should be not to fight the bosses for better working conditions and more wages, but to co-operate with the bosses in running industry, for the bosses of course.

THIS pernicious poison must be counteracted. The leadership of such men as William Green is a deadly danger to the American trade union movement. It must be fought and driven into the camp of the enemy where it belongs. The unions must be made fighting instruments to force the bosses to cough up more and more of the profits wrung out of the workers and to fight for the emancipation of the workers from exploitation. This idea, given organizational expression by the Trade Union Educational League will conquer the unions for the revolution and drive the Greens openly into the arms of the capitalists while the Fosters will lead the working class to victory over the dead body of capitalism.

Appeal for Irish Famine Relief

months, a cruel, enemy governs, the hunger. Without difference, many people, old and young, are dying.

And "Merry old England"—the countries of "His majesty the King" and of the honorable lords, the bourgeois England of the exchange gentlemen, is celebrating a merry funeral on the tombs of the Irish peasants.

The wealthy England—the England of the bankers, of the businessmen, who understand how to turn pure gold out of the bloody pain of the destitute slaves in the colonies, this England does not make the least attempt to diminish the distress of the Irish peasants, husbands and wives, children and parents.

The terrible famine of the hundreds of thousands of Irish peasants is a very desirable ally for the exchange jobbers, for the men of the city, for the hypocrites the priests "christian brotherhood" for the civilized landlords.

It is their policy of their Great Britain to spread slavery everywhere, on this basis to govern the countries and seas. And yet, the iron heel of English capitalism did not succeed in suppressing the national revolutionary movement of the Irish peasants. We must not admit, not by any means, that this revolutionary spirit is destroyed by this pitiless ally of the ruling classes—hunger.

The corrupt, servile press of the bankers, tries to hide the terrible facts of the famine, which takes the lives of our Irish brothers. It must not succeed. We will not be silent, we cannot be silent.

The Peasants' International, which unites millions of peasants in the whole world, and which works hand in hand with the working class for the freedom of the peasants—the International Peasants' Council appeals to the peasants of all countries, to come to the assistance of their Irish brothers, who are desperately fighting against the famine. This assistance will be the best support, for their heroic fight for the freedom of Ireland, for the common cause of the workers and peasants of all lands.

Workers and Peasants of all Lands.

The whole world has already responded to the cry of distress of your suffering brothers. The Workers' International Relief, this thoro proletarian workers' organization is coming to the assistance of the starving people of Ireland and by its committees all over the world is organizing a campaign for collection of money, foodstuffs, etc. Already distribution of food takes place in the famine districts.

But the distress is great. The campaign of the W. I. R. must be supported by the workers and peasants of the whole world.

The working class already fulfills its duty. The International Peasants' Council greets the W. I. R. and heartily thanks her for the international solidarity and help which it gives to the Irish peasants.

Peasants! It is your turn now! Peasants and workers of all lands!

Do not allow hundreds of thousands of your brothers, tested fighters for the proletarian cause, starve. Every peasant, every agricultural worker, must hurry, to contribute his share, however little it may be. Many people can feed one starving fellow-worker. The peasantry of all lands must support and develop the relief action started by the W. I. R.

The workers have done their duty, now fulfill yours.

Send your contributions to the W. I. R., who aids your comrades. Stigmatize the shameful policy of the British landlords and of the exchange-gentlemen.

Long live the brotherly solidarity of the peasants and workers of the whole world! Up the victory of the peasants' and workers' cause in the whole world! Long live the W. I. R.! Long live the Peasants' International! Peasants of the world, unite!

For the presidency of the International Peasants' Council: Dombal (Poland), Renand Jean (Marius Basell) (France), Otto Rydlo (Czecho-Slovakia), Gorow (Bulgaria), Richard Buergi (Germany), Orlow (U. S. S. MONESSEN LEADS WITH FULL QUOTA

Five Locals Half Way or Over in Campaign

With the Second Annual Sub Campaign not quite at the halfway mark, one city has already filled its quota and five others have reached or have gone over the halfway station.

But these are not the most hopeful signs. The past week has shown decided general gains among other locals. New York, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Springeld, Detroit, Philadelphia and Milwaukee particularly have not only sent in large batches of subs but also show more organizational campaign strength that promises well for the second half of the campaign.

The DAILY WORKER Distribution Week of May 4 to 10 alone is sure to throw many locals to the top of the race. As it stands today here is

Porto Rico to Be Shown

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Sailing orders for the Los Angeles to operate at the captain's discretion were issued today by the navy department on the eve of the airship's flight to Porto Rico. The only destriction was that the Los Angeles cannot fly over foreign territory. This action was taken on receipt of a request from Captain Steele, her commanding officer for permission to remain several days in Porto Rican waters and make flights over the Virgin Island and elsewhere.

Wife, 26, Slays Husband, 52.

MINEOLA, N. Y., April 27.—Mrs. Lottie Bauer, 26 year old mother of two small children today confessed she killed her 52-year old husband, Fred, in their home at Hempstead, L. I., by wresting from him the gun with which he threatened her, and firing a bullet into his head.

SEOUL—Two hundred Korean emigrants perish in snowstorm.

LOVETT FORT-WHITEMAN IN TALK ON NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 27.—Lovett Fort-Whiteman, national organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress will speak here on Wednesday, April 29, at 8 p. m., at the U. N. I. A. Hall, corner 3rd and Walnut streets. Whiteman is a well known Negro organizer and speaker in Chicago. He has some interesting things to relate about the congress. Every white worker as well as Negro should become acquainted with the aims and scope of this organization.

The meeting is held under the auspices of the Milwaukee committee for the organization of the Negro Labor Congress to which the Workers Party gives its full support.

PROGRESSIVE BARBERS FORM CHICAGO GROUP

Plan to Give Series of Lectures for Members

By I. EITINGON.

The progressive barbers of Local 548 of the present cannot be compared with any former factions in our union that called themselves progressives. Such former progressives were not so different from the present reactionaries who control the union. They never represented anybody except themselves, and were plainly nothing else than job seekrs and holders.

Their interest laid in other fields than the raising of the rank and file morale. They always considered the mass in the union as a buch of cattle, ignorant and satisfied. The principal interest of the presessive group is our union. The men who believe in the principles of the group are the most advanced and militant of the rank and filers. Every one of them works all week long at the barber chair. They represent the best as far as mechanics are concerned. Many have large families which they support.

Want Real Fighting Union.

The best interests of the union are those of the progressives. They want a union with a backbone, and a union that is able to enforce its will against the bosses, instead of a weak organization which has to co-operate and follow the dictates of the master barbers.

The group is therefore, a voluntary association of members of Local 548, who think in much the same way concerning the problems confronting our union.

For Workers' Not Capitalist Politics

The group aims at the betterment of our union, and a union united on an international scale. One that believes in its workers having their own political party and one that will be independent of capitalist political parties and bosses. We want a union for the rank and file and not an organization gathered for the purpose of paying business agents' salaries or of being a branch of the bosses' union to follow their will.

The main aim of the group is to educate the workers in our craft. To this end we are going to give a series of lectures on problems vital to the workers. These lectures will be given by brothers active in the union and nationally known labor leaders will also be invited to speak before us.

The Lectures.

The series of the lectures to be given by the Chicago Barbers' Progressive Group will deal with such subjects as economics, arbitration in labor disputes, the struggle of classes, the dynamics of trade unionism, and other interesting subjects to workers.

The time and place will be announced later in the DAILY WORKER. So don't miss an issue from now on. The first lecture will be given by Brother Joe Giganti on the subject of economic background of class antagonisms. Don't fail to come. If you will write to I. Eitingon, 1323 N. Artesian Ave., he will inform you as to the date and place. Every barber in Chicago is welcome.

PACKERS' SLAVES FEAR FOR JOBS, WATCH MEETING

Few Approach the Hall, Others Duck

By TOM MATTHEWS

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa.—The British owners of the Sinclair Packing plant here have their employes well-trained. They love their 37 cent wage like real wage slaves should.

"What's the matter with these stiffs that they didn't show up last night?" I asked a more loquacious slave at the gate.

"You can't get these birds out to anything that will jeopardize their jobs," he responded. "This plant only works three or four days in the summer, but if you make the least suggestion about organization in any shape or form, your job's kaflooy."

This appeared to be true, as a number of slaves loitered about the hall where our meeting was scheduled with the idea of reaching the packing house, but only a handful dared to enter.

The "Company Union"

It appears that Sinclair, too, has its fake company-union organization. Occasionally a bright slave is honored with a wage increase of as much as one or two cents an hour.

About one hundred women workers are employed at wages ranging from 16 to 23 cents an hour for the great majority, only a few with long experience receiving up to 31 cents. Thus are the workers rewarded for their loyalty.

American Policy in Bulgaria

Some one should write a monograph on the counter-revolutionary role of American ambassadors who, with a satchel of Morgan gold in one hand and a sheaf of foreclosures in the other, appear at the headquarters of the bankrupt states at critical moments and deliver ultimatums as to the course to be pursued.

When two or more of the anemic products of Wilsonian self-determination subject to modifications by Lloyd George and Clemenceau, Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria for instance, are about to fly at one another's throats, the American ambassador appears as peacemaker. (Loud applause from the social-patriots, liberals and pacifists.)

But the peace is a peace of dictators and not of peoples. In both Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria the most horrible atrocities are perpetrated on the workers and peasants. The American ambassador does not protest against these mass murders, but sends out messages that "the situation has improved (in Bulgaria). A number of executions have taken place and about 1,500 arrests have been made."

Charles S. Wilson is the American ambassador to Bulgaria. The dispatches to the capitalist press under a Sofia date-line say:

> . . . . . United States minister played a leading role in averting a crisis in the relations between Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia. He visited the Bulgarian office once or twice daily during the trouble, and energetically insisted that it not throw the responsibility for the bomb explosion on the Jugo-Slavian government, even tho it was that the instructions inside the bomb were written in Serbian . . . . . that bombs and arms came from Jugo-Slavia . . . . . that the band which attacked King Boris came from Jugo-Slavia . . . . . the Bulgarian government immediately accepted Mr. Wilson's viewpoint.

It is thru the good offices of the American ambassador then, that instead of blaming the Jugo-Slavian government for the bomb explosion the Zankov government decided to blame the Bulgarian Communists and begin a campaign of extermination of militant workers and peasants with an added force of 10,000 Wrangel bandits which the allied imperialists, over the protests of the Greek and Jugo-Slavian governments, allowed it to recruit.

The slaughter of the Bulgarian workers and peasants is the bloody fruit of the policy of American imperialism. Without a soldier on Bulgarian soil or even on the continent of Europe, by financial pressure alone, the American government dictates policy in the Balkans and wages war on the working class.

It is no exaggeration when we say that American capitalism is the backbone, heart and sinew of world counter-revolution.

The Daily Worker in Jail

The DAILY WORKER has more trouble trying to break into prison than Communists have in getting out.

The Communist daily was a welcome visitor at the Moundsville, West Va., penitentiary, where several miners are incarcerated owing to their participation in a struggle with the employers.

"We haven't seen any DAILY WORKERS since last October," writes one of those workers. The Jugo-Slav Communist paper Radnik was also read eagerly by those comrades, but that too has been prohibited.

The prison warden allowed the prisoners to receive the Communist dailies until his masters put their foot down. This is about as good a testimonial as could be given to our paper. The bosses hate it and fear it. It is up to the workers who are not yet in jail to give the DAILY WORKER a circulation so large that it will break down the prison walls.

If Marx received the almost 2,000,000 votes that were cast for the Communist candidate, Thaelmann, Hindenburg, "hero of the Mazurian Lakes," would be awarded the over-ripe banana instead of the gilded beer mug. Of course, this is another dirty Communist plot, directed and financed from Moscow, under the leadership of the villianous Zinoviev, etc.

The Chicago police may not always succeed in running down their man, but they are smart Alecks when it comes to theory. A few days ago a girl was found dead with three bullet holes in her body. The police positively hazarded the guess that she was shot three times by a person or persons unknown, and ten to one the person or persons will remain unknown.

The blacks and blues are fighting a mimic war for possession of Hawaii, but the reds who fight in the class struggle are in jail.

The German Class Struggle Sharpens

The capitalist press sees in the election of Hindenburg proof of the innate love of the German people for monarchy, but it is nothing of the sort.

The social-democracy and its allies in the coalition offered the masses nothing but slavery to American and allied imperialism with the House of Morgan in the role of slave-driver. Their appeal to the German people was for more widespread and willing acceptance of the Dawes plan, uncomplaining servility in return for larger loans to the industrial lords and more systematic robbery of the masses.

In essence the plea of the social-democrats, the most vociferous section of the coalition, was for compliance with all demands of German capitalism and an endorsement of its policy on questions of reparations and industrial revival. It was an invitation to the masses to weld a double chain around their necks—the chain of the German industrial lords and that of the House of Morgan.

The surrender of the social-democracy was an unconditional one and the abject manner in which they had capitulated to such crooks as Barmat, left no doubt in the minds of millions of Germans that their sell-out to the big industrialists and the allied bankers would be complete.

The nationalists, fascists to the core, yet made some pretense of preserving the identity of the German nation. They will be harder for the House of Morgan to deal with than the social-democrats and the other parties of the coalition. Backed by the Prussian landlords and the reactionary agricultural middle class, whose need for foreign loans is not pressing, the nationalists, by threatening to claim and work for the lost German provinces—Lorraine and Upper Silesia—and vigorously promoting the annexation of Austria, will be able to secure more favorable terms for the German state from the allied finance-capitalists.

The Dawes plan is not popular in Germany and it was only by strenuous efforts that the approval of the nationalists was secured for it. The tariff walls erected by the other European nations have checked the free outward flow of German commodities, hampered the rapid revival of German industry and served to accentuate the slave features of the scheme. The artificial optimism created by the social-democrats has worn off and the German masses feel that even a monarchy can be no worse than the constant betrayals of the social-democracy perpetrated under the guise of serving the German people.

Even Munich, the home city of Marx, the coalition candidate, and a catholic center, was carried by Hindenburg altho Marx is a follower of the vatican. His endorsement by the social-democrats is in itself enough to show the capitalist and corrupt complexion of the degenerate offspring of the party of Bebel and Liebknecht.

The Communists polled approximately 2,000,000 votes.

Considering that the issue was ostensibly, so far as the voters were concerned, monarchy or republicanism, this is a welcome testimonial to the minimum strength of the revolutionary section of the German workers and peasants. These 2,000,000 votes are something that cannot be disregarded. They are the expression of 2,000,000 workers and peasants who see clearly that the real question in Germany is whether the capitalsits or the workers are to rule. They represent with some degree of accuracy the number of workers who are ready to fight and die if necessary to establish the dictatorship of the proletariat, the advance guard of the working class who cannot be fooled, bribed or cowed by either German or allied capitalism.

In the next few months it is more than probable that these 2,000,000 workers will play a mighty part in the German sector of the world revolutionary battle front.

The election of Hindenburg will sharpen the national conflicts in Europe. On the east the tension between Germany and Poland will tighten. On the west it will not be surprising if a sweeping change comes over the French political situation and the pro-German complexion of the cabinet furnished by Caillaux is replaced by a color more in keeping with the Clemenceau policy.

Another possibility, of course, is that the strength shown by the nationalists may persuade the French imperialists to form some kind of a working alliance with the German state against Great Britain.

But whatever the international repercussion of the monarchist victory, the class conflict in Germany will sharpen to a razor edge. The Hindenburg triumph, solely the result of seven years of cowardice and treachery by the socialists, will bring needed coherence into the German working class movement, rally to the Communists the working class and peasant elements that have so far been fooled by the phrases of the social-traitors and build a mass Communist party that, supported by the decisive sections of the working class will be ready and able to challenge, fight, and win over monarchy and capitalism and oppose to allied imperialism the iron front of the proletarian dictatorship.

The class struggle in Germany, with the victory of Hindenburg, the monarcho-feudal-capitalist candidate, enters its final phase.

The aristocratic Russian lady who took poison rather than go to work might be said to have preferred death to a life of shame. There is no crime in the moral code of the nobility more henious than performing useful labor.

The example set by the Russian lady who drank the fatal draught rather than soil her fingers with toil, is commended to other but more successful

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

MOSCOW, April 6.—(By Mail.)—MANUILSKY speaks on the Czecho-Slovakian question: The question of the Czecho-Slovakian Communist Party is of international importance because the opportunist elements have tried in the present period of partial stabilization to create a new theory and new tactics.

The right elements staked all their hopes on the Czech Communist Party question and considered it a large cannon against the Comintern. The Czech commission and the minority of the Czech Communist Party accepted the resolution presented by the Czech Communist Party, thus blasting the speculations of the right.

The speaker refers to the Tranmael crisis, and shows the similarity of the Czech crisis with it. In the Czech Communist Party the right wing is made up of two elements:

1. Elements which have not yet thrown off the remnants of social democratic tradition and 2. of comrades who but recently belonged to the left wing. The latter circumstance has complicated matters. At the Bruenn district conference, the right elements received confidence on credit, but they did not pass their examination. Altho the Bruenn organization is one of the best the right leaders of this district proved politically bankrupt.

The right danger is a source of the crisis.

A SECOND source of the crisis is the question of leadership. Woe to the Czech Communist Party if it should fail to understand the need of Bolshevization, and if it does admit the young generation of leaders to the leadership of the party. There is danger in fighting just this young generation of leaders. Between the right and left groups there developed a vascillating center. This is a world phenomenon and not merely a Czech occurrence. Smeral, Muna and Zapotozky emphasize the need of retaining the mass character of the Czech Communist Party. The Czech Communist Party is one of the best sections of the Comintern; it consists of 98 per cent workers.

We want not only to maintain the class character of the party, but also to win over new masses to it. How shall this be achieved? The cases of Tranmael, Serrati, and Hoeglund show clearly that if the center goes with the right, the split-off groups become mere sects, like the parties of Tranmael and Hoeglund.

ON the other hand, the French example shows us that if the center goes with the left, a healthy development and splendid results can be achieved. The speaker calls upon the Smeral group to allow the Czech Communist Party to develop on French lines. There is in the Czech Communist Party a right danger, as was demonstrated by the memorandum of the Bruenn organization.

This memorandum constitutes a menshevist theory and practice. The Czech delegation disavowed this document, whose authors are the two lawyers Etscher and Stern, who, tho they have compared themselves with Lenin and Marx, have no inkling of Marxism. The workers of Bruenn must free themselves from such leaders. The Bruenn memorandum has been published in the Russian menshevik organ, "Sotzialistitchesky Vestniek"; this fact in itself is a sufficient characterization.

THE Czech crisis is much complicated by the nationality problem. It would be the most grievous error to adapt the policy of the party to the proletariat of the oppressed minority nationalities. On the other hand, it would be wrong to encourage imperialistic tendencies. It is symptomatic that the most recent attacks of the opposition were directed against the Hungarian Seidler and the Slovak Vercik. The executive will support those elements which follow the policy of the Comintern; but the left must be able to stand on its own feet; it cannot be maintained solely by the support of the executive. The representative of the Comintern at the party congress of the Czech Communist Party aimed at bringing about an understanding between the groups of almost equal strength.

He did not apply any artificial methods, and he has acted correctly. The mistake made was the handing over of the control commission entirely to the minority, which used the control commission for factional purposes. The Czech workers will accept our advice, since we have behind us the experience of the Russian revolution and the authority of the Comintern.

WE are in full accord with the political policy of the present central committee, and shall support it. As to the case of Horn, the Czech Communist Party has had even more bitter experiences with the leader of the Duma-fraction Malinovsky who was a police spy.

Such matters cannot be used against the central committee. Seidler was fully rehabilitated, and Vercik was suspended from leading party positions for one year. Now the control commission should be taken to task. Seidler and Vercik declared to the commission that in the interests of the party they were willing to renounce leading functions in the party. By this act they demonstrated their hones

THE proposed resolution has placed great responsibility on the Russian delegation. The German, French and Polish delegations thought the concession too big. However, the Russian delegation desires a sincere bloc with the minority against the right. Bubnik is not dangerous, but what is dangerous is the Bubnik tendency. We must fight the Bubnik tendency and the attitude of the Bruenn leaders. The commission clearly approves of the political platform of the majority. The political policy of the Czech Communist Party is correct. The platform of the minority contains not a single word on the dictatorship of the proletariat; it bears a Wilsonian character, and does not combine the partial demands with the final goal. The Russian delegation and the commission give their confidence to the minority "on credit." This confidence binds the minority. The speaker expresses his hope that the minority may merit this confidence.

COMRADE MUNA declares in the name of the minority and of Kreibich, that they accept the resolution in the interests of unity and in confidence to the Comintern. Not only does the minority accept the resolution, but it will carry it out, in order to combat the right dangers of which the minority is fully aware. The resolution is passed unanimously.

The unanimously adopted resolution on the Czech question, analyzes in detail the causes of the crisis in the Czech Communist Party, which crisis is not an isolated episode, but the struggle of the right elements of the Comintern against Leninist strategy and tactics.

Due to a series of specific causes, arising out of the composition of the party and the reflection of nationality conflicts in the party, these right tendencies are especially strong in Czecho-Slovakia. The plenum considers Bubnik's action as political treachery, and fully approves the decision of the control commission of the Czech Communist Party to expel Bubnik from the party.

The crisis began when some comrades in the control commission failed to proceed against Bubnik with the required energy. The resolution establishes the fact that the control commission of the Czech Communist Party have become instruments of factional struggles.

Only in mass actions can the party test its leadership and select its best revolutionary elements. The party cannot ignore the new proletarian elements which bring a current of fresh militancy into the party.

THE resolution sharply criticises the political document of the leaders of the Bruenn organization; this document represents a political platform which is contrary to all decisions of the Fifth World Congress and the third congress of the Czech Communist Party. This document contains a purely menshevik, social democratic conception of the revolution, and a fatalistic conception of the role of the party in the revolution. The tactics proposed by the Bruenn organization for mass action, are both opportunistic and dangerous.

The resolution condemns the attitude taken up by Kreibich in the commission and in the plenum, and answers his threat of a split with a warning.

The resolution then proceeds as follows: "On the basis of the above facts, on the basis of the decisions of the Fifth congress in regard to political perspectives, tactics and national policy, and affirming the political and tactical policy of the central committee of the Czech Communist Party, the enlarged plenum of the executive committee hereby instructs the executive of the Czech Communist Party to convene within four months a regular party congress which is to liquidate all the elements of crisis in the party."

THE central committee of the Czech Communist Party must make the fight against the right tendencies as expressed in the Bruenn memorandum, the central point of its preparatory campaign for the coming party congress. The party must also fight all those who directly or indirectly, politically or organizationally, support such tendencies. The executive of the Comintern is of the opinion that the main defect of the Czech Communist Party is the fact that the most important tactical problems of the Czecho-Slovakian and international labor movement are passed over in silence.

The executive therefore, recommends to the central committee of the Czech Communist Party to start in the party a thoro discussion of the most important problems in which the Czecho-Slovakian working class is interested. The enlarged executive condemns the Bruenn platform and the disorganizing action of the Bruenn district committee, and recommends that with the next three or four months a party conference be convened in Bruenn, for the purpose of eliminating from the party leadership those who support the Bruenn platform.

AT the same time the enlarged executive of the Comintern calls upon the party membership to preserve unity by all means, and to disavow all those who threaten to disrupt the party. The central committee of the Czech Communist Party which shall guard over the unity of the party, is hereby instructed by the enlarged executive of the Communist International to carry out all its decisions, without shrinking before the severest disciplinary measures against those who should attempt to oppose these decisions and to kindle the crisis in the Czech Communist Party anew. In view of the abnormal position of the party, however, the enlarged executive of the Comintern is of the opinion that in cases involving expulsion from the party, and in which the majority and minority can reach no agreement, no final decision should be made by the central committee between party congresses without the sanction of the presidium of the executive of the Comintern.

IN regards to creating a normal situation in the Bruenn organization in the interval before the party congress is convened, the enlarged executive instructs the presidium to work out decisions jointly with the central committee of the Czech Communist Party, which would normalize the situation, until the district conference and the party congress take place.

U. S. Minister Incites Massacre of Workers

Jugo-Slavia was, prior to the intervention in the affair by the United States minister, preparing to go to war with Bulgaria. Moreover, the Bulgarian officials declare that the instructions inside the cathedral bomb were printed in Serbian language and that bombs and arms were smuggled wholesale by Jugo-Slavia to the Serbian patriots inside Bulgaria.

Jugo-Slavia—Not Communists—Responsible

It is also revealed that the sexton of the church, named Zagorsky, directly confessed that the bomb came from Jugo-Slavia, that the explosion was an act of Jugo-Slavians, and that in addition the band which ambushed King Boris a few days previous on the Bulgarian highway outside of Sofia, were Serbians from Jugo-slavia.

The United States Minister, Wilson, upon instruction from Washington, entered the affair with the purpose of preventing war between Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia, by concealing the latter's part in the explosion, and getting the Zankov government, which has held its power so far by mass murder of workers and peasants, to continue and intensive its bloody campaign under the falsehood that the Communists were responsible for the explosion.

The Bulgarian government, altho at first threatening Jugo-Slavia with war, and denouncing in parliament the war threats of the Jugo-Slav minister and obedient to the Morgan banking interests, began wholesale murder of Communists and even of suspected radical workers and peasants.

On Friday, Wilson cabled to Washington that everything had turned out satisfactorily, and that large numbers of workers had been executed without trial while the list of those imprisoned ran into thousands. Communists were being shot on the streets when pointed out by socialists, who have uniformly acted as the spies of the Zankov dictatorship and assistant to the mass murderer, General Lazaroff.

Massacre Continues

Meanwhile, the massacre continues unabated. Even the soldiers were shot down by white guards, because they refused to fire on their brother workers, whom they knew were innocent of complicity in the cathedral explosion.

The 7,000 additional "troops" so gladly granted by the league of nations, are composed of this white guard element, and are being used to murder the private soldiers who are unwilling to carry out the massacre of workers at the behest of the American banking and governmental interests.

Letters From Our Readers

Letter From Russia

To the DAILY WORKER:—My former article to the DAILY WORKER from the Workers' Republic, deals mostly with the workers' conditions in the factories and the organization in the factories.

This time I am going to write about the work in the village. The village folks had for a long time been neglected, and for that reason we find the most difficult of our work in the village. I think that I stated in my former article that I am functioning in the capacity as chairman of a village Soviet, (village council) also a party organizer, I am the only party member among thousands inhabitants, which are composed of Russians, Ukrainians and German mennonites. The latter are the most conservative and chauvinistic people in Russia, many of them are immigrating to Canada. Organization work among them is very difficult and yet we are making headway. When I arrived here, in the month of October 1924, there was no organization of any kind, at present we got a reading room with 79 members, 47 Ukrainians and a German section of 32 members, our lectures for the present are mostly agricultural subjects, we have installed the six fields system, the past winter we had a school of 55 pupils, some of them 45 years old, teaching them to read and write, they are Russians and Ukrainians only. We are organizing a peasants' co-operative and also we expect having tractors going for this fall plowing. Thru the peasant co-operative we will be able to get credit at the government bank at very reasonable terms so that we can buy machinery. The "nepman" (in the U. S. called businessmen) is fast disappearing. All the small business is going into the hands of the workers' and peasants' co-operatives. When I arrived in Alexandrowsk in September, 1923, the workers' co-operative had one little grocery store, at present they are handling the bulk of the business of the city, lumber, coal, wood, clothing, dry-goods, leather-good and all merchandise. The middleman profit is eliminated; everywhere the workers' and peasants' co-operatives are bringing us nearer the goal of socialism.

There is a newspaper published by the mennonite organization called the Emmigranten Bate, a rank reactionary publication, which I would like to get hold off, it is published either in the United States of Canada. I would like to get a copy of the Chicago Tribune once in a while, you know we got to have those publications in order to find out how bad things are going in Russia. I appeal to all readers of radical literature not to throw their magazines away after reading them, but to mail a few to me once in a while.

With comradely greetings I remain yours for the world revolution, Henry H. Weber, Schoensberg, U. S. S. R., German Volga Commune.

COMMUNISTS IN GERMANY MAKE GAINS AT POLLS

Vote for Thaelmann Nears 2,000,000

final returns wuold bring the total Communist vote over two million.

Von Hindenburg with 14,639,399 votes, did not poll a majority of the total vote. The vote for the republican coalition was 13,752,244.

Driving Toward Fascism.

The election of the monarchist and friend of the former kaiser marks a swing to the conservative-fascist advocates of a dictatorship. Hindenburg will support the Dawes plan, is the prediction of foreign government officials.

"The economic siuation makes it imperative that Hindenburg continue support of the Dawes plan," said Hindenburg's chief supporters and advisers. "I will not take orders from any party, and no one need think I will," said the monarchist president shortly after his election.

The league of nations officials declared that the election of Hindenburg is to be "regretted," and will postpone Germany's entrance to the league.

Germany is at the mercy of the international bankers, it is pointed out here and the foreign bankers behind the Dawes plan are the real rulers of Germany. The socialist-catholic coalition may have been a weaker government easier to manipulate, but Hindenburg has admitted that the economic condition of Germany is dictated by Wall Street bankers.

Hindenburg's War Record.

There are eleven war criminal charges against Hindenburg, the foreign office at Paris stated. They were given as follows:

First: Criminal deportation.
Second: Abducion of women and children.
Third: Armed looting.
Fourth: Destruction by dynamite.
Fifth: Incendiary.
Sixth: Criminal measures against civilians.
Seventh: Alleged medical inspection of women and young girls.
Eighth: Violation of graves in cemeteries.
Ninth: Pollution of water supply.
Tenth: Destruction of forests.
Eleventh: Pillage of food supplies of the United States destined to interned civilian population.

ARREST ITALIAN COMMUNISTS IN FUTILE WAR ON BIG MAY DAY DEMONSTRATIONS THRUOUT ITALY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, April 29.—One hundred and twelve workers, including many Communists, were arrested in Naples today by fascist police, who are making futile efforts to prevent preparations for large May Day demonstrations of the workers thruout Italy. Two Communists were arrested in Rome, the only charge placed against them being that they had Communist leaflets in their possession.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE only European government that seems to be worried over the elections of von Hindenburg is France. Britain is satisfied. So are the fascist governments of Italy and Poland. At least for the present. One can never tell when those cutthroats will draw their daggers. The French political situation is liable to swing sharply to the right, tho the pseudo-left that took office after the fall of Poincare was the most cowardly outfit that ever held power in any country.

THE Communist International has issued a statement on the result of the German elections which does not attempt to allay fears of the workers of the world by personal tributes to the docility and peaceful intentions of the German militarists. The statement declares that Hindenburg's election increases the danger of war. It does. The monarchist elements are heartened and behind them stand the fascists and jingoes, the heavy industrialists and the large population of morons who are infatuated with the alleged glories of pre-war Germany. More trouble is brewing.

AND what of the German socialists in this critical hour for the workers of Germany and of Europe? What steps are they taking to avert another and a greater calamity than has fallen on the unfortunate victims of the German ruling class since that fateful autumn of 1914? They are doing nothing, but twiddling their political thumbs and making threats that if Hindenburg does not conduct himself, they, the socialists, may not. This is the kind of a toothless challenge that the seasoned labor faker Sam Gompers used to hurl at this sham foe, Judge Gary. The socialists are responsible for the debacle which has overtaken the German working class movement, once the pride of the world proletariat.

BUT the German working class are not leaderless in face of the new menace of kaiserism revived. The Communist Party remains. Its leaders are not sitting down, twiddling their thumbs. Hardly had the votes been counted when a manifesto was coming off the red presses calling on the entire German working class, regardless of political affiliations for a united front against monarchism, the Hohenzollerns, the Dawes plan and all the other evils that afflict the workers. The socialist leaders will turn this proposal down, but not all their followers will. There are darker days than ever ahead for the German workers, but they will emerge victorious from their trials as their comrades in Soviet Russia did.

"THE pound looks the dollar in the face" reads a headline in a London paper. That sounds like a challenge and that is just what it is. Those who believe that the lion and the eagle will slumber peacefully together and devour the other lesser capitalist animals in perfect harmony, are laboring under a delusion. No doubt this makes a pretty picture, and could form the basis for any number of super-novels, worthy of a H. G. Wells. The dollar and the pound are making faces at each other. The pound is older and perhaps wiser. But the dollar has the pep of youth and its audacity.

BRITAIN went back to the gold standard. That is why the pound gets so cocky all of a sudden. It may seem strange to some that money

DOWN TOOLS IS CRY OF WORKERS THIS MAY DAY

Ruthenberg, Shachtman Speak at Chicago Meet

Many millions of workers in all parts of the world will forget their bosses tomorrow and will take part in the greatest May Day demonstration ever held. Under the banner of the Communist parties of the world, these myriads of militant workers will throw down their tools and devote May 1, 1925, to celebrating the inspiring, historic day on which the working class demonstrates its power.

The dark races of India, Africa, the Near and Far East, will make the British imperialists tremble. The French, German, Japanese and English employers will run for cover behind their police lackeys at the rumblings of the international working class revolt on this May Day. Nor will the murder of workers in the Balkans, or the Big Stick of the international bankers stem the workers in their mighty demonstration.

National Holiday in Russia.

In the workers' and peasants' government of Soviet Russia, of course, May Day will be a state holiday. Thousands upon thousands of workers will gather in parades and meet-

CAPITALIST LAW PERMITS CHILD SLAVES IN HOME

Ruins Health and Life of Thousands

ARTICLE THREE.

By LILLIAN R. BORGESON.

Illinois is guilty of harboring within its state borders the vilest form of child labor—"home work." In spite of the fact that the city fathers and crafty politicians, together, as usual, with the liberals and the meek social workers, have been busy broadcasting the "fact" that Illinois has state laws which prohibit the labor of little children, the worst child labor flourishes undisturbed. Even the radicals have come to believe that Illinois is far above the other states in its regulation of child labor. But such is not the case.

The want-ads of the capitalist newspapers daily carry enticing ads for "home work"—varying from the popular beading and sewing to millinery trimming and embroidering. The state has a law which is supposed to regulate home industry but it has the customary joker which makes the intent of the law worthless.

No Home Work "Except in the Home"

This law states that the making of various articles in the home for sale or manufacture is prohibited except if performed by members of the family living within the home.

"Members of the family" naturally means, in addition to the father and mother, all adult and minor children.

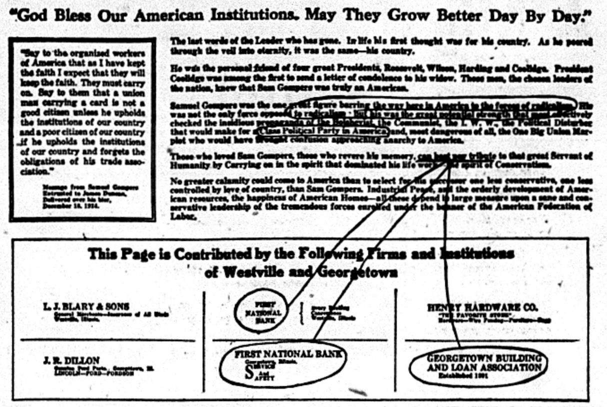
Dead, He Still Lives---For the Bankers



"God Bless Our American Institutions. May They Grow Better Day By Day."

"Say to the organized workers of America that as I have kept the faith I expect that they will keep the faith. They must carry on. Say to them that a union man carrying a card is not a good citizen unless he upholds the institutions of our country and a poor citizen of our country if he upholds the institutions of our country and forgets the obligations of his trade association."

Message from Samuel Gompers Entrusted to James Duncan, Delivered over his bier, December 18, 1924.

The last words of the Leader who has gone. In life his first thought was for his country. As he peered through the veil into eternity, it was the same—his country.

He was the personal friend of four great Presidents, Roosevelt, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. President Coolidge was among the first to send a letter of condolence to his widow. These men, the chosen leaders of the nation, knew that Sam Gompers was truly an American.

Samuel Gompers was the one great figure barring the way here in America to the forces of radicalism. He was not the only force opposed to radicalism. But his was the great potential strength that most effectively checked the insidious propaganda of the Bolshevist, the Communist, the I. W. W., the Political Disturber that would make for a Class Political Party in America, and, most dangerous of all, the One Big Union Marplot who would have brought confusion approaching anarchy to America.

Those who loved Sam Gompers, those who revere his memory, can best pay tribute to that great Servant of Humanity by Carrying on in the spirit that dominated his life work—the spirit of Conservatism.

No greater calamity could come to America than to select for his successor one less conservative, one less controlled by love of country, than Sam Gompers. Industrial Peace, and the orderly development of American resources, the happiness of American Homes—all these depend in large measure upon a sane and conservative leadership of the tremendous forces enrolled under the banner of the American Federation of Labor.

SAMUEL GOMPERS served the ruling class well while he lived. He is still very useful to them as the above advertisement shows. This was taken from the Vermillion County Star, a so-called labor weekly published in Danville, Illinois. It is edited by Frank Leven, former leader in the farmer-labor party, now deceased. Leven played with both the Fitzpatrick and Ernest factions of the farmer-labor party. He is now playing with the bankers who pay better than either of the above celebrities. When Gompers died and before he was laid away between the carcasses of the millionaire labor exploiters William Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie, the Workers Party issued a statement telling the workers what a contemptible crook this man Gompers was. The labor fakers who were trained by him got sore. Perhaps some of the workers who did not examine Gompers' acts closely, felt irritated at our sharp criticism. But can any better proof of Gompers' treachery to labor be offered than the above advertisement which was accompanied by a picture of the dead labor faker? And what can one say of a labor editor who prostitutes himself for the few dollars he managed to blackjack out of the bankers in return for publishing Gompers' anti-labor fulminations?

OPEN SHOP MUST GO, SAY REDS IN ELECTION FIGHT

LosAngelesCommunists Hold Many Meetings

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, April 26—"The open shop must go," is the slogan of the Workers (Communist) Party in the election campaign of the Communist candidate, Edward Harris, running in the fifteenth district for the city council.

The program demands confiscation of all public utilities, which are to be run by committees of the workers engaged in the various branches of the service. Work or compensation for all unemployed workers, is the responsibility of the city government, says the Communist program signed by Harris.

Demand Abolition of Injunction.

Abolition of the use of police and injunctions to break strikes, abolition of child labor, with government support of school children, are demanded in the program.

The fifteenth district is the San Pedro Harbor district, scene of the great strike of marine and transport workers. The program demands for San Pedro Harbor that "All employes of companies, steamship agencies, canneries, etc., using public docks,

Five Railroads Try to Raise Rates for Newspapers

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The interstate commerce commision today ordered an investigation of the proposal of five eastern railroads to increase their rates on newspapers carried in baggage cars within Central Freight Association and Trunk Line territories.

The railroads involved are the Pennsylvania lines, (East and West,) the Baltimore & Ohio, the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic, the Reading and the Western Maryland. The proposed increases, amounting to an approximate advance of 66 per cent over existing rates, would affect all newspapers in the territory served by these roads.

IOWA MINERS STRONG FOR W. P. PROGRAM

Opportunism and Sectarianism Give Way

MELCHER, Iowa, April 29.—Attendance at our meetings at Madrid, Moran, Des Moines, and Melcher, proves that the mine workers in this district are becoming deeply interested in the Communist movement and its program.

Earlier in the month we addressed crowds of miners at Centerville and Mystic. At both of these centers the same interest in and sympathy with the Workers Party was evident.

In several of the camps we witnessed the demise of the proletarian party. Although some of the poison scattered against the Workers Party by the "proletarians" is yet noticeable, the former members of that sectarian group are now joining the Communist ranks.

Although an occasional miner insists that Communist support would have elected LaFollette the live members of the United Mine Workers in this district see the correctness of the stand taken by our party in the election.

The liquidation of "LaFollettism" and "Proletarianism" is speeding the growth of the Workers Party.

REDS CALL FOR UNITY AGAINST VON HINDENBURG

Monarchists Cabinet Supports Dawes Plan

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, April 29.—The Communist Party of Germany has issued an appeal, indorsed by the more militant trade unions, calling upon the rank and file among the socialists to unite with all the workers in an open fight on the monarchist element led by the president elect, Hindenburg.

The appeal declares that the only way to save the workers of Germany from the menace of monarchy is to unite in a fight for a workers' and farmers' government and the crushing of the power of the exploiting class.

Communists' Immediate Demands.

The Communist declaration includes in its immediate demands the dissolution of all the nationalist, fascist organizations, strikes against the monarchist menace, the confiscation of the property of all princes, the expulsion of the Hohenzollerns from Germany, the discharge of all monarchist elements among the employes of the state, the dissolution of the Leipsic courts, the release of all class

SOVIET RUSSIA, ON GOLD BASIS SINCE 1922, HAS BIG FINANCIAL SURPLUS IN GOVERNMENT BUDGET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, April 29.—It is admitted by capitalist bankers that Russian public finances are showing marked improvement. The agricultural tax, which is the largest direct impost in that country, yielded up to the first of April 334,000,000 rubles, which is more than the estimate.

The Russian finance minister has declared that henceforth all budgets will be "firm," meaning that, contrary to past practice, the public departments will be warned in advance that expenditure must not exceed the sun provided in the estimates.

The first bidget of the kind, covering the six months from April to September inclusive, reckons the surplus of 1,264,000,000 gold rubles without any emissions of notes.

SIX THOUSAND PRESSED STEEL CAR WORKERS STRIKE AGAINST LONGER HOURS AT McKEES ROCKS

By ARNE SWABECK.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

McKEES ROCKS, Pa., April 29.—Six thousand pressed steel car workers are out on strike here against the Pressed Steel Car company attempt to force them to work longer hours.

After repeated cuts in the piece work wages and day's wages, the corporation has tried to force thru another wage cut by the method of making the men work longer hours. It demands that the present too long day of nine hours be lengthened to nine and a half hours and that the men give up their half day off on Saturday.

The wage cuts have been frequent in the past, especially in the piece work shop. Cuts have been made until these workers who used to get about $9 a day now are doing far more work for only $6 a day. Laborers are now getting only $3.60 a day.

The strike is now being organized and led by the Workers (Communist) Party who are aiding the strikers to consolidate their forces and inspiring them to struggle in one solid front for victory against wage cuts and longer hours.

BRIAND ATTACKS SOVIET EMBASSY STAFF IN PARIS

Grows Hysterical Over Sut Yat Sen Meeting

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, April 29. — Altho members of the diplomatic corps here have continually made open propaganda speeches without French censorship, for the business interests controlling their governments, the French foreign office has protested because M. Voline, first secretary of the Soviet Russian embassy, spoke here at a meeting in commemoration of Sun Yat Sen.

Ambassador Berthellot, Aristide Briand's new assistant, has asked Leonid Krassin, Soviet Russian ambassador to France, for an "explanation" of this horrible crime.

The new Painleve government is demonstrating its uneasiness at the growing prestige of the Communists, by making threats against the Soviet Russian embassy staff, and attempting to put its members in an evil light before the workers.

The foreign office has given to the newspapers a full list of the embassy staff, the papers describing the Soviet representatives as "dangerous propagandists." It is declared in these dispatches that M. Schliapnikov, the counselor of the embassy, was two years ago a worker in a factory near Paris, and "was expelled from Norway and Sweden in 1921-1922, for Communist agitation."

It is declared that Voline "whose real name is Schwerling, is on the records of the Paris police. Two years ago he was business manager of the Communist newspaper Humanite."

It was hinted by the foreign office

ANTI-INJUNCTION BILL DEFEATED IN ILLINOIS HOUSE BY 74 TO 62 VOTE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Apr. 29.—The Soderstrom bill prohibiting employers from using the courts to obtain anti-picketing injunctions, was defeated in the house by a vote of 74 to 62. The officials of the Illinois Federation of Labor have been lobbying for the bill.

Ten amendments offered to the bill limiting the labor of Illinois women to eight hours were laid on the table on motions by Mrs. Lottie O'Neill, who presented the bill to the house.

HOW LEVIN KEEPS PUPPY-DOG ARMY UNDER HIS THUMB

Hierarchy of Terror Thru Underlings

ARTICLE TWO.

Different shop chairmen of the Chicago Amalgamated Clothing Workers use various methods. I will quote Phillip Chalmer, chairman of the Chicago Joint Board. He explained it thus: "There are two kinds of shop chairmen, some use wise methods and some don't. When told to bring the people to a local union meeting and put thru an important matter, some chairmen go up to each individual in the shop and tell them, 'I want you to come to the meeting tonight and vote so and so; and if you don't I will know what to do.'

"The people being afraid, do what they are told. But this is not the wisest method. I do it differently. I am shop chairman in Hart, Schaffner and Marx. When I know there is a meeting coming at which we want to put something over, I just go up to everybody in the shop, except a few I cannot depend on, and tell them they should come to the meeting because there is an important matter to be taken up.

They Understand the Thing.

"I do not have to threaten them. They understand already what I mean without me telling it to them. They come to the meeting and watch my hand. The way I vote, they vote."

If any worker does not do what he is expected to do, he may as well leave the shop. His complaints are not attended to, the foreman can do with him whatever he pleases. At local union meetings the shop chairman usually groups the workers of his shop in one place, so he can watch their votes.

Always Attend Local Meetings.

Naturally, the business agents do not leave it all to the shop chairmen. They are on the job at the local meeting to see that the workers vote "properly." Even not to vote at all is considered as a crime against the machine.

Lately they have introduced a system, especially in Business Agent Charlie Weinstein's shops, by which they can reward their friends with something material. Here is how it works:

An Army of Mercenaries.

When a price is made on a garment, the business agent and the firm agree on a total price for the gar-

PAN-AMERICAN ANTI-IMPERIALIST LEAGUE STARTS AMNESTY DRIVE TO FREE COMMUNISTS IN ARMY

Determination of the ruling powers in America to consolidate the U. S. military forces abroad into an army of hard boiled, reactionary colonial shock troops, is what dictated the barbarous prison sentences meted out to Privates Crouch and Trumbull, according to the Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League. The organization has undertaken a widespread campaign to bring about amnesty for the two Communist soldiers by means of international pressure.

"It is no accident," an official of the league said yesterday, "that the convicted men were part of an army of occupation, stationed in a colonial possession. The pretense of democracy and free speech cannot be kept up in the colonies. Imperialism is the rule of the iron heel. Now that the rulers of America have embarked upon that policy, American armies must be made more and more like all imperial armies—such as the British expeditionary forces in India and the notorious black and tans in Ireland.

"There is great discontent in Hawaii today. The Hawaiian people have indicated time and again that they want to be free. The military chieftains in Hawaii and the American sugar kings who sent them there know that the Communist International is the friend of all oppressed peoples struggling for national liberation. Consequently every appeal to Communism among the American soldiers must be instantly smothered.

"Crouch and Trumbull are heroes today in Hawaii. And not only in Hawaii, but in the Philippines, in Santo Domingo, Haiti, thruout Latin America—everywhere where the yoke of American imperialism is tightening.

"The protest against the treatment of Crouch and Trumbull is just beginning to rise. Our league will endeavor to mobilize every element of resistence to American imperialism, in this country and abroad, to bring about their release. Meetings will be held. Leaflets will be issued. The Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League will muster all its forces on behalf of these two brave soldiers, whose only crime is that they dared to organize as Communists in an American army of occupation, in a colonial territory where Communism is looked upon as giving aid and comfort to the forces of national liberation.

"The case of Crouch and Trumbull should arouse every enemy of the ruthless imperialist policy pursued by Wall Street with the instrumentality of all the forces of governmental oppression. The question is not one of Communism. It is not Communism that is at issue but imperialism."

Funds are needed for the amnesty campaign on behalf of Crouch and Trumbull. The Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League will co-operate in the collections being taken up by the International Workers' Aid in North, South and Central America. The monthly organ of the league in the Spanish language, "El Libertador," will carry a special appeal. American workers are being appealed to thru the DAILY WORKER and other labor papers. Send all contributions to the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

SARGENT PLANS TO EXPLOIT THE PRISON VICTIMS

WASHINGTON, April 29.— A definite move toward complete industrialization of federal prisons was taken today when Attorney-General Sargent directed installation of printing shop equipment at Atlanta and Leavenworth prisons.

Under the supervision of L. C. White, federal prison superintendent, the attorney general hopes to put all prisoners to work at trades for which they are qualified. Over half of the federal prisoners are idle, but within a year, under the intensive industrialisation it is intended they will all be doing eight hours daily.

Wright Joins Cook As Oil Speculator in Faraway Texas

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29.—Chester M. Wright until recently press agent and stoolpigeon-in-chief to Sam Gompers, has fallen into a den of altruists. Former friends of Wright have received letters from him offering them a chance to make a fortune in the oil business of Fort Worth, Texas.

The letter which tries to inviegle the dollars from the pockets of the labor leaders takes about fifteen hundred words to say that Chester is now in the same business that landed the Arctic explorer, Dr. Cook in Leavenworth and that he, like Cook, is willing to take the money of all and sundry and invest it in oil wells that are sure to make a fortune.

In the letter Wright says that the government had indicted all the crooks in Forth Worth before he came around, leaving only good friends of Wright's and sound altruists. Chester denies that he wants to make a fortune for himself in order to buy pork chops. He wants to make money in order to boost some cause for the betterment of mankind that he holds near and dear to his business-like heart.

Recently William Green fired Wright from his job as head of the publicity department of the A. F. of L. and Wright wandered to Texas from where he is offering all old friends and anyone with a little jack the chance to make a fortune.

PARIS POLICE RAID HOMES OF SIXTEEN RED SECRETARIES

PARIS, France, April 29.—Police today searched the homes of sixteen Communists, who are secretaries of sections of the Communist Party of France. Membership lists were seized, literature destroyed, and in some cases the interior of the houses wrecked.

The police used as a pretext for the raids the combat last week in which three were killed and forty-three wounded.

AS WE SEE IT

fights. In fact, capitalist governments are always fighting with each other by some means or other. Just like two drug stores on opposite corners, tho in a larger way. Two drug stores compete for customers. One of them may be driven to dabbling in moonshine in order to keep going. The other competitor has to follow suit or go under. If the competition is keen enough one of the druggists may either bomb his neighbor or tell the nearest police captain of the illegal traffic in spirits.

NO doubt the officer is already acquainted with the situation and more likely than not is the druggist's best customer. But "duty is duty" and he may be obliged to raid his friend's premises. However, this is getting into a very interesting question which is liable to lead us into trouble, so let get back to the dollar and the pound. Just as the two druggists quarrel over business so do the big powers. And just as the two rival druggists may bomb each others' prescription departments so do the rival capitalist powers bomb each other's factories provided they can near enough to them.

IN the past they have confined themselves to bombing each other's soldiers. It was rather pleasant for the leaders of the fighting powers. They had all the excitement and thrill of a war without any risk whatsoever. Of course the kings and statesmen of modern times manage to keep their hides safe but wars are no longer adventures to be entered into lightly when one suffers from an attack of indigestion or when one's mistress runs away with the bootblack. Society has grown very complicated of late and wars take a long time to prepare. Not that there is any time lost. While the generals are getting the poison gas ready and the preachers are concocting spirited war prayers, the diplomats are lying and framing up on each other. There is no time wasted.

THE dollar and the pound are looking each other square in the eye. They will be blowing each other's brains out as sure as you are alive. That is, American workers and British workers will be blowing each other brains out, unless, their brains work better than in the past. The ruling class of both countries will sit pretty while the carnage is on and after it is over, they will come to terms as they did after the late holocaust. Will the workers get rid of their masters and of the robber system that breeds wars before another disaster greater than the last will break out upon the world?

New York State Wage Payments Run Below Those of Last Year

ALBANY, April 29.—Wages paid out to factory workers in New York state totaled $36,300,000 for the week of March 15, according to an estimate based on reports covering 40 per cent of the employes of the state. This is $1,800,000 less than in March, 1924, the month before the last phase of the recession in industry.

COWARDLY UNION OFFICIALS CALL OFF BIG PARADE

Miners Forbidden to Commemorate Dead

WHEELING, W. Va., April 29.—A parade of coal miners of West Virginia, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, scheduled for next Sunday, was called off today by officers of the United Mine Workers after City Manager J. S. Butts and City Solicitor Carl Schmidt had notified them that the parade would not be permitted.

In refusing permission for a parade, the city authorities drew attention to the situation resulting from a general strike and told union leaders such a gathering might lead to "serious friction."

The parade had been planned as a part of a memorial program for 119 miners, who met death in the Benwood mine disaster a year ago. The memorial, union officers said, now would be confined to speaking in the Market Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 4,000.

officials that the propaganda against the Soviet embassy is preparatory to a request from Briand that the entire personnel of the embassy be changed.

The Soviet embassy is the only staff of foreign diplomats to be subjected to Briand's hysterical wrath.

In his protest to Krassin, Briand's assistant made wild charges that the meeting of the Paris workers to mourn the death of the great leader of the Chinese workers, Sun Yat Sen, was "nothing but a general conference of colonial delegates to the Communist International."

The French fear the influence of the Soviet government on French Asiatic colonials and the workers of Tunis, Algiers, and Morocco.

Women's Eight-Hour Bill Drastically Amended in House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 29.—The woman's eight-hour bill was advanced to third reading in the house today, but not until drastic amendments were attached to the bill.

Two amendments, which Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downer's Grove, sponsor of the bill, was unable to head off, were attached to the measure.

One amendment exempts apprentice nurses and hospitals, both private and public.

The other exempts mercantile establishments, hotels and restaurants where less than ten women are employed, permitting the bosses to work them ten hours.

Fess Slams Dawes.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Republican opposition to the proposal of Vice-President Dawes that senate rules be so amended to enforce cloture, was voiced today by Senator Fess, republican of Ohio, one of the outstanding parliamentarians of congress.

Fess, following a white hosse conference with President Coolidge, declared his opposition to "gag rule."

Sinclair Delays Appeal.

MOSCOW, (By Rosta)—It is learned that the lawyers of the Sinclair Exploration company, against whom the Moscow district court has just passed a decision in the suit filed by the Soviet government for the dissolution of the Saghalien oil concessions contract, have decided not to appeal for the time being, pending the decision the company will take in the United States after hearing the full report that one of the company's representatives, who left Moscow today, is taking with him to New York.

Sterling Climbs Higher

NEW YORK, April 29.—Sterling exchange was quoted at 4.85⅝ in heavy trading in the foreign exchange markets today. This is an advance of 1⅛ cents since Tuesday's close and is only one cent to the pound below the official par quotation for the British currency.

French francs gained 3½ points at today's quotation of 5.25 cents per franc; Italian lira and Belgian francs were also fractionally higher.

EXTRA STEEL DIVIDEND SHOWS PROFITS BIGGER THAN IN LAST QUARTER

NEW YORK, April 29.—Directors of the United States Steel corporation declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock yesterday in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent.

Net earnings for the first quarter of 1925 were $39,882,995 and surplus available for dividend $21,205,291, as compared with $14,262,705 in the last quarter of 1924.

Earnings in the first quarter of the year were equivalent to about $2.29 a share, against dividend requirements of $1.75 a share. In the last quarter of 1924 the corporation earned only $1.56 a share. In the first three months of 1924 net earnings were $5.03 a share on the common after marking off a sufficient sum for dividends on preferred stock, depreciation, etc.

British Labor is Joining Hands with the Russian Unions

LONDON, April 29.—The Anglo-Russian unity committee receives every day a wider support among the masses of British unionists, who make up the strongest section of the Amsterdam International. Regardless of the resistance of German and French reformists, the British are determined that their labor movement shall not be wrecked by failing to keep step with the increasing necessity of the organized labor movement of the western world to join with the Russian revolutionary unions upon a basis of a united struggle against capital.

Unity with the trade union movements in other countries has become a necessity for British labor. Every move to preserve standards or to secure more tolerable conditions comes up against competition with sweated labor abroad. The war has given international capital a chance to play one national working class against another, lowering the standards of all. A million and a quarter British workers are permanently unemployed with the number subsisting entirely on meager unemployment doles estimated at 2,757,190.

Britain's Best Days of Capitalism Are Past.

These figures are from a memerial prepared for the Empire Development Union by W. A. S. Hewins. He says: "There is no hope whatever of translating into fact the delusion that Great Britain can once more become supreme as an industrial country."

British capital is developing industry in parts of the world where labor is cheap and the owner is still dictator of hours and conditions. These overseas investments are taking away the jobs of British workers. Here is a mess out of which British labor cannot pull alone. So it is working for co-operation with the labor forces in other countries.

Iron Workers Get an Increase from Iron League Contractors

E. M. Craig, secretary of the Chicago Building Construction Employers' Association, was notified yesterday that a new wage contract has been agreed upon between the Iron League, an organization of large building contractors, and the Iron Workers' Union. This union was the only one of the building trade organization that had failed to negotiate a new wage scale.

The contract gives the iron workers an increase of 12½ cents an hour.

Ku Klux Klan Bombs Fail to Fool Junior Group in Monessen

MONESSEN, Pa., April 29.— The ku klux klan opened its annual spring bombing here by shooting off four bombs. These disturbers of the peace are allowed to keep up this racket all thru the summer, without the interference of the law.

They start shooting these bombs just about the time the little tots have to go to bed. Many of these tots just quiver with fright almost all night. The older persons, especially the class conscious ones pay little heed to their bombing.

MURDERED SOFIA RED KILLED SEVEN POLICE BEFORE BEING SLAIN

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 29. — A Communist worker, who was attacked by the police at his home, defended himself so successfully that he killed eight policemen before he was finally slain.

Two policemen sent by the fascist government to murder the Communist in his own home were repulsed, one of the fascisti being killed by the worker.

The Communist then took up a position on the canal in the suburbs of Sofia. The police again attacked, using bombs, and three mine throwers. The Communist, using two rifles, killed seven policemen in five hours of fighting, before himself being slain by the fascists.

"Hindenburg Safe!" Says Andy Mellon, Head of the United States Treasury

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, American big business gladly and cheerfully adjusts itself to the election results in Germany knowing that, "Hindenburg is safe!" in the words of "Andy" Mellon, secretary of the U. S. treasury, one of the richest men in the land.

David Lawrence, one of the capitalist syndicate writers at Washington, who writes intelligently of what is going on in the nation's capital, puts it this way:

> "American interest in German affairs is concentrated on getting money out of Germany. We want Germany to pay France so that France can pay us. WE DON'T CARE WHETHER THERE IS A REPUBLIC OR A MONARCHY IN GERMANY, if the paying process is not interrupted.
> "There will be no word of dissent uttered in Washington, in case Germany slides back into imperial government with von Hindenburg as president, as France did with Napoleon III."

• • • •

The United States, as the head of world reaction, recognizes gladly its counterpart in other lands. It has watched, with growing satisfaction, the strength of the feudal reaction in the Balkans, until recently the American Minister Wilson, in Bulgaria, was unmasked as the guiding influence that persuaded the Bulgarian government to place the blame for the cathedral blast on the Communists, and not on the Jugo-Slav government, as originally intended. It has hailed fascism, in its most bloody aspects, under Mussolini, in Italy, and under Primo de Rivera, in Spain, not to mention the Baltic provinces of the Versailles peace. It has watched like a nursing mother the growth of the Hindenburg-Ludendorff-Hitler reaction in Germany. Its present secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover, as food administrator in Europe, following the war, is credited with the overthrow of the Hungarian Soviet Republic, and the ushering in of the murderous Horthy rule.

• • • •

There is the closest kinship between Hindenburg's "Deutschland Ueber Alles!" and Morgan's "America First!" They both stand for the domination of the capitalist class over the working class. They both demand the supremacy of property rights. Every precaution must be taken to safeguard profits. And in order that profits may grow and multiply, capitalism takes the same steps in both Germany and in the United States, increasing the length of the workday from eight to tend and twelve hours; cutting wages; outlawing the Communists who fight against these attacks; crushing militant trade unionism, and making war upon the workers generally.

Wall Street, during the campaign, picked Marx as the safer candidate of the two. But it is highly satisfied with Hindenburg. Coolidge's fake disarmament conference plans may have to go by the board. French capitalism fears Hindenburg rule as the means of bringing into existence a new and greater militarism in Germany. The reply of French capitalism will be increased armaments; which will mean the threat of new war, resulting inevitably in another European blood bath that will spread to even greater word proportions than the last international slaughter.

To be sure, President Coolidge, under Wall Street's orders, will continue to press for a disarmament conference. Nations building huge armaments make poor debt payers. That fact is very disquieting to Morgan and other international bankers. But the rivalries of German and French capitalisms would develop just as surely under the presidency of a Marx, head of the republican bloc, as they did even under the "socialist," Ebert.

• • • •

Let the workers watch the Morgan government at Washington and study its support of the Hindenburg regime. If they do, they will get a little better insight into the real nature of American capitalism, revealing as never before its ugly anti-labor face. They will then understand much better many of the things the Communists have been pointing out to them. They will realize why they must enlist and fight under Communist standards.

war prisoners, an eight-hour day, and a reduction of taxes.

Luther For Dawes Plan.

Speaking to the association of commerce and industry here, Chancellor Luther, fresh from his conference with Hindenburg promised outright that under the Hindenburg regime Germany would "abide by the Dawes plan." He further declared the new president would accept the abominable treaty of Versailles. To appease the extreme monarchists, Luther demanded the evacuation of the Ruhr and the Rhine.

However, Luther made it clear that the monarchists, altho they are anxious to re-establish the power of the German capitalists, will bow to the power of the international bankers.

Socialists and Fascists Under Bankers' Control.

Political strife in Germany will continue, it is predicted, as Otto Braun, the socialist, retains his position as premier of Prussia, and the socialists-catholic coalition continues to control their power in the reichstag. The two groups are both bent on selling out the workers. Both support the Dawes plan, and both take orders from the German capitalists as well as the Wall Street bankers.

Fearing the strike which was demanded by the Communists upon Hindenburg's entry into Berlin, it is now thought Hindenburg will come here secretly and install himself in the presidential palace before his arrival is announced.

Two Workers Hurt in Varnish Blast at Malden, Mass.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MALDEN, Mass., April 29.—An explosion and fire in the varnish and cement building of the Boston Rubber Shoe Co., today wrecked that building, endangered the main plant, rocked the factory district of this city and, it was feared, took a toll of two lives.

Two hours after the explosion and fire, company officials said they thought two workmen in the building were injured but escaped. The men could not be located however. A third man in the building, a visitor, was injured.

Plan Paris to N. Y. Flight

PARIS, April 29.—The ministry of aviation admitted today that it was considering attempting a non-stop flight from Paris to New York. It said, however, that the pilots and type of ship for the flight had not been chosen and the date had not been set.

NEGROES OUST WHITE HEAD OF FISK COLLEGE

Served the Interests of Big Business of South

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 29.—Following a meeting of the board of trustees of Fisk University here, it was made known that Dr. Fayette McKenzie, white president of the Negro university, has resigned. McKenzie had lost the confidence of the entire student body of the university because he carried out the wishes of the Negro hating southern business men, and imposed harsh punishments on the Negro students.

The students finally went on strike against McKenzie, and when he refused to give them a voice in the school, 90 per cent of the students returned to their homes.

The reason given for the resignation of McKenzie was that "his usefulness as an educator among the Negro race has ended." McKenzie refused to allow Negroes to speak to the students of the Nashville, Tenn., University, altho freely giving the platform to white manufacturers.

The fight on McKenzie began several years ago, when he was criticised by the Negroes for instituting a spy system among the teaching force, and the establishment of "prison rules."

An editorial by Dr. Du Bois in the current issue of his magazine, The Crisis, declares, "Men and women of black America: Let no decent Negro send his child to Fisk until Fayette McKenzie goes."

The action of McKenzie in ordering the arrest of five students who took part in the demonstration against him aroused a storm of protest among Negroes thruout the country. McKenzie was supported by the southern lumber and other big business interests who wanted to continue to use the southern Negro as a source of cheap labor.

McKenzie resignation, takes effect on June 30, it is announced.

SHOE WORKERS RESTORE THEIR PICKET LINES

Injunction Denied By Court

NEW YORK CITY, April 29—The United Shoe Workers' Protective Union has defeated an application for a permanent injunction restraining them from picketing in any form the five stores of the United Shoe Rebuilding company. A strike was called against this company when A. Friedman, the president, fired four workers for belonging to the union. The strike soon broadened into a fight for a raise in wages and union recognition. The workers walked out solidly and thru effective mass picketing hindered the strikebreakers.

The company then resorted to the courts and P. Pascal Cosgrove and a number of pickets were arrested. The case came for a hearing before Magistrate Burnett on Sunday, April 12. The workers were discharged while the judge gave some friendly advice to Friedman; namely, to apply to a higher court for an injunction. This was done. The company applied to Judge Delahenty of the supreme court for a permanent injunction calling upon the union to show cause why picketing in any form should not be restrained by the court.

Ordered Picketing Stopped.

In the meantime the judge ordered all picketing to be stopped before the union even received a notice to argue the case. The case finally came up for argument on April 22. Joseph R. Brodsky, representing the union pointed out that all the papers and affidavits on which the stay was granted were absolutely false.

He proved that all the men on the picket line were members of the union and that some of them had worked as long as six years in the trade under the "satisfactory" conditions of ten hours per day and six days per week, at a wage of $28 to $30 per week. This fact entirely disproved the contention of the company that the men were perfectly satisfied with conditions and the pickets were nonunion outside meddlers and agitators.

One of the scabs who signed an affidavit for Friedman stating that he was a member of the union was branded as a fraud. A copy of application card and his dues payment record to the union were produced.

Why Not Rush Before?

The motion for a permanent injunction was denied and the workers immediately rushed back to the picket line with a determination to win. Victory seems assured.

This first successful struggle against the application of injunction in the fight against the shoe workers was led by Local No. 64 of the United Shoe Workers' Protective Union, which is a militant organization and the first to successfully organise the workers in the shoe industry. This is a record of achievement of which the shoe workers of New York are proud.

The victory against the injunction will be celebrated by Local No. 64 with a big mass meeting, on May Day at Premier Palace, 505 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn. All shoe workers are invited to participate with Local No. 64 in its splendid victory. A number of prominent speakers in English, Italian and Jewish will address the meeting.

ELECTRIC TRUST ENTERS INTO WORLDWIDE TRADE COMBINE TO MONOPOLIZE RADIO STATIONS

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Formation of a world-wide radio trust, bringing into one syndicate the Radio Corporation of America, the Marconi companies in Britain and Italy, the French companies, the German Telefunken interests and the Mitsui companies in Japan and China, is on the way.

So says one of the foremost American authorities on telegraph and radio now just returned from a European trip.

"Competition" A Blind

Point is given this warning by the arrival in China of Gen. Harbord, president of the Radio corporation of America, to arrange for immediate construction of a main sending station and four secondary sending stations in that country, in partnership with the Pekin government. This enterprise is in ostensible competion with the Japanese (Mitsui) corporation whose stations are already in use. The Chinese contracts with the American trusts were made in 1921 with the Federal Telegraph Co., of California, latter transferred to the Federal Telegraph Co. of Delaware, a subsidiary of the Radio corporation. Back of the Radio corporation is the General Electric Power trust, which has become international rather than simply American. It is said in Wall Street that Mitsui & Co., are heavy stockholders in General Electric. So competition in China is really a fraud.

The Chinese contracts provide that Chinese government gold bonds to the amount of $6,500,000, bearing 8 per cent interest, shall be handed over to the Americans in return for cash investment in the plant, and that the Americans shall be half-owners in the enterprise for the first ten years after its completion. If the profits on China's half of the business are not sufficient to pay off the bonds, interest and premiums, then China is to pay the balance from other sources of revenue. The whole property, and the taxing power of the Chinese government, are mortgaged. So, if the business is not highly profitable, the American Radio trust, which is the property of the power trust, which is international, may become owner of China's radio system.

General Electric Tightens Grip

As the radio development marches forward in North and South America, Asia, Europe and Africa, many other lines of electrical development follow closely. The General Electric and Westinghouse concerns produce the power machinery and the equipment needed for the use of power in industry and in dwellings and public buildings. General Electric is quietly acquiring power sites, waiting for the time when they can profitably be developed, to control not merely radio but every other form of use of electric current. The radio companies are encouraged to make a show of competition, in order that the relative share of each in the worldwide private monopoly of radio may soon be determined, and that a united front may then be established by the private trust, backed by the international power trust.

The electric trust is endeavoring to settle the conflicting political interests of the world powers by means of international economic combination. This of course is impossible, as the world powers cannot exploit identical colonies and subject nations and races, jointly or at the same time.

Militant Trade Union Members Dance May 2; Will Crown Red Queen

NEW YORK CITY—All the trade union militants are preparing for the May carnival and dance arranged by the Eastern District and Needle Trades section T. U. E. L. arranged for Saturday evening, May 2 at Harlem Casino, 116th St. and Lenox Ave. Present indications point to one of the most successful affairs in the annals of the trade union rebels.

The arrangements committee has taken great pains to see to it that a good time will be had by all. An orchestra well known for its ability to just make you dance has been secured.

As one of the special features for this affair there will be a crowning of the Red queen. Good looking rebels of the fair sex take notice. This is your chance to shine.

This will be the last T. U. E. L. ball of the season and we want to make it a real memorable event. All the proceeds of the affair go towards the propaganda work. The summer months are lean months as far as income is concerned but we cannot allow the work to suffer. You can therefore kill two birds at once. Help the work and have a good time while you are doing so.

SOVIETS APPOINT ABLE COMMUNIST COMMERCIAL DELEGATE TO JAPAN

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, April 29.—A. Yanson, member of the collegium of the people's commissariat of foreign trade, and formerly delegate of the Far Eastern republic to the Russo-Japanese conference at Changchun in September, 1922, and member of the delegation which signed the Soviet-Italian treaty in February, 1924, has been appointed commercial representative of the U. S. S. R. in Japan.

GARY OFFICIALS IN PRISON FOR SELLING BOOZE

Were Elected With Steel Trust Backing

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 29.—Roswell O. Johnson, former Gary, (Ind.) mayor, and four other prominent Gary politicians surrendered shortly before noon today to United States Marshal Meredith to be taken to Atlanta federal prison to serve sentences for conviction as the "higher ups" in the famous Gary liquor conspiracy case. A "farewell" booze party was called off because the Gary officials, who were elected with the backing of the steel trust, were called upon to surrender.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon the prisoners were to be placed aboard a Big Four train for Atlanta in custody of United States Deputy Marshals A. C. Elliott and Oscar Johnson. The party will go by way of Cincinnati. Their train is due to arrive in Atlanta at 7:25 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Among those in the party were former Mayor R. O. Johnson, Clyde Hunter and M. Kinder, former county prosecutors; Attorney C. A. Lucas and L. F. Barnes, former president of the board of public works, who resigned yesterday morning.

Sixteen others, the last of the forty-two sentenced in the case, were granted a week's delay and will not leave for prison until next Monday.

Kluxer Charged With Murderous Attack on Girl Pours Out Gold

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 29.—The drive of twenty civic clubs for money to aid in prosecuting David C. Stephenson, ex-dragon of the ku klux klan charged with the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer was renewed today with the announcement by Judge James A. Collins, that Stephenson's plea to be admitted to bail would be heard Friday.

While the clubs declined to make public the amount already raised they intimated that it was sufficient to offset the large sums Stephenson is expected to spend in fighting for freedom.

Counsel for both sides spent the day whipping their arguments into shape for the hearing on the bail motion which was expected to develop into a miniature trial.

School Board Votes Teachers' Pay Raise to Start Sept. 1

At the special meeting of the board of education, the board voted 8 to 0 for accepting the McAndrew salary schedule. The new salary rate will begin Sept. 1, at the opening of the fall school term.

The next move in order will be to secure additional funds to meet the increased expenditures. And this the board plans to do first thru crowding the class rooms and next to urge an increase in the present tax rate from $1.92 to $2.92. Without the increase in taxes the new salary rate can not continue for more than 12 months.

The vote was taken after many weeks of wrangling over the proposition. Some of the board members refused to take action until they knew where the money was coming from as at present the board is practically on the verge of bankruptcy.

The Chicago Teachers' Federation has gone on record against the schedule because of the unfair division of salaries, which gives the bulk of the increases to the principals in the elementary schools and leaves the teachers in the lower grades worse off than they were before, giving them an actual cut in the second, third and fourth years.

HOW LEVIN KEEPS PUPPY-DOG ARMY UNDER HIS THUMB

ment, and it is left for the business agent to sub-divide this total among the different sections.

For instance, the firm agrees to pay $4.00 for the making of a coat. The business agent divides $3.85 among the various sections and 15 cents he saves for what is called a "shop treasury." If a certain section does very good work for the machine, such as slugging militants, terrorizing the other workers in the shop, etc., the business agent gives them a "present," an increase of their price fixed for the section of, let us say, two cents. In some cases this means an increase in wages of about $8.00 or $10.00 a week.

In this way the business agent is able to develop in some shops a group that will on a minute's notice be ready to do any dirty work he wants. An instance is rather illuminating.

Calling Out the Hired Troops.

At a meeting called by the suspended members to protest against the outrageous action of Manager Levin in removing workers from their jobs for merely distributing Local 5's leaflet, the officials brought down, not only hired gangsters, but also ordered "reliable" groups from the shops to do their dirty work.

I noticed among these groups a cutter who knows very little about unionism. The following day he asked me, "What was it all about?" I explained to him about the removals from the job. Then he exclaimed:

What He Would Do If Business Was Not Business.

"If Levin would take me off the job for such reasons I would not consider the consequences but would kill him on the spot. Nobody can dilly daily with the bread and butter of my wife and children."

When asked why he participated with the gangsters if that was the way he thought, he answered, "Business is business." These are the elements that are suspending members from the union because of "disloyalty."

When any member of the A. C. W. from a different city comes to work in Chicago, the first few weeks they let him run to the employment office for a job without any results. Then when the member gives up hope of ever getting a job, they call him into the employment office and tell him—

Breaking the Newcomer's Spirit.

"Altho you are not next in line for a job . . . We can see that you are a good union man, a sensible fellow," etc. "So we are going out of our way to help you out . . . Going to send you to work and hope that you will be all right.

In this way they give him the first lesson that if he expects to get along, and if he knows what is good for him, he will be a "good boy." If, in time, he proves to be possessed of some ability, they make him promises. "In time you will become an executive board member, or a joint board member and even it is possible you may be a paid official."

Slander Campaign Against Militants.

If, after all this, the member dares to express an opinion contrary to the interests of the machine, then, of course, there is a different story. Even tho the member has given away his life to the organization, he is handled as a man who knows nothing, that never did anything for the union—as a foreigner.

"What does he know about the Chicago organization?" is a popular remark. They will even put up irresponsible people to spread the rumor that he is a former scab, etc. In this way they try to kill the reputation of each rebel that comes from a different part of the country.

Revolt Brewing in the Shops.

With all these methods, the bureaucracy was able to keep an iron grip on the organization. But lately the workers in the shops are awakening to the fact that the union has become only a means whereby the officialdom can collect dues.

This began since the "readjustments," which followed Hillman's promise at the last May Day meeting that there would be no wage reductions in Chicago. Wages were cut, nevertheless, under the guise of readjustments, in many instances it amounted to a 25 per cent cut. Especially has the removal of workers from jobs stirred the membership of Chicago A. C. W.

For the first time in years you can hear the workers in the shops discussing seriously how to organize and wrest the control of the union from the hands of the corrupt bureaucracy and make the Amalgamated a real fighting union again. They want a union which will fight the bosses and not fight the workers.

In this fight the rebellious and conscious workers find the Trade Union Educational League a ready instrument in their fight against the bureaucracy in Chicago. All members of the Amalgamated who want a clean and militant union, rally to the T. U. E. L.!

GERMAN 'CHEKA' TRIAL CLOSES

Eighty Years' Sentences in Frame-up.

THE notorious "Cheka" trial, the preliminary stage in the campaign of the German government for the complete destruction of the Communist movement in Germany, has just come to a close after dragging on for ten weeks. Of the sixteen accused, three have been condemned to death, and thirteen to prison terms amounting altogether to about 80 years. All the sentences are based upon the evidence of police-spies, for the most part on that of Felix Neumann, an insane epileptic who was carefully coached for a year preceding the trial by Vogt, the examining judge.

The Cheka trial is only the preface to a still graver attack upon the Communist Party of Germany. Next month practically all the leaders of the party, including Ruth Fischer and Comrade Thalmann, Communist candidate in the presidential elections, are to be brought to trial, in a desperate attempt to deal a death blow to the one force in Germany today to which the working class can look for leadership in their struggle against their intolerable enslavement under the Dawes' plan.

Attempt to Destroy C. P.

When the efforts of General Seeckt, a year ago, to destroy Communism in Germany by open and brutal suppression under martial law, proved a complete failure, and despite the prevailing white terror the Communist polled over three and one-half million votes in the elections, German capitalism began to seek other methods for crushing the spirit of revolt steadily gaining force among the masses, and breaking down their glowing confidence in Communist leadership. They decided on the use of so-called "legal" means for the discrediting and suppression of the party, and to this end devoted a year of careful preparation to arranging a trial for high treason in connection with the uprisings of 1923, concocting a wild extravaganza in which cholera germs, mysterious women "Cheko" agents, Russian Red Army generals, rabbits and Hugo Stinnes were all mixed up in a ridiculous hodge-podge in best dime-novel style. In fact, it is stated that the "Red plot" is the invention of a bright young police official who has since left for this country to write for the movies.

Insane [illegible] Story.

The story goes that during the revolutionary crisis of 1923 there existed in Germany a secret "Cheka," controlled and financed by Moscow, and led by Russian Red Army generals. A certain "Lou" alleged to be a former employe of the Soviet embassy, introduced Neumann, the insane police spy, to a mysterious female known as "Comrade Eve," who supplied him with cholera and typhoid germs, with which Skoblevsky, one of the Russian generals, instructed him to get rid of Hugo Stinnes, General von Seeckt, and other leading German industrialists and counter-revolutionaries. Physicians who attended Stinnes at the time of his death failed to find any trace of such "germs," and totally discredited the crazy yarn; moreover Seeckt and all the others whose doom the "Cheka" is said to have pronounced happen to be alive and well today—but little details of this sort did not hamper the prosecution in the slightest degree.

Russia Dragged In.

The greatest efforts were made by the prosecution to drag in not only the central executive committee of the German Communist Party, but also the Comintern and Soviet Russia. In order to prove that "Russia has something to do with the matter" the police arrested in the streets of Berlin on March 24, 1924, a man with the name of Skoblewski, who only a month before arrived in Berlin from France, where he was sent in 1916 by the czarist government with a transport of troops, and where he has lived ever since. Skoblewski was on his way back to Russia, and, as France did not have any Russia embassy at that time, was staying in Berlin for the completion of his papers for his journey to Russia. Neumann was made to declare that the poor immigrant worker was a Red Army general, "Helmuth," sent from Russia to head the German "Cheka."

Both the German central executive and the Comintern issued statements in this connection, definitely pointing out that individual acts of terrorism are completely opposed by Communist theory and practice, and exposing the whole clumsy frame-up.

The one act of violence actually proved in the course of the trial was the shooting of a fellow police spy, Rausch, by the insane Neumann himself. Neumann tried to make the Communist Party responsible for this act, altho he had been in the service of the police for years before it occurred, and all the severest sentences are based upon alleged connection with this shooting. This whole episode appears to be one of those cases not unknown in the history of the German secret service—or that of other countries—in which a tool who gets to know too much, or in some other way is felt to be a danger to the sinister work of the organization, is put out of the way by another tool. Rausch was not seriously wounded, and the physicians said that an operation would save his life. The operation was mysteriously forbidden, and two months later Rausch died under very suspicious circumstances. It seems pretty certain that the Berlin secret police know why he had to die.

Savage Sentences.

This is the stupid structure of lies on which the sentences of our comrades are based. The death sentences do not mean much, for two of them were passed, for effect, on the police spies, Neumann and Poege, who were promised protection before the trial began, and will get it—unless they also know too much. The other defendant to receive the death sentence is the Russian worker, Skoblewsky, and however much the Germany government may be trying to break off relations with Russia, it would not dare to raise the international storm that the murder of a Russian would involve.

The terrible reality of the trial lies in the long prison sentences imposed on the other thirteen—workers and comrades all—who have already been subjected to revolting torture in the year of preliminary imprisonment prior to the opening of the trial. When sentences were pronounced, the crowds of workers that had managed to gain access to the court room showered the prisoners with red flowers, and a great protest demonstration was held outside despite police interference.

Great protest meetings and demonstrations are being held thruout the country against this latest outrage committed by the bourgeois and social democratic government (the whole trial being under Ebert's direction), against the German working class, and their leader, the Communist Party.

Red Ambassador in Tokio Sees Stability in the Far East

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW.—(By Rosta.)—In an interview with the Moscow correspondent of Japanese papers, V. L. Kopp, Soviet ambassador to Tokio, stated, among other things, that the basic significance of the Soviet-Japanese agreement lay in the fact that this past terminated a period of unrest and anxious instability in the Far East and laid a foundation for all-round co-operation of two great Far Eastern powers in all domains where their interests met.

At the same time, the ambassador stressed that the rapprochement between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Japan was no menace for anyone's interests and its development would not proceed at anyone's expense.

COLLEGE PAPERS AT HARVARD 'U' BATTLE CENSO

Stunts with U. S. Fla Are Under the Ban

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. Apr. 29.—Pos authorities at Washington are expec ed to decide whether the Harva Advocate comes under the ban of o jectionable pictures and literatu Local postoffice officials have he up copies of the magazine pending decision from Washington.

A drawing, entitled "Neo-plato Love," which represents a man a woman in close embrace, is said to the objectionable feature of the s dent publication.

At the same time the Harvard La poon, which also came under t eyes of Washington and local po censors reappeared on news-stan the American flag on the cover, picting Washington crossing the De ware, was changed to black. T nude caricature of Manet's Olym was modified.

Despite these changes the Lampo editors said they were determined fight the suppression edict. They a backed by two Harvard law sch professors.

Hit at Purists.

In the Lampoon part of the rep duction of Manet's painting is bloc white and in this space is a captio "Puris omina pura," (to the pure things are pure). Part of this ture is omitted in this edition in erence to the "tastes and prejudi of sundry nasty-minded Torgema and Dogberries."

This is understood to refer Tomas de Torquemada, organiser the Spanish inquisition and Dogber the abused constable in Shakespea plays.

LOS ANGELES IN WHIRLWIND MAY DAY CAMPAIGN

Mass Meetings and Big Parade on Friday

By PAUL C. REISS.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—An enthusiastic campaign meeting was held by the Workers (Communist) Party of Los Angeles in San Pedro harbor, with Mother Ella Reeve Bloor as the principal speaker. The meeting was held at the corner of Fourth and Beacon streets. The meeting was part of the election campaign of the Communists, who have placed their program before the voters in the coming city elections.

On Thursday, April 30, Tom Lewis, the new district organizer for the Workers Party of California, will speak on the same corner.

On May 2 and May 4 Mother Bloor holds meetings in the afternoon in the Negro district, at Ninth and Central streets. She will also hold shop meetings on these days.

A May Day parade will be held in Los Angeles by the Workers Party, starting at the co-operative center, Brooklyn avenue, at 7 o'clock Friday evening, before the May Day celebration, which will be held there at 8 p. m., with Tom Lewis as the principal speaker. A mass meeting will also be held in San Pedro on May 1.

Library in the Bronx, N. Y.

NEW YORK—A library is being started at the Bronx headquarters, 1347 Boston Road. A library committee has been elected at the last general membership committee meeting, and is trying to make the library a real live fact in the Bronx. Bronx branches are asked to elect delegates to this committee, which meets Monday nights at Bronx headquarters. Comrades are asked to make donations of money, books, magazines, periodicals, and subscriptions to our daily papers, and our foreign news service. All donations and contributions should be made to B. Robins, chairman, library committee, at the Bronx headquarters. Now, all together, comrades, and let us see if we cannot make the Bronx one of the best centers of educational activities.—B. Robins, chairman library committee.

Nation-Wide May Day Demonstrations

INQUIRIES and information coming into the national office of the Workers Party regarding this year's May Day celebration indicate a nation-wide demonstration that will surpass any previous May Day in the party's history. Every town in which there is a party branch should arrange such a meeting and notify the national office.

The smaller towns should obtain May Day speakers thru their district offices. As soon as a meeting is arranged, each party organization is requested to send in full information regarding name of speaker, address of hall and time of meeting. We will give these meetings publicity thru the DAILY WORKER.

Don't fail to notify the national office.

Meetings arranged up to the present time with time, place and speakers are:

Lerner Lectures on Leninism on Monday Evenings in Boston

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., April 29. — Max Lerner, national circuit lecturer of the Workers Party, is giving a series of lectures on Leninism every Monday night at 8 p. m. at 62 Chambers street, Boston. Next Monday's lecture, on May 4, will be: "The Source of Profits in the Capitalist System and How Surplus Value is Divided."

Comrades who attended last week's lectures, "The State and Revolution," are very enthusiastic about Comrade Lerner's lectures. They say they have spent a most profitable and interesting evening and would not miss a single one of the lectures in the course. They call upon all the comrades in Boston to take advantage of this course of lectures and get workers to attend. Admission is 15 cents.

The lectures will include on Monday, May 11, "Contradictions of the Capitalist System"; May 18, "Fundamental Communist Strategy and Tactics"; May 25. "Brief Contrast of First, Second and Communist International."

CAPITALIST LAW PERMITS CHILD SLAVES IN HOME

It is an accepted fact that "home work" is impractical unless taken part in by children. One manufacturer said when questioned about children and home work:

Capitalists Anxious for Child's Nimble Fingers.

"The 'ablest' time in a child's life is from eight to fourteen when his fingers are nimble and quick to catch on. We can make use of this. Industry can make use of it." Ergo—"home work."

Another manufacturer stated frankly that, "home work isn't worth bothering about if the children don't help."

It is obvious even to the uninitiated that in home work there can be no regulation of wages of hours or of wages of those working. We actually find, therefore, that in the poorer districts of Chicago, where wages are low and families large, that the worker's family in desperation turns to "home work" in an attempt to eke out a living. Little children are engaged in confining labor before school, after school and long into the night.

Retardation in the school classes among these children has been found to be from 25 to 60 per cent. The truant officer reports that children are kept out of school "to help at home" can often times be definitely be traced to this insidious form of child labor.

The "Industrious Habits" Excuse.

The answer given by the manufacturers, who are, of course, among the chief opponents to the child labor law, is that child labor keep the children off the streets and "teaches the habits of industry."

The children are kept in dark, ill-ventilated tenement homes using their playtime to work at the powder puffs and tiny, bright colored beads, straining their eyes in the poor light and stunting their already ill-nourished bodies.

Ruined Sight and Health of Thousands.

The last report of the Chicago health commissioner states that 54 per cent of the children have been found suffering from defective eye sight. Those suffering from malnutrition, from "rickets" (which is also a lack of sunshine disease) are estimated to be 14,000. They include a great percentage of those engaged in child labor.

The great hue and cry against even the weak child labor amendment, which is appearing consistently in the columns of all the Chicago newspapers except the DAILY WORKER is significant.

If child labor did not exist in this state, in this city, the industrial magnates and their editorial tools would hardly give their precious front page space to the news of the defeat of the amendment. Their constant editorial plea that this proposed law strikes at the very root of individual initiative and industry, and the other great American virtues, is but another manifestation of their defense of their "advertising public."

Program of Edward Harris, Endorsed by the Workers (Communist) Party.

I DO not repeat the ridiculous pretentions of the other candidates, that I have a program which will suit all classes. I state frankly that my program is only in the interest of the workers, who are exploited by the master class. Now when great numbers of workers are suffering from unemployment, when police and injunctions are called in by the bosses to break all strikes, when the workers' standard of living is being steadily forced down, when workers' children are suffering from inadequate and improper schooling, when the public service corporations, like the gas and telephone companies are unhampered in their control of public utilities, when these companies extract every cent of profit from the workers that they can—it is necessary to come forward with a program which exposes the real issues in the municipal elections to be held in May—a program which rallies the working men and women of Los Angeles for struggle against the capitalists on the basis of the immediate interests of the workers.

DEMANDS.

1. Public Utilities.—I demand immediate removal of public utilities from the ownership and control of private capitalists. Confiscation of all franchises. Operation to be for public service and not for private profit—under direct management, vested in committees chosen by the workers engaged in the various branches of service.

2. Unemployment.—Work or compensation for all unemployed not as a matter of "charity," but as a direct municipal responsibility. The city to bear the cost, and compensation to be paid thru working class bodies selected by labor unions in conjunction with unemployed workers. No eviction for non-payment of rent. City government must assume responsibility for comfortable housing of unemployed workers free of charge while they are unemployed, and rooms in the houses of the wealthy residents must be requisitioned for this purpose. Immediate inauguration of a program of public works, especially with a view toward relieving the unemployment situation, such as plans for immediate improvement and sanitation of working class districts. Abolition of private employment agencies. Establishment of free employment bureaus by unemployed workers' organizations and unions operating at municipal expense. All employers must register their "help wanted" in these free employment bureaus.

3. Education.—Educational policies, text-books, selection of all school officials to be taken out of the control of the political servants of big business and placed in the hands of teachers and students. I demand that all children in the public schools of Los Angeles up to the age of sixteen shall be fully maintained at the expense of the city thruout the year, not only as regards text-books, but also in regards to food, clothing, transportation to and from school, vacation expenses, and all other expenses necessary to a healthful life while studying. Substantially increased pay for teachers. Money for increased wages to be obtained thru special assessments against wealthy property owners and speculators.

4. Police and Labor.—Abolition of the use of police and injunctions to break strikes, and their use in all labor disputes and free speech fights. Abolition of anti-picketing laws. Maintenance of order during strikes, picketing, etc., to be exclusively in the hands of committees elected by the workers on strike. Abolition of private detective agencies, which have proved to be nothing but institutions of thuggery and frame-up against the workers. Prohibition of use of scabs; penalty of fine or imprisonment for all employers using or importing strikebreakers.

5. Conditions of Labor.—I demand the use of the city government power of regulation to compel the payment of not less than the union scale of wages, to all workers employed in private industry or in any kind of labor. I also demand that the public health department enforces the eight-hour day and forty-hour week, severe penalties to be put upon employers violating same. Sanitation, safety devices, ventilation, and all other conditions of labor in workshops to be subject to the sole control of shop committees elected by the workers; any employer violating regulations laid down by such committees to be punished as violating a city health ordinance.

6. Child Labor.—In accordance with the consistent national campaign against child labor initiated by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, I demand the abolition of all child labor up to sixteen years of age, children to be supported at municipal expense. Funds for this purpose to be secured thru taxes levied against corporations' profits and high individual incomes. For young workers, equal pay for equal work for youth and adult. A maximum six-hour day and five-day week for all young workers from sixteen to twenty-one years of age. Four weeks annual vacation with full pay for all young workers.

7. Contract Letting.—Abolition of private contract system in the construction of public works; all contracts to be let thru unions, with union working conditions, wages and hours.

8. Municipal Employes.—No interference with the right of any branch of municipal employes to organize in labor unions. Establishment of the shop committee system as a means of direct control of job conditions by the employes of the various departments.

9. San Pedro Harbor.—All employes of companies, steamship agencies, canneries, etc., using public docks, public wharves, public waterfronts, must obtain work under union conditions, receive union wages.

Abolition of Employers' Association "Employment Agency" commonly known as "Fink Hall."

The above program of immediate demands touches issues which are vital to every working man and woman in Los Angeles. Every one of these issues is a direct outgrowth of the present system of production for private profit—that is, of capitalism. Because of the monopoly which the bosses maintain over the factory, machines, etc., the workers are obliged to toil long hours for meager wages while the goods that they produce are taken by the capitalists. With schools, press and police power in the hands of capitalism, it is obvious that these elections do not offer any real opportunity for the workers. Capitalist democracy is nothing but sham. There can be no real solution of the great problems weighing down upon the workers until capitalism is overthrown—until the workers seize control of the government power and take over industry. This will be accomplished thru the establishment of a Soviet republic and workers' and farmers' government.

District 15 (San Pedro Harbor.)

Soviet State Tea Trusts Gets Year's Supply of Tea

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARBIN, (By Rosta).—The local papers report, on the strength of telegraphic information received from Shanghai, that the Soviet state tea trust has purchased, thru the trade mission of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in China, from the Asiatic Trading company, Ltd., a big part of the black and green brick tea crop, that is expected to cover the needs of the U. S. S. R. in this particular kind of goods for about one year.

It is also reported that the conditions of the deal are very advantageous: 6 pence have been paid per pound for the highest grade, 2,75 pence for the lowest; 20 per cent have been paid in cash, while the rest has been purchased on terms of credits from 6 to 9 months.

PROGRESSIVE BARBERS GOT NO ANSWER

Officials Proved Unwilling to Organize

The last convention of the International Journeymen Barbers' Union decided that women barbers, hairdressers and other workers in similar trade must be organized under its banner. So far this decision in Chicago has remained a dead letter. In spite of the militant rank and file members who have called the officials to a showdown, the officials have turned a deaf ear.

On February 10, the militants and many honest workers who have lost faith in the sincerity of their misleaders addressed the following letter to the officers and members of Local 548:

"To officers and members of Local 548, J. B. I. U. of A., Chicago, Ill.

"Greetings:—At the last meeting of the progressives, held on Monday, February 9, it was unanimously voted to pledge each individual member of the group to place himself at the service of Local 548, without compensation, to aid in making the organization of women barbers into our union a success.

"The last International Convention's decision to permit women beauty workers into our union marks a distinct step forward in the march of progress. This action has been hailed with enthusiasm by all active members of the Barbers' Union. To the students of the American labor movement this was an inevitable event, and a characteristic example of the trend toward amalgamation and centralisation. To the casual observer this may have only meant a self-protective measure.

"The members of Local 548, grouped in the progressive group, realise to the fullest extent the import of this historical event. They are anxious to see the campaign to organize Chihcago women barbers under way. They, as militant unionists, will lend their support commensurate with their individual ability and time disposable. They will follow the union's plan of organization, if any has yet been promulgated, or will participate in the drawing of such program as members of our local union.

"In all events, we shall be first on the battle line, urging in the launching of the organisation campaign soon as adequate preparations have been made, and trusting in a successful outcome, we remain,

"Fraternally yours,
"Chicago Progressive Barbers."

As was expected, the officials would not read this letter to the members of the union assembled in regular meeting. Their reason for not doing so was that they were then mixed in some shady deal and feared that the reading of this very innocent letter would endanger their "life and liberty." It was pointed out that the letter contained nothing of a compromising or illegal matter, but to no avail.

The real reason why the letter was not read was also a fear. Not the one that they gave—but the fear of letting the members of the union know that the progressive group was a rank and file expression. That they were progressives in deed and not in words. The real danger lay in the fact that the rank and filers might have come to a true understanding of the activity of the progressives.

English Tax Deals Heavy Blow to U. S. Automobile Sales

LONDON, April 29.—The American automobile industry was dealt a severe blow today with the announcement in the house of commons by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill that the McKenna tax of 33⅓ per cent would be imposed on the importation of automobiles. This would take effect July 1.

American manufacturers only recently started an intensive sales campaign in England and dealers here said this campaign prebably now would have to end.

BUILDERS AT WORK

CHICAGO CALLS MINNEAPOLIS TO ACTION

Comrade Leslie Hurt—Attention!

Challenges are being hurled "fast and furious" now. That little Russian stunt taught us by Comrade Shklar of Milwaukee is rolling up results.

Chicago enters the list of numerous cities in the challenge column with a sub sent in thru the Young Workers League by Comrade Al Schaap who throws the gauntlet at Comrade Leslie Hurt of Minneapolis in this way:

Builders' Column, DAILY WORKER:

Dear Comrades—Enclosed is one sub for one-half year to the DAILY WORKER. I challenge Comrade Leslie Hurt of Minneapolis to do the same.

Allow me to add that this scheme sure does get results and puts the real Communist builders to task.

We will challenge each other and by doing so are challenging the capitalists of this country.

Fraternally yours,
A. L. SCHAAP.

• • • •

COMRADE HURT.

Now it is up to you! Get a sub, step up to the City Agent, Dan Stevens, and with it give him a hot challenge to wake up anoher Communist in your local—or in any other. We can build a bigger and better Communist movement WITH "Our Daily."

• • • •

IN OTHER CITIES.

These comrades have sent in new subs in the Second Annual Sub Campaign on Tuesday, April 21:

TACOMA, WASH.—Mike Osanich (3).
LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Anna Cornblath (2), S. Globerman.
CHICAGO, ILL.—Oscar Wilson (2), W. Carmon, Harry Greenwood, Radical Book Store, Greek Branch, Workers Party.
MONESSEN, PA.—Leo Kauppila.
ASTORIA, ORE.—Pacific Development Society.
CANTON, O.—Regina Kristofich.
SASKATOON, SASK., CANADA.—H. C. Palmer.

• • • •

ATTENTION, COMRADES!

The following Communist Builders have sent in new subs and have challenged other comrades to get a sub. Some have sent in their subs—but these, as yet, have not.

Gus Shklar, Milwaukee, (3 subs) challenges Vera Fomenko, Yoker and Meyer, of South Bend.

M. Egavian, Philadelphia, (10 subs), challenges all Philadelphia branches.

Gregory Prodinich, Milwaukee, challenges Ruth Reynolds, of Detroit.

Gibson, Milwaukee, challenges Edgar Owens, Detroit.

Al Schaap, Chicago, challenges Leslie Hurt, Minneapolis.

AND NOW WHO'S NEXT?

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

WHAT MAY DAY MEANS TO US.

FRIDAY is May Day—our own holiday. It is the international holiday of the workers of the world. The men, women and children of the working class in every single city or village of every single country in the whole universe are participating in our holiday. Doesn't it feel good to have such a holiday?

Workers the world over have had to undergo much suffering and persecution for their holiday. It has not been given to them by the bosses. It is not that kind of a holiday. And if it were it would be a holiday without meaning to workers.

The workers took this holiday and in countries where the capitalists still rule, like in the United States, we still have to fight for our May Day. Workers declare a strike on that day. Children do not go to school. Having made the sacrifice they do not sit with hands folded and dream.

To us May Day is a day of protest, of demonstration and of propaganda. We shall distribute literature to every worker we can reach, we shall conduct open air lunch hour meetings for workers, we shall take the lead in mass demonstrations on the streets of the city and in the evening at indoor gatherings assembled in large halls.

Every year the lot of the workers in capitalist countries grows harder. As long as capitalism is in control there is the long line of unemployed workers walking the streets without a chance to work. No matter how low wages are the bosses are ever using every means to cut them still more. There are the open shop drives of the bosses to gain for them bigger profits. There is the vicious exploitation and cruel discrimination against the Negro race. This year we have had inflicted upon us the Dawes plan, which means that there will be even harsher exploitation and greater competition for bread among workers not only of one country but between workers in other countries.

So, comrades, up bright and early on May Day and celebrate your holiday like good Communists. Get your leaflets and distribute them from house to house. Distribute them at open air meetings. Talk to workers. Spread the message. And in the evening attend the May Day celebration.

The workers of Soviet Russia and in countries where workers rule have earned their holiday. We still must work to earn ours.

Juniors, are you ready?

Do I hear you answer, "Always ready!"?

The Old Gang Is Back

The election of von Hindenburg as president of Germany just about completes the cricle of the re-establishment of openly reactionary control of the governments of the great capitalist powers, allied and central, after the socialists were given the job of suppressing the revolutionary upheaval that followed the war.

America, to some degree outside the zone of cataclysmic revolt, is, if possible, more reactionary than before. The crafty tories of England, by the simple trick of a fake "Zinoviev letter," put MacDonald out of office. The French reactionaries dumped Herriot and now, after the social-democratic Barmat gang of the Second Internationalists have repeatedly crushed in blood the revolts of the German workers against capitalism, the yellow socialist traitors are hunted off into oblivion.

The yellow socialist traitors who were given the job of stopping the westward course of Bolshevsim are now being paid off for their dirty work. They held back, as much as was in their power, the workers of western Europe from following the example of their Russian comrades. The result is that the western workers still suffer an increasingly heavy exploitation, unemployment and threat of new imperialist wars, meanwhile the Russian workers steadily improve their economic position behind their armed outposts of the vigilant red army.

It would be amusing were the effects upon the working masses less of a ghastly tragedy, to observe the antics of the now ousted social traitors. Ramsay McDonald, for instance, has the following to say about the effects of the Dawes plan which he himself put over while in the good graces of American imperialism:

> "Germany is the industrial danger spot of Europe. Germany is actively dragging us down. Its low consumption is not only reducing our opportunities to sell products but its own production on low standards is hampering ours. We ought in every way to encourage the German trade unions to fight for shorter hours and better conditions."

The crocodile weeps. We remember when MacDonald called out troops to stop the English workers from gaining shorter hours and better conditions, and the Second International, of which Ramsay is a leader, is the most active opponent of international trade union unity on the basis of class struggle—the only hope to get the German workers into action against the Dawes plan.

This same MacDonald persuaded the Germans that the Dawes plan is a good thing for the German workers. Now we see that it enslaved the German workers and uses that slavery to batter down the standards of British, French and American workers.

Yellow socialists, except as lackeys to capitalism, have no function except to furnish a shameful contrast to the only proletarian fighting organization of the world—the Communist International.

Premier Stanley Baldwin does not see any sign of early disarmament. Neither do we.

The West Virginia Injunction

The injunction is an old method of assaulting the working class, especially since Bill Taft and the A. R. U. strike. But it remains for West Virginia federal courts to determine whether an injunction ever dies of old age or whether it is immortal.

Two or thre years ago a judge now departed issued an order against any organizers or members of the United Mine Workers trying to unionize the mines of the West Virginia Pittsburgh Coal company at Colliers, West Virginia.

The union came and went again in the section. The judge who issued it is now supplanted by another judge. Again the union tries, if John L. Lewis and Phil Murray can be said to have tried anything, to organize the mines. The moldy injunction is resurrected, painted up and 22 officials and miners are arrested and hauled into court for contempt.

The dispatches say that the union officials entered court with an "imposing array" of lawyers. If they wished either to win the strike or unionize the mines of West Virginia, the injunction will, of course, have to be fought. But the place for "imposing arrays" in such injunction cases is on the picket line, and if the officials had any guts themselves and could rally the miners around their leadership, which they cannot, there would be so many thousand miners violating the musty old injunction that the injunction would be torn to shreds, the mines organized and the strike won.

We bet that the Lewis gang does nothing of the kind.

Being King Is Still a Fairly Good Job

Being king in any respectable country is still one of the best paying jobs going. It is true that the scale has been hammered down somewhat since the Russian workers and peasants performed a surgical operation on the head of their czar and since the Emperor of Austria passed in his checks and Wilhelm, the kaiser of Germany, took to Doorn. The combined pay checks of the three above-named gentlemen was in the vicinity of 20,000,000 dollars a year. But a worker could live quite comfortably on the pittance allowed to the monarchs who still keep their heads politically and physically. Here is the payroll:

The King of Siam	$3,500,000
The King of Italy	3,200,000
The King of England	2,900,000
The Emperor of Japan	2,250,000
The King of Spain	1,775,000
The King of the Belgians	1,075,000
The King of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes	655,500
The King of Roumania	500,000
The King of Sweden	463,600
The King of Bulgaria	400,000
The King of Denmark	300,000
The King of Norway	244,000

The boys are getting good money, tho we think it a shame that King George of proud Albion is drawing less than the King of Siam. What about Mr. Ramsay MacDonald?

The Plots Thicken

Another bloody Communist plot has been nipped in the mustache! This time the gore was to be spilled in London and the victim was none other than Austen Chamberlain, tory secretary for foreign affairs.

The cautious news agency which got the dope from Scotland Yard, lets us in on the secret in the following language: "The plot against Chamberlain was developed in a European capital, well known as the center of the plot of a recent bomb murder conspiracy and was believed to be of Communistic origin."

Scotland Yard has a habit of discovering plots every once in a while after the fashion of our own late chief of the investigation department of the department of justice, William J. Burns. And both had the same habit of attributing all their discoveries to the Communists. Both never failed to claim credit for nipped plots and to cash in on the publicity in some way or other.

Without being experts in the art of solving cross-word puzzles, we believe that it is not a difficult task to correctly guess the city and location of the Chamberlain plot. The city is London and the exact location is Scotland Yard. May Day is almost here.

Sure enough, the yellow socialists did blame the defeat of their capitalist candidate on the German Communists, as we expected they would. Indeed they hardly ever disappoint us. Ernest Untermann, in the Milwaukee Leader, squirts the vitrol on us. But, and we say it with due humility, if the socialists did not interpose obstacles in the way of the Communists in 1918 and 1919 it is likely that Hindenburg would now be the object of attentions from kind hearted old women who like to patronize the florist and visit graves of soldiers known and unknown.

The only way to keep the workers from rebelling under capitalism is "the gatling gun, the armored tank, the companies drilling in the armories and the mounted cossacks with the clubs and rifles," declares the press service of the national office of the socialist party. Perhaps the socialists have a better and cheaper way. Poison gas, for instance, the kind that is concocted by the socialist propagandists, or maybe the real stuff.

The "yellow peril" may become a reality if Russia succeeds in bringing Japan and China into an entente against western imperialism, writes Lord Thompson, fromer British secretary for air in Ramsay MacDonald's socialist cabinet. It is not the yellow peril our bourgeois masters are afraid of, but the "red peril."

The Giornale d'Italia, commenting on the German elections, said something that will strike an answering chord in the heart of American capitalism. "Germany, which is mainly industrial, needs to keep labor costs low to meet foreign competition." Von Hindenburg can be relied on to let nature take its course in this respect.

The man who thinks the DAILY WORKER opposed LaFollette because he was too radical is the kind who thinks "Scarface" Al Capone is a revolutionist because he carries two guns around his appendix and shoots saloonkeepers who do not patronize his needle beer business.

The chief editorial writer on the Milwaukee Leader has taken to anticipating styles in ladies' wearing apparel. We hope he will be more successful in this line than in his former role of political forecaster.

It appears that the officials of the barbers' union had a close shave at that mass meeting in Chicago. The rank and file are tired of getting trimmed by their leaders.

Capitalist solons still battle over the "world court," a synonym for the league of nations. But while the storm rages in Washington, Morgan and his merry bankers are lying down the law to the governments of Europe, with more or less success.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Sessions of Enlarged Executive of the C. I.

MOSCOW, April 28.—(By Mail.)—The manifesto of the Comintern to all the members of the Czech Communist Party reads as follows:

"THIS year's actions of the Czecho-Slovakian proletariat have furnished new proof of its strength, its organization, and the correctness of the policy pursued by the Czech Communist Party. It was not incidental that the right elements led by Bubnik have delivered the party a treacherous blow just at the moment of action. The Comintern has already characterized Bubnik's action as treacherous, and has sanctioned his expulsion from the party. However, Bubnik's action, especially his attempt to discredit the party leadership and its political policy, met with but inadequate resistance on the part of the minority of the Czech Communist Party, and of the leaders of certain district organizations, especially of the Brunn district. The plenum of the Comintern has found that the memorandum presented by the Brunn organization has nothing whatever in common with the principles of Communism and Leninism, nor with the decisions of the world congresses and of the party congresses of the Czech Communist Party. This memorandum is but the restoration of the bankrupt social democratic views. The danger of a split made imminent thru Bubnik's treachery, was rendered still more acute by the indecisiveness of the minority. Today the Comintern affirms with satisfaction that after a thoro discussion of the question in the enlarged executive, the minority of the Czech Communist Party has abandoned the policy of Bubnik; the minority has agreed to fight the Brunn opportunists, and has approved of the resolution on the Czech delegation; it has also recognized the fight against the opportunist mutilations of Communist tactics as the fundamental problem now confronting the Czech Communist Party. The Comintern is confident that the slogan of securing the unity of the party at all costs, and the ideological struggle against the right tendencies, will be approved by the whole of the Czech Party. The Czech workers want no split; they will fight the splitters. The Comintern calls upon all party members to support the party leadership which has unanimously pursued the policy of liquidating all party crises, and has indefatigably worked for the Bolshevization and disciplining of the party. With the active support of the Czecho-Slovakian workers, the party will recover from the ailments of growth and from all relapses into opportunism."

This appeal is signed by Zinoviev, by the representatives of the majority, Neurath, Harus, Haken, Hrushka, by the representatives of the minority, Smeral, Zapototzky and Muna, by the representatives of the control commission, by the delegates from the organizations of Prague, Kladno, Brunn, and Aussig, by the representatives of the Communist parliamentary fraction, and by the delegates of the Youth.

MOSCOW, April 11.—(By Mail.)—THE executive bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions has adopted the following decision: "The resolution of the second conference of the Reichenberg textile workers' section regarding amalgamation with the textile workers' section of Prague, is in sharp contradiction with the Third World Congress of the R. I. L. U. Instead of carrying out the decisions of the Third World Congress, the resolution of the Reichenberg conference revives old controversial questions. The conference has rejected the clear and concrete resolution presented by the representative of the Czech Communist Party, and has adopted an ambiguous formula, which permits of sabotaging the decisions of the World Congress. Hence the executive bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions has decided that if the Reichenberg textile section should fail to amalgamate with the textile workers' section of Prague, before June 1st, 1925, it shall be considered as having severed its connections with the Red International of Labor Unions. The Red International of Labor Unions will no longer exchange correspondence on this question, and considers this decision as final.

MOSCOW, April 9.—(By Mail.)—SESSION of the Enlarged Executive of the Communist Youth International.

Today the session of the enlarged executive of the Communist Youth International was opened in the Kremlin. There were present 24 members of the executive, 32 delegates representing 15 sections, and 21 advisory delegates.

Comrade Vuyovitch spoke on the results of the session of the enlarged executive of the Comintern, and on the immediate problems confronting the youth. The fundamental problem being Bolshevization, the youth must proceed with the creation of mass organizations. The political activity and revolutionary consolidation of the youth as displayed during the Trotzky debate in Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, etc., must be further strengthened. To win over the masses, the Communist Youth International must lead the struggles of the working youth, particularly the struggle for the improvement of working conditions and child labor legislation, as well as the struggle for trade union unity and for the defense of the interests of the youth by the trade unions. To win over the land youth, and the young workers in the east, are tasks of primary importance. The work of disintegrating the bourgeoise armies, as part of the struggle against imperialist dangers, the consolidation of the youth into militant organizations, and the ideological fight against the enemies, particularly against the treacherous so-called socialist youth, must be strengthened. We must follow the slogan of Lenin: "Learn."

In the discussion on the report of Vuyovich, Comrade Reinhardt (Germany) emphasizes the need for the complete reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei.

Comrade Mehring (executive of the Communist Youth International) demands the intensification of the work among the peasant youth and in the sport organizations, also the concretization of the anti-militarist work by formulating definite demands for soldiers and sailors.

Com. Robert (Balkans) points out the importance of the nationality and agrarian questions in the Balkans, where the bourgeoisie influences the peasant youth for reactionary purposes.

Comrade Doriot (France) points out the significance of putting up concrete partial demands, particularly according to industries, and emphasizes the need for the leadership of the Youth International to utilize the experience of the western countries.

Comrade Fuerenberg (Austria) emphasizes the need of creating "Jungsturm" organizations (young storm troops) under Communist leadership, and the need of lending a class character to the children's groups movement.

Comrade Michales (Czecho-Slovakia): The youth of the various countries must be more drawn into the work of Bolshevization of the whole movement. The youth movement often concentrates its work too much on the youth employed in small trades, thus neglecting the more decisive industrial youth.

Comrade Kamenev (Bulgaria) emphasizes the need of retaining the character of the illegal organizations. This necessitates the reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei, which in Bulgaria could even take over the functions of the prohibited trade unions.

Comrade Maquesi (Italy): The Italian Communist Youth is conducting an energetic struggle against the Bordiga group. In its practical work the Italian Communist Youth follows the policy of the Communist Youth International, and assumes more and more a mass character.

Comrade Shachtman (America): Without a Leninist school, leadership and success are impossible. In America, the youth has already begun the reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei.

Comrade Podvoysky (Sport International) emphasizes the need for closer co-operation between the Sport International and the Communist Youth International.

Comrade Miltchakov (Russia) points out the importance of popularising thru international propaganda the economic and political successes of the Russian working youth.

Comrade Rust (England): In England the youth supports the minority movement. It participates in the life of the trade unions, and has taken up an energetic economic struggle. In England Bolshevization means, above all, to increase the membership.

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

THE Civic Music Association wound up its season with a concert at Orchestra hall in which two activities of the many in which the association is engaged took prominent parts. The Civic orchestra played and a children's chorus of a thousand voices sang folk songs of seven countries as well as some "art songs" by various composers.

The orchestra played some time-honored chestnuts under Frederick Stock's direction. These were the overture to "Raymond, or the Queen's Secret," by Ambroise Thomas (it sounds like a dime novel, but it is an opera); the "Perpetual Motion," by Franz Ries, and the "Adagio Pathetique," by Benjamin Godard. The Ries composition is a showoff piece for the first violins which the orchestra carried off in fine shape.

The chorus, accompanied by the orchestra and directed by Herbert E. Hyde, sang their little songs, some seventeen in number, with surprising- slip-up in the performance occurred ly good ensemble and spirit. The only when Mr. Hyde's 3-year-old daughter, who was in the audience, insisted upon talking to her father. The program wound up with three works by Chicago composers, two short and whimsical songs by Edward C. Moore, and a cantata on the subject of "The Ugly Duckling," by Granville English. This was given its first performance, and it proved to be a beautiful little thing that should be popular.

And then the effect of it all was spoiled by a super-Babbitt named Carberry who led some "community singing," which is probably the most noxious effect the world war had on civilization.

Four members of the orchestra have been engaged by professional symphonic organizations. Three of them will go to the Minneapolis symphony next season and one to the Chicago symphony. These are by no means the first to go into the professional symphonic field from the Civic, and greatly is the Civic to be lauded for being the recruiting ground for the large orchestras.

Between Waves of Revolt

STEP on the cur, he is crushed
The voice of revolt is hushed,
Friend deceives, foe defeats him,
Hope abandons, hate eats him,
Again, as through the ages,
Seeking work without wages,
Having life without living,
Getting naught for his giving.

Mother Earth, womb and grave,
Fondly takes her final slave,
Final slave and first master,
In this day of his disaster,
She whispers, and she steels him;
Muscles flex, his eye flashes,
Hope flames from its ashes!

Step on the cur? But take care!
He wears an ambiguous air,
Reflects—and consorts with his clan;
Is patient—proceeding by plan;
And the tools that he chooses
Have ominous uses. . . .
Politician, employer and king,
Take heed—he's recoiling to spring!

MAY DAY PROCLAMATION

May Day, 1925, finds American imperialism rapidly becoming the dominant force in world affairs. Even Great Britain, once financially supreme, is negotiating a $250,000,000 loan in Wall Street.

The Dawes plan has tied Germany to the House of Morgan and France is strangled by Morgan mortgages.

In every nook and corner of the capitalist world the agents of American imperialism are extending the rule of their masters.

In the Pacific the largest fleet of war ever assembled engages in war maneuvers preparatory to a tour of intimidation to the ports of the Far East. War is in the air.

As a symbol of what imperialism has in store for the workers, two private soldiers, Crouch and Trumbull, are sentenced to 40 and 26 years, respectively, in Hawaii. Their crime is that they formed a Communist League and expressed their solidarity with the workers and peasants of Russia.

In the United States the coal barons and textile capitalists are making war on the miners and textile workers. The coal barons have announced that they will not be bound by the agreement with the union, the textile kings are slashing the wages of their employes.

The Coolidge government is the instrument of the industrial lords.

Criminal syndicalism laws are on the statute books of 28 states. In Michigan, Idaho, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California and New York, workers are jailed and indicted under criminal syndicalism and deportation laws. The persecution of the foreign-born workers continue, with an army of spies preying upon them. Hangings, burnings at the stake, beatings and denial of the few privileges extended to other citizens are the lot of the Negro masses.

In Europe the murder regimes—the military governments supported by allied finance and bayonets slaughter workers by the wholesale as in Bulgaria, Esthonia, Lithuania, Finland, Italy, Portugal and Spain.

In the colonial countries the masses groan under the oppressions of imperialism.

Everywhere rages the war on the working class except in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics where capitalism and the capitalists have been beaten and a workers' and farmers' government exists.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America calls on the workers and exploited farmers of America to celebrate this May Day, the international mass holiday, in the spirit of Leninism—to organize for the fight against wage cuts, against any lowering of their living standard, against the robbery by the bankers and capitalists, against the persecution of revolutionary workers.

It calls upon the masses to fight the Dawes plan and its scheme of international slavery. To fight the white terror against the struggling workers and farmers of Europe, Africa and Asia. To fight against the enslavement of Mexico, the Philippines and Latin America to Wall Street. To fight for the release of Crouch and Trumbull.

To work for world trade union unity with the Russian and British workers.

To join the ranks of the millions of workers and farmers who are struggling for freedom from world capitalism under the leadership of the Communist International.

It urges the workers and farmers to join the Workers (Communist) Party—the revolutionary section of the American working class.

Only thru revolutionary struggle can capitalism be abolished and the slavery of the workers banished forever by the proletarian dictatorship.

Long live the union of the workers, farmers and colonial peoples!
Long live the workers' and farmers' government!
Long live the Communist International!

RESTORE SOVIET RAILWAYS UNDER WORKERS' RULE

Mend Damage of World War and Civil Struggle

WASHINGTON, D. C., (Special).—The result of three years of intensive effort to restore the Russian railways is summed up in bulletins received from the commissariat of transport in Moscow by the Russian Information bureau in Washington.

The greatest task was the restoration of the roadbed, railway structures on rolling stock, which the world war and the civil struggles left in a condition of extreme depletion.

Reconstruction Almost Completed

Of the 3,672 railway bridges with a total length of 48 miles destroyed during the civil wars, 3,301 with a total length of 36 miles have been permanently reconstructed and of the remainder all but 33 are in use under temporary repairs.

Virtually all of the 1,350 miles of roadbed destroyed have been restored to operation and most of the destroyed storage buildings and the 406 water tanks demolished in the period of civil strife have been replaced. During 1924, 17,500,000 new ties were laid, of which about half were impregnated.

In spite of the loss of considerable mileage to the border states, railway mileage in the Soviet Union today is greater than that of the Russia of 1913. At the beginning of the present fiscal year (Oct. 1) 45,000 miles of line were in operation, as compared with 42,500 miles in 1913.

The rehabilitation of the rolling stock has been a difficult problem. At the beginning of the fiscal year there were 20,203 locomotives, of which 45 per cent were in good order. In 1913 there were 20,220 locomotives, of which 83 per cent were listed in good order. During the last three years the good-order locomotives have increased at the rate of about 1,000 a year.

Freight cars at the beginning of the year numbered 442,300, of which 70.5 per cent were in good order. In 1913 there were 502,101 freight cars, of which 76 per cent were in good order.

The average daily run of freight locomotives and cars has increased rapidly during the past two years and is close to the prewar figure, while the average freight car loading for last year was greater than in 1913.

Passenger travel has been brought to pre-war standards. The speed of trains has been increased and they are running on time.

The railroad code adopted June, 1922, which gave the railroads the status of juridical persons and made them responsible for loss and damage and delays to shipments, has aided greatly in the recovery. Under the code a scientific rate system has been worked out, economic surveys of the regions served have been plotted for future development, and modern efficiency methods have been applied for operation and management, as a result of which operating costs have steadily fallen.

The Radio in Russia.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Six thousand workingmen's clubs in Russia are being equipped with radio sets and loud speakers, says the Russian information bureau in Washington. Two radio newspapers, containing news, jokes, stories, editorials, etc., are broadcast each day, the sending periods being adjusted to the time when the morning and afternoon halves of the day's labor are ended.

Our Party on the First of May, 1925

By EARL R. BROWDER.
Acting Secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party.

CELEBRATION of the First of May, 1925, will be the most widespread, best-organized and most enthusiastic May Day in the history of the American movement.

May Day, which was originated as the workers' holiday in the United States, is now being re-established after years of banishment in favor of the capitalist-chosen "Labor Day" of September.

The return of May Day as a day of universal demonstration of working class sentiment and organization is coincident with the coming to leadership of the militant workers of America of the American section of the Communist International—the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

May Day, 1925, witnesses in the United States more than 250 mass meetings and celebrations organized and led by the Communists. The May Day manifesto of the Workers (Communist) Party is distributed thruout the United States in 17 different languages and over a million copies. More than 100,000 workers will directly take part in the celebrations of our party.

THE renewed life and vigor or our movement, its ever increasing volume and enthusiasm, has been fed during the past year on solid food.

Since last May Day we Communists have made our first nation-wide election campaign in the United States, supporting the candidacy of Foster and Gitlow.

We have polled one-third of all the votes cast in the national election of the United Mine Workers of America, the strongest single union in America.

We have established ourselves in a dozen other national unions as a factor of the first importance in the life of the organization.

We have united organically with the nationalist movements of the oppressed Latin-American peoples, in the Anti-Imperialist League of the Americas.

We have established the fraternisation of the yellow and white races in America, in the joint memorials held in honor of the great Chinese leader, Sun Yat Sen.

We have carried Communism into the streets of America in a series of demonstrations for the recognition of Soviet Russia, for the International Trade Union Unity Commission of the British and Russian unions, and against the Second International, as a part of the campaign to expose the counter-revolutionist, Abramovich.

We have been an important section of world-wide demonstrations against the threatened execution of Lanzutsky by the Polish reactionaries, which resulted in staying the hands of these, among the most murderous of imperialist agents.

We have taken a leading part in the mobilization of the struggle against wage cuts which faces the American working class as its most important immediate problem.

We have participated in every action of the most forward sections of the workers. We have consolidated our own organization. We have won the respect of our enemies and the love of our friends. We have learned to fight effectively and how to make alliances with our natural fellow-fighters.

WE haven't brought the revolution yet in America. The road to that goal is still long and rocky. What we have done, however, is to set our feet firmly upon that road and shown to the conscious workers that this road, the road of unflinching class struggle, is the only road to working-class emancipation.

This May Day, 1925, is then the beginning of a new era of education, organization and struggle, which will bring new hundreds of thousands of the American workers into the international army of proletarian revolution, and bring closer the day of a workers' and farmers' government in America.

Five Communist May Days in America.

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY, May 1, 1925, is the fifth May Day on which Communism in America hurls its challenge in the face of American capitalism. It is the fifth May Day that American Communism broadcasts its appeal to the whole American working class, calling to it to enlist under its standards, the red flag of the Communist International.

This year, May 1, 1925, broader masses than ever before are being reached. More Communist literature has been distributed, more May Day demonstrations have been planned, there is greater contact of Communist workers with non-Communist workers, than ever before.

The First May Day.

The year 1920 started with the nation-wide "anti-Red raids" of Palmer's department of justice under President Wilson's waning regime, that put thousands in jail. This was but an echo in this country of the world-wide capitalist hysteria growing out of the revolutionary unrest of labor everywhere; an unrest inspired to action by the victory of the Russian workers and peasants.

It was early in this year that large numbers of workers were deported; that one ship especially, carrying an unusual number of deportees, was christened "The Soviet Ark," certain indication that it carried a Communist cargo, but also freighted with the fable, that has hovered over this land, that "America is an Asylum for the Oppressed of all Nations." That fiction was forever exploded in the minds of more millions of workers; additional reason why capitalism should be completely obsessed by the fear of Communism.

The joy and self-satisfaction with which the whole ruling class put thousands of Communists in jail, in those 1920 Palmer "red raids" is best echoed in a whole series of headlines to be found in a single issue of the New York Times as follows:

100 Taken In and Near Buffalo.
Raids In 17 Connecticut Towns.
Fifteen Taken In Bridgeport.
Seize 150 Radicals In Nashua.
65 Arrested In Manchester.
Seize 30 Russians In Boston.
Seize Eight In Lawrence.
Nine Arrests Made In Holyoke.
Worcester's Total Exceeds 50.
Take Thirty at Lowell.
Twenty-one Arrested In Haverhill.
Springfield Rounds Up 65.
Several Arrests In Rhode Island.
Round Up 18 at Baltimore.
Oakland Raid Nets Fifteen.
Louisvilles Bag Is Twenty.

And that is mentioning only a few; leaving out the savage attacks on the workers in Detroit, Mich., Chicago and scores of other industrial centers.

The Communist movement had been driven underground, many Communists had been placed on trial in the courts, but this did not in the least lessen the fear that haunted the great capitalists, their kept politicians, their yellow editors and ranting pulpiteers. The sleeping giant—American labor—was stirred in his sleep and the Communist movement got full credit for it: especially for the outlaw strike of the switchmen of that year, the steel strike of the previous year, both coupled with the beginning of the fight of Alexander Howat, at the head of the Kansas coal miners' union, against the courts and the government of that state. Palmer's "May Day scare" of 1920, will receive its due attention in the proletarian histories of the future.

The Second May Day.

MAY DAY, 1921, found Ruthenberg, Winitsky, Gitlow, Larkin and Ferguson in prison in New York state. The trial of the members of the Communist-Labor Party had taken place in Chicago. The "general strike" in Seattle, Wash., had been dragged thru the courts at Chicago, and outlawed along with Communism. But capitalist fear of Communism had in no way lessened.

American labor was demanding recognition of Soviet Russia and the opening of trade relations with the workers' and peasants' republic; the political prisoners of the world war were coming out of capitalism's bastilles and taking their places in the ranks of the class struggle; Soviet rule was crushing each new interventionist effort of Yudenitch, of Wrangel, of Denikin, and with them allied hopes; shops and facories, mills and mines were closing down, strikes were increasing in ferocity everywhere thruout the United States. May Day, 1921, marks a period of the solidification of the ranks of Communism in America, and increasing efforts to develop contact with the masses of America's workers.

The Third May Day.

MAY DAY, 1922, found the American Communist movement battling energetically in the open. The Workers (Communist) Party had been organized but a few months before, and on this year's May Day our Communist appeal went forth to America's toiling masses: "Capitalism and Chains, OR, Social Revolution and Freedom."

Our May Day Manifesto of this year reviewed the struggle of the previous two years. It showed that when the railroad men threatened to strike, the government answered their just demands with injunction courts and obligatory arbitration.

When the miners struck, they, too, were forced to submit to arbitration courts. John L. Lewis, the president of the mine workers, true to the traditions of American labor leadership, which demands peace and class collaboration with capital at any price, called off the strike, because, "he was not fighting the government."

State militia and the police were called out to make war on the New England textile workers opposing wage cuts.

Thru laws forbidding strikes, and the launching of a brutal "open shop" campaign, it was sought to rob labor of its weapons and bring the workers to their knees. Many workers were sent to prison under so-called anti-syndicalist laws used especially against the members of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Millions of jobless walked the streets. Under these conditions greater masses than ever before listened to the May Day message of the Communists on International Labor Day, in 1922.

The Fourth May Day.

MAY DAY, 1923, finds the American Communist movement stronger than ever, in spite of the vicious attack launched against it thru the government attack on the Communist Convention, at Bridgman, Mich., and the indictments levelled at scores of its most prominent leaders.

The capitalist dictatorship, under the republican administration of President Harding, at Washington, was trying to get "back to normalcy," by war upon the most militant section—the Communist section—of the working class. Not only the Communist Party but the Trade Union Educational League became the object of the bitter onslaught in an effort to offset the increasing Communist influence over continually growing masses of American workers.

The May Day season found the Foster and Ruthenberg trials in Michigan engaging the attention of the workers the nation over. From the court room at St. Joseph, Mich., where the capitalist inquisition was held, the Communist message went forth to labor everywhere, from the lips of Communism's chosen spokesmen.

Our Communist movement was developing its united front struggles. The drive for amalgamation was winning the attention of great numbers of organized workers, while the campaign for the labor party, in the political field, was attracting the favorable attention of workers and rousing the hostility of the reactionaries, the whole strength of the Gompers' regime in the American Federation of Labor being enlisted in the war against the Communists. The Communist counter-attack finally forced the labor reaction to show its real colors, placing it in open alliance with the terror reign of the capitalist government itself.

This was the first May Day on which the American Communist movement could boast of the existence of its English-language daily, the DAILY WORKER, the establishment of which constitutes one of its greatest achievements. This was an additional cause for increasing enthusiasm and great rejoicing on the celebration of this May Day.

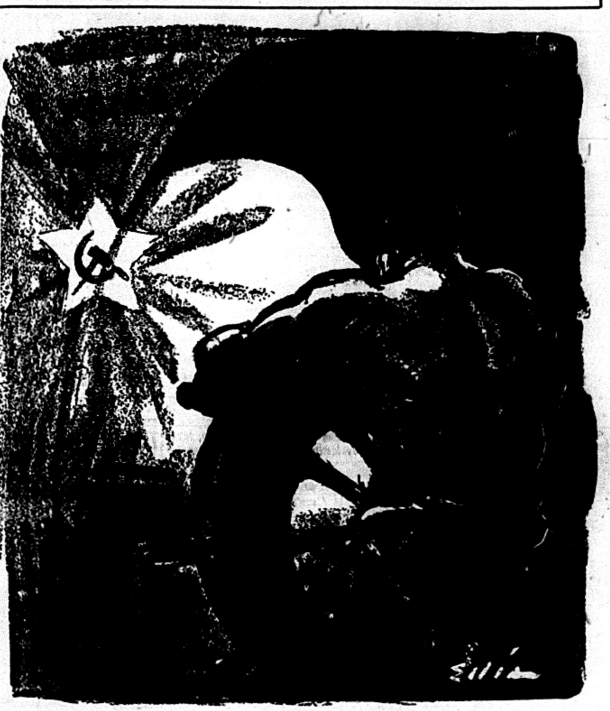
The Fifth May Day.

MAY DAY, 1925, finds the Workers (Communist) Party, standard bearer of the struggle for Communism in the United States, more aggressive than ever in its challenge to the capitalist enemy.

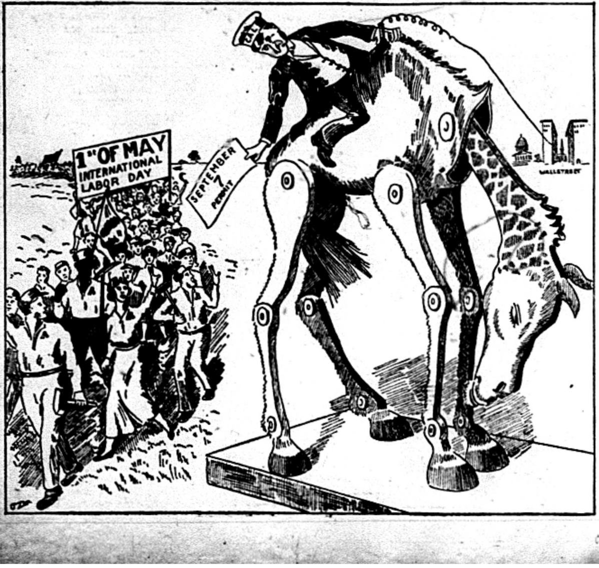
The reading of this year's May Day Manifesto gives an insight into the many successful activities that the American Communist movement is carrying forward. The fact that great May Day demonstrations are being organised in hundreds of cities is testimony that these activities are attracting new masses of workers to the Communist ranks.

The party still stands before the capitalist courts in Michigan. It stands there as a challenger to capitalism. In similar manner it stands as the champion of the oppressed in every struggle of the working class. On their Fifth May Day, American Communists eagerly march forward to take up greater tasks to make their party, the Workers (Communist) Party, an even worthier section of the Communist International, labor's world leadership in the struggle for the overthrew of capitalism everywhere.

The Light That Guides!



PASSING UP THE BOSSES' "LABOR DAY"



May Day Greeting from Our Youth

By BARNEY MASS.
Acting Secretary of the Young Workers League.

ONE of the most important tasks of the Young Workers League of America, is the struggle against capitalist militarism. In the European countries militarism stands more nakedly before the working class youth; therefore making it easier to discern it as an institution indispensible for capitalism. Compulsory military training for all young workers, when they have reached a certain age, general discrimination and marked distinction between the soldier and the civilian all contribute to the exposure of this most repulsive institution of capitalism.

In this country, however, the methods and tactics pursued to develop a powerful capitalist army and navy, are to say the least more subtle. To characterize this, we can point to the inauguration of the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps in 1923. Since then, this organization has increased its influence and popularity. Some of the most notorious open shop interests have and continue to contribute liberally with money, in order to make the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps a permanent and influential instrument thru which will be developed a well trained, disciplined army to be available to any purpose which will suit the interests of American capital.

RECRUITING offices to enroll in the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps exist in every principal city. Many thousands of dollars have been spent in giving publicity to these camps. Many employers influence their employes to enroll in the camps. Compensation for the time to be spent in these camps is extended to many young workers. Other inducements are offered to stimulate the interest of the young American workers in the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps.

At these camps, a thoro training of militarist discipline and patriotism is inculcated in the minds of the naive recruits. Repetition of such training quickly produces an army of the 100 per cent American philosophy.

IN the face of this alarming danger for the working class, the officialdom of the A. F. of L. at the last convention in El Paso, made the organized labor movement thru the usual treacherous tactics pursued by these labor fakers, an abettor for the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps. By endorsing this institution which was consistent with the policy of the late traitor Gompers, who endorsed the boy scout movement of America together with Hughes, Pershing and other hirelings of American capital, it has given the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps a more attractive form as it now can pose as an institution endorsed by the American labor movement and the latter will benefit considerably from it. Such is the present state of aaffirs in regards to this latest effort of the American capitalists, in trying to develop American militarism thru which Americans will be able to establish its supremacy over the entire world.

This May Day the workers must protest vigorously and use their influence in their labor unions, working class fraternal organizations to defeat the Citizens' Civil Military Training camps. The Young Workers League of America has and is consistently effectively fighting the Citizens' Civil Military Training Camps. The American working class must rally to the support of the Young Workers League in order to make our fight a success. The action of the officialdom of the A. F. of L. by endorsing the C. C. M. T. C. at the El Paso convention must be repudiated. Workers of America, join the Young Workers (Communist) League in its fight, to PREVENT the utilization of the labor movement by the open shop interests for their ulterior motives.

Abolition of capitalist militarism.

And to establish a workers' republic in which the working class youth will be trained for the benefit of society and cease to be objects of exploitation.

BRITISH EMPIRE ENTERS WAR ON FOREIGN WORKER

Australia Takes Up U. S. 100 Per Cent Cry

SYDNEY, N. S. W. (By Mail), Thruout the world today there is a drive by the capitalist press against foreign-born workers.

From America to Japan, from Europe to Australia, this drive, under various forms, but with the same fixity of purpose, is to be observed.

In Germany and Scandinavia, those of "Nordic blood" are exalted as the salt of the earth. Special immigration laws are demanded against the so-called "inferior" races.

And the workers are asked to join in because their standard of living is likely to deteriorate with the influx of these undesirable aliens.

Want Cheap Labor.

We all know how keen the bosses are in keeping up the wages and standard of living of the workers. We all know how distasteful it would be for them to employ cheap foreign labor.

It is in America that the capitalist drive against the foreign-born workers is most strikingly in evidence.

There, with a unanimity of purpose which is remarkable, the bosses have launched a powerfully subsidised campaign for "100 per cent Americanism."

The effect of this campaign is the imposition of drastic laws designed to exclude many races hitherto freely admitted.

Same Campaign in Australia.

Whenever there is a public office to be filled, the press gets up on its hind legs and barks for "100 per cent Americans." Deluded "100 per cent American" workers, thinking the boss means it, and hoping, anyway, to reduce the competition for jobs, join in the racial hunt against their foreign-born fellow workers.

In Australia the same press campaign is just now commencing. This campaign started against Greek and Italian shopkeepers and barrowmen. It quickly spread to Serbian laborers on public works. It is now comfortably ensconced in the factories, and directed against all foreign-born workers.

The Lithgow ironworkers demanded the sacking of foreign-born workers. The bosses agreed with alacrity, and sacked around a hundred. Why?

Why should the boss, who thrives on cheap labor, foreign or otherwise have initiated this drive against one section of the workers? The reason is sticking out a mile.

To Divide Workers.

The boss sees his crazy industrial system rocking on its foundations, and he is organizing, merging and consolidating his forces against the workers, irrespective of religion, color, nationality or anything else.

You never hear of a split in the ranks of the big vested interests (the smaller fry of employers do not count) on any sectarian or racial issue. It is only the workers who are urged to divide their ranks.

The big drive of the employing class against the foreign-born workers in all countries is undertaken to divide the workers, and because the foreign-born are the weakest politically.

Divided in Craft Unions.

As a separate industrial unit they do not exist, for they are divided up among the various craft unions, and politically they are defenseless.

Of course, the drive proceeds methodically thru its various stages. The workers must not be alarmed. First, the drive is against the "South Europeans," and the workers help to sandbag their fellow workers under the cry of "low wages." Then the drive will be extended to "North Europeans," and then to Britishers, and new cries will be invented.

By that time the bosses will have the workers just where they want them. They will, if the workers don't wake up.

Capitalism is International.

In those countries where the foreign-born workers are most numerous, as in America, the capitalist drive against them is more powerful and more clearly visible.

The few anti-foreign incidents that have cropped up in Australia are not isolated events. They are part of a world-wide movement, initiated by the employing class. Already the 'S. M. Herald' adopts the international bosses' slogan, and calls for "100 per cent Australians."

The workers can only successfully fight international capitalism by organising themselves internationally. The "foreign-born" agitation inaugurated by the bosses seeks to prevent that. Don't let us help the bosses.

THE Honolulu Advertiser, on April 4, carried this headline:

SOLDIER COMMUNIST GETS 40 YEARS.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin, on April 7, carried this headline:

TRUMBULL GETS 26 YEARS FOR "COMMUNISM."

On the same day the Star-Bulletin had another headline:

GENERAL HINES EXPLAINS PURPOSE OF MANEUVERS HERE.

THE coming cruise of the Pacific fleet, the sham battles to be staged to test the strength of the Hawaiian fortifications and the orgy of militarism in connection therewith, have held the first pages of the capitalist press for many weeks.

But the news of the trial of two private soldiers in the Hawaiian army of occupation reached the United States only thru the medium of the Communist press. After they had been safely convicted and jailed for 40 and 26 years, the capitalist press at home, in news stories and editorials, heaped odium on the heads of the two men who had dared to form a Communist League, express solidarity with Soviet Russia, accept the principles of the Communist International and ask for affiliation, in the steel-sheltered Hawaiian inn that American imperialism has erected as a half-way house on its march across the Pacific.

IN addition to Crouch and Trumbull, leaders and organizers of the Hawaiian Communist League, a half-dozen other soldiers were members. Eight men all told—but what a storm has broken around their heads!

Why?

The American army is a professional army. The soldiers are enlisted for a long period, they are removed as far as possible from civilian influence and the colonial divisions in particular are picked men. The army is the sacro-sanct institution of American capitalism yet Communist teachings have found their way there.

BUT this is not all.

The first open appearance of Communist influence in the United States army in organizational form occurs in a colony. And worse than all combined in that colony that the imperialists and their militarist handmaidens have selected to use in the most gigantic naval mobilization and maneuver ever attempted by the war department.

HE GOT 40 YEARS

PAUL CROUCH

The main object of this display of force is to impress distant but very interested neighbors—Great Britain, Japan and Soviet Russia—and is a preliminary to a tour of the far eastern seaports by the Pacific fleet in full battle array.

THE secondary object is to impress the colonial slaves with the might of their masters. The Filipinos have been showing symptoms of dissatisfaction culminating in a number of armed uprising among the rice field and sugar cane workers which have been put down by armed force, with much bloodshed.

Could anything under the circumstances be more embarrassing and calculated to drive the imperialists to frenzy than the open organization of a Communist league of soldiers' right in the gateway to their Pacific possessions and in full view of the cynical Japs, the smiling Britons and the grinning Russians with their cursed emblem of the crossed hammer and sickle beckoning to the colonial peoples of all the world.

SO the savage sentences were given the two soldiers after the court of officers had discussed the evidence for ten minutes, the capitalist press at home heaved a sigh of relief, congratulated the militarists on the prompt and drastic manner in which a revolution had been "nipped in the bud" and gave its attention to the fleet maneuvers and other important matters.

But Communist Leagues are not formed by revelations from Moscow. They arise as a result of the class struggle and the best that the Communist International can do is to give such organizations advice, assistance and direction. The Communist International cannot create the class conflict that brings Communist organizations into existence.

WE must look beyond the personal knowledge and courage of Crouch and Trumbull for the real reasons that caused the formation of a Communist League in Hawaii whose name brings up, to the ordinary reader, visions of peaceful fields of pineapples and sugarcane, creamy surf breaking softly on coral reefs, brown-skinned hula dancers, ox-eyed natives strumming ukeleles while the balmy sea breeze tosses their strings of lei blossoms.

This is the Hawaii of the Sunday supplements but not the Hawaii of reality—the Hawaii that is a principality of the sugar trust and a naval base ringed round with steel and concrete, a stepping stone to the American conquest of the Pacific.

FOR the real Hawaii one must go to the workers—white, yellow and brown—that work, sweat and die in this imperialist stronghold. Of the fate reserved for soldiers of the army of occupation who protest, we know already. But of the workers in the fields owned by the sugar trust, the dominant economic interest in the islands, we read little. The story of their lives and struggles is, for the capitalist press, verboten.

THE complete control of the press by the imperialists in Hawaii is good evidence that their grip on the masses is one of iron. One of the officials of the Honolulu labor movement states, in a letter in which he urges that his name be not used, that the first knowledge the labor movement obtained of the case of Crouch and Trumbull was a news item in the DAILY WORKER with a Honolulu date line.

That night he brought up the matters in his union as an example of the suppression of all working-class news. The next day the announcement of the conviction of Crouch and Trumbull was in the Honolulu press.

The news was sent to the DAILY WORKER by the defendants, it was published, and the papers carried half way across the Pacific, before the sugar-trust press published a word about the cases.

With such control of the sources of information it is not surprising that a strike of Filipino canefield workers, involving 12,000 men and women, and lasting over a year, has not been heard of in the United States.

HE GOT 26 YEARS

WALTER TRUMBULL

UPON the strikers and their families unbelievable persecutions have been committed. Following an attack on the strikers by the police in which four policemen were killed, the strikers were ambushed, sharpshooters posted around them and sixteen of them killed by these murderers, who used soft-nosed bullets.

The strikers and their families are existing on charity and such sea-food as they can pick up on the beaches. The suffering among the women and children is impossible to describe.

The leaders of the strike have been tried under every conceivable form of suppressive law—anti-picketing, criminal syndicalism and riot acts.

They have been charged with cane-burning, sabotage, assault and conspiracy. Sixty of these Filipino workers are now in the penitentiary, including the secretary of the strike committee and the president of the Agricultural Workers' Union, Pablo Manlapit, is under sentence for conspiracy after a trial that was a criminal farce.

THE sugar-trust prosecutor brought witnesses who had been paid to perjure themselves and altho the defense disproved every one of the counts in the indictment by documentary evidence, the sugar-trust jury brought in a verdict of guilty in ten minutes.

A number of white labor men testified for the defense and all know that Pablo Manlapit is innocent. The case is now on appeal to the supreme court But there is little hope of a reversal.

A letter from a prominent official of the Hawaiian labor movement states:

> Conditions are terrible here in the islands. Everything is tainted with sugar, from the governor down the line. The legislature now in session is merely a bureau of the Sugar Planters' Association.

HERE is American imperialism in action in one of the garden spots of the Pacific. This is the Hawaii that the tourists never see.

The natives have been debauched, their tribal institutions destroyed. Agricultural workers have been imported from the Philippines and Japan. The internal affairs of the island have been handed over to the sugar trust. Around the island itself are the circles of steel and concrete that, disguised with waving tropical foliage, mask the machines of death aimed at the toiling millions of Asia.

Inside the forts the working class is brutally exploited, their protests drowned in blood, the imperialist press lauding their murderers in the same breath that it boosts the tourist attractions of this outpost of a ruling class bent on world conquest.

BUT the fortresses have not kept Communism out. It required only the conviction of the organizers of the Communist League to start the flow of resentment long stored up and hot as hell. Soldiers, white workers and the colonial slaves have new hope.

The cases of Crouch and Trumbull are of international importance and thru the activities of the Workers (Communist) Party of America and the Communist International, the murderous purposes of American imperialism, the brutality that underlies its mask of democracy, have been exposed to millions of workers in every quarter of the world.

Crouch and Trumbull have become symbols of the unity of the revolutionary workers of the United States and the enslaved colonial peoples in the struggle for the proletarian dictatorship.

Labor Defense Council on May Day

NEW YORK CITY.—May Day is a day to remember the working class prisoners in the capitalist jails. The Labor Defense Council calls on the Communists to remember the Communists in American jails, the comrades facing court trials, and the comrades facing deportation.

The Labor Defense Council, New York Section, needs 200 comrades to sell Defense buttons and to make collections on May Day. All comrades willing to co-operate should report at 108 E. 14th St., Room 32, on Thursday, April 30, any time after work.

Don't forget our Communist prisoners!

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO IS NOT ALL GASOLENE AND MOONSHINE; THERE IS A LOT OF PORK IN IT

By CARL HAESSLER

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Efforts, however involuntary, of overworked underpaid clerks in department stores and in the world's leading mail order house are enriching the college founded in Chicago by John D. Rockefeller.

The $17,000,000 begging campaign instituted by the University of Chicago this spring has resulted so far in enormous gifts, one from Julius Rosenwald of $1,000.000 and one from the Wieboldt foundation of $500,000. Rosenwald gets his surplus money for charitable purposes from Sears Roebuck & Co. The Wieboldt foundation gets its philanthropic cash from the two Wieboldt department stores in Chicago. The packers, who were recently revealed as serving up 1898 embalmed beef to the army in the world war, head the university board of trustees thru Harold Swift of Swift & Co. The trustees gave $1,700,000.

The University of Chicago is no longer exclusively a Standard Oil plant, having attracted other kinds of money since John D. put up the cash in 1892. In fact, almost from the start it was extremely sensitive to the influence of the traction interests and the Chicago packers.

One of the celebrated cases of American academic freedom occurred in 1895, when Prof. Edward W. Bemis was fired by Pres. William Rainey Harper. Harper told Bemis the trustees had him dismissed because of Bemis' "opposition to the efforts of certain Chicago utilities to secure lighting and street railway franchises while I was at the University of Chicago." Today the Chicago city council plans to consult the university traction experts again on the transportation problems of the city.

Another Chicago university instructor who felt the big fist of the corporations was John C. Kennedy, later a socialist alderman in the Chicago council and now manager of the Seattle workers' college. Kennedy's report for the university on labor and living conditions in the stockyards was mutilated by the board of trustees (the packers have long had a voice on the board) because Kennedy had suggested that conditions would be improved if the workers organized.

On the other hand, James Hayden Tufts, head of the university's philosophy department, was the government's principal informal stool pigeon in academic circles, snooping for sedition among professors during the war.

The university got its financial start from the oil pirate Rockefeller and its educational impetus from the academic pirate Harper. Harper got his faculty together by going to Clark University in Worcester, Mass., then an important graduate school, and secretly buying up all the professors he needed by the simple plan of offering each such employe double the wage he was drawing from Clark.

CONGRESS OF ALL SOVIET NATIONS SET FOR MAY 8

Each Nation to Hold Own Convention First

MOSCOW.—(By Rosta.)—The presidium of the the central executive committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has summoned for May 8 next the Third Congress of Soviets of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. This congress is to be preceded by congresses of the various Union Republics, in particular the XII. Congress of Soviets of the Russian Socialist Federative Soviet Republic being set for May 2.

On the agenda of the coming Union Congress of Soviets, as drawn up by the presidium of the central executive committee, there are included: the question of the Turkmen and the Uzbek Republics joining the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics; the report of the government of the Union; the appropriate measures devised to consolidate the peasant economy, such as agricultural credit, handicraft industry, agricultural co-operation, and so forth; the report on the people's commissariat of finance; the report of the red army; the nomination of the central executive committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, namely, the election of the Union Council and the confirmation of the members of the council of nationalities. (In accordance with the constitution of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics the council of nationalities forms as it were a second house or chamber of the central executive committee; the council consists of representatives—five from each—of the Soviet Union Republics and the autonomous republics.)

Big Battles Four Hundred Years Ago

By MAX BEDACHT

FOUR HUNDRED years have gone down in the unfathomable ocean of the past since the fields and hills of central and southern Germany were filled with the echo of the battles of the historic peasants' war. Feudalism was already permeated with the disease which caused its demise in the revolutionary upheavals of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The long drawn death agony of feudalism increased the burdens of the exploited class of this order, the serfs and peasants. In an heroic uprising in 1525 this class attempted to break its fetters and to establish a society of economic equals.

Historic development, however, did not lie in the direction of the aims of the rebellious peasants. Feudalism did not fall victim to the just wrath of an infuriated peasantry, but was defeated more than a century later by a new class, the bourgeoisie.

THE invention of gun powder had ended the invincibleness of the strong castles of the feudal barons. At the same time it also broke the monopoly of the steel-armored knights as warriors. Highway robbery, hitherto the noble profession of a large portion of the aristocracy, became more and more dangerous. The merchant transports were convoyed by guards armed with shooting instruments against which the armor of the knight did not afford secure protection.

Since this class could no longer satisfy the excessive needs of an idle and luxurious life from the proceeds of robbing merchants on the highways they began robbing the peasants and their homes and villages. Tithes were increased to unbelievable proportions. Communal pastures and fields were stolen outright. The peasants were reduced to the state of underfed farm animals.

The feudal lords were the ruling class. Any accusation against the theft of the peasants' rights or property had to be submitted to the thief or to other members of his caste who committed the same crimes in their own domain.

This expropriation of the peasantry was not only carried on by the nobility, the knights and barons, but also by the church. The "princes" of the church, the bishops and the abbots, were surrounded by luxurious courts with courtiers and courtesans. This life cost money, and the church got this money out of its subordinated peasants. Forgery of documents or outright theft were the methods employed by these "holy" men to satisfy their unlimited need for money and wealth.

The exploited, miserable and starving peasantry was dominated by the religious ideology of its time and look for relief to religion. But their hopes were not pinned so much on the hereafter. They looked for salvation here in this world. Communist ideas appeared as theories of the millenium, promised in the bible, a free society of free and happy people.

IN this atmosphere developed the Reformation. Appearing in the form of a religious reform it was in reality a revolutionary movement directed toward a betterment of the economic conditions of the masses. The bible was scanned carefully for words and sentences that would prove that the extreme exploitation of the masses was ungodly. Economic demands under the disguise of biblical sentences. Revolutionary propaganda speeches were delivered in the form of religious sermons.

Especially one of the leaders of that period, Thomas Muenzer, was master in the art of clothing very material demands in ecclesiastical language.

Thomas Muenzer was a revolutionary genius. His never wavering devotion to and his indefatigable activities for the exploited masses of his time deserve for him that the revolutionary proletariat of today devote some thought to the memory and honor of this man.

Thomas Muenzer was born as the son of poor parents about 1490. His father fell victim to the murderous mood of a tyrannical baron. The intelligent boy was educated as a priest. Muenzer's maturity fell into the period of Luther's quarrel with Pope Pius X., whose pompous extravagance forced him to turn everything into money, from worthless and fraudulent relics to reserved seats in heaven. Muenzer welcomed the reform movement of Luther. Luther was driven by a revolutionary situation much further than he ever foresaw or intended to go. The restlessness of the masses saw in the theological revolt of Luther the beginning of a revolt against the hated, exploiting and torturing authorities. But the more real the revolt became the more was Luther anxious to confine his differences with the pope, and later with the catholic church, to the field of theology. The revolutionary situation and the revolting masses had saved Luther from the fate of Johan Hus. Luther repaid his debt to the revolutionary masses by denouncing them to their enemies, the princes.

MEUNZER went the opposite road. He turned the theological dispute into a revolutionary struggle against the ruling powers. He condemned Luther's treachery and was in turn denounced by Luther as satan incarnate.

Meunzer had a surprisingly clear revolutionary instinct. He built his propaganda mainly upon the proletariat such as it then existed. In Thuringia and in Saxony he found a comparatively highly developed mining and textile industry. It was among theh miners, and the weavers and spinners that he formed his revolutionary circles. He was driven from city to city, welcomed almost everywhere by the suffering and exploited, but persecuted and exiled by the rulers. Muenzer preached, wrote and fought. In his sermons he covered a revolutionary atheism with a theological language. The heaven that his "religion" promised was a better society and the method to get into his heaven was to fight against existing hell and its imps, the parasitical and exploiting ecclesiastical and secular princes. Thomas Muenzer died the death of a rebel. Defeated in battle he was made prisoner, was tortured and finally beheaded in the latter part of May, 1525.

The revolts of the followers of Muenzer, the miners and the workers in hand industry, were the most revolutionary occurrences in the great event of the peasants' war. The revolutionary peasants could not conquer the world because their aims were conditions of a period already overcome by society. Muenzer and his revolutionary workers could not win because their aims lay in a historical period for which society of the sixteenth century was not yet ripe and because the only class that can achieve these aims in revolutionary struggles, the proletariat, was yet too weak and undeveloped.

The revolutionary proletariat of today has taken over the revolutionary inheritance of Muenzer and his valiant hosts. The society of free and equal humans, the aim fought for so bitterly, enthusiastically and self-sacrificingly in those struggles four hundred years ago will be achieved by the revolutionists of today. But while the peasants of 1525 hoped to equalize by division, the revolutionists of today will equalize by concentration; while the revolutionary peasant of 1525 could only equalize poverty, the revolution of today shall equalize the riches that a well-organized society will be able to provide for all of its useful members.

The peasantry of today, the small and poor farmer, is confronted with the same problems in another form than that faced by the peasant of 1525. The ruling class of today has its heavy hand upon them and the sweat of the farmer congeals into profit only in the hands of the bankers, the large landowners and the grain speculators. Any complaint that the farmers may have against the banker, the absentee landlord or the grain speculator he must lodge with the government of the self same bankers, landlords and grain speculators. And now, as then, the solution of the small and poor farmers' problems lies forward and not backward. It is not the re-establishment of a past condition that will solve the poor farmers' problem but the establishment of a new system, a new society. And the architect of this new society is the proletariat, the working class. The poor and exploited farmers must follow the path that is being blasted by the working class. They must follow the standard which an alliance of the poor peasants with the workers has raised over the great country of Soviet Russia, the banner that symbolizes the alliance 'n a unity of hammer and sickle.

Under this banner the class brothers of those revolutionary fighters of the peasant war of four hundred years ago—the exploited farmers of today—will win their battles. In a workers' and farmers' government in which the interests of the toiling masses are the only deciding considerations a monument will be erected to the memory of all those that fell in the service of their cause. Only then will the valiant fighters of four centuries come into their own.

A NEW LIGHT IS BURNING - - -

By Moritz J. Loeb

IN the revolutionary movement of the United States, a new fire is burning. Some fires are used to generate light; some to make heat; others to create, still other to destroy. Fire in the revolutionary symbolism may mean any of these and all of them. The Little Red Library, I think, is destined to serve as a revolutionary fire in the broadest sense.

SINCE the 1919 days when the left wing first broke away from the shackles which bound it to the reformism and sterility of the socialist party the propaganda and agitation of the Communists has been conducted almost solely by means of struggle. The spoken word replaced the written; class struggle in the field replaced the study class. It has been a five-year period in which the Communists have been educating themselves by action and fixing the attention of the working class upon them by deeds.

WE did not turn our backs upon the study class and the library because we thought we could get along without them. We were simply too busy in the actual struggle, we were too much taken up with our daily tasks to give proper attention to reading and education.

FIVE years is not a long time in the life of an individual, but in the life of a party, particularly a new party, it is a whole epoch. We did not desert the study class because we spurned it back in 1919, but nevertheless the Workers Party has grown up in its tradition of a party of action without any tradition as a party of study and research. We are not quite an illiterate party, our press has saved us from that, but we have been fairly on the way to being a party without a literature of its own and a party which has not set down in writing for sober study the experiences and lessons it has learned on the field of action. Simultaneously we have been allowing ourselves, the mass of the party membership, to become a group to which the book and the pamphlet of the class struggle is almost a stranger, to which the printed word as a weapon of the class struggle has been largely forgotten.

A Little Revolution Is Brewing.

THE Little Red Library has been established. It marks the beginning of a revolution within the ranks of American Communists. It marks a turning point in the growth of the American Communist movement, a growth which will continue not in action alone, but in the harmonious combination of activity with study, of leadership of working class by means of deeds and with education of the working class by means of books.

The Little Red Library did not create this new revolution. The means do not create the need. The Little Red Library was brought into being because of the imperative need of our movement for literary expression and study, the imperative need of the working class for revolutionary education as well as revolutionary example.

What Is The Little Red Library?

IT is a permanent library of the revolutionary working class of America. It gathers together the important materials of the life, the struggles, the needs, the lessons, of American workers and makes these available in inexpensive, yet attractive and convenient form, so as to come within the means of every working man and woman in America. The Little Red Library serves a threefold purpose; it provides a medium of expression, in permanent form, for Communist thought, it provides for the education of the party membership, it provides a new and wonderful medium for agitation among the masses. Problems of the political and industrial struggle, essays of Communist theory and practice, the old classics of Communism, fiction, poetry and art of the Communist movement; all these come within its scope. To describe the volumes which have already been published and which are now in preparation would require an article in itself, much longer than this article may be. But the titles and authors themselves give some idea of the field already covered:

Already Published.

No. 1—The American Trade Union Movement—Foster, Cannon and Browder.
No. 2—Class Struggle vs. Class Collaboration—Earl R. Browder.

Ready by May 1.

No. 3—Worker Correspondents — William F. Dunne.
No. 4—Engel's First Draft of the Communist Manifesto—Translated by Max Bedacht.

To Appear Shortly.

Short History of the Workers Party—Alexander Bittelman.
Concentration of American Capital—Earl R. Browder.
Shop Committees and Factory Councils—J. W. Johnstone.
Negro in American Industry—William F. Dunne.
How Wall St. Subjugates the World—Manuel Gomez.
Martyrs of the Communist Movement—Photos and biographical sketches.
Four Short Stories—Translated from the Russian of the new revolutionary school.

THE Little Red Library is not merely a set of books. It is a medium by which the thoughts and actions of the revolutionary movement is to be expressed in a permanent literature. It is more than that; it is a manifestation of the change in the Workers Party from a party of action only, to a party which combines action with sober thought and study.

A Vicious Circle Has Been Broken.

IT used to be said in way of excuse that the Communist movement in America could not undertake any consistent publishing projects because American workers were no longer steady readers. This was true, partially because of the flux in the movement and partly also because very few books and pamphlets were being published. The party could not publish because there were none who would buy; the workers could not read because there was no stimulation given to reading. That vicious circle has now been broken. The party has begun to publish and a new wealth of literature is being poured forth. The working class and particularly the, Communists are beginning to read because it is their nature to do so and moreover because they know that they must read or degenerate.

IN the early days of the party there was the highest premium on militancy and activity. Increasingly now the need is for the development of studious militants who can follow the general evolution of the party by combining action with correct theoretical and practical understanding.

Last May the DAILY WORKER burned to light the mind and inflame the spirit of the American working class. In the year that has passed the light has not diminished but burns ever more brightly. This year The Little Red Library shows its small light which twelve months from now with scores of titles and thousands of copies will roar of the progress and coming victory of the working class

Soviet Labor's Challenge to World Capitalism on International May Day, 1925

WASHINGTON IS WORRIED ABOUT SOVIET RUSSIA

Kellogg and Hoover in Conflicting Statements

By LAURENCE TODD,

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C. — When the Coolidge administration permits two contradictory statements of its Russian policy to break into front-page print in one day—one from Secretary of State Kellogg, notifying American diplomats abroad that no change in attitude is at present being made, and another by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, flatly asserting that until the Soviet Union releases certain of its citizens from prison the United States will never recognize Moscow—the world knows that the Russian problem is worrying Washington.

Kellogg's Letter Leaks Out.

Kellogg's circular letter to ambassadors and ministers leaked out in Paris. Its date has thus far been suppressed, but it is unofficially declared to be about April 7.

That would be about the time the Sinclair oil concern made its protest against the Japanese oil concession in Saghalien. It was before the Bulgarian outbreaks began.

At the White House and state department it is explained as being a mere detail of office routine—a reply to inquiries as to whether the new head of the department meant to begin negotiations with the Soviets. The official explanation is that the circular was not meant to set a policy for the future, but to report on what had taken place at that date.

It's the Hand of McKenzie.

Hoover, on the other hand, in a copyrighted interview with the former Moscow correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, Frederick McKenzie, declares that the Soviet Union will never get even a discussion of renewal of relations with the United States until it shall have restored to liberty certain Russians alleged to have been punished on false charges of espionage after the American Relief Administration, which had employed them, withdrew from Russia.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, who keeps careful watch of Russian developments, says that he never heard of the imprisonment or exile of any of Hoover's former employes on such charges, and certainly the matter has never before been mentioned as a reason for delaying recognition. To interfere in the relations between a foreign government and its citizens is something new in American policy.

Hoover, in this case, has butted into the field of the state department even more forcibly than he did in the early weeks of the Hughes regime. He will presumably be reminded by President Coolidge that the White House is now directing foreign policy.

Hoover Was Caught Out.

WASHINGTON—(FP)— Secretary Hoover has issued a formal denial of the interview statement in which Frederick McKenzie, former Moscow correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, claimed that Hoover said the United States would not move toward recognition of the Soviet Union until certain Russians formerly employed by the American relief administration should be let out of prison. And he did not expect his threat to be quoted in America, where it could be checked up by the White House and state department.

"Mr. Hoover made no statement upon the policies of the American government," says his denial. "He did express his indignation at the treatment of members of the Russian staff of the A. R. A. Mr. Hoover wanted his position known in Russia only. He misunderstood Mr. MacKenzie when the latter asked his permission to use the material in the United States. Mr. Hoover, naturally, does not wish anyone to think that he would try to express officially the American government's attitude toward Russia, since to do that would be entirely out of his province."

Gives "Advice" to Central America on the End of Bayonets

WASHINGTON—(FP) — State department officials explain the intervention of the American minister to Honduras, in demanding treatment as common criminals of revolutionists who enter Honduras from Nicaragua and commit "offenses," as quite natural. They point out that American marines are still in Nicaragua. Hence American authority is still looked to, in Central America, to offer "advice" on serious problems.

CULBERTSON, SMALL BUSINESS MEN'S TARIFF SPOKESMAN, ACCEPTS JOB FROM CAL FOR STANDARD OIL CO.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Removing W. S. Culbertson of Kansas from the federal tariff commission, by sending him as minister to Roumania, the Coolidge-Mellon administration has done a fine stroke of business—for big business.

Culbertson is vice-chairman of the tariff body, and has been known for a long while as its most conspicuous spokesman in the interests of the "independent" business man.

His going to Bucharest means that the administration has scrapped one more of the petty bourgeoise and replaced him by a representative of the trusts. Dropping of David J. Lewis of Maryland from the tariff commission earlier in the year indicated the course which the Coolidge-Mellon attack would follow. Lewis' successor is an old friend of Coolidge, altho he calls himself a democrat. Culbertson's place will be filled by a man who will see the tariff as a blessing to American monopolies, and who will serve big business faithfully.

When he goes to Roumania, Culbertson will become an agent of the state department in protecting American private investments in that country, and in trying to secure payment of the $42,000,000 which the white guard regime of Premier Bratiano is neglecting to pay the American treasury. This sum was loaned for the purchase of food for the hungry population just after the war. Bratiano has promised payment of smaller debts to France and Britain, but has made no reply to American demands.

Will Represent Standard Oil.

In standing guard over American private investments in Roumania, however, Culbertson will find himself chiefly occupied. Standard Oil of New Jersey has title to an oil field in Roumania, and now is trying to avoid the partial confiscation of its value, forced by the Bratiano regime under the terms of a new law which purports to bring all oil operations under the control of Roumanian nationals. Bratiano is reported to be personally interested in companies that expect to grab the foreign oil holdings.

Moreover, payment for lands taken by the Roumanian government from foreign owners is being offered in currency that is rapidly depreciating. This will be protested by Culbertson as another confiscation.

So the "insurgent" tariff expert, hated by big business at home, is kicked into a diplomatic dinner jacket to assist Standard Oil in holding our imperial lines in the Balkans, and he seems very willing to make the change.

ELMER SMITH REFUSED PLEA FOR REHEARIN

The Theory and Practice of LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

A brilliant exposition of Communist theory and practice in the period of Capitalist Imperialism—during which our great teacher, Lenin, lived and led.

No book recently issued can be of more value or importance to the worker who would learn of Communism.

This book by the secretary of the Russian Communist Party, who has been a constant and intimate co-worker of Lenin, is not only an extremely timely work, but also one that is destined surely to become one of the classics of Communist literature.

Like Two Arms To A Body 2

The Daily Worker is the powerful right arm.

In it, for the busy worker, the world of labor is reflected briefly, clearly and, in addition to a world view of Communist activity, with articles that add further light to each step of labor.

Like the left arm to a fighting body is the Workers Monthly.

Here, each month, not only are the outstanding events brought to the worker's attention and made more attractive by photographs and cartoons of leading artists, but also—

The theoretical background that leads to a better understanding is supplied by the outstanding writers in the American and world Communist movements.

Both are essential. Both are official organs of the Workers (Communist) Party. To make both possible in

Communists Show Strength In Michigan

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

HOW fast a lie can travel before it can be overtaken by the truth, is fully proved by the history of the yarn concocted by a lying Chicago Tribune correspondent in Turkey, who sent out the report that William D. Haywood was beating a lonely path thru the mountains of Armenia on his way to crave admittance to the hospitable pen in Leavenworth, Kansas. The Weekly People swallowed the yarn as a gudgeon would swallow a bait, and drew a moral therefrom. The latest ass to use it is the braying biped Thomas L. Blanton who misrepresents Texas in the house of representatives.

BLANTON gets excited over "Communism in the army" and scores those who believe that privates Crouch and Trumbull were given too harsh sentence. Like a typical ignoramus, he blows his head off about "red propaganda from Russia" in blissful ignorance of the fact that revolutionary propaganda was spread here long before hicks like Blanton were aware that Texas was part of the world. He raves on further: "I heartily favor the passage by congress of a law deporting all Communists and let them take the Bill Haywood and Anna (?) Goldman treatment that they too may decide they would prefer a penitentiary in America to serfdom in Russia." A typical specimen of Americana morana.

ONE look at the pictorial page of a well known Chicago daily, will convince anybody that the United States is a rather dangerous place to [illegible]. There is the picture of a [illegible] standing in front of the cashier's cage. The cashier is looking into the mouth of a revolver. Mounted on the cage are three nozzled containers full of tear gas. This is lawful America.

WE, will pass the French ambassador and his family and introduce you to three persons and a dog. The dog is a bloodhound on the trail of a murderer. In the next square is the picture of a police captain looking wise, or trying to, examining a pair of eyeglasses. Evidence. Underneath is another picture, a man and a child, held on suspicion of having murdered his wife. He is an ex-soldier and is reported to have said prior to the murder that he would use his experience as a butcher in France to carve his wife in such a manner as to defy detection. Isn't war ennobling?

TODAY WORKERS GREET SOVIET STAR OF HOPE

Millions Celebrate May Day Thruout World

On this May Day, International May Day, militant workers meet thruout the world to strengthen their forces for the overthrow of world imperialism.

May 1, 1925, is more than a day on which those who produce the wealth, of the world discard their aprons and their overalls, throw down their tools and march out into the sunlight.

Today members of the militant working class of all countries, under the banner of the Communist International, deliberate over the advances they have won against international capitalism during the past year, and gain new inspiration for the struggle that lies just ahead.

Struggle for Labor Solidarity.

On this May Day, the American workers, at the demonstration meetings and parades conducted by the Workers (Communist) Party, will pledge themselves to resist the attempts of Wall Street's agents to break down their solidarity. The poisonous propaganda of Coolidge for "restrictive immigration," aimed to pit the native-born workers against the foreign-born toilers; the ku klux lynchings of the Negro workers of the south; the attempt to increase the size of the army and navy and completely militarize the entire country thru military camps; the teaching of religious dope in the public schools; the canned propaganda of the movies and the brass check press turning out lies against Soviet Russia—all these do not blind the workers to the chains with which these capitalist agents bind their progress.

The workers of Chicago who meet tonight in Temple Hall, Van Buren and Marshfield Sts., to hear C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, and Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker, will gain new strength from contemplation of the Star of Hope of Soviet Russia.

Fight for Liberation.

The militant workers of America on this May Day are imbued with the determination that during the coming year the class war prisoners rotting in the prisons of this country must have full equality with the white workers; that child labor must be abolished, that lower hours and higher pay shall prevail, and that discrimination against women workers must cease.

The workers of America, led by the Workers Party, will voice their decision that the open shop and wage cut drives of the Coolidge-Wall Street government shall be fought with strikes during the coming year, and that Walter Trumbull and Paul Crouch, American soldiers, sentenced

PORTLAND, Oregon, April 30.—"Come to the golden west; come to Oregon, land of sunshine and flowers, where there is work for workers, land for farmers and lots of conventions for merchants." But—picture yourself, if you can, as one of 8,000 or 9,000 hungry and jobless slaves who daily visit the employment bureaus in search of work. Think of what a chance you would have to land a job in Portland, where the

THE VOICE OF LENIN TO BE HEARD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY, MAY 24

Something new and different is being arranged by the Russian branch of the Workers Party for Sunday, May 24, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. It will be a Lenin Evening, with Comrade Nicolai Lenin as the chief speaker. This is no joke, as the talk by Comrade Lenin will be heard from a phonograph record, as well as speeches by Comrades Lunacharsky, Trotsky and others.

Comrade Alexander Charmov, national organizer of the Russian Section W. P., who is touring the United States, will bring the records to Chicago. He will also speak on Lenin as a leader of the masses. A good musical program is also being prepared. Tell your friends about it. Let them listen to the voice of Lenin!

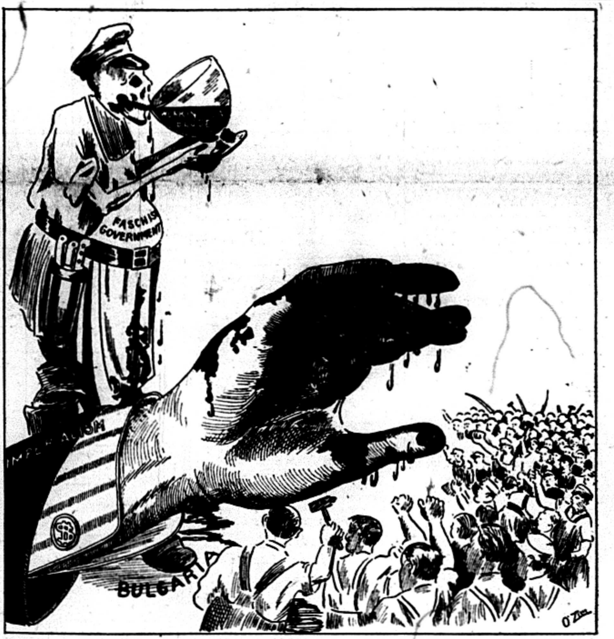
TO SUSTAIN THE BODY OF CAPITALISM



McKEES ROCKS STRIKERS, NEGRO AND WHITE, LED BY WORKERS PARTY, RESIST LONG HOURS

By Irwin, Worker Correspondent.

McKEES ROCKS, Pa., April 30.—Since the walkout started Monday at the Pressed Steel Car company's plant at McKees Rocks, Pa., more men have joined at every shift until Wednesday noon the strike was complete, approximately 6,000 men refusing to accept the proposed longer workday. Many of these strikers are Negro workers, but no color lines are drawn; they all stick together and fight together as workers—as members of one class.

Last week the notices announcing that, beginning Monday April 27, the nine and a half hour workday would be in effect with no more Saturday afternoon off. Previously the nine-hour day had obtained at the terrific piece work speed so typical for the industries connected with steel.

As already reported in these columns, during the last few months the piece work rates have been systematically cut until today the average day wage within the reach of speedy piece workers amounts to from $6.00 to $6.50; a straight cut of $3.00 per day from the highest piece work rate reached in that plant. Day laborers have been cut down to $3.60 per day. Under such conditions the workers did not at all

HUTCHESON SUSPENDS DETROIT CARPENTERS' LOCAL UNIONS IN CZARLIKE EFFORT TO CONTRO

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., April 30.—The latest developments Hutcheson's disruptive rule or ruin policy in Detroit is the su pension of four local unions, namely numbers 19, 1191, 420 an 2140, because they refused to repudiate their delegates to th district council, who rejected Hutcheson's one-way vote metho of autocracy.

Local Unions 19 and 1191, which met last night, signifie their intention to do business as usual in spite of Hutcheson' ukase of suspension. The order to repudiate was laid over b Local 19 last week pending further negotiations, with the consen of Potts, Hutcheson's personal tool in Detroit.

This week they got a letter from Potts stating they are suspended because of refusal to comply with it. The word of one of these fakers isn't worth the breath with which it is uttered.

Local 1,191 at its meeting last week merely asked what section of the constitution empowered the czar to exclude certain members as delegates to the district council merely because they displeased him.

To ask the Grand Dragon at Indianapolis if all the fire he belches at the rank and file is real constitutional fire or only Hutchesonian smoke is clearly lese majesty. For this, Local 1191 stands suspended.

Local 2140's crime is that it has successfully fought the unconstitutional expulsion of its president by Hutcheson and the general executive board and voted to continue to protect his and their rights under the constitution.

The local unions intend to take steps to protect their rights of membership and working conditions. If Hutcheson intends to fight the carpenters of Detroit, he'd better get some better plug-uglies than the false alarms who now sputter his threats against the rank and file. Mere unscrupulousness and bluff has won many a victory for these entrenched parasites. They don't go in Detroit.

BOSSES REFUSE TEACHERS RAISE, WANT MORE PAY

'Al' Smith Vetoes Boost, But Not of Supervisors

NEW YORK, April 30.—With the vetoing by Governor Al Smith of the Ricca bill granting New York City teachers increases averaging 20 per cent, attention is now turning to the revised salary schedules prepared by the board of superintendents. The board of education has promised to take these recommendations up, but the rank and file of the teachers are not satsified with them. In place of the $13,000,000 increases the teachers sought thru the Ricca bill the superintendents advise increases totalling only $5,000,000.

The worst feature of the superintendents' recommendations, from the standpoint of the average teacher, is that little is offered the teachers in the lower grades who comprise the majority of the city's educators and most of the money would be dished out to the supervising corps.

It is expected that the joint salaries committee of 15, representing the Teachers' Union and 54 other teachers' organizations, will make counter-recommendations to the board of education—in spite of the fact that they were turned down on former occasions.

Spanish Branch to Lend Support to League Dance, May 9

The Spanish branch of the Workers Party Local Chicago is throwing its support to the Young Workers League dance on May the 9th, 8 p. m. to be held at the Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

The Spanish comrades were contemplating arranging an affair of their own, in fact, they already began the organization of it, but upon finding out that the Young Workers League were running an affair on that date, they have decided to combine with us in making the May 9th dance of the league a huge affair. The league has gladly received this news and urges all other party and sympathetic organizations to throw in their support to the league affair on Saturday, May the 9th.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—Denial that the new union scale of 10 a day would be paid to painters employed by a contractor or his subcontractor on its new headquarters building in the capital, has been made by officials of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. They insist that the open-shop policy of the chamber will be enforced; that no work can be done for them at the union rate, so long as strikebreakers can be found to work below the union scale.

Polish Conference Takes Up Shop Nuclei Question in Chicago

Realization that the factories where the workers are exploited day after day must be the basic centers of Communist activity, featured the Chicago district conference of the Polish-speaking federation of the Workers (Communist) Party last Sunday.

The conference resolved to consider ways of establishing contacts with the workers directly in the shops. It went on record unanimously in favor of the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei. It also declared its full confidence in the present district executive committee of the Workers Party.

All the Polish branches in the district had members present at the conference. Manuel Gomez, representing the district executive committee of the party, declared that the first organizational task of the Polish federation is to break down the walls of isolation which still separate it from the mass of the Polish workers employed in the stockyards, steel mills and other important industries of the Chicago section.

It was pointed out by the delegates that the results obtained in the campaign on behalf of Lanzutzky offer an excellent starting point for building the Polish-speaking branches to twice and three times their actual size. In the campaign of propaganda and organization outlined by the conference the whole emphasis is laid on work in the shops, and at the factory gates. Comrade Marek, who presented the report on organization, also pointed out that contacts must be established and maintained with the Polish workers in trade unions and fraternal organizations.

Comrade Gebert, national secretary of the Polish federation, reported on the Polish language press, dwelling on all the important aspects of the problem—political, organizational and financial. The outlook for the federation's paper is exceptionally good.

Following is the resolution adopted by the conference in support of the D. E. C. of the party:

"This conference, after hearing the report of the representative of the D. E. C., declares its support of all work done by the district executive committee of the party during the past year, and especially endorses the organization of shop nuclei and shop nuclei branch in Chicago carried out under the immediate direction of the local city central committee. It moreover instructs the Polish district committee to co-operate with the district executive committee of the party in every way and to lend it its full support."

"Regular" Council of Building Trades Balks at Merger

WASHINGTON, April 30.— Announcement that President Hedrick and Secretary Tracy of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor would conduct the special election of officers for the new building trades council in Cleveland on May 2, has been followed by word that the "regular" council has refused to take part, with the larger "outlaw" council, in this election. Ballots for the election were prepared in Washington.

While only four or five of the building crafts are represented in the old council in Cleveland, the carpenters have gathered about them in the so-called outlaw or illegal council, some nine or ten of the crafts. Their total membership and their delegates are far greater than those of the regular group. Hence the "outlaws" have accepted the decision of the joint meeting of building trades international union executives that the two councils get together and elect new officers, and the regulars have refused to agree.

Governor Vetoes Bible Bill.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 30.—Declaring that religious teaching in the homes, Sunday schools and churches, by the good mothers, fathers and ministers of Ohio, is much preferable to compulsory teaching of religion by the state, Governor Donahey today vetoed the Buchanan bill, providing for compulsory bible reading in the public schools.

WORKERS OF ALL COUNTRIES MUST MOBILIZE TO FIGHT POLISH WHITE TERROR WHICH SLAUGHTERS REDS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, Poland, April 30.—Thousands of fighters for the cause of the proletariat are being gradually tortured to death in the torture chambers of the "independent republican" Poland. The prisons are filled to the top with workers and peasants of all nationalities—with young people, children of 14 and 15 years, hundreds of proletarian women and mothers who have been torn from their starving children. Everybody who will not submit to the tyranny in Poland like a slave, runs the risk of being thrown into prison and passing thru the tortures of hard labor.

Even in the darkest times of czarist reaction such horrible maltreatment did not take place as is in use now in the Polish prisons: the "examination" with the assistance of electric current, with the smashing of fingers, beating of the soles of the feet with iron switches are today nothing unusual in Poland.

In very many prisons, particularly in the former Prussian prisons, the rights of the political prisoners do not differ at all from those of the common criminals. There are other prisons, as that of the Holy Cross (a convent of the Middle Ages) where the prisoners are buried alive, where they get blind after three months' imprisonment, and in many cases never leave the prison at all.

In the course of seven months of the year 1924, 35 hunger strikes took place many of which lasted 10 to 12 days. The Polish government answers to hunger strikes with new repressions, new tortures. There was no hunger strike which was not accompanied with new maltreatment of the prisoners.

Police Kill Workers.

The most horrible forms of the white terror can be witnessed in the so-called frontier districts, in White Russia and in the western Ukraine. Every policeman in these districts is the master of the life and death of the peasants and workers. Every peasant who escapes the claws of these policemen with wounds, with smashed fingers and broken limbs, considers it as luck that he has saved his life.

Thousands of policemen, spies, agents provocateurs persecute the fighters for the workers' cause. Only in the course of the last month over 300 persons, i.e., 10 persons per day, were arrested.

Workers Mobilize.

Active solidarity is an imperative duty. In mass meetings, in the shops and factories, in trade unions and all other labor organizations, in municipal councils and parliaments the revolutionary working class of all countries must raise its voice in protest. It will be the task of the Red Aid organizations to mobilize the masses, to mobilize public opinion against the bloody crimes of Polish reaction.

No meeting should pass without flaming protest against the attempted murder of Comrade Lanzutsky and against the bestial terror in Poland. The Polish bourgeoisie must know that the international working class stands behind the tortured and persecuted Polish workers and peasants and behind Comrade Lanzutsky.

The Polish bourgeoisie must know that this international working class will not forget any of its crimes, but brand it before the whole world.

We address our call to the workers and peasants of the whole world and especially to the Red Aid organizations:

Prove your active solidarity!

Against the murder of Comrade Lanzutsky!

Against the attack on the sejm fraction of Communist Party of Poland!

Against the bestial murder in Polish prisons!

Long live the solidarity with the revolutionary workers and peasants of Poland!

The Executive Committee of the I. R. A., Central European Bureau.

USE HAWAIIAN MIMIC WAR TO SHOUT 'PREPARE'

Further Oppression in Pacific Expected

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 30.—The "critique" to be issued by the admirals here now judging the Hawaiian war maneuvers of the United States naval fleet, is expected to contain propaganda for an even greater militarisation of the Pacific colonies of American imperialism.

If the admirals decide that the "blue" fleet captured Hawaii, propaganda for further militarisation of the Hawaiian Islands will be constained in the report. The military forces here have been used to keep the sugar plantation workers slaving at beggar's wages for 12 hours a day. The strike of the sugar workers is being beaten down with bloodshed by the American imperialistic forces.

The "critique" may decide, on the other hand, that the military forces stationed here successfully repulsed the fleet. In that case a "bigger navy" will be called for. Thru the statements of the admirals is being entwined propaganda for a larger airplane force.

The war maneuvers were declared by many to be a warning to Japan that Wall Street intends to continue domination of the Pacific.

MINE INSPECTOR ELECTION GIVES MACHINE DEFEAT

County Supervisors Turn Down Fakers

By ALEX REID.

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., April 30.—The Farrington machine goes down to inglorious defeat in the latest election fiasco, "The election of county mine inspector," in Franklin county.

The appointment of the mine inspector takes place, after the miners show their preferance by ballot, and same is recorded with county supervisors, who in turn, elect the choice of the miners.

Voted Full Membership.

Said election recently took place in Franklin county, and the ballots were withheld from the Freeman local union with approximately 700 members. The Middlefork local union with a membership of 600, when the mine is in operation and which has been idle for over two years, cast a vote approximately a full membership.

Jack James, one of the candidates, and a democrat, refused to worship at the republican shrine, or the Farrington-bench and thereby incurred the wrath of the unholy machine, who went out to annihilate him, and place their own stool pigeon in his place, by name, Chas. Robinson, a pliant tool of the bureaucracy, from Benton, Ill.

Machine Tried to Get False Count.

Jack James from Christopher would have received practically a 100 per cent vote from Freeman local, 700 membership, as Mr. James is well-known and respected in Freeman, and the Farrington and sub-district machine is hated as only those machines deserve and would have received a scant vote there indeed.

Knowing this, the Lowe Fox, president sub-district 9, Fox by name as well as nature, has the ballots held up from Freeman on the ground that it is not in sub-district 9, and attempts to lead the supervisors to believe the mine was in Williamson county, when the facts of the case are that the mine is in Franklin county and the inspector must examine that mine with the rest of the mines in Franklin county. They, "the machine," did not attempt to explain the full ballot from the mine that was shut down for two years.

Lewis' Ruling Didn't Count.

John L. Lewis has ruled the actions of that local union since, and prior to the December 9 elections, illegal; yet in spite of this ruling by the international president, and with the aid and connivance of the Farrington machine and the sub-district tools, they attempted to beat Mr. James and put over Mr. Robinson in line with their policy of rule or ruin.

Their contempt for the Lewis ruling is seen in their defiance to issue transfer cards, which are about to be declared illegal, and which is causing bitter comments against the machine from the decent miners who have been duped by the fakers and who now are swearing retaliation.

Try to Get County Supervisors' Aid.

On Saturday, April 25, the whole Farrington outfit with their candidate Robinson appeared at the county court house in Benton to clinch the deal.

Headed by the Fox, assisted by Board Member Harry Madden, also Assistant Board Member James Hicks, and others around Benton and, incidentally, the miners' attorney, A. C. Lewis was in deep conversation with them, and was very prominent in the room of the supervisors during the session, their foul efforts went for naught.

County Supervisors Reject Fakers' Plot.

The supervisors were informed of the facts of the Freeman local, likewise the conditions of the Middlefork local, and as one of the supervisors was overheard to say afterwards, "It was a clear case of saving the miners' franchise from destruction by their officers." It was the clear intent of the miners to have Mr. James appointed.

If Mr. Robinson will examine the personnel of his supporters, together with letters from Mr. Cobb, and statements soliciting support for Mr. Robinson on the back of his official stationery of the U. M. W. of A., coupled with the Freeman local incident and the Middlefork local situation, with the miners' total disgust, of the Farrington, Fox, Cobb, Lowden machine he will readily understand the cause of his defeat by the overwhelming vote of the supervisors which was 14 votes for Mr. James and 4 votes for Mr. Robinson. On the strength of that vote one would be safe in saying that his friends, the machine, beat him.

Four Defeats.

This is the fourth defeat of the machine in the last few weeks. First, the local election held in Ziegler with the international officers; in this prior election justice could not be had, as the Farrington-Fox machine, with Madden and Wright ably assisting them, destroyed the miners' franchise, but was later repudiated in this last election, by relegating them to the scrap heap.

Second, the Ziegler city election which was won by the opponents of the Farrington machine that had been used to defeat the miners in their elections.

Third, the West Frankfort city election which resulted in the complete defeat of the Farrington machine, and fourth, the victory of Mr. John James for mine inspector of Franklin county.

Various local unions are preparing resolutions to be sent to the board of supervisors commending them for their absolute fairness and justice in helping by their decisions to safeguard the miners' franchise against the corruption of their union officialdom.

Lewis' Letter on Transfer.

A copy of a letter of J. L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W. of A., to the Local Union No. 1959 is given below. This is the letter and decision made in compliance with the miners' constitution that Farrington and his gang in Sub-District 9 hold in contempt and which has caused the miners to again get the locals together to have a delegation go to Indianapolis to see Lewis and plead for a special commission to come here and clean out the rottenness, as no effort can result in any relief from within the district.

"Indianapolis, April 21, 1925, To Mr. G. R. Price, 802 Fairland St., Benton, Illinois.

"Dear Sir and Brother:—Replying to your inquiry of recent date, permit me to advise that if the officers of Local Union 1959 have taken their cards from that local union and deposited them in some other local union they would not be eligible to serve as officers of Local Union 1959. They were without authority to issue transfer cards. When the officers of Local Union 1959, to whom you refer drew their transfer cards from Local Union 1959 and went elsewhere to work, the local union should have elected officers to serve in their place. Trusting this will give you the desired information.

"Yours truly, J. L. Lewis."

This letter supplemented telegrams from Lewis prior to Dec. 9, which held those officers could not legally hold the elections, but which was, and is, held in contempt and scorn by Farrington and his henchmen, and which now seems to be a means of declaring about 300 transfer cards invalid.

The miners of the whole sub-district are up in arms against the Farrington, Fox, Madden, Cobb, Lowden machine and are preparing to remove them from office.

Prison Labor Issue Raised

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—American Federation of Labor officials are watching closely the fight in Oklahoma, launched by the State Federation of Labor, to defeat by referendum vote the bill driven thru the legislature by Gov. Trapp, which would remove the label "prison made" from garments and brooms made by convicts in contract shop in the Oklahoma penitentiary. The Oklahoma Farmers' Union is cooperating with organized labor in this attack on the prison contract labor trust.

Urges Air Armaments for Britain.

ROME, April 30. — Great Britain should oppose any move toward air disarmament, according to Air Minister Hoare, in an interview today. He said England would soon inaugurate a Cairo-Bagdad air service, as well as regular flights between London and India.

TEXTILE WORKERS ADOPT PROGRAM AT CONFERENCE

T. U. E. L. Plans Call for United Front

By JOSEPH MANLEY.

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 30. — Lawrence, Mass., known thruout the labor movement as the scene of historic struggles in the textile industry was the location of a textile conference held last Sunday, April 26. The Lawrence conference is significant and important to the extent that the miserable conditions of the textile workers generally are becoming worse.

The entire textile industry is faced with serious developments for the workers, brought about by the concentration of capital, the wholesale introduction of automatic machinery, the application of efficiency methods of production, and the use of super power which, together with the semi-automatic machinery, enables the use of black and white unskilled labor close to the source of the raw material in the south. The textile trust in its ruthless grasp for profits is grinding its vast army of workers down to the very lowest degree of wage slaves.

Out of Date Unions and Leaders

The many unions, in the modern textile industry are antiquated in policy and structure. Officered as they are by men and women (the later of the type of Sarah Conboy) whose principles are bounded by class collaboration and whose ideology is essentially capitalistic, offer no resistance whatever to the growing power and profits of the textile trust.

The many unions as they stand now, whether of the craft or semi-industrial type, cannot and will not organize the textile workers. Not more than 100,000 workers out of a total of over a million and a half are now divided between these various unions.

Not a single one of these unions attempts to meet constructively, or even intelligently such obstacles as the race problem or the tendency toward craft division in the three basic woolen, cotton and silk, divisions of the industry. The inability to organize the textile workers by a bankrupt bureaucracy at the head of antiquated unions has for a long time been pointed out by the Trade Union Educational League.

Previous Work Laid Basis

The organization of the left wing elements in the textile industry has been advocated, and to some extent been carried on for the last couple of years by the Trade Union Educational League. Two years ago conferences of militants in the textile industry were organized.

An amalgamation committee was formed, a textile union amalgamation program was adopted, and other measures proposed to crystalize the militant movement in the industry. This propaganda and agitation, by the T. U. E. L., national committee thruout the entire industry has firmly convinced the textile workers that amalgamation is a practical necessity looking to the organization of the unorganized.

The Wage Cut Drive

For months past, the textile trust has been making war upon its workers. The seat of this war has been in New England. The signal for the battle was given by the trust in the form of wage cuts and large scale unemployment. Immediately that the textile barons anounced their intentions, the T. U. E. L. national committee sounded the alarm to the workers.

In addition, it proposed a line of policy and program to effectively resist wage reductions and unemployment. The T. U. E. L. issued a manifesto addressed particularly to New England textile workers calling upon them to follow its lead in the initiation of a wide campaign for a broad united front movement of the textile unions, and the unorganized textile workers against the united front of the textile millionaires.

The T. U. E. L. Fighting Plan

Militant resistance to wage cuts, and increased in hours was declared for. The organization of shop committees, in every mill, was proposed. Immediate measures to resist the widespread unemployment was contained in the manifesto. To deal with the New England crisis, it was proposed to call a series of conferences at which basic programs should be adopted, such conferences and programs to lead to the inauguration of a broad mass movement of textile workers that will effectively meet the onslaught of the textile capitalists.

The Lawrence conference is the first of a series. It was called by District Organizer J. J. Ballam for the T. U. E. L. There were present at this conference some forty odd delegates, members of five unions from thirteen New England textile cities.

The Present Conference

Four language bodies: Russian, Finnish, Armenian and Franco-Belgian were represented along with three local united front committees. The chairman of the conference was an old time textile worker—J. P. Reid of Providence, R. I. The secretary was a textile worker—Fred E. Beal of Lawrence, Mass.

An interesting discussion took place on amalgamation, the organization of a united front textile workers' committees, and the shop committee system in its application to the textile industry. Along with this, other special problems, as well as the general conditions in the industry were discussed.

Organizational Tasks

A central bureau of united front committees of New England to carry on the future work was organized. A program was adopted, which calls for the immediate organization thruout New England of united front textile workers' committees; the organization fo shop committees in the various mills; using both the united front committee and the shop committee as the basis for an amalgamation movement from below; organization of relief and defense for the textile workers in their present struggle; concrete proposals on the manner of handling present unemployment; a united front on the political field—labor party.

This program as well as the financing of the movement, its organization and the future publication of a bulletin was referred to the elected New England central bureau of the united front committees.

The writer and William Z. Foster were present. Foster spoke on the present situation in the textile industry. He contributed many suggestions toward the practical organization of the work in the district.

The Lawrence conference will be followed by others, which will lead to the organizing of a general mass gathering which, it is hoped, will launch a broad mas movement in the textile industry. Such a movement can only come about by the persistent efforts of the various elements, who accept the leadership and follow the program of the Trade Union Educational League.

NEEDLE TRADES SECTION OF THE T. U. E. L. CALLS CLOAKMAKERS AND ALL I. L. G. W. INTO ACTION

To the Cloakmakers of New York and All Members of the I. L. G. W. U.:

Fellow Workers:—Once more we are confronted with the necessity of struggle for a decent standard of living for ourselves and our families. Again the bureaucrats of the international are threatening to disrupt the morale and unity of the union with the object in view of terrorizing the members into acceptance of their surrender to the bosses thru the governor's commission for which they are preparing. This can be the only interpretation of the behavior of Vice-President Peristein and others at severeal meetings of the locals of the international.

Fellow Workers:

Previous to the expiration of last year's cloak and dressmakers' agreement, as well as others thruout the industry, the officials of the International prepared to crush all opposition to their tactics thru expulsions of our best and most active members and reorganization of opposition locals on the pretense that these members belong to the T. U. E. L. It is now clear to everyone that the real reason for that terrorism was to smother the opposition in order to be able thru the tactic of a governor's commission to abandon the struggle for the vital demands so necessary to make a decent living in our industry.

Do you still remember how for weeks and weeks they conducted secret diplomacy behind closed doors, the end of which was that a deal was made that no strike be called for any of the demands and all demands were referred to the governor's commission?

Against Class Collaboration.

Now, what is this governor's commission? As everyone knows, and surely our leaders ought to know, the U. S. government as well as the government of the state of New York, is controlled by Wall Street. Al Smith is their governor, elected by Tammany Hall, and this governor, a mere tool of Wall Street capital, appointed other tools—capitalists themselves—as a commission, and our leaders have put our fate—the well-being of our families, our bread and butter—into the hands of this commission; in other words, into the hands of Wall Street.

Who are the rulers of Wall Street? They are the biggest labor-baiting capitalists of the country, and the commission is their commission. What can we expect from such a commission? Nothing, or even worse. What is our union for, if Wall Street commissions are the arbiters of our conditions? Class collaboration is the policy that our officials follow in dealing with the bosses. Their motto is to have peace with the bosses.

Conditions in the Industry Are Growing Worse.

Do you know that the workers of the ladies' garment industry, according to the latest reports of the U. S. census bureau, are producing 35 per cent more garments than before, while the number of employed is 10 per cent less? You may not know that, but you do know that your seasons are getting shorter every year and that your income as figured per year is getting smaller year by year. That the contractor system that prevails thruout New York has made your job insecure, subjected you to speed up and bad sanitary conditions.

If the bosses could produce 35 per cent more garments than before with 10 per cent less workers employed, it was of course at your expense; in other words, the jobbers and manufacturers are getting richer and stronger while we are getting poorer and weaker. Where will that lead us to?

Will we at last make the union our instrument or will we remain mere pawns in the hands of the officials?

The rank and file has suffered enough abuse. Democracy in our union has become a farce. Our best and active members are subject to expulsion and persecution. We are taxed and dues are increased without consulting the membership, the union has become a gold mine for the officials instead of being an instrument for the workers to fight for better conditions. We suffered and stood for all that for the sake of keeping our union intact for the big thing—the struggle for better conditions.

Once more our leaders are preparing to abandon definitely all our vital demands to the mercy of the governor's commission, and in preparation for this purpose threaten again to disrupt those locals that favor and are ready to strike for these demands and against the governor's commission.

As long as the corruption and the dictatorship of the officials did not directly concern the conditions of the shops, there may have been indifference by some members, but now that it goes for our most vital economic interests there must be but one single unified front of all the rank and file against this traitorous policy of class collaboration of our international officials. If they will not fight for these demands, the membership must find ways to rally for the struggle, and stand pat on this issue. We urge the members therefore to force our officials to insist upon the following demands:

What Are These Demands?

1. The basic agreement should be between the union and these jobbers and manufacturers and should hold them fully responsible for all conditions in the contracting shops. The contractor not to be recognised as the employer, but merely as intermediary agent (straw boss).

2. In order to enforce the agreement all contracting shops working for one and the same capitalist should be considered a unit and the workers of these shops should hold joint shop meetings and elect a joint shop committee and in case of stoppage or strike all should act together the same as in inside shops.

3. That those jobbers and manufacturers who have an agreement with the union should not be allowed to supply new contracting shops with work and that the number of existing contracting shops should be reduced as rapidly as possible so as to allow the remaining shops to grow in size, until the big shop again prevails in the industry.

4. An increase on the scale of wages of 20 per cent.

5. Forty full weeks of employment for the year guaranteed.

6. Forty-hour week.

7. Unemployment insurance fund, paid by the bosses only and administered by the union.

These are in essence the demands of the officials themselves as expressed on various occasions in the official organ of the union, the Justice. We urge the members to insist that the officials stand pat and fight for these demands, and for this purpose we propose as follows:

1. That the union does not submit to the decision of the governor's commission and prepares for a strike.

2. In order to have the full confidence and raise the morale of the membership a strike committee be directly elected by the members of the locals on a proportional basis and that the negotiations and conduct of the strike be under the leadership of this rank and file strike committee.

3. That shop committees be immediately elected in every shop in order to draw the mass of the membership into the various activities in preparation for the strike.

4. The reinstatement of expelled and suspended members.

Fellow workers: In order to fight for these demands we need UNITY and a strong fighting union. At this time, when good morale and fighting spirit are most necessary, the membership of the union must stand on guard against any attempt to break or demoralize our ranks.

Do not wait or rely upon the decision of the governor's commission. This decision, which the bosses and reactionary union officials will attempt to force upon you, will mean only more misery and oppression for the rank and file.

Down with the governor's commission!

Down with class collaboration!

Prepare for the strike!

With working class greetings,

The National Committee of the Needle Trades Section, T. U. E. L.

DISTRICT ONE MINERS REJECT CAPPELLINI TOOL

Mass Demonstration Against Faker

By PAT TOOHEY.

WILKES BARRE, Pa.—Miners of the Woodward colliery, Edwardsville, Pa., for the second time in April staged a mass parade in protest against the actions of Rinaldo Cappellini, president of District 1, U. M. W. of A.

The parade occurred on the day the district board was conducting the "special election" at the Woodward colliery. The faction headed by Stanley Edmunds, of over 1,200 men, refused to participate in the election but chose to parade in protest.

Trouble Long Brewing.

The trouble at the Woodward colliery has been brewing for many months, in fact long before Cappellini revoked the local charter, a la Lewis. The group led by Adam Dunn, school director and peanut politician, has been recognized by the district executive board as the local union officials for some time.

The membership of the local absolutely refuse to recognise Dunn and his cohorts as their officers, claiming that the Dunn group, consisting of about 500 of the 1,700 members, met secretly and elected themselves. As a consequence there has been two local unions functioning at the mine for the past few months.

Martial Law in Union Fight.

The sequel came when the Edmunds group refused to pay dues to the Dunn officials. The "officers" then retaliated by refusing to permit the Edmunds followers to enter the mine. The Edmundsites then paraded thru Kingston, Edwardsville and Wilkes Barre.

A miner or two was knifed or shot on that occasion—otherwise the parade was peaceful. The situation became so tense that the state cossacks practically placed the whole section under martial law by ordering the closing of poolrooms, hotels, etc.

Cappellini then stepped in and after a three-hour meeting the district executive board by a vote of four to three decided that the Woodward colliery should hold a special election with the district board as tellers. They decided that Dunn and Edmunds should each submit a list of candidates.

1,200 Miners in Protest Parade.

Dunn accepted this, but Edmunds refused on the basis that his officers were the regularly elected officials and that it was contrary to the district and international law to remove officers in his manner. Three of the executive board thought likewise. However, the "election" took place with Dunn's men voting and Edmunds' 1,200 men parading the streets of Wilkes Barre and adjacent towns.

More trouble is expected at the Woodward colliery, and the miners of the district are waiting patiently for future developments. The Edmunds group is expected to parade again soon as it will soon be time for Dunn's "button committee" to examine the dues books of the miners. It is generally thought that the Edmunds faction, heretofore staunch Lewis supporters, will be the bulk of opposition at the tri-district convention against the Lewis-Cappellini aggregation.

Waking Up.

The miners of the Woodward colliery and of the Pennsylvania Coal Co. have had their eyes opened has to the real type of gentlemen Lewis and Cappellini are. Since they have experienced official opposition and charter revocation, they are beginning to realize that the ducks heading their organization have as their motto "Rule or Ruin." They are beginning to realise that the militant struggle waged by the Kansas and Nova Scotia miners was not for the reasons Lewis told them, and that the 66,000 miners who voted anti-Lewis last election certainly knew what they were doing.

Scores of local unions are selecting committees to personally investigate the Woodward situation, and as many conflicting reports are heard. Cappellini is determined to get rid of Edmunds and retain Dunn in defiance of the will of the Woodward membership.

Lewis Won't Answer Letter.

Lewis was asked by Edmunds for a ruling on the charge that the special election was illegal and contrary to the union laws, but evidently Lewis is too busy selling out the Nova Scotia miners to Besco to answer, as Edmunds is still waiting for a reply to his wire.

Cappellini is being denounced and condemned by the miners thruout the entire district. They speak plainly and say he sold them out time and time again. His mouthings of "solidarity" are laughed at when the charter revocations of the 12,000 Pennsy miners and 1,700 Woodward miners are recalled.

Cappellini is going from local to local trying to get the men to believe the fairy tale he has, that the reason he failed in his promises, the reason he has had 610 strikes in 18 months, the reason their hundreds of grievances are unsettled, is because of his "political enemies."

TWENTY-FIVE CZARIST "OFFICERS" JOIN NATIONAL GUARD HERE TO SERVE WALL STREET IMPERIALISM

SEATTLE, Wash., April 30.—Twenty-five former officers in the czarist army of Russia have enlisted here in the United States national guard. The czarist officers fought against the Soviet revolution, and when faced with the appalling prospect of going to work for their bread after the Soviets were victorious, fled to the protection of the hospitable Wall Street-Coolidge government.

The czarists, five colonels, seven lieutenant colonels, four naval lieutenants, and one lieutenant general, declared it made no difference to them what capitalistic power they served, and as long as Russian imperialism has been destroyed, they were willing to serve American imperialism.

Strikers Resist Long Workday feel inclined to accept the longer work day.

Quit When Nine Hours Were Up

As the notices were posted they were as promptly ignored by the workers on Monday and after having worked the usual nine hours they all quit and went home. Tuesday morning additional notice was given that all those who were not willing to accept the longer work day need not start. Some workers walked out immediately while the balance again quit after the usual nine hours. By Wednesday noon not a man was left inside the plant. Piece workers and day laborers, colored and white standing solid.

The workers of one department, on Monday got up a few lists stating their refusal to accept the increase of working hours, which lists were signed by all in the department and handed over to the management.

Knowing that those who "start things" in steel plants generally are the first to become victimized, the workers used a method of their own in signing the lists, not starting as usual at the top filling in names toward the bottom but by drawing a circle each name starting from the center and forming a radius untill the circle was completed. One foreman returning to the department with one of these lists asked who was the first man to sign, but, of course, nobody knew.

At Wednesday noon the first strike meeting was held, addressed by speakers of the Workers Party and from the Machinist's District Council. 1,500 men were present. These workers who are entirely unorganized were told in precise terms how to get their strike organized and how to give effective resistance to the attempt to make them submit to worse slave conditions.

The company made several futile efforts to call the strikers into meeting to listen to their own expert spellbinders, but not one man appeared at their meeting.

Workers Party Leads Struggle

The same day, the three Workers Party branches at McKees Rocks, met jointly to map out further plans to give definite and effective leadership to this struggle.

The Pressed Steel Car company of McKees Rocks has been the scene of many bitter struggles of the past. During the strike in 1909 one state constable recklessly fired a shot right into the midst of a mass of assembled strikers. They made short shrift with him, kicking his guts out so he never saw daylight again. But the men gained a real experience in the class struggle and the ruthlessness of the capitalist class in attempting to maintain its class rule.

Evicting Strikers' Families

The Communists are now actively helping these men to crystalize these experiences on the basis of active united struggle to maintain living conditions.

Many of the strikers who live in company owned houses have been told to move out. The company not even bothering about giving formal eviction notices.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg will not say a word about the election of Hindenburg as president of Germany. CALLS TEACHERS OF LOS ANGELES TO CLASS DUTY

Struggle Against Rule of Big Business

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, April 30. — Two years ago the teachers of Los Angeles took a very active part in the municipal election. They endorsed candidates for the board of education and took an active part in the campaign. Their efforts were met with a very vicious attack on the part of the committee of 1,000 representing the chamber of commerce and other labor-hating organizations. One of their candidates was mercilessly attacked as a red, Bolshevist, Russian propagandist, etc.

During the last two years consistent pressure was brought against the teachers in their efforts to use their teachers' organizations and journals for the expression of their political views. One teacher was tried for having made a statement regarding the world war, which was interpreted as beieng unpatriotic.

Persecution by Big Biz.

The teachers' organization made a fight in his behalf and prevented him being expelled from the school. Heresy hunting was the order of the day. The chamber of commerce controls the schools. A special week was set aside as chamber of commerce week. Even such liberal magazines as the Nation was barred from the libraries of the public school.

In the present municipal election the Workers Party of Los Angeles is calling on the teachers and the workers to unite on the political and economic field. The Workers Party realizes the difficulties that confront the teachers whenever they attempt to make even the most elementary demands. Suspension from schools means deprivation of the means of livelihood. The teachers cannot possibly make any kind of an organized effort to better their conditions without the active and full support of the working class, of which they must always consider themselves an integral part.

Urge Labor Union Support.

For these reasons the political committee of the Workers Party is appearing before the labor unions of Los Angeles in particular to get behind the candidate, Emanuel Levin, and the platform which he is presenting to the voters in this election.

The labor unions are beginning to realize that the schools are not only built by scab labor, but that workers' children are being trained to be enemies of the worker, are being trained thru their military courses, to bears arms against the workers in their struggle for better conditions. The Machinists' Local No. 311, the Capmakers' Local Union, No. 26, and the Millinery Workers' Union, all affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, have already endorsed Levin, the candidate of the Workers Party and its platform.

Against the Open Shop.

The teachers united with the workers in the shops and industries must wrest the control of the schools from the hands of the bitterest enemies of the working class, the 100 per cent open shoppers of Los Angeles. The program and platform in this campaign leads the way for this unity.

The campaign marks only the beginning of an active campaign to create the necessary political and industrial power of the workers to control and manage the schools so that the children of the workers will be the staunch supporters of the working class, whereas at this time they are trained to be the enemies of the working class.

No Illusions.

The Workers Party in its platform realizes that the wresting of the public schools from the control of the capitalist class cannot be accomplished while the capital system exists and are not giving the teachers or workers any illusions of what would happen if their candidate should be elected or even if the entire board of education should be elected on its platform.

The Workers Party and its candidate realize that all the workers, whether they be in the industries or in the social and educational institutions of the present system, are being used to help perpetuate the capitalist system, and that it is their duty to enter into the everyday struggle of the workers to better their condition and to train themselves to ultimately take over the means of production and distribution.

The platform and necessary political activities in this campaign will lay the ground work for the awakening of the consciousness of the workers and teachers to their responsibilities to themselves and the working class as a whole.

Ford Shows There Are More Nuts Than Those Found on His Flivvers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Henry Ford, upon whom some bestow the crown of "richest man in the world," again offers himself as the saviour of mankind. Ford has a successor for his "Peace Ship" stunt, for world peace is surely to follow on the heels of this idea, he argues. He now claims that the trouble with the world is that it "doesn't know how to eat, what to eat and when to eat."

• • • •

There are three necessities that every worker requires: food, clothing and shelter. Ford has not yet attempted to tell the workers how to solve the question of clothing and shelter. The housing problem is one of the most pressing in every American city. But he confesses he has tackled the food problem to his own satisfaction. For instance, he tells the women to "leave politics alone and study the food problem."

Ford, of course, dodges the main issue; where to get sufficient income to provide the "ideal breakfast, lunch and dinner." Ford is going to tell the workers what he eats. He will not tell the workers how to buy the things that he eats, out of their wages, or without any wages if they are unemployed. He proceeds on the supposition that "the dinner pail is full."

• • • •

Ford's bunk will therefore be classed with the nonsense of the comic sheets, so far as the intelligent and militant workers of the land are concerned. They will accept it as just some more propaganda in the effort of the bosses to keep the workers contented. It is Ford's May Day stuff. Here is what the auto manufacturer declares:

> "I believe we can bring about a change in the universal chronic unrest by feeding the world good food and teaching people what to eat and what to get."

Capitalism, which is Ford's social system, will never feed the workers "good food." Its main interest is in keeping down wages; which results in cutting off the workers' food supply, just as surely as if the working class were completely surrounded by an enemy army, and its food stores isolated.

Capitalism, Ford's system, sends millions of children hungry to school every morning. It is not a question with these children, how to eat, but what to eat. There is nothing for them at home. Free lunches at school is denounced as "Bolshevism."

The same is true of the fathers and mothers at work. Real milk is good food. But working class families by the millions can't afford it. The cheapest of substitutes must be provided, even for helpless babies in their cradles. Ford and his kind repeat for the workers, "An apple a day, will keep the doctor away." But the Ford system says, "Let the apples rot in the orchards. That will keep the supply down and the prices up, resulting in good profits," the profits that provide the driving motive behind the Ford capitalist system. The few apples that do drift into the congested working class districts of the great cities are just as anemic as the children that grab for them.

• • • •

Correct eating is good. But it is a mockery to preach it to workers continually hovering on the poverty line, unable to buy even the cheapest foods. It is this mass, swelled in numbers during every industrial crisis, when unemployment stalks across the land, or when capitalist wars come to ravage the nations, plunging new millions to death, disease and starvation, that will shake the whole structure of capitalism into ruins.

Unemployment:—Ford has no cure for it.

War:—In spite of his peace ship, Ford was one of the most energetic supporters of the last world war. Ford is today being depended on to help furnish great air fleets for the next war.

Food, clothing and shelter:—Ford does not tell the workers how to provide these necessities for themselves and their families. All he does is to babble shallow epigrams about "dieting," just as he aimlessly offers nostrums and cure-alls for other social diseases, providing some new fleeting sensation for the yellow press. Only thru the teachings of Communism, that strike at the roots of the great problems confronting labor, will the working class make progress. They will do this over the prostrate form of Ford and his kind.

MINERS OF NOVA SCOTIA REJECT WAGE CUT PLAN

'Impartial' Arbitrator Aids Besco

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, April, 30. —After the long "investigations" pursued by the Premier Armstrong to see what was the matter in the dispute between the coal miners of District 26 and the British Empire Steel corporation, the usual result of capitalist government mediation has occurred. Premier Armstrong proposes that the miners accept a 10 per cent wage cut.

Commenting upon the premier's proposal as a basis for further negotiations, the district president of the miners' union, J. W. MacLeod, stated that the position of the miners was one of "no compromise" and that the district executive absolutely refuses to consider any peace overtures based on a wage cut from the 1924 scale, in whole or in part.

"We are not considering the premier's proposition at all, and have no intention of taking it before the membership. The individual members of the executive are going to address the various local unions of the district but our object has no connection with this latest proposition."

The district is appealing for support of the 12,000 miners and their starving families, to labor everywhere, in order to fight the wage cut.

Rich New Yorkers Swallow Fake Plot Bull, Guard Churches

FASCISTS TAX WORKERS TO PAY BANKERS' TOLL

New Tax Law Relieves Rich, Burdens Poor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, April 30.—Following the warm praise given the Dawes plan by Chancellor Luther in his speech to German businessmen, Finance Minister von Schlieben has introduced the most drastic tax bill in Germany's history into the reichstag. Luther's speech and the tax bill are both supported by the newly elected monarchist president, Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

The tax bill, aimed to pay the heavy burden imposed by the Morgan bankers, thru the Dawes plan, lifts the taxation from the manufacturers and bankers, and places a heavy tax upon the workers. In his speech outlining the bill von Schlieben declared, "The burden must be taken from the producers, and a just distribution made," meaning that the wealthy exploiters are to escape the yoke of the Dawes plan, which their mouthpiece, Luther, so warmly praised, and that the masses of the German workers must pay tribute to the Wall Street bankers.

Marx Supports Fascisti.

Wilhelm Marx, defeated candidate, who was supported by the socialist-catholic coalition, revealed that he will not support the Communist Party's demand for an immediate fight for reduced taxes and against the monarchist domination, when he publicly announced that he will support Hindenburg.

The allies have served notice that Cologne will not be evacuated by the French troops, altho the territory has been occupied in violation of the Versailles treaty for several months.

War Veterans Denounce Monarchists.

ST. PAUL, Minnesota, April 30. — The World War Veterans, with the announcement that von Hindenburg was elected, issed the following statement: "Von Hindenburg, president of Germany, trying to talk peace under such circumstances is like fighting fire with gunpowder. The only people for peace in Germany now is that part of the population who join in a revolution against autocracy. Shouting 'Hail von Hindenburg' and singing 'Deutschland Ueber Alles' certainly doesn't sound like peace to us.

"We ask all ex-service men to join with us in requesting President Coolidge not to recognize the Hindenburg government. We ask of all American people to join with us to defeat every candidate for public office in the United States who stands for recognition of the von Hindenburg government."

The statement was signed by Emil Holmes, president of the war veterans.

STRIKING METAL POLISHERS SEE VICTORY AHEAD

Long Struggle Marked by Many Arrests

By OWEN STIRLING.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Mich., April 30.—Admiration is growing among workers thruout the Detroit industrial district for the courage and solidarity of the striking metal polishers.

The metal polishers are striking at the C. B. Shepard Co. plant here, one of the largest metal polishing shops in the district.

Against their ranks injunctions have been brought, wholesale prosecutions on groundless charges of assault and battery, brass knuckles, clubs, knives and in at least one instance, pistol fire. The company has succeeded in taking nine metal polishers off the picket line into the recorder's court for trial for what the company's hired thugs said was assault and battery. But the ranks were immediately closed with other strikers. And in each of the nine cases the company's strikebreakers and guards failed to show the judge an assault had been committed.

Thugs Found Guilty.

Against that record is a record of three convictions against guards for assault and battery. They were the only three company men against whom the strikers made charges in court. Every charge stuck.

Charles Oman, company employment officer, and William Burke, a strike breaker, are now awaiting trial on charges of felonious assault. They led a gang of thugs in an attack upon an automobile carrying union men. Oman used a pistol. Strikers said one bullet shattered the wind shield of the union men's car.

Strikebreakers Assaulted Pickets.

Trial for felonious assault also faces Edward Moss, another strikbreaker, one of a gang of 25 thugs who attacked Luther Buckmaster and President Debates as they were peacefully walking the picket line. Buckmaster fled to a near-by railroad watchman's shed. Altho the watchman forbade them to enter, the gangsters pushed him aside and cut Buckmaster in the face and he had to be taken to a hospital.

The three charged with felonious assault were released for trial later on $500 bail.

The metal polishers are striking against a second 10 per cent wage cut. They had taken one cut and were determined not to take another. The strike is now in its third month.

Company Loses Heavily.

Strikebreakers have been marshalled at the plant in a desperate effort to continue operation, but the company has lost heavily both in orders and in spoiled goods. The strikers have recently been cheered with authentic information that the company in a short time will have to capitulate to the workers or go bankrupt.

Victory is Ahead.

The outlook for the strikers has not always been so encouraging. But in the face of violence, wholesale trials and dwindling purses they have gone back each day to the picket line.

A circuit court judge in the early days of the strike issued individual injunctions against six of the strikers. But the company has failed in its efforts to obtain a blanket injuction.

Organized labor thruout the district is following the strike daily with high interest.

"The men are demonstrating solidarity. Fighting as they are for a decent standard of living for themselves and their families they are fighting also not only for organized labor in the district, but for the entire working class," Edgar Owens, district organiser of the Workers Party, said.

The Truth About the Ford Plant

men" of the nation. The quotation above is from Sinclair's interview with Ford. It was read (perhaps believed) by millions.

Ford, as the advance guard of the working class knows, has become a myth. The following account shows typically what is going on at the Ford Motor Company shops today with reference to the wages that have "something sacred" about them.

Like Going to Jail

There is a large daily labor turnover at the Ford Motor Company. The line at the employment office is long. Applying for a job means not only a physical examination. Applicants have their finger prints taken too. It is like voluntarily going to jail.

There is nevertheless a great demand for Ford jobs. This is largely on account of conditions several years ago at the Ford plants. They existed long enough for propaganda to be broadcast. Then the shops were militarized. Social workers or investigators were replaced by spies and thugs. Henry Ford still looks whimsically out of the office window and tells John F. Sinclair there is "something sacred about wages." But it doesn't mean anything.

A Side Line Graft

Out of the wage system and the demand for Ford jobs there has risen a sideline business in which Ford employe identification cards are bought and sold for large profits. Call them brokers, agents, business men, ticket scalpers, or whatnot, these speculators in Ford identification cards are doing a thriving business.

An able-bodied man goes down the employment line at Ford's and applies for a job. He takes the examination, answers all the questions and has his finger prints taken. He is given an identification card and told when to report for work, or to wait until he is notified. The able-bodied man sells his identication card to a speculator for $10. he speculator resells it to an immigrant for from $50 to $100, altering the name on the card. Sometimes the able-bodied man goes down the employment line three times in one day, each time under a different name. That makes $30 a day for him, as long as he can get away with it. It makes from $120 to $260 a day for the speculator.

Wednesday, April 22, a Ford Motor company detective named Thomas Maloney arrested Ahmed Abbass, 101 Victor avenue, Highland Park. Abbass was kept in jail all night and taken before Fred L. Keller, Highland Park justice of the peace, the following day. The charge against him was fraud. He was charged with attempting to enter the Ford gates to go to work with a fake identification card. The fact that wages, or money, were involved, apparently, made the alleged attempt a criminal offense— in the eyes of Henry Ford and the justice of the peace, who sits all day in a court room in the shadow of the great Ford stacks. The Ford Motor company pays about three-fourths of the taxes in Highland Park.

Dick Covers Up His Own Crime

Private Detective Maloney told Justice of the Peace Keller the Ford detectives were trying to break up the speculation in fake identification cards. He intimated that severe punishment in a case such as the Abbass case would aid them materially. Behind Maloney in the court room sat two Ford employment office white-collar boys looking severe.

Abbass is not a large and brawny Syrian with an evil scar across one cheek and wicked gleam in his eye. He is a boy and an orphan. He said he was 17 years old. He came to the United States in 1920 and has been going earnestly to night school. The identification card which he presented at the Ford gates when he went knocking submissively and hopefully there gave his age as 21. But he looked like 17. If he actually bought the card he was probably made to believe it was his only means of getting a Ford job—$6 a day, $36 a week, until the next layoff.

"I Had to Eat"

"I had to eat," he said. "I had to have a job."

The finger prints on his identification card did not correspond to his own, it appeared. Abbass insisted he had not bought the card but had obtained it himself. He thought there must have been some mistake at the Ford Motor company employment office. And Abbass had exactly $1.24 in his pocket.

"I had to eat," he repeated.

He can not be blamed for appearing somewhat forlorn. But he was not cringing. He was a bright lad.

It should be borne in mind that the speculators themselves have never been arrested. Their names are not known. Abass, perhaps their victim, perhaps the victim of a Ford detective bureau frameup, was taken away to jail. A few days previously another man was arrested under similar circumstances and fined $50.

Justice Keller sentenced Abbass to pay a $100 fine and $5 costs or serve 30 days in jail.

"I have only $1.24. I guess I'll have to serve the time," Abbass said.

Couldn't Tell This Story

The court officers took him away.

John F. Sinclair could have obtained and written a story like this if he had wanted to. If he had waited a few days he could have obtained and written this story about Abbass. But he could not have sold it to the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Soviet Union Speeds Introduction of Use of the Metric System

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, (By Rosta).—In connection with the introduction into the Union of Soviet Soc. Republics of the metric system, a demand has naturally arisen for very large quantities of metric rules, scales, and weights.

The practical materialization of a complete change to the metric system cannot be effected until 1927. Nevertheless, not a few of the measures under such a system have already been put into operation.

Thus, for instance, all railway loads are now calculated in the metric system, and in those places where the requisite scales do not as yet exist, measurements are effected with the old measures, but are subsequently reduced to the metric denomination.

From April 1, all Moscow trade and manufacturing establishments are entirely to adopt the metric system. The control over the accuracy of weights and measures rests with the principal weights and measures department at Leningrad, founded in 1896 under the direction of the eminent chemist D. A. Mendeleyev, who has always been a warm supporter of the metric system, and is the author of many important articles regarding the necessity of its introduction.

Farmers' Council Demands Probe of Tariff Schedules

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—Members of the Farmers' National Council have asked President Coolidge to instruct the federal tariff commission to investigate and report on the metal and cotton tariff schedules, and especially to look into the duty on table, household, kitchen and hospital utensils, made chiefly of aluminum. Their appeal direct to the tariff commission has been rejected. They suggest that Gary and Schwab be summoned as witnesses, on metal schedules, and that Sen. Butler be called to testify on cotton goods, of which he is a big manufacturer.

Secretary Mellon, head of the aluminum trust, whose extortions from consumers were denounced by the federal trade commission before Coolidge scrapped that body, is for some unknown reason not suggested as a witness on aluminum tariff rates.

Seviet Allows Chinese Trade Free.

MOSCOW, (By Rosta).— With a view to promoting trade with western China, the Soviet government has allowed the import from the Sinkiang province free of the usual trade licenses of agricultural produce such as rice, cattle, lard, hides, furs, cotton, wool, silk cocoons, carpets, etc., as well as the export free of licenses from the U. S. S. R. into western China of all goods of Soviet Union origin that are not included in special "contingents."

Startling Results in Off-Year Election and poor farmers of the state to go to the polls and write in the names of Foster and Gitlow.

Ran Under Hammer and Sickle.

How many took this advice it was quite impossible to learn, yet there must have been several thousand who did so, in view of the returns, only now available, of the general election which was held on April 6, when 7,037 voters cast their ballots for the Workers Party candidates, who ran under the symbolic hammer and sickle.

The Workers Party was the only party entering the spring elections to make a working class appeal. The socialist party has finally recognized that it is dead. The socialist labor party, for reasons best known to itself, failed to make the grade. The proletarian party's educational activities do not include participation in the election campaigns.

Distribute 100,000 Leaflets.

More than 100,000 leaflets were distributed stating the party's position on the issues confronting the electorate. Lack of funds with which to conduct a strenuous campaign, and lack of effective organization, raised serious difficulties. Yet in spite of these difficulties a most remarkable response was forthcoming.

In Wayne county (Detroit) Comrade Herman Richter, running for county auditor, received 1,539 votes, while our candidates for state offices ranged from 1,120 to 1,196. Out of a total Wayne county registration of more than 350,000 only 54,970 votes were cast. Genessee county (Flint) was second with 578 out of a total vote of 25,208. Marquette county in the upper peninsula came third with 347 out of a total vote of 7,841. The counties in the upper peninsula all gave very respectable votes for the Communist candidates. It is significant that only three counties of the 83 in Michigan failed to register any votes for our ticket. Saginaw, headquarters of the ku kluxers in Michigan, voted 228 for the Communists; Jackson, location of the prison in which Comrade Ruthenberg was incarcerated before his release pending his appeal to the United States supreme court, delivered 98 votes, while Berrien county, wherein the Communist trials are pending, came across with 132. One county gave 1,500 plus, one nearly 600, one 347, six voted from 217 to 283, six from 127 to 194, while the others ranged down from 95 to 2 (Oscoda county).

Distinct Achievement for Party.

In view of the fact that the April 6th elections occurred in an off year, that no sharpr issues were up to rouse a mass interest, and the further fact that the Workers Party lacked both funds and effective organization with which to wage a strenuous campaign, the polling of 7,037 votes is a distinct achievement.

The returns indicate that Michigan is seething with discontent against things as they are, a discontent that effects rural communities as well as industrial centers. They indicate further that present conditions are forcing the workers and poor farmers to crash thru the wall of prejudice that capitalist institutions have sought to erect around anything that savors of Communism, Confronted with mortgage foreclosures, falling prices for farm products, and increasing prices for farm equipment; with wage cuts, open shop drives, and the menace of unemployment, the poor farmers and industrial workers are learning that the spectre of Communism is merely a nursery tale which the apologists of the present order use to frighten them into continued subjection to their system of ruthless exploitation.

Indicates Big Vote in 1926.

April, 1925, presented the first opportunity in Michigan for the Workers (Communist) Party to participate in an election under its own name.

MAY DAY FAREWELL TO FIFTH GROUP OF RED RAY COMMUNE, SATURDAY

A May Day celebration and farewell party will be held this Saturday, May 2, at 7:30 p. m., at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St., in honor of the fifth group of the agricultural commune Red Ray that is leaving for Soviet Russia in a few days. The group is taking along atractor, a lathe and tools for the sum of about $3,000.

The comrades that left for the commune some time before are writing enthusiastic letters. In the last letter they tell that out of the 19 cows of the commune 12 had little ones. About 50 pigs were born on the grounds of the commune lately, and there are 500 eggs in the incubator.

Unemployment in Detroit Increases Over Last Year

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich.—An increase of 4,449 over the preceding week in the number employed in the member shops is shown in the last weekly report or "labor barometer" of the employers' association of Detroit. The total is now 232,068, which is 3,390 less than a year ago.

The association membership comprises two-thirds of the employers in the Detroit district.

THE ROMANCE OF NEW RUSSIA

by Magdeleine Marx
Author of "Women"

A book aglow with the color, light and life of Russia.

A picture of the many people the writer has met—working men and women, officials—people of all classes.

We have received but a limited new stock from the publishers.

In the Preface the author says: You arrive in Russia. Though you know that what has been written about it is pure invention, that the truth has deliberately been falsified, besmirched, and bespattered with gore, still you get a sort of shock of surprise. You find a totally new relationship between man and things, with the majority of people benefiting by the new order. Everywhere not only the signs of resurrection, but resurrection itself. Yet the rest of the world still believes the absurd legends of oppression and disorder that are told about Russia.

Labor's Day

It is one of the ironies of history that the American Federation of Labor, now the most bitter opponent of May Day nad all that it stands for, should be the first labor movement in the world to designate that day as the one on which a great united effort should be started to force the eight-hour day from the American employers.

Today the bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor, their hands greased and their pockets lined with the bosses' gold, look on May Day with hate and dread. It signifies to them the harbinger of revolution, and of a social system which will have no room for a parasite capitalist class or for the lesser leeches—the labor fakers.

But tho the reactionary leaders of the American Federation of Labor have turned their backs on May Day, the workers in every country in the world have not. May Day was celebrated as the international holiday of labor for the first time in 1890. The slogans on that first day were for the eight-hour day and against war.

Since 1890 much water has passed under the labor bridge. The demands of the workers have grown. Their voice now speaks in bolder tones. And why not?

Tho they have not conquered the earth, the workers' flag today flies over one-sixth of the globe and the first workers' republic in history stands firm and secure. The workers and peasants of Soviet Russia alone will hold their meetings tomorrow in a country that is theirs. The demonstrations will not be broken up by hostile police nor their leaders jailed as will happen in every other country. The workers of Russia will meet to celebrate their glorious victory and the workers in the other countries where the chains of capitalism still bind them will meet to demonstrate for their victory that is yet to come, and to hasten the day when they too, shall stand in their own open places and celebrate the arrival of the new day.

Today revolutionary labor under the leadership of the Communist International stands on the threshold of power. The rotten capitalist system is crumbling. As we meet on this May Day, the seventh year of the Soviet Republic, let us determine to exert all our efforts towards the one great purpose in life, the freedom of the workers and the human race from slavery and exploitation, thru the establishment of the rule of labor in all lands.

The Socialist Vote

Take his vote away from a socialist and he is as hopeless as a Scandinavian without his snuff. The scoialist labor party watches the fluctuations of the party's fortunes at the polls as a stock gambler will watch the ticker. The socialist party spent its existence—when it did really exist—either voting or preparing to vote. It almost completely ignored the working class. Those who thot the trade unions counted were expelled from the party.

While the socialist party vote was fairly respectable in size the leaders were jubilant. When it bubbled around one million, they almost went batty. But when it began to recede like the Red Sea under the lash of the Mosaic rod, they looked around for something to lean against. They used LaFollette as a leaning and scratching post. But the pillar gave way and now the socialists are scratching their heads.

The voting for mayor of St. Louis tells the sad tale. In 1921 the socialist vote for mayor was 4,330. In the last election the socialist candidate for that office only polled 951. This is tragic in view of the promises the socialist standard bearer made to the voters. He promised them everything but his shirt. But it was no use, the capitalists could promise more. And the capitalist candidates got the votes.

After the presidential elections the socialist party boasted that it polled approximately 5,000,000 votes. It laughed at the Workers Party and its ridiculously small vote, 25,000 the socialists gave us. As a matter of fact the official count was something like 33,000. We polled at least 100,000. But we did not care so much about that. Our party made a good campaign. We put the Communist position before the workers and we are cashing in on it now in organizational growth and influence. What did the socialists gain for allowing LaFollette to swallow them up? St. Louis tells the story.

Today the socialists have neither votes nor principles. They shed every shred of their socialist raiment for the fleeting pleasure of associating with the bourgeois LaFollette in an election campaign. The workers can no longer see any difference between them and LaFollette and the capitalists are not yet in the extremity of needing them to hold back the tide of revolution. It is sad but true.

The Fascist Menace in France

The French government was officially represented at the funeral of the fascist youths who were killed in an encounter with young Communists in Paris last week. The fascists started the trouble but the Communists finished it.

Among the speakers at the pro-fascist demonstration, beside the French premier, Paul Painleve, were the late President Millerand, and General de Castelnau, military chief of the fascisti, and Deputy Pierre Pattlinger, president of the black shirt organization which started the fatal riot.

The speakers criticized the government for not taking stern measures to crush the Communist Party of France, but there was not one word of criticism of the fascist organizations which are armed and officered ready to establish a dictatorship in France by force of arms as Mussolini and his bloodhounds established theirs in Italy.

The bourgeois parliamentary system has had hard sledding in Europe since the world war broke out. As the workers' power grows and as their demands become more ambitious, bourgeois democracy will throw off its mask until it stands revealed in all its horrible nakedness as a bloody dictatorship of the many by the few. It is a struggle between two dictatorships, that of the bourgeoisie or of the workers. Tho the present French government is in political opposition to the backers of fascism, it does not stand neutral in the fight between the Communists and their foes. It throws its power on the side of the enemies of Communism and the working class.

The liberal government of France is no more neutral in the class struggle than the government of Soviet Russia is. The latter is a government of the workers and makes no pretense of being neutral. The French government hypocritically pretends to be a government of "all" classes, just as all capitalist governments do. The big fight in France as in all capitalist countries is between the workers on one side led by the Communists and the capitalists on the other. Whatever form that fight may take it will go on until the working class are victorious.

Now that Hindenburg has defeated Marx, we may read special articles dealing with the decline of Marxism in Europe.

The "Blue" Fleet Wins

It was just as we expected. The "blue" fleet representing the Japanese navy defeated the "black" fleet of the United States in the naval maneuvers around the islands of Hawaii. This means larger appropriations for the air and sea navies. Everybody will be happy, no doubt, except the Hawaiians whose islands the "black" fleet was trying to protect form the "enemy."

The casualties were heavy. The enemy seized everything, which is further proof that congress is crazy in the head when it whittles down the appropriations demanded by Wall Street's militarists. A mine layer was sunk by seven "black" planes and a submarine. More planes; more submarines. Chortling from Henry Ford and Charles Schwab. More profits.

The only resemblance to real war was in the fact that at the close of the first day's "fighting," both sides claimed victory. That is also part of the game.

While the guns of the army thundered and the engines of the airplanes purred, two private soldiers listened from inside two prison cells. They are privates Crouch and Trumbull, who were sentenced to 40 and 26 years, respectively, for attempting to expose the purpose of the American military and naval forces in and around Hawaii. The people of Hawaii must not be told who their real enemy is. Their enemy is American capitalism.

Attention James J. Davis

Nobody will doubt the loyalty of the secretary of labor to the capitalist system. He is everything that a faithful tool of the American ruling class should be and then some. But he could not qualify for a position at the disposal of the National Employment Exchange as the following advertisement shows. Applicants must be:

1. American born.
2. Speak English with no accent.
3. Minimum two years high school or equivalent.
4. Modesty in dress.
5. Refinement of manner.

James J. Davis, secretary of labor is not American born. He does not speak English without an accent. Nobody does but one who is dumb, if you will pardon the ox. Perhaps Mr. Davis went to high school for two years, tho we doubt it after hearing him speak at the Indianapolis convention of the United Mine Workers of America. He is not modest in dress. His neckties are atrocious. His manner is that of a successful bartender.

The Nation, commenting on these qualifications says that "some employers are just snobs." Perhaps they are just jackasses, but we are not so sure of that when we learn that among those whose names are emblazoned on the letter head of the National Employment Exchange are J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and Robert W. de Forest.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

The ears of the American ruling class are getting sensitive. They cannot even listen to the tame stuff of two bourgeois republicans like Count Karolyi and Mary MacSwiney.

T. U. E. L. MEETING ENDORSES NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS

The meeting of the Chicago General Group of the Trade Union Educational League held last Wednesday in North West Hall was a well-attended and business-like affair. Reports from the local executive and the various industrial groups were given and discussed. On the whole, progress is being made in building the left wing in the trade union movement of Chicago.

E. L. Doty, organizer of Negro plumbers in Chicago, gave a report on the coming American Negro Labor Congress to be held in Chicago during the summer. In a convincing manner he showed the discrimination being practiced against Negro workers by the union bureaucrats. He urged that the adherents of the T. U. E. L. take the matter of the Negro Labor Congress before the unions for endorsation. The organization of the Negro workers is of great importance to the trade unions, since being unorganized they are used by the bosses against their fellow workers.

The following resolution was carried unanimously:

WHEREAS, the unity and solidarity of all workers is essential to carry on an effective struggle against the attempts of the bosses to lower and dstroy the living standards and working conditions, wages, etc. of the workers; and

WHEREAS, during and since the war some 500,000 Negro workers have come from the South into the Northern industrial centers, and

WHEREAS, the Negro workers and the unorganized are often used against their will, as strikebreakers; and

WHEREAS, the Negro workers can and want to be organized into the labor unions in order to fight together with his brother white workers against the common enemy, the employing class and capitalist ruled government; and

WHEREAS, racial prejudices between white and colored workers have been fostered by the employing capitalist class as a means of preventing united action and solidarity of all the workers, and such racial prejudices therefore spring from the present capitalist order of society; and

WHEREAS, we believe that all workers, regardless of race, color, creed or sex should be organized into the labor unions, and are entitled to equal wages for equal work, etc., and should and must be united against the bosses in order to effectively struggle to break the shackles of capitalist wage slavery; and

WHEREAS, the American Negro Labor Congress called by representative Negro workers and farmers, is to be held in Chicago this summer, and this American Negro Labor Congress will consider and fight for equal rights for all workers; for the organization of the unorganized Negro workers into the labor unions; and will work to promote unity and harmony between the workers of ALL races, of all workers; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that the Chicago General Group of the Trade Union Educational League endorses heartily the aims and purposes of the American Negro Labor Congress and pledges itself to do everything in its power for the success of the American Negro Labor Congress, which will mark a great forward step in the struggle of the working class, white and colored, against exploitation by the capitalists and for the freedom of all workers from oppression.

RUSSIA DEMANDS THAT PEKIN RETURN SOVIET PROPERTY TO EMBASSY

PEKIN, China, April 30.—The Russo-Chinese conference, set for May 1, has been postponed while preliminary demands are settled.

Soviet Russia demands that the Russian orthodox church property in Pekin be turned over to the Soviet embassy, that the Russian troops in Gen. Chang Tso-lin's army be disbanded, and that China give assurances precluding the rumored Japanese railway concession in Manchuria.

ONE-FIFTH OF WORKING CLASS CHILDREN OF CHICAGO STARVING, REVEALED BY GHASTLY REPORT

By LILLIAN R. BORGESON.

Article Four.

Malnutrition, poverty and child labor are always found together. It is not surprising, therefore, to find that in the capitalist industrial center, Chicago, under-nourished children are as prevalent as child labor.

The most recent report of the superintendent of Chicago schools states that the school physicians found that 7.8 per cent of Chicago's school children were suffering from serious cases of malnutrition and that one-fifth of the children in the working class districts were definitely under-nourished.

He proceeds to list the causes of malnutrition which have been scientifically determined. They are divided into "social" and "individual" causes, and their significance to the workers should be clear.

1. Social Causes.

"1. Employment of the child outside of school hours.

"2. Living in rooms without windows or sunlight.

"3. Lack of ventilation.

"4. Lack of bathing facilities.

"5. Unsanitary school conditions."

2. Individual Causes.

"1. Food—insufficiency or unsuitability.

"2. Injurious sleeping arrangements.

"3. Insufficient sleep.

"4. Want of cleanliness.

"5. Lack of childhood care."

We have right there what capitalism and its forcing of the workers to live in squalid poverty means to the child of the worker.

"Employment of the child outside of school hours," in order to be able to scrape together even the minimum amount of food and shelter for the family.

"Living in rooms without windows or sunlight, lack of ventilation," means only the profiteering of the landlords which thrusts the poor workers and their children into dark ill-smelling holes.

"Injurious sleeping arrangements." How well every Chicago worker knows how that comes about! They want rooms with windows. So three families decide to "go it" together, pool their rent, and be able to live. And a whole family is crowded into one room, with three or four children sleeping in the same bed.

The Social Workers' Inference.

"Lack of bathing facilities and want of cleanliness." Because the poor worker cannot afford to pay the high rent asked for "modern conveniences." It is not, as the social workers infer, a class love of dirt.

"Lack of childhood care." With the mother in the factory or shop, with the children of necessity following the capitalists' advice of not wasting his time in idleness and play, what childhood care can the worker's child have?

"Unsanitary school conditions." The DAILY WORKER has often published stories of the rotten sanitary conditions in the schools in the working class districts. Every point is an indictment of the system which enslaves children and robs their parents.

One-Fifth of Chicago Children Starving!

And that one which should bring a bitter ache and a feeling of resentment to the breast of every worker—to the heart of every working class father and mother who is striving to feed their little ones: "Food insufficiency." One-fifth of the children of Chicago! In 1925!

But don't think the superintendent who wrote the report is running away with sentiment. If you think that the "causes" were written in a spirit of understanding, perish the thought! The superintendent goes on to take up the subject of feeding the children at school, and he says:

A Philosopher of Hunger.

"There is a distinct danger that if we feed these children at the expense of the city, that we will undermine the spirit of independence and self-helpfulness in the home. We must remember that parasitism always weakens and destroys the independence of the parasite—both in the vegetable and the animal kingdoms."

How neatly and brazenly the real parasites of society can turn about and call the workers whom they have forced into the lowest depths of despair "parasites."

Dull Minds from Slow Starvation.

There is an admitted connection, too, between the backward and so-called feeble-minded children and the malnutrition from which so many of the workers' children are suffering. In Chicago's special rooms for backward children, the school physicans have reported that "all our special rooms for backward children give evidence of malnutrition. We know that the very best way of reaching most cases of backwardness is to give plenty of good food."

These are the workers' children. Starving! Without proper care! Physically unable to take advantage of even the smattering of perverted knowledge the capitalist schools hand out. Thrust into industry at a tender age. Toiling before and after school. Living in squalid poverty. Taught that this is the best government in the world, that Bolsheviks threaten our "freedom." Beset on all sides by vice, disease and all the other horrible partners of poverty.

Down with the Moloch of Capitalism!

Only the Communists and the workers organized behind their leadership can free the children of the workers of Chicago and of the world from these conditions and set their feet upon the road to a new world, a world of color and light, of freedom and beauty for the workers and their children of the entire earth.

FOSTER SPEAKS AT PITTSBURGH T. U. E. L. MEETING SATURDAY

SCHOOL BOARD'S MOVE TO COLLECT TAXES IS BLUFF

Wealthy Tax Dodgers as Secure as Ever

The board of assessors issued a statement showing up the board of education's latest pretense at getting after property that is not being assessed at full value. Gene G. Oliver in speaking for the assessors says the letter demanding that private estates under consideration at present in the probate court be taxed at their full value has nothing to it.

"The school board's letter cites 155 estates totalling $20,761,553 and demands that the assessors fix full value on every estate.

"If we granted the school board's demand, and taxed these estates on a full cash value the widows and children would be forced to pay a four per cent county tax. Most of the taxable assets cited by the school board are stocks, bonds and other securities which yield from three to five per cent. The board of assessors is not going to force payment of taxes in excess of income." Thus did the board of assessors dispose of the school board's bluff at getting after the tax dodgers.

"This ridiculous pretense on the part of the school board to show that it is fighting tax dodgers will not give its friends, the big loop property owners and the stock yards property holders any sleepless nights," was the way one of the officers of the Chicago's Teachers' Federation viewed the board's latest move. "And neither will it fool any one else, tho they are trying hard to put on a face of doing something before they can dare to come before the people with a request for an increased tax rate."

CLEVELAND AUDIENCE PROTESTS ARREST OF HAWAIIAN RED SOLDIERS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 30.—The unanimous "aye" of the enthusiastic audience of workers, in favor of a resolution condemning the imprisonment of the two soldier-communists, Crouch and Trumbull, ringing thru the public square, successfully terminated the great meeting of protest called by the Young Workers League of Cleveland, Saturday, April 25.

Two hundred persons, most of them young workers, listened to the speakers, Phillip Shatz and Carl Weissberg expose the forces of American imperialism behind the ruthless treatment of the two young Communists in the American army stationed in Hawaii.

Forty copies of the Young Worker were sold and two subscriptions were taken. After the meeting many of the young workers who had listened attentively thruout the speeches of both comrades, approached them and asked for the date of the next English branch meeting.

SIX THOUSAND LAID OFF IN C. & N. W. CARSHOPS

Eighty-Six Per Cent of Force Is Fired

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway company has laid off six thousand workers employed in the car shops at Kedzie Ave. and 42nd St. A reduction of eighty-six per cent in the working forces was announced, to take effect Monday.

The workers, given practically no notice, received with a shock the news that only 14 per cent of the normal working forces would be retained next week.

Many of the workers are in favor of countering the lay off with a strike of the entire working forces.

The company announced that they had contemplated either drastically reducing wages or laying off the men, and had decided on the latter course.

The lay-off is practically a complete shut down of the car shops, as the only work to be done is repair work, for the most part in the round house.

The company endeavored to suppress the news of the shut down, but when this was found impossible, lied to the newspapers, declaring that "A fifty per cent reduction in the number of hourly mechanics in the Chicago shops has been ordered."

The men were officially told, however, that 86 per cent would be laid off, only a few of the oldest employes being retained to do repairs. This announcement was also placed on the bulletin boards at the shops.

"Insurgents" Easily Pleased.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Representatives Frear and Browne, insurgent congressmen from Wisconsin called on President Coolidge today and praised Governor Horace M. Towner's administration of Porto Rico.

Browne and Frear have just returned from a visit to the island. While there both conducted a personal investigation of island affairs. They told the president Towner's administration was eminently satisfactory in all respects.

HAVANA WORKERS DOWN TOOLS AND PARADE TO CELEBRATE MAY DAY

HAVANA, Cuba, April 30.—May Day will be celebrated in Havana by a great parade of the workers, authorization for which has been granted by the secretary of the interior.

A general strike will mark the passage of May Day here. Street car traffic will be suspended. All dock workers will cease work and loading and unloading of vessels will be abandoned. Afternoon newspapers will not be published.

Shipping Trust to Get More Plums.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—The United States shipping board, in line with the policy of the Coolidge government of turning the ships built by the government during the war over to the private shipping interests at a price far below cost, has announced its intention of selling 600 cargo ships. The move will have to be ratified by the next congress.

Deport Lisbon Students.

LISBON, April 30.—The Portuguese government today deported a number of students sending them from Lisbon aboard the cruiser Carval Hoaraujo.

The reason given for the deportation was that the students were "dangerous agitators and members of the Red Legion."

"Union Stores" Dissolves

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 30.—The Union Store's company of La Salle and the home purchasing and building corporation of Mattoon, Ill., notified the secretary of state of their dissolution and surrendered their charters.

SOCIALIST APPOINTED CHIEF OF BERLIN COPS FOR VON HINDENBURG

BERLIN, Germany, April 30.—Albert Groesinski, socialist deputy in the Prussian diet, has been appointed chief of police for Berlin. Herr Groesinski is a great admirer of the president-elect, Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

The new chief was a metal worker by trade before entering politics. He was secretary of the metal workers' local union at Offenbach and later president of the Federation of Labor at Cassel.

SEVEN HUNDRED MORE ILLINOIS COAL MINERS THROWN OUT OF WORK WHEN HERRIN MINE CLOSES DOWN

HERRIN, Ill., April 30.—Seven hundred more southern Illinois miners were thrown out of work today when Mine No. 7, Consolidated Coal company of St. Louis, posted suspension notices. "Slack business" was assigned as the reason for the shut down.

Hundrdes of miners were already jobless in Herrin and thousands are out of work thruout the southern Illinois field.

MILLIONS MARCH IN SOVIET MAY DAY DEMONSTRATIONS—WORK IS STOPPED AS WORLD CELEBRATES

MOSCOW, Soviet, Russia, May 3.—All work was suspended thruout Soviet Russia for three days, during which millions of workers and peasants and children, celebrated International May Day with huge demonstrations, meetings and parades.

All offices, stores and factories were closed, while the workers flocked to the streets, to march behind red banners in parades that were miles long.

Red Army Parades.

In Moscow thousands of Red Army soldiers and sailors of the Red Fleet filed past the tomb of the dead leader of the Russian revolution, Vladimir Lenin. In the Red square, facing Lenin's tomb, Red Army recruits took the oath of allegiance to the world's working class, and to the Russian revolution, embodied in the workers' and peas-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

ONCE upon a time a fox saw a bunch of juicy grapes hanging on a tree. Being a foxy fox he took a liking to them and jumped up so often in an effort to get the luscious fruit between his teeth, that he got weak in the hind legs. So he quit, and quitting made some uncomplimentary references to the grapes. This story is responsible for the retort uncourteous "sour grapes." Primo de Rivera, Mussolini of Spain, declares that Spain can never find economic compensation in Morocco and that the century old campaign of Spain there, is folly.

IT is only a few months since the dictator went to Morrocco with loud boasts about what he would do to the Riffian tribesmen who were making things uncomfortable for the Spanish troops. But while Primo was shooting the "bull" the Riffians were shooting bullets. They shot so effectively that Primo de Rivera and his troops are hanging on to the shrubbery on the shores of the Mediterranean Sea. There is little left of Spain's former possessions excepting a bare strip along the coast. This being so de Rivera is quite justified in casting aspersions on the profit-bearing qualities of Spanish Morocco.

TALKING of Spain, our readers will recollect that a fascist dictatorship exists in that country. In view of this fact, it is interesting to note the praise showered on United States Ambassador Moore, by Hearst's papers. Moore represents the capitalists of this country in Madrid. Certain politicians in the great manufacturing state of Pennsylvania, want to recall Moore and put somebody else in his place. This only means a quarrel between rival capitalist politicians.

HEARST goes to bat for Moore. He points out, that this man Moore is a very efficient servant of American capitalism in Spain, that he is on good terms with King Alfonso and was the first ambassodar to congratulate Primo de Rivera on his successful overthrow of the parliamentary government. Nice democrat, isn't he? Because of this foresight, Moore is a close friend of de Rivera, besides being so close to the king that he calls him by his favorite nickname. Why should such a fellow be recalled, asked the "progressive" Hearst. Indeed, why should he?

HUNDREDS of thousands of workers are afflicted with the delusion that Hearst is a radical. There is no doubt, but he is thoroly despised by the legitimate burglars of Wall Street, the fellows who draw up the code of ethics that must be observed by the insiders. Hearst does not always play the game with them. He breaks "caucus" whenever it suits his pocket. In fact Hearst is a typical fascist. Ludendorf and Hitler are not the darlings of the German bourgeoisie just now, tho they may need them later on. Every one of Hearst's leading special writers is pro-fascist and Brisbane is the leader of the pack.

HEARST favored the election of von Hindenburg in Germany. He has not yet claimed credit for the

COMMUNIST MAY DAY MEETINGS STIR WORKERS

Estimate 100,000 Audience in 200 Cities

It is estimated that at least 100,000 wage workers of America stayed away from their work on International Labor Day to attend demonstrations conducted by the Workers (Communist) Party in every industrial center and in two hundred cities and towns thruout the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast.

In Chicago, over two thousand workers crowded the Temple Hall, Van Buren and Marshfield streets, to overflowing to hear James P. Cannon, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker, and C. E. Ruthenberg.

These three Communist leaders have just returned from attending the sessions of the enlarged executive of the Communist International and the Young Communist International, and they described conditions prevailing in Soviet Russia and the European countries, recounting the struggles of the European workers against the white terror.

Speak to Jobless.

In the afternoon the Chicago section of the Workers Party held a May Day demonstration at the gates of the Chicago and Northwestern railway shops, where six thousand workers had been laid off indefinitely. At the Forty-second street gates, on Kedzie avenue, Arthur Henderson, William F. Kruse and Karl Reeve spoke to the crowds of workers from a "flivver," telling of the significance of May Day, and pointing out that at the same time the workers were thrown on the streets without jobs the bosses have piled up a large surplus of supplies

"Barbarous" Mexico in Protest to "Civilized" U. S. on Race Murders

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 3.—San Quentin prison's murderous race rioting took on an international aspect today when it was learned A. Lubbert, Mexican consul general in San Francisco, has demanded an investigation, asking punishment for the death of two Mexicans in prison yard fights.

The Mexican ambassador at Washington has been appealed to, Lubbert said.

The riots, starting a month ago, between Mexicans and other prisoners in the jute mill of the prison, climaxed this week. Michael Gomez, 18, and Frank Williams, lifer, were stabbed to death yesterday and Lawrench Mahach, an Indian, was knifed fatally the day before.

COMMUNIST PARTY OF PALESTINE CALL FOR UNITED FRONT AGAINST BRITISH BOSSES, ZIONIST TOOLS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JERUSALEM, Palestine, May 3.—The central committee of the Communist Party of Palestine o[illegible]ccasion of Lord Balfour's visit, has issued the following appeal to the workers of Palestine.

To all workers and Fellahin:

English imperialism is becoming continually more insolent and unashamed, and the history of English rule in the colonies is on a level with that of the sea pirates who have robbed hundreds of countries and thousands of people.

During the war English imperialism stirred up the Arabian masses against the Turks, and now the war has ended with the victory of English

'BOMB SQUAD' OF NEW YORK SEEKS 'PLOTS'

Disperses Class and Makes Vain Search

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK CITY, May 3.—The New York sherlocks were not going to be outdone by the European plot-manufacturers, as was shown on the eve of May Day, when the "bomb squad" of Gegan and Brown, visited the Workers Party headquarters at 108 East 14th St., searched the district office of the party and dispersed Weinstone's class in Communism.

They threatened violence to the students who were studiously engaged in their books and class papers, and ordered them out of the building.

William Z. Foster, with a committee of local Communists, was holding a committee meeting in one of the rooms. Gegan ordered him out. Comrade Foster demanded a search warrant. "Where do you get that stuff?" was the reply of "democracy's" brass-bound protector. Foster did not leave, however. But the meeting was dispersed.

Later these agents of capitalism called at Young Workers League headquarters at 1347 Boston road. Here they took the name of the chairman of the Y. W. L. mass meeting and also visited the Workers Party branch meeting, but made no arrests at either place.

The district office of the Workers Party is sending a committee composed of Foster, Krumbein and Wein-

Expert Imperialist Sent to China Post

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Frank P. Lockhart, chief of the division of Far Eastern affairs in the state department has been appointed as consul-general at Hankow, and his place in Washington will be taken by Nelson Johnson, who has been inspector of consulates, with the rank of consul-general, in the Far East.

Lockhart goes back to China with his former chief, MacMurray, who has been named as minister to China under the Kellogg reorganization of the diplomatic staff.

EACH MILLION TONS OF COAL IN MARCH KILLED FOUR MINERS

WASHINGTON, May 3.— Accidents in the coal mines of the country brought death to 181 men in March, as compared with 339 in March, 1924, the interior department announced today. On the basis of a production of 44,684 tons in March, the number of fatalities per million tons of coal produced was 4.05, as compared with a fatality rate of 7.19 in March of last year.

Reduction in the fatality rate was caused mainly by the fact that in March last year two major explosions occurred, killing 172 and 24 men respectively, while this year only one major explosion occurred, with a loss of 33 lives.

THE 44-HOUR WEEK WITH NO WAGE CUT; —IN AUSTRALIA!

BRISBANE, Queensland, May 3.—The 44-hour week for all workers comes into operation in the labor state of Queensland on July 1, 1925. The labor premier stated that there would be no reduction in wages because of the decrease in working hours.

GREEN'S MAY DAY SPEECH TO BOSSES

Begs for Their Aid Against Reds

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 3.—The national convention of the Railway Clerks opens here tomorrow, and the delegates and labor fakers are flocking into town to attend.

Among the fakers is Bill Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor. Green made two speeches here on May Day, but they were not May Day speeches. He fails to mention that it was International Labor Day, and confined both talks to business men only.

At the city club, to an audience of capitalists, Green gave his usual talk inviting class collaboration. One bourgeois asked, "What do you think of William Z. Foster?"

Green replied, "Foster is opposed to the purpose of the trade unions as I and other union officials understand them."

"What is the purpose of the trade unions?" was asked.

"We think that the unions exist to help business. We have the same purpose that you business men have. We are against the reds. Yet a few business men fight the unions. But what if the unions were destroyed? Do you think the workers would remain passive and quiet?"

Evidently Green wished the capitalists to understand that by permitting the unions to exist and by allowing his sort of leadership to prevail, the capitalists would defeat the interests of the workers far better than by open war on the unions to destroy them.

"Czar," Broke, Defies Press Agent

BERLIN, Germany, May 3.—"Czar" Cyril, has been sued by his publicity man, Snessarev, for services in writing the proclamation of the Russian monarchist which declared him "czar of all the Russians." The press agent claims no one would have taken the claims seriously, had he not written reams of anti-Soviet propaganda for the "czar." He declares that his writings roped in American society women to the tune of $40,000 and that he wants a share in the haul. Cyril denies he has any money.

ALLIED NATIONS INCITE BULGAR WHITE TERROR

Combine to Force War Upon Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

VIENNA, May 3.—It is revealed that at the instigation of the United States government, acting thru Charles S. Wilson, American minister to Bulgaria, the leading imperialist powers of the League of Nations joined in coercing both Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria to intensive the white terror against the workers, and sent the whole allied diplomatic body in both the Serbian and Bulgar capitals to the foreign offices to compel obedience to their orders that a massacre upon Communist workers be substituted for war between the two hostile countries.

Jugo-Slavia Caused Explosion.

Despite the fact now known that Jugo-Slav groups and not the Communists were responsible for the explosion at the Sveti Kral cathedral, as proven by the first confession of the church sexton Peter Zagorsky, and the fact that the bomb itself was a Serbian army bomb, with the original instructions in the Serbian language still adhering to the discovered fragments, and the wholesale smuggling of Serbian arms into Bulgaria by Jugo-Slav patriots, together with the open preparation of Jugo-Slavia, involving the mobilization of several army corps and the concentration of

Bulgarian Fascists Murder Dorossiev Communist Leader

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 3.—To the innumerable losses which the Bulgarian proletariat has to undergo daily, there is added yet another: Comrade Janko Dorossiev has been shot down in broad daylight in the streets of Sofia by agents of the government's murder organization.

A teacher by profession, Comrade Dorossiev had already as a student, devoted himself with the greatest enthusiasm and self-sacrifice to the cause of the working class. As a teacher he was persecuted on account of his opinions and his propagandist activity, and finally discharged. Since 1922 he was secretary of one of the district organizations of Sofia. After the dissolution of the Communist Party of Bulgaria by the fascist government he worked in the illegal C. P. of Bulgaria. The party has suffered a severe loss by his death.

Labor Defense Meets in New York Confab on Tuesday, May 5

THREE THOUSAND STRIKERS ON PICKET LINE AT McKEES ROCKS CHEER WORKERS PARTY SPEAKERS

By IRWIN, Worker Correspondent.

McKEES ROCKS, Pa., May 3.—Three thousand striker early Thursday morning went on the picket line to watch if an rats were willing to crawl back and accept the nine and a hal hour workday which the Pressed Steel Car company here ha been attempting to enforce. After having performed that dut they marched in a body to the base ball park at which the strik metings are being held.

There they cheered the speakers, Arne Swabeck and Joh Otis representing the Workers Party and McNamara and Gibso representing the machinists' district council.

Communists Urge Class Solidarity.

While the speakers urged that the strike be conducted on a effective basis and complete class solidarity in the struggle, th militant members from the ranks of the strikers presented a plan of committee organization based on representation from the various departments.

A representative committee was quickly elected and despite the drizzling rain the workers stuck it out until all had been completed, determined to seriously contest the self-assumed right of the company to arbitrarily set the working hours.

Strike Committee on Job.

The strike committee immediately settled down to take up its business. Everybody knew precisely what they were out for and it became a question only of formulating the exact terms of their demands and present them on such a basis that every striker would understand the true meaning of the fight.

The committee concretely formulated its two outstanding demands, to be reported back for approval at the next strike meeting and upon such approval to be presented to the company.

Two Main Demands.

Their first demand is "No lengthening of working hours above the existing nine hours a day," and the second, "No discrimination against any member serving on the committee or against any man or woman participating in the walk-out."

About three hundred women were employed in these car shops, mostly as rivet heaters, but generally doing heavy manual labor for smaller pay than the men. However, at the instant notices of the longer workday were posted these women were among the first to walk out.

Women Workers Stand by Strike.

They recognized as well as the men the truth of the statements brought out by the speakers at the strike meetings that it is not only that half hour additional work is so important to the company, but the fact that it wants to force thru a continual downward slide.

Now it demands the nine and a half hour workday, next the demand will be the ten, the eleven, and the twelve-hour day while the pay will travel as fast in the opposite direction—one wage cut after another while the company continues to pile up its millions of profit. That is, if the company has its way; and a change in favor of the workers can only be obtained thru their own united active struggle.

A lesson in the class struggle is being taught these strikers, many of whom thru their poor clothing, show the unmistakable signs of the effects of the heavy wage cuts and the miserable working conditions.

Brazil Revolt Grows

BUENOS AIRES, May 3.—Border advices say that the Brazilian rebels in the state of Sao Paulo, who retired to the interior after the failure of their last outbreak, are showing renewed activity, and are preparing to attack the port of La Guayra on the Parana River.

The government forces at La Guayra, which is fortified, are said to number about 2,000, while more than 1,200 rebels are already gathered at various points up the river.

The advices indicate that if the rebels are successful they intend to invade Matto Grosso state and also to effect a junction with other rebel forces in Rio Grande de Soul.

ESTONIAN WHITE TERROR MURDERS WORKER AND PEASANT LEADERS ON "EVIDENCE" GIVEN BY LYING SPI

(Special Cable to the Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, May 3—In Esthonia the terror of white justice is raging abated. In Reval and Dorpat the court martials are permanently in ses and usually pass death sentences.

A few days ago the court martial in Reval condemned the worker W and the peasant Uigekutt to death, solely on the basis of testimony g by spies to the effect that Welt and Uigekutt had been seen in the st fighting on December 1st of last year.

Last year Welt was a member of parliament, representing the leagu "The United Front of Workers and Peasants." Uigekutt is a known beloved peasant leader on the island Oesel.

DAILY WORKER DISTRIBUTION STARTS TODAY

Will Pass Out 100,000 Copies in Week's Drive

Again the DAILY WORKER is to be shown as a most effective means for the promition of Communism in this country. Hundreds of thousands of workers in all the principal cities and in many small towns thruout the country will be going door-to-door on a nation-wide free sample distribution of the DAILY WORKER in the week of May 4 to 10.

This new innovation of a DAILY WORKER week is another move of our party to reach the workers in their homes and to supplement the work already done of reaching them in the shop and trade union.

A Ready Response.

The plan, in accordance with the instructions of the executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, has met with a ready response. Hardly a unit of the party has failed to rush in their order for sample copies to come daily for one week and many locals have joined this campaign despite the fact that they have already engaged in this kind of work for weeks previous. Orders already on hand will total over a hundred thousand copy distribution.

Expect Many Subscriptions.

The plan is a simple one. Squads of workers will cover systematically the same homes for one week. At the end of that time the same squads will visit the homes to secure subscriptions. The week's acquaintance with the DAILY WORKER is sure to bring immediate results in subscriptions secured besides the obvious advertising and propaganda advantages. In addition to DAILY WORKER subscriptions here are also membership prospects for our party and real training for the participants in direct and personal Communist propaganda work.

Many Bundles Ordered.

The DAILY WORKER week was born of the success already achieved by some locals in this kind of work. Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and other cities have ordered enormous bundles for the purpose. In this week of May 4 t o10 hardly a single local, no matter how small, will be without its daily bundle with which "to paint the town red."

Other cities are already planning additional weeks of distribution to secure subs in the Second Annual Sub Campaign. New York is planning a giant distribution for the end of May, while other cities are arranging to follow the week door-to-door distribution with factory campaigns.

To Be Repeated.

The most gratifying response of our party and sympathetic workers to the DAILY WORKER week of May 4 to 10 has forced the laying of plans for further work of this kind to be held a few times a year in which the whole strength of the party will be mobilized.

Enthusiastic May Celebration and Russ Farewell Held

An enthusiastic May day celebration and farewell party for the fifth group of the agricultural commune Red Ray was held Saturday night at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. A short talk was made by Comrade N. Andreychik, secretary of the commune. Another speaker explained the significance of May Day and the work of the American communes in Soviet Russia. About ten o'clock, when the comrades were ready to leave for the station, they all lined up on the stage to say good-bye to the Chicago comrades. The enthusiasm was so great that the audience stood up and joined in the singing of the International.

Some of the comrades who left for Soviet Russia made brief talks calling upon the non-party workers to take their places in the Workers Party of America, to help the workers of the world to free the earth form capitalism.

After the comrades left for the station with a group of their closest friends the program continued and dancing followed until midnight.

About ten dollars worth of literature was sold at the affair, which was held under the auspices of the Russian branch of the Workers Party and the Red Ray Commune.

Women Workers Toil in Iron Foundries for $4 Per Week

MELBOURNE, Australlia, May 3—(FP)—The Iron Trades Council has protested against the introduction of women into iron foundries to do work previously done by men. Women are forced to work under the usual foundry conditions amid dust and grime. They start as apprentices at $4 a week. When entitled to higher wages they are dismissed and raw hands put on in their place.

Regiments of the well-trained Red Army filed past the new minister of war, Frunse, who was one of the speakers following the parade. The civilian parade, following the Red soldiers took six hours to file past the reviewing stand.

Depict Torture of Bulgarian Workers.

Floats representing the workers imprisoned by the Bulgarian fascist government, being tortured by the white guard Premier Zankov, who had the blood of the militant Bulgarian workers on his hands, were a feature of the parade.

All public buildings were decorated with portraits of Karl Marx, Vladimir Lenin, and the present leaders of the Soviet Union. In the evening myriad red electric lights blazed in the streets, giving a red glow to the city.

Traffic Ceases in Paris.

PARIS, France, May 3.—Traffic was suspended in all industrial sections of France in the May Day strike. Many meetings were held in the industrial suburbs of Paris, despite attempted intimidation of the police. Military airplanes circled overhead, spying on all assemblies. Two regiments of troops and 12,000 police were called out in Paris. Meetings in the downtown sections were forbidden by police.

Three workers were arrested charged with dropping literature in the Vincennes fortress.

The usual fake May Day "plot" was announced by police, who declared that the Communists "planned to seize the government offices." While the government prevented May Day parades, cabinet members headed by Foreign Minister Briand favored allowing the royalists, who would overthrow the government by violence, to parade on May 10, Joan of Arc Day. The cabinet thus catered to the fascist monarchists, but prohibited labor parades.

Fifty Thousand March in Tokio.

TOKIO, Japan, May 3.—Fifty thousand working men, women and children marched here in May Day demonstrations, carrying Red flags and singing revolutionary songs. The police arrested one hundred marchers in an effort to confiscate the banners and put a stop to the singing.

The police made no effort to prohibit the parade, but red banners were officially barred. Five thousand police watched the parade. Women for the first time took part in the demonstration.

This May Day was the first to be celebrated since the recognition of Soviet Russia by Japan, and the granting of limited suffrage to the men.

Parades were also held in Osaka and Nagoya. The trade union members took part in a one-day strike.

Mexican Workers Strike.

MEXICO CITY, May 3.— Mexico City observed May Day with a monster parade of fifty thousand workers. All business, traffic anad industry was stopped. Automobile drivers took part in the strike. Part of the ceremonies consisted of laying a wreath on the monument to the American anarchists hanged following the Haymarket Square bombing in Chicago.

The American ambassador Sheffield was perturbed because the labor unions would not permit his chauffeur to drive the envoy's car on May Day. Sheffield said he considered it an insult to his automobile, pointing out that the car bore the coat of arms of the United States. Sheffield decided not to ride in his auto, however, declaring he did not "wish to endanger my chauffeur's life."

No newspapers were published on May Day. All government offices were closed. It was the biggest May Day demonstration in Mexico's history and the celebration was sanctioned by the Mexican Federation of Labor.

Many Arrests in Italy.

ROME, Italy, May 3.— The jails were filled with workers, numbering many Communists, and the fascisti crowded the streets on May Day, with clubs and rifles in their hands. The fascisti attempted to gain support from the reformist elements by "discovering" half a dozen "Red plots."

Much literature was distributed here denouncing the fascisti and exposing their crimes. Hundreds were arrested in the industrial centers. All May Day demonstrations by the Communists, socialists, and other workers were declared illegal by the Mussolini dictatorship.

Buffalobulls Arrest Sullivan and Dworkin

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 3.—Thomas R. Sullivan, organizer of the Workers Party, and Jacob Dworkin, member of the Buffalo Jewish branch of the W. P., were arrested here at the May Day meeting held by the Workers PartyParty, in conjunction with the Workmens' Circle, local unions, and the I. W. W. at which several hundred workers were present.

The arrest followed speeches by Earl R. Browder, and John Williamson, when Sullivan announced that the police present had ordered that no speeches be made in Jewish and Finnish as advertised, but that the order would not be obeyed. Sullivan introduced Jacob Dworking, who immediately began to speak in Jewish. The arrests followed.

Meeting Goes On

Amid boos for the police and cheers for Sullivan and Dworkin, the meeting continued while the police took those arrested to the police station, closing with enthusiastic singing of the Internationale, and three cheers for the proletarian revolution.

Sullivan and Dworkin were booked on a charge of "disobeying a police officer," and held on $400.00 bond. In the police court this morning the charge was dismissed after Attorney Eustace Reynolds denounced the arbitrary action of Police Lieutenant Brenner and his five aids, who invaded the meeting and attemped to dictate its procedure.

To Rally Workers in Protest

Workers in Buffalo are aroused over the continual interference of the police in their meetings, and the defiance given such actions by the Workers Party is widely supported. The Workers Party is preparing to launch a local campaign against such police actions, placing local labor bodies on record against it, and organizing public demands upon the police heads that those responsible shall be removed from the force.

which the impoverished workers are too poor to buy.

At the Forty-first street gates Jack McCarthy, recently returned from Ireland, addressed the workers, and another meeting was held in front of the Forty-third street gates, at which Sam Hammersmark and Karl Reeve spoke. Several hundred leaflets were distributed which demanded a strike against wage cuts, and copies of the May Day issue of the DAILY WORKER were sold.

The Chicago Celebration.

The May Day celebration held in Chicago at Temple Hall was a tremendous success. Great crowds of workers packed the hall to overflowing long before the hour for starting. The meeting was opened with the singing of the International by the Freiheit Singing Society and the entire audience. Then into the hall and down the aisles and up to the platform marched the Juniors of Chicago. Red handkerchiefs tied around little necks, red banners waving from little hands, revolutionary songs sent up in the voices of children brought the audience to their feet and the young pioneers of the revolution were given an ovation of cheers and applause which shook the hall.

Youth Heard First.

Comrade Albert Galatsky, 12 years old, made a splendid speech. "We are more than children of the working class," he said. "We are the Communist children of the working class. We know how workers are oppressed in all countries of the world, we know what the Dawes plan is doing to the German working class and we join with them in the struggle for the overthrow of capitalism.

"Don't let them tell you there is no child labor in Illinois. Right here in this group of Communist children you see many child workers of Illinois. We sell papers, we work in stores and we clean boots. But we are going to work for a government in America like the one in Soviet Russia where the workers rule and such conditions do not exist. We want you to help us. If you help us build up our movement, we will all be members fo the American Soviet republic."

And this once more brought the audience to its feet and amidst great applause the Juniors marched off the platform around the hall, waving their banners and singing songs amid great cheering.

Pioneers the Hope of the Future.

The next speaker was Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker. Comrade Shachtman is a member of the Young Workers (Communist) League and has just returned from Russia where he attended the sessions of the Young Communist International as one of the American delegates. He began by drawing a comparison between our Juniors and the pioneers of Soviet Russia. He said the Juniors brought to his mind the huge demonstrations on the streets of Moscow. "In the front line of every procession one sees the thousands of children thru which Russia says to the world, 'This is our safety, this is our security.'

"In America the children are merely a symbol of the working class in its most oppressed state. In Soviet Russia the youth are the ones who are looked after, they are the ones on whom the future hopes are built."

Depicts European White Terror.

Comrade James P. Cannon, assistant secretary of the Workers Party of America, who also has just returned from Russia where he was a delegate to the sessions of the enlarged executive committee of the Communist International, was the next speaker. He drew a picture of the white terror that exists today all over Europe. Germany, he said, has been reduced to a colony of American and English capitalism. The effects of the victory of American capitalists over German workers by means of the Dawes plan has enslaved the workers all over the world. The echo for us is the wage cuts that we see on all sides.

"This stabilization of capitalism is responsible for the tortures that are being inflicted upon rebellious workers," said Comrade Cannon. "In Esthonia hundreds of thousands of workers have been slaughtered. In Italy, in Hungary, in every country it has brought with it misery to workers. We are now in the midst of international reaction.

Soviets Hope of World.

"But central Europe is not the whole of Europe. We can see other parts of the world where the flag of the hope of the workers flies—that is Soviet Russia. In spite of reaction, in spite of the treachery of the socialists, the Soviet flag, the flag of revolution still stands stronger than ever before. Lenin is not there any more but Lenin's party is there."

May Day Gives Renewed Hope.

C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, who was also a delegate from America to the C. I. sessions, was the last speaker. Comrade Ruthenberg said that the struggle which this May Day demonstration expresses should give us confidence not only in the place where it has been a success, in Soviet Russia, but in every country. "Never before has there been such a movement as expressed in this meeting and in the thousands of meetings of workers all over the world today. That one common bond that binds us manifests itself in the spirit of May Day.

French Reds Make Gains.

"On May Day we should count our gains, as well as take stock in our losses. While we have had losses we must not forget we also have made great gains. The English trade unions are making friendship with the Russian trade unions. In France we have also made big gains. The Communist Party is now stronger than ever since its reorganization into shop nuclei. And the greatest gain that we have made is expressed in Zinoviev's statement to the delegates which moved them to their feet with great cheering.

"Zinoviev said the Russian proletarian government has achieved what no capitalist country has achieved. The standard of living has been raised not only to pre-war level, but beyond pre-war level. In every other country it is still below the pre-war level. When the workers of other countries see the gains made by the Russian workers' government, there is real hope for Soviet govrenments thruout the world and for the establishment of the United States of Soviet America."

Pullman Workers Enthusiastic.

In Pullman the most enthusiastic May Day meeting in years was held. Stancik's Hall was crowded, and extra chairs had to be secured. The meetings was featured by the showing of moving picture slides accompanied by a speech by William F. Kruse. The slides showed some of the struggles of the American workers against their employers. Great applause was given Vladimir Lenin and the other leaders of the Russian revolution as their pictures flashed on the screen.

Barney Mass, acting secretary of the Young Workers League, made the principal speech in English. He spoke on the significance of May Day to the working class youth, and urged the workers to unite to protest against the imprisonment of Crouch and Trumbull, young Communist soldiers who have been given long sentences for revolutionary activity in Hawaii. Comrade Mass denounced the doping of school children with compulsory religious teaching, and urged immediate recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States.

Steel Workers Cheer Soviet Power.

GARY, Ind., May 3.—Steel workers of the Gary mills attended about 300 strong the May Day meeting held at Croatian Hall. The music of the International introduced the speakers. Spirited applause was given every reference to the great power of Soviet Russia by the speakers, who included Harrison George, Comrade Chrisos in Greek, Comrade Maravich in South Slavic, and a comrade from Chicago who spoke in Russian. The speeches dwelt upon the significance of May Day to labor.

In Australia fourteen per cent of the population, or 750,000 are organized in trade unions. The labor party controls 29 seats out of 75 and is still the strongest party in parliament, tho no longer in power.

The Australian Communist Party is steadily gaining in strength.

Toe-Kissing Moore Good Dollar Diplomat, Says Hearst, Budding Fascist

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, William Randolph Hearst again flies the fascist standards from his yellow press battery, frantically proclaiming that Alexander P. Moore, the Pittsburgh millionaire, must not be permitted to resign as American ambassador to Spain.

Spain, at the present time, is under fascist rule. It has a comedy-burlesque king, Alfonso, who spends most of his time at fashionable gambling resorts in France, while thousands of revolutionary workers lie rotting in the prisons of the 20th century Spanish inquisition. Spain is ruled by the fascist dictator, General Primo de Rivera. The dissolute Spanish court drips with the blood of its agonizing working class.

• • • •

Yet Hearst tries to tell the millions of readers of his newspapers that Moore, from Pittsburgh, should remain as the American representative at the royal court in Madrid, because:

> He is a prime favorite with King Alfonso.
> He is a prime favorite with the dictator, Gen. de Rivera.
> He was the first foreign representative to greet Gen. de Rivera when he took charge of the government.
> He was presented to the dictator a few hours after he assumed control and while the rest of the foreign service were still attending a royal garden party at San Sebastian.
> He had become the friend of the dictator by the time the other ambassadors had found out that the dictator had assumed control of the government, and his friendship has steadily grown until today the United States has a most enviable standing at Madrid.

• • • •

The above reasons why Moore should remain in Madrid are taken almost word for word from Hearst's Chicago Herald and Examiner. They not only reveal again the total depravity of the Hearst press, but expose the toe-kissing toady, Moore, that the Coolidge regime maintains in Spain to look after the interests of American dollar diplomacy. Hearst reveals Moore's only mission in Spain in these words:

> "Mr. Moore has done much to improve American business in Spain, one of his accomplishments in this direction being the six months' extension of a commercial treaty WHICH MEANT MANY MILLIONS TO AMERICAN TRADE."

• • • •

The coal miners and steel workers of the Pittsburgh czardom of the United States Steel Corporation, in which Moore edited and owned the Pittsburgh Leader, know that Moore is their enemy. He makes no protest against workers, in Spain, imprisoned and murdered by the Spanish terror, no more than he protested against the jailing and killing of workers in the Pittsburgh district during every great industrial struggle. In Pittsburgh, Moore was for "business." He is for "business" in Spain, and Hearst is one of his claquers, trying to boost him into some more improtant position, where he can better show his ability to "advance the interests of his country," which means, of course, the interests of Wall Street, the guiding genius of American imperialism.

• • • •

It was only recently that the Hearst press prided itself on the rumor that its Bulgarian correspondent might be sent to Washington as the spokesman of the militarist rule by assassination, of Zankov, in Bulgaria.

On every hand Hearst promotes his alliance, more and more, with the enemies of the workers, in this country and abroad. Hearst's press, with his super-jingoism, with its appeal to the anti-Communist elements in the organized labor movement, with its frequent yellow socialist tinge, exhibits some of the most advanced symptoms of fascism to be found anywhere in this country.

• • • •

Hearst and his press, with all that this dangerous combination stands for, must be bitterly fought by the whole working class. Every Hearst publication, no matter where it is published over the nation, will be found in alliance with some corrupt capitalist political machine, and exploiting its labor lackeys. Workers must better acquaint themselves with this condition. They must realize that wherever fascism, in any form, raises its head, there is only one thing to do. That is, "Hit It!"

CHICAGO UNIONS FIND CAPITALIST POLITICS ROTTEN

Len Small Failed to Deliver G. O. P.

Indignation was expressed by some Chicago Federation of Labor delegates at their meeting yesterday when it reported that the Soderstrom anti-labor injunction bill was defeated in Springfield. One delegate said: "We just got what was coming to us for supporting Len Small and the republicans. We depend too much on lobbying," he said, "Lobbying, we see, does not do us any good." This was echoed by most of those present.

Altho Len Small promised the labor leaders who supported him that the republicans would vote for the Soderstrom bill, only 23 republicans voted for the bill, in spite of the promise of the G. O. P. in its state platform.

The bill will be brought before the house again in the form of a resolution.

There is a bill before the senate at present, the Webster bill which is a sort of substitute injunction bill which limits injunctions. The bill is really against labor, for it allows only one picket in case of a strike. The reporter for the legislative committee stated that the labor lobby as he understood, had met and decided to support the Webster bill. Secretary Nockels made a motion that the report of the committee be accepted but that the committee be informed that the Chicago federation is against the Webster bill because it allows only one picket. It was carried unanimously.

This Webster bill is up for the third reading and has been favorably acted upon twice in the senate but this is the first reference made to it by the federation officials.

The debate on the three injunction bills, which many of the delegates had trouble in distinguishing from each other, brought out the fact that Len Small had slipped the Chicago and Illinois Federations of Labor a lemon when he secured their support for re-election last year. Small swept in on the labor votes, and in return the state platform of the republicans went on record as against the use of the injunction in labor disputes, the pet issue of the federation officials.

15,000 troops on the frontier, the great imperialist powers compelled the Bulgarian government to turn the blame falsely upon the Communists and begin an intensive campaign of assassination of radical workers and peasants.

The ministers of the United States, England, France and Italy were successful in this conspiracy as Bulgaria fears the more powerful army of Jugo-Slavia and could not hope to wage war without the aid of allied money power. Moreover, the Zankov government has seized and held power by indiscriminate slaughter of Bulgarian workers and peasants, and could conveniently fall in with the program calling for more assassinations, which it hopes will bolster its power.

The Farce of Court Martial.

The "trial" by court martial now sitting is a farce. The sexton Zagorsky has been promised immunity if he would change his confession to implicate Communist instead of Jugo-Slavians, and the indicted persons have all escaped except the cathedral sacristan Freedman and one Petrini. Also "indicted" is the Communist Deputy Grantcharoff, who was shot down on the street and whose assassination is thus to be covered with supposed justification.

Bomb Not Laid by Communist.

But even the indictment admits that the bomb was not placed, as first charged, by the radical leader Ninkoff, who was shot to death by the white guards. It was brought into the cathedral by an engineer named Abadjieff, who is not even charged with being a Communist.

The misery of the Bulgarian workers and peasants is so intense, however, that no white terror can be expected long to hold them down, and the allied imperialists are still fearfull that the Zankov government may yet be overthrown by popular uprising.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 3.—Bulgarian Communists believed to have been implicated in the cathedral bomb explosion at Sofia were being sought in Turkey today, the government havnig issued an order for their apprehension. This is the latest development of the united front of capitalist governments to aid the Bulgarian white terror.

FASCIST UNIONS FAIL IN ITALY, SAYS HOOVER AID

Condition of Labor Is Growing Worse

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 3. — Fascist labor unions, organized by Mussolini to replace the legitimate trade union movement in Italy, have failed to gain the confidence of the workers, and their influence is of no importance, says H. C. MacLean, American commercial attache at the embassy in a special report on "Labor, Wages and Unemployment in Italy," published by the federal department of commerce.

This is the first official admission by Secretary Hoover's organization that fascist terror has been successfully met by the Italian workers.

MacLean says that the Confederazione Generale del Lavoro, organized in 1912, "is by far the most influential" of the three national labor federations. Second in importance is the catholic federation, whose strength is almost wholly among the farm laborers.

Can't Win Labor's Confidence.

"In the fascist labor scheme," he reports, "a elaborate organization of a syndicalist character was formed which represents seven separate groups representing industry and commerce, agriculture, and the merchant marine. The liberal professions, clerical workers, the theatre and the porst united themselves in a central federation, Confederazione della Cooperazioni Sindicali.

"A large membership is claimed for the Cooperazini Sindicali, but it is generally admitted that their success has been decidedly limited and that they have not succeeded in gaining the confidence of the workers.

"Thus, while the Confederazinone del Lavoro has undoubtedly lost ground, it may reasonably be considered as the leading representative of organized labor. Its leaders still claim approximately two-thirds of all the trade union members in Italy."

Noting the fact that the war acted as a strong stimulus to trade union growth in Italy, and that this gain has since been lost, MacLean observes that the unions are still in a strong position.

"The practical elimination of strikes for the last two years," he confesses, "is the result of several factors, and important among these was the unqualified announcement of the government that it would not permit any interference with the normal processes of production."

Do Not Have 8-Hour Day.

While Mussolini's regime has officially ratified the eight-hour day as a rule for Italian industry, this report shows that there is wholesale violation of its meaning. Overtime is permitted in so many classes of work, and the rate of pay for overtime is so little above the regular rate, that labor is generally dissatisfied with its administration.

That the condition of the working class in Italy is getting worse, instead of better, is shown by a comparison of the rise in cost of living, since 1913, with the rise in wages. In the last half of 1922, when the fascisti took power, the cost of living was 498 and wages were 505 as against 100 and 100 in 1913. In the first six months of 1923 that cost of living stood at 493, and wages dropped to 480. In the first half of 1924 the cost of living rose to 517, while wages fell to 474. In the last half of 1924 the cost of living went up to 538, and wages were 480. In the month of December last cost of living was 580, and wages were 485.

While these figures seem to disprove the fact that the Italian workers have a higher standard of living than before the war, MacLean explains that their improvement is due to working more days per week than in 1923. He declares finally that "It is evident that a considerable portion of the advantage which had been gained in 1921 and 1922 has now been lost and that renewed advances in wage scales are necessary and reasonable."

THIRD WORLD CONFERENCE OF METAL WORKERS PLANS WORK FOR MILITANT MINORITIES

By ANDREW OVERGAARD

The third conference of revolutionary metal workers was called by the metal workers' international propaganda committee of the Red International of Labor Unions in Leipsig on March 11, 1925. Delegates were present from Russia, Germany, France, Italy, Sweden, England and America. Reports and greetings were received from Czecho-Slovakia and the Balkan states. The following agenda was presented to this conference:

1. Report of the I. P. C. secretary.
2. The Dawes plan and the metal workers.
3. Report of the situation in the various countries.
4. Trade union unity and the Metal Workers' International.
5. Organization questions
6. Question of propaganda.
7. Election of presidium.

The report of the I. P. C. secretary, Comrade Vacksov, was well prepared and covered extensively the situation confronting the metal workers in the various countries. He pointed out the necessity of strengthening the connections between the various sections, which have been far from satisfactory. He dealt extensively with the stiuation in Germany and the need of further work within the reformist unions.

He also dealt with the effects of the Dawes plan and the struggle to maintain the eight-hour day, the need of carrying on the struggle against the reformists and to establish one international of metal workers which shall be able to fight on an international scale on the basis of the class struggle. Considerable time was given to the discussion on the Dawes' plan.

The Result of the Dawes Plan.

The delegates from England, Germany, France and Sweden in particular pointed out the effects of the systematic plan of international capital to enslave the metal workers of all countries in the destruction of the eight-hour day and the initiation of further wage cuts. The German delegate from the Rhur district showed that the German workers in the heavy industry are now working from 60 to 72 hours per week and that the wages have been cut down to 50 per cent of pre-war wages.

The French delegates showed that the French capitalists controlling the heavy industry in Alsace-Lorraine are now initiating wage cuts and their arguments are that the German working class are willing to work 11 and 12 hours a day, and therefore the French workers should be willing to follow their example. Otherwise the French capitalists will not be able to compete.

German Slave Labor.

The British delegates showed that in the shipbuilding industry in Great Britain the manufacturers are placing orders for ship building in Germany, due to the fact that the German working class are forced to work for much lower rates than the British working class. The British capitalists controlling the metal industry are using the same arguments as the French, stating that the workers must take wage cuts otherwise they shall be forced to place their orders with German concerns, where the production will be cheaper.

The same arguments hold good in the Scandinavian countries. Thru the whole discussion it was clearly demonstrated that the need for an international struggle against the Dawes' plan has become more evident.

It was pointed out that American and British finance capital is investing heavily in the German steel industry.

Soviet Russia Different.

The only country where improvement of the metal workers' conditions were reported, was that of Soviet Russia, where the situation is quite different from that of the other countries. In Soviet Russia the workers hold political power therefore the problem is that of reconstruction of the inustry.

The Russian delegation pointed out the great difficulty they were facing due to the lack of machinery and so forth, but in spite of that they could report great improvements in the conditions of the metal workers, and in some industries the wages have now reached that of the pre-war period.

Real International Needed.

I shall in another article deal with the general condition of the Russian metal workers. The conference declared that the struggle against the Dawes plan can only be carried out effectively by a united international of metal workers, which will be an international in reality, based on the class struggle.

The resolution presented on the Dawes plan was carried unanimously by the conference.

Comrade Koselov of the Russian metal workers reported on the Anglo-Russian negotiations for international unity. After his report a resolution was unanimously adopted which pledges the revolutionary minorities to carry on a ceaseless struggle against all the reactionary trade union bureaucrats who stand in the way of unity.

Will Translate in All Languages.

Extensive plans were made for the strengthening of all connections with the I. P. C. for the future, as well as the strengthening of the press and other propaganda material. The I. P. C. presidium were elected from the delegation of the following countries: Russia, Germany, France, England, Italy, and the United States. The entire proceedings of the conference will be available for all revolutionary metal workers in various languages.

Work Thru Revolutionary Minorities.

The conference ended March 14, with the result that stronger connections have been established by the various national sections with the I. P. C. which will enable the revolutionary metal workers to carry on their work in a more systematic way and also on the basis of a unified program which have not been the case till now. This conference was practically the first conference of a real representative nature and approximately one million metal workers were represented.

By united efforts of these revolutionary minorities in the various countries it will be possible to establish one united international of metal workers and help prepare the way for the complete overthrow of capitalism.

Open Discussion in Moscow of Commerce and Industry Problems

MOSCOW, (By Rosta).—An open discussion, attended by a big audience, was held here today on the question of attracting home private capital into commerce and industry.

The People's Commissary of internal commerce, Scheinman, stated that tho the economic situation of the country was not such as to compel the state to seek assistance from private capital, however, in the interests of further expansion of the commercial turnover, the government was willing to meet half-way the solid elements of private capital, with the recommendation that the later should pass from merely profiteering operations to normal trading and be contented with normal profits.

Under such conditions the government would be willing to grant credit, fiscal and legal facilities. Thus, declared the speaker, the banks would discount private bills. Further, the taxes on private commerce were being revised, with an ultimate view to lowering the rate, and so forth.

A number of representatives of private firms and mutual credit societies voiced their satisfaction at the statements made by the people's commissary of internal commerce, and declared that the private capital was striving at set and solid work in cooperation with state trade.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS REDS AT DUBLIN MEETING

Many Promise to Join Workers Party

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DUBLIN, (By Mail).—Dublin turned out en masse to hear Saklatavala the Communist M. P., with bands playing and banners flying, in O'Connell St. all traffic had to stop for two hours until the mid-day meeting finished.

In the Mansion House at night every point was occupied. Saklatavala made a very telling speech which enthused the crowd, Bob Stewart followed and sketched the path of the Irish working class since 1916, paying tribute to the heroes of "Easter Week" but urging that heroism and idealism were not sufficient to win revolutions.

His appeal for a Workers Party struck the minds of his heavers. Without any emotional appeal Stewart put the case to the audience.

(1) How many of you deliberately and calmly will be prepared to break your present political alignments and allegiance to join a Workers Party of Ireland?

(2) This party will be rooted organically in the masses, based upon the place of employment, and every man and woman member must be personally active and obedient to the instructions of the chosen leadership.

(3) Loyalty must be to the working class, the party must and will frame demands in accordance with the needs of our class.

(4) The party will stand for the republic, but it will be definite and clear as to the nature of that republic which must be a workers' republic, based upon the organisations of the working class and resting upon the might of that class.

Promise To Join Party

The response to Stewart's appeal was more than astonishing, when the concrete nature of that appeal is taken into account, and at least two thousand of the audience pledged themselves to help in the formation of a Workers Party on the lines indicated.

The meetings have aroused Dublin, and the political atmosphere amongst the working class in labor and republican circles is electric.

The Irish Independent goes in at the deep end after the "red invasion" and is very much perturbed. Its tone is of course scurrilous and its news distorted but it sees the writing on the wall. Hard work, patience, and some degree of toleration, will enable Ireland to come definitely into the line of organization that will fit the working class for the battles that lie immediately ahead.

Story of Brown's Meeting.

To the DAILY WORKER:— The following is my impression of Bishop William M. Brown's meeting at the Community Church, New York City:

The crowds were in the church when I arrived. About a dozen policemen were around the entrance to the church and about as many detectives were participating in various discussions that were taking place in the crowd.

Many ways were devised to attract the attention of the policemen so that they may look sideways to enable the people to sneak in. Some did, some did not—others were caught moving out of the line in order to make just a few steps towards the head of the line, but the policemen pushed them towards the last end of the line and told them to "stay there."

Between 9 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. a few curiosity seekers were leaving. The New York American made its appearance also with the newsboy yelling "Dr. Brown challenged Dr. Manning: Read all about it in the New York American." Altho the meeting had been opened only an hour and a half ago, the New York American had all the news already. But every time the newsboy would yell, the nearest policeman would say, "Get the hell away from here."

But that did not keep the newsy away; he always came back after making a few short steps towards the curb. About the same time some were allowed to enter who were quick enough to get past. Some people jumped out of the line and brushed past a policeman who was talking to a beauty who had just left the place of worship.

I tried the same trick, but was caught, and went back to my old place. The crowd was coming out faster now, 9:50 p. m. and nobody allowed to enter anymore.

Bishop Brown's book, Christianity and Communism, was for sale out side on the side walk.

10:20 p. m. The crowd was coming out faster. Rushes were made for the door, wanting to get in when some of the last ones had not yet come out, all eager to see the "heretic."

No disturbances were noticed save for a few words among the participants of the sidewalk debate.

Debs' Fading Glory Shines Faintly at Philadelphia, Pa.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 3.—The slowly dying socialist party of Philadelphia made a supreme effort to revive itself last Sunday by arranging a banquet in memory of Deb's 50 years' service to the labor movement.

About 300 people were present at the banquet to hear this man who only a few years ago attracted thousands of workers to his meetings in this city. Debs waxed sentimental over the plight of poor John D. Rockefeller for not knowing the grasp of a comrade's hand and repeated the same old speech that thrilled his audiences years ago.

The great "success" of the Debs banquet was characterized by the make-up of the audience which sadly lacked the proletarian element that looked upon this old man as a leader during the days when the socialist party still contained revolutionary elements within its ranks.

That the audience was not representative of the proletarians, and that the socialist party is far removed from the working class was proven by the fact that the toast master of the evening started the collection by an appeal for $1,000 bills.

Of course, he didn't get any, as the S. P. have not yet succeeded in getting the support of big capital, it has only jumped from the proletariat into the bourgeoisie, consequently the highest donation was $500.

The evening did not end without an attack on the Communists. Old Gene Debs still living in sentimental hopes of bringing the workers into the socialist party, criticised the Communists for leaving the S. P. and assured his well-fed audience that the day is coming when the bad Communists will see the error of their ways and return into the gentle folds of the socialist party.

The slowly dying socialist party of Philadelphia has failed to revive itself even with old Gene Debs.

THE ROMANCE OF NEW RUSSIA

by
Magdeleine Marx
Author of "Women"

A book aglow with the color, light and life of Russia.

A picture of the many people the writer has met–working men and women, officials–people of all classes.

We have received but a limited new stock from the publishers.

In the Preface the author says:

You arrive in Russia. Though you know that what has been written about it is pure invention, that the truth has deliberately been falsified, besmirched, and bespattered with gore, still you get a sort of shock of surprise.

You find a totally new relationship between man and things, with the majority of people benefiting by the new order. Everywhere not only the signs of resurrection, but resurrection itself. Yet the rest of the world still believes the absurd legends of oppression and disorder that are told about Russia.

SOCIALISTS OF ITALY ESPOUSE KILLER, NOSKE

Workers Turn from the Traitorous "Democrats"

behalf of the party, he declared it to be necessary to revise the judgment which the Italian social-democrats, at the moment when the masses still possessed the possibility of expressing their views, had passed upon Noske. Professor Basso is of the opinion that today one should not continue to abuse Noske, but to render him the highest praise as he "saved the gains of the German republic." He further expressed the demand for "a strong state" (of course against the proletariat), and when he ventured to admit that it is necessary that the trade unions should have liberty, he proposed to erect a dam against strikes and opposed strikes in public undertakings. Our professor declared himself in favor of the army, which assures the protection of all (of course, all bourgeois.)

Socialists Support Bosses.

Thus the development which the party of the Italian social-democrats commenced some years ago, has finally reached its climax. In the midst of the fury of the fascist regime, they openly proclaim themselves to be in favor of supporting the bourgeoisie. As they cannot overcome the fascists, they try to compete with them. Is it necessary for the Italian bourgeoisie that the Italian social-democrats practice Noskeism? Or have we not already had our Noske period in Italy? If the role of the Italian social democrats is the same as that of the social-democrats of all countries, that is to prepare the way for reaction, for the defeat of the proletariat and even for fascism, then did not the Italian social-democrats already play out their role in 1920—already at the time when the factories which were occupied by the proletariat were given back again, or in August 1922 when they deliberately sabotaged the strike and thereby let loose the fascist storm?

Tool for Maintaining Exploiters.

At any rate the Italian bourgeoisie is content to learn officially (what it has long known in fact) that the social-democratic party has become a useful tool for the maintenance of the existing social order.

"Gradualism" and "opposition to violence," these are beautiful words for a whole program. The professors and lawyers within the social-democratic party are taking pains to interpret this program. "The abolition of private property and the capture of power is proceeding step by step, by obtaining one reform after another, without destroying the powerful machinery of the bourgeois democratic state." If any doubts had existed, the declaration of our social-democrats, that for them Kerensky is the true representative of liberty in Russia, as were Noske and Ebert in Germany, will certainly serve to dispel these doubts.

It is not to be wondered, therefore, that the liberals declare in their daily paper Corriere della Sera that this conversion before all the public does honor to the social-democrats. The monarchists say in their Giornale d'Italia that "Communist extremism remains isolated. The moderate forces of socialism are coming more and more into line with constitutional democracy."

Workers Turn from S. D. Traitors.

The only people who are not satisfied with this are the fascists. "Good luck" says the Idea Nazionale, "but the fascists have the power and are convinced of the historical mission they have in the political life of Italy. Fascism, therefore, has the right to defend itself and defends itself with those means with which the law provides it, so long as these suffice, and when they no longer suffice, it makes use of ultra-legal means." This is a plain warning to their would-be competitors.

The proletariat has almost entirely turned from the social democrats. On the other hand the latter have received a new influx of petty bourgeois elements, who are always vacillating, and at one time hang on to the coat-tails of reaction and at another time cling to those of social-democracy. The masses of the workers after innumerable painful experiences, are now finding, the way to their party. The beginning of the end of the Italian social-democrats will be their participation in the bourgeois power and their gradual absorption by the parties of law and order.

imperialism, it has rewarded the Jewish financial magnates with the "Balfour declaration," which promised the founding of a Zionist state in Palestine. At the same time, however, the imperialist robbers concluded three contradictory treaties: 1) with Hussein against the French and the Zionists; 2) with the French against the Arabs, and finally 3) with the Zionists against the French and the Arabs. It is this imperialist chaos which is the cause of the continuous hostilities, of the hate and the discontent and the successful suppression in the Arabian countries.

England Divides Workers.

In order to secure their power and to justify themselves before all three parties, the English imperialists sought by every means to divert the attention of the masses from their true enemy—imperialism; they set one portion of the population against the other, organized revolts, incited wars and plotted pogroms. As a result, innocent blood is being shed on the altar of European imperialism.

In Palestine an attempt is being made to wipe out the revolutionary movement. By means of betrayers of the people the nationalist movement has been split up. Communists are arrested, brutally beaten, and condemned and expelled from the country. Workers' clubs are closed and prohibited and meetings of workers dispersed.

There remained only one thing for English imperialism to do in order to show to the world that "England is mighty" and that "imperialism pays no heed to the opinion and the feelings of the native population." And for this purpose it decided to send Lord Balfour to Palestine. Balfour, the symbol of imperialist fraud, the symbol of the occupation of Palestine by the English, was sent to Palestine.

Zionist Leaders Sell Out.

The visit of Balfour to Palestine means a blow in the face of the whole of the population of the country in general and of the Arab nationalist movement in particular. But who rejoices at the arrival of Balfour? Nobody but a handful of Zionist bourgeois, who are arranging such a big set out that one could really believ that the whole of the Jewish population was celebrating the visit of the "great lord."

But this is a mistake!

In the name of the class conscious Jewish workers we raise the sharpest protest against the handful of Zionists who wish to connect the fate of the Jewish masses with the name of the blood-thirsty imperialist bands of robbers. The Jewish working masses of all countries, as well as those of Palestine, have nothing in common with the corrupt imperialist world and its representatives. The Jewish people, which for centuries suffered under the double yoke of suppression and slavery, fully realize that its emancipation cannot come thru the enslavement of others, whoever they may be,, and certainly not thru the English Zionist occupation of Palestine.

United Front of Workers.

The Jewish working masses know that for them as well as for all other working masses, there is only one way out, that of self-emancipation, which can only be realized by the international proletarian revolution which will break the capitalist chains, shatter the imperialist rule, annihilate the robber bands and, in brotherly union with all the suppressed masses, will establish a new free society—the Communist society, in which there will be neither masters nor slaves, neither despots nor the victims of despotism.

The central committee of the Communist Party of Palestine protests in the name of the class conscious Arabian and Jewish comrades against the sinister designs of the Arabian executive committee of the nationalist movement, indicated in their decisions regarding Lord Balfour's visit to Palestine, which can be regarded as a threat of a pogrom. This blind fanatical incitement of one people against another must be put a stop to once for all! Pogroms must not be tolerated! It is not pogroms against the Jews which will liberate the country, but the revolt of the whole of the oppressed against the rulers.

The Communist Party of Palestine regards Lord Balfour's visit as the symbol of imperialism and declares this arrival of Balfour to be a provocation on the part of the English government, which wishes to challenge the population of Palestine in order. to create the possibility of finally settling with the people of Palestine, who dare to cry out when they are beaten.

The Communist Party of Palestine appeals to all Jewish workers: Beware of the new English-Zionist adventure! Do not be blind tools in the hands of the chauvinists! Do not take any part in the celebrations in connection with the visit of the imperialist lord. Do not take part in the Zionist demonstrations! Imperialism is the cause of war, pogroms, suppression and bloodshed, but it brings no salvation.

Unity of Palestine Workers.

Arab workers, Fellahin and honest citizens!

The English wish to provoke you to pogroms in order to show to the world that the Arabs are savages who organize pogroms and therefore need education—the English mandate.

Do not yet yourselves be led astray by blind chauvinist incitement! Every conflict with the police, every collision with the English government weakens the authority of imperialism in Europe as well as in the colonies, but every pogrom, every dispute among the population of our country only strengthens the power, consolidates the authority of and the confidence in the foreign imperialist "protectors." Every class conscious worker should bear this in mind!

Demonstrate for the unity of the broad masses of Arab and Jewish working masses. The Jewish and Arab workers should march, not with the Zionist bourgeoisie against the poor masses, not with the fanatical feudals, but in brotherly unity hand in hand in a common fight against their class enemies, under the banner of the Communist Party.

Down with imperialism!
Down with the Balfour declaration!
Down with the fanatical feudals!
Down with the Zionist adventurers!
Long live the united proletariat of Palestine!

Long live the free, united, independent workers and Fellahin Federation of all Arabian countries!

Long live the international proletarian revolution and its leader, the Communist International!

Long live the Communist Party of Palestine!

The Central Committee of the C. P. of Palestine.

monarchist victory, at least not openly. George W. Hinman, one of his industrial experts, says that the election of Hindenburg is a splendid augur for Germany's future prosperity. And it is a victory for German patriotism. Germany is today a colony of British and American capitalism, and the once proud empire has as much self determination today as Roumania or Poland. Hindenburg will prove a loyal lackey of Wall Street, tho his epaulettes and military trappings will give the German people the impression that his swagber has the independence of pre-war days behind it.

GENERAL HERTZOG, premier of the Union of South Africa, was a bitter anti-Briton before his elevation to office. In the early days of the war he led an armed rising against the British forces. He was the leader of the republicans and swore on his lifted sword that he would support the secession of the union from the British empire when his party secured power. But today, Hertzog thinks it would be a fatal mistake for the union to secede from the empire. How those bourgeois republicans can see the other side of the case when the coin of the realm hoves in sight in sufficient quantities.

THE Federation News, official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, declares that the Communists elected Hindenburg and are in general a bunch of reactionaries. Except for the fact that they favor the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the rule of the workers and peasants, they would be as reactionory as Charley Dawes or perhaps Len Small, the financial expert of the state of Illinois. The German Communists did not take a lesson from the supporters of the Federation News, who went back to their vomit in the last elections. The fake labor partyites turned themselves inside out for the faker Small. Of course, there is a suspicion that Small had to turn his pockets inside out during the negotiations.

THE German Communists should have supported Marx, the favorite of Charley Dawes and the American bankers, says the Federation News. Because the Communists raised the working class standard and fought both Marx and Hindenburg, the Federation News throws a catfit. Unfortunately for the prestige of the Federation News and the reactionaries who back it up, the tirade against the Communists in a recent issue is so silly that nobody will take it seriously. Why can't the editor put his head under some generous hydrant and let the water run? He must have a lot of superfluous gudgeon grease between his ears.

Unemployment and Wage Cuts Ignored By Baldwin Cabinet

LONDON, England, May 3—Winston Churchill's budget is "the worst rich man's budget ever released," labor members of parliament charged before the house of commons.

Altho the country's two grave problems are unemployment and industrial depression, it was pointed out, the chancellor of the exchequer entirely ignores the deplorable misery of the workers

INJUNCTION OF 1913 IS DUG UP AGAINST STRIKE

Lewis Lawyers Make a Plea of 1914 Change

WHEELING, W. Va., May 3— The West Virginia-Pittsburgh Coal company was charged here with fraudulently imposing on the United States district court in bringing contempt proceedings against seventeen members of the United Mine Workers of America for alleged violation of an injunction against unionization of the company's mines in Northern West Virginia.

Claim 1913 Injunction Modified in 1914

In a responsive plea entered by Van A. Bittner, international organizer for the union, it was charged that the order prepared by the coal company's counsel and submitted to Judge William Baker on July 10, making permanently effective the restraining order signed by the late Jud ge Alston Dayton on Dec. 2, 1913, failed to take any account of the modification of the original injunction made by the United States circuit court of appeals for the fourth district.

Judge Baker, before whom the contempt proceedings are being tried, was asked to set aside his own injunction decree, which is the basis of the charges against the defendants.

Same Plea for All.

This defensive counter-attack brot an early close to the proceedings, which were adjourned until arguments of the coal company's counsel will be heard in rebuttal of the union's charges.

It was announced by the union attorneys that the pleas of all the defendants would be similar to that made for Mr. Bittner.

"Lawful Union and Non-Violent Picketing" Approved.

The modification order granted by the appellate court quoted by the defendants, is said to have been issued on May 28, 1914. As read by the union attorneys it provided that Judge Dayton's injunction of Dec. 1, 1913, was not to be understood as preventing the employes of the West Virginia-Pittsburgh Coal company from joining any lawful union or from receiving non-employment benefits, and further, that it prevents no member of a labor union from endeavoring to persuade, without violence any worker to discontinue work in the mines of the company.

Lewis Ordered to Appear May 4.

Of the seventeen defendants cited for contempt in case all but five appeared in court. These were John L. Lewis, international president of the Miners' Union; Lee Hall, president of District No. 6; G. W. Savage and Phillip Murray, national organisers, and Angelo Nude.

On motion of John A. Howard, attorney for the company, Judge Baker directed that each of these defendants should be served with notices to appear here for trial on May 4.

SHOW THAT STEEL TRUST GOT PROFITS ENOUGH IN 5 YEARS TO PAY OUT ALL "INVESTMENT"

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How the cost of the war was inflated by the excessive war profits of the steel companies is revealed in a report submitted to congress by the federal trade commission. The report is based on information gathered for the war industries board and serving as a basis for determining the price paid for steel during the emergency.

The war profits of the entire steel industry ran at a rate more than three times as high as those of 1915. According to the commission's figures the rate rose from 7.5 per cent in 1915 to 21.7 per cent in 1916, to 28.9 per cent in 1917 and 20.2 per cent in 1918. The average for 1917 and 1918 when the United States was at war was 24.5 per cent. And this return is reckoned on the whole investment account including stocks, bonds and undivided profits.

Almost 100 Per Cent in Five Years.

Average annual profits of various types of steel corporation for the four-year period are shown as follows: (1) companies controlling production from raw materials to finished products, 21.9 per cent; (2) companies beginning with the making of pig iron, 24.5 per cent; (3) companies beginning with the making of steel, 36.2 per cent; and (4) companies simply rolling steel products, 36.8 per cent. The U. S. Steel corporation is shown separately with an average return of 18.2 per cent on its total investment including capital stock, bonds and surplus.

These figures give the false impression that the big corporations like U. S. Steel were less notorious profiteers than the small hangers-on of the industry. The real nature of their profits is concealed by their overcapitalization.

Half Billion of Water.

A true estimate of rate of return on U. S. Steel investment would eliminate the $508,000,000 common stock altogether. For it was originally all water and has value today only because of the surplus profits which have been invested in physical plant. This means that the commission's report really counts this half a billion dollars twice in reckoning the investment. Making this correction increases the corporation's rate of return to 23.5 per cent. It would be further increased if allowance could be made for all the investment in resources for future production not actually necessary to current activity.

The commission found cost of production much lower in the big inclusive corporations. In 1918 the cost of producing shear plates in these larger concerns was $52.01 while in the others it ranged around $70 a ton. The cost of all rolled steel products averaged about 25 per cent lower in corporations controlling production from raw material to finished product.

Juggling Figures On Profit

To find why these low cost combines showed a lower rate of profit the commission investigated the investment per ton of steel produced. It found the investment per ton comparatively high in the big trusts. It says: "High average investment per unit appears to explain in large part the lower profits of Class 1 (the integrated) companies."

This shows how, by overcapitaling big monopolies the exorbitant rate of return on real investment in concealed, because the profit is spread over an excessive number of stocks and bonds.

Rich Teapot Dome Crooks Will Escape Senator Declares

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3—The prosecution of those involved in the Teapot Dome oil scandals will come to nothing it was predicted in the senate. "A year has passed with no very aggressive effort being made to vindicate the law in the case of the oil scandals," one senator told his colleagues.

"Now because of legal technicalities, both the criminal and civil suits seem in a fair way to come to nothing and the rich will escape."

SENATE RULING HEARTENS FOES OF CHILD LABOR

No Time Limit for Ratification of Bill

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.—Hope that the amendment to the constitution prohibiting child labor will be ratified by enough states to put the amendment into the constitution burned brighter today when it was decided that congress has no power to withdraw or appeal the amendment.

The legislative reference committee of congress, which conducted the investigation, at the instance of one of the senators, found that states which have ratified the amendment cannot reverse their position. The states which have rejected the proposal, however, can at any time vote to ratify it.

The United States supreme court decisions are that the amendment must be ratified "within a reasonable time," and this is presumed by the congressional committee to extend over a period of years.

SOVIET RUSSIA INCREASES OUTPUT OF ASBESTOS AND GRAPHITE MINES

In the May 1 number of the Russian Review there are two items giving further evidence of the tremendous magnitude and great variety of the Soviet Union's mineral resources.

One of these articles describes the rich graphite deposits in northwestern Siberia near Turukhansk at the junction of the Kureika and Yenissei rivers. Recent surveys by a special expedition prove the available reserves to be at least 2,500,000 tons.

The graphite is of remarkably high quality, containing only 2 to 15 per cent of impurities as against 40 to 60 per cent in graphite mineral from other countries.

Native Graphite Cheaper.

The deposits lie very favorably for ready exploitation and cheap water transportation can be used for a good part of the year, so that this high grade graphite could be sold in Leningrad or Moscow at about $3.50 per 100 pounds, whereas imported graphite of equal quality sells in these cities at about $14.00 per 100 pounds.

The other article discusses the asbestos industry of the Soviet Union. A number of deposits are known, but the Ural mines are the only ones being exploited on any considerable scale. The total reserves in this region are definitely known to aggregate at least 25 million poods of asbestos and may run up to 300 million poods (1 pood equals 36 pounds).

Import Asbestos.

With the exception of one deposit in the Alapayevska region, operated under a concession agreement by the American Allied company, all the Ural asbestos mines are in control of the Uralasbest Trust, a state enterprise which was founded in November, 1921. In 1923, this trust turned out 300,000 poods of asbestos, over two-thirds of which were exported.

Production for 1924-25 approximated 500,000 poods, which brought the output up to 35 per cent of the pre-war volume. There is a ready sale for Soviet asbestos in Europe and the markets lost by Russia during the war are rapidly being reconquered.

Des Moines Unions to Feel Lash of Open Shop Drive

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 3.—The streetcarmen of this city, altho protected by a long-term agrement, may have the one-man car forced upon them by the local traction company, whose officials claim that such measures are necessary to offset falling revenues.

The union, which is strongly entrenched and has a large auditorium, offered to discuss the one-man car before an open meeting of the trainmen. Instead the company called the men together in small groups, hoping to win them over to the proposed change.

The union points out that the one-man car would mean the elimination of practically all the conductors, as very few would be retained as motormen. Each side is now "watchfully waiting."

Even Des Moines feels the lash of capitalism and the impending open shop drive.

Negro Elected President.

NEW YORK, May 3.—A 17-year-old Negro boy, Arthur Waller, of Jamaica, L. I., was elected president of the general organization of the Newtown high school, Elmhurst, L. I., by the students today after a bitter fight.

Waller received 1,406 votes from a student body of 2,300, and defeated two white candidates. There are only twelve Negro students in the school.

LIKE TWO ARMS TO A BODY

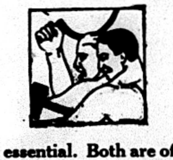
The Daily Worker is the powerful right arm.

In it, for the busy worker, the world of labor is reflected briefly, clearly and, in addition to a world view of Communist activity, with articles that add further light to each step of labor.

Like the left arm to a fighting body is the Workers Monthly.

Here, each month, not only are the outstanding events brought to the worker's attention and made more attractive by photographs and cartoons of leading artists, but also—

The theoretical background that leads to a better understanding is supplied by the outstanding writers in the American and world Communist movements.



Both are essential. Both are official organs of the Workers (Communist) Party. To make both possible in

STARVATION CURE BEING GIVEN TO 10,000 MINERS

Pittsburgh Operators Try to Force Cut

By Stephen, Worker Correspondent.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 3.—One mine after another is being closed down by the Pittsburgh Coal Co. in an effort to bring down the wages of the miners. A total of 22 out of 54 mines owned and operated by this company in the Pittsburgh district have closed and the men thrown into the unemployed army within a period of one month.

A few weeks ago the company announced the dismantling of 16 mines and removal of equipment. Many of these mines are to remain closed for a year. On April 23 six additional mines were closed. At first the company would try to have the men accept a reduction in wages with the promise of steady work.

The Ancient Lie of More Work.

It circularized numerous letters among the men telling them what a great benefactor it was, but also how poor it was, and that in their own interests the men should accept a wage cut. The trick did not work; the miners refused to fall for this line of bunk. Knowing that the company was lying when it promised steady employment, they refused to go to work in the mines at a reduced wage.

The closing of these mines has thrown 10,000 men out of work forcing them to seek employment either in other fields or other industries. Many miners just drift from state to state without any sign of getting a job and finally return to find that their credit in the stores meanwhile has been cut off. Others go to the steel mills looking for jobs. There they hire skilled workers for 50 cents an hour and common labor for 40 cents, and even at this cheap wage not very many succeed in getting work. In fact the steel mills are now blowing out their furnaces.

Wide Unemployment.

The balance of the 54 mines are now only working part time, one, two, at the most three days a week. Miners coming to the Pittsburgh district looking for work are either turned away or given work for a few days and later fired.

The mines owned by other companies in this district do not work very much better. Many of them are closed altogether or working part time.

Union Officials Indifferent

This entire problem does not seem to concern the miners' union officials, who are too busy at the present time expelling reds and progressives from the organization. To the rank and file miners, however, and the working class as a whole it is becoming a real problem demanding a solution.

EMPLOYERS IN DRIVE, BACKED BY KLAN TO REPLACE SCIENCE WITH BIBLE DOPE IN NATION'S SCHOOLS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 3.—A survey of the restrictions on teaching in schools and colleges just completed by the American Civil Liberties Union shows that more restrictive laws have been passed during the last six months than at any time in American history. These laws prohibit the teaching of evolution, require compulsory reading of the bible and forbid the employment of radical or pacifist teachers.

The survey shows that congress passed one such law as a rider to the 1925 appropriation bill for the District of Columbia, providing "that no part of this sum shall be available for the payment of the salary" of any educational director "who permits the teaching of partisan politics, disrespect of the holy bible, or that ours is an inferior form of government." This law is now in force in the District of Columbia.

Expel Students.

Pennsylvania, Ohio, Delaware, West Virginia and Kentucky have laws requiring the daily reading of the bible in public schools "without comment," and providing for the discharge and revocation of the certificate of a teacher who does not conform to the act. Similar bills have been introduced in the legislatures of Virginia, Texas, New Jersey and Washington.

A test of this type of statute was made in South Dakota in March, where Judge McNenny ruled that a school board has the authority to expel high school students who leave the class room during bible reading. Thirteen students were expelled in this controversy. The decision will be appealed to a higher court.

Afraid of Truth.

The first state law prohibiting the teaching of the doctrine of evolution in public schools and colleges was passed in Tennessee in March. Resolutions of state boards forbidding the teaching of evolution were previously adopted in North Carolina and Florida.

Missouri state colleges and schools are forbidden by a rider to the appropriation bill recently passed to employ any person "who teaches, or advocates in public or private that the citizens of this state should not protect the government of the United States from aggression by other nations."

In the recent Ohio legislature a resolution was introduced authorizing an investigation of members of the faculties of three state universities, with the object of ousting "radicals and atheists." This resolution was killed by the senate committee to which it was referred.

Klan Backs Gag Laws.

"Efforts to get court action on all these restrictive laws will be made thru our attorneys," the Civil Liberties Union announces. "The constitutional guarantee of separation of church and state, it is believed, offers a ground for contesting the laws requiring bible reading. The U. S. supreme court already has before it one restrictive school law passed in Oregon and aimed at abolishing the parochial schools. The chief sources of inspiration for this new and unprecedented crop of gag laws on teaching are the ku klux klan, the fundamentalists, and the professional patriotic societies. The klan is back of the compulsory bible reading and anti-parochial school laws, the fundamentalists back of the anti-evolution bills and the professional patriots back of the anti-radical and anti-pacifist measures."

British Women Trade Unionists Visit Russia

An independent delegation of women members and organisers of British trade unions is visiting Russia with the purpose of making a special investigation into questions affecting women and children. The delegation intends to make a stay of about two months and to publish an independent report upon its return.

The delegation consists of Miss Mary Quaile, organizer of Transport and General Workers' Union, and member of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress; Miss Annie Loughlin, organiser, Tailors' and Garment Workers' Union; Mrs. A. Bridges, National Union of Printing Bookbinding, and Paper Workers; Mrs. L. A. Aspinall, Weavers', Winders', and Reelers' Association; Mrs. K. Coates, interpreter; and Miss May Purcell, stenographer.

The delegation will be away for about six to eight weeks, and will make a special investigation into questions affecting women and children. It will make an independent report on its return.

Erection of Power Plant Lags.

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Annual production of electricity by public utility power plants in the United States has increased about 40 per cent in five years, according to a report made by the U. S. geological survey. Total production in 1919 was 38,921,000,000 kilowatt hours, while in 1924 it had reached 59,014,000,000 kilowatt hours. Water power plants produced 37.5 per cent of the total in 1919, and 33.8 per cent of the total in 1924—showing that construction of hydro-electric plants had not kept pace with the growth in demand for electricity. Coal used as fuel for the production of electricity amounted to 35,100,000 short tons in 1919, and to 37,556,000 short tons in 1924, while fuel oil was used to the extent of 11,050,000 barrels in 1919 and 16,630,000 barrels in 1924.

THE ART OF THE NEW WORLD—By JOHN LASSEN.

Modern Russian Art, by Louis Lozowick, Museum of Modern Art, Societe Anonyme, New York, $1.00.

THE American book market has been enriched by a book which has filled up a void. The task accomplished by Louis Lozowick is that he has given a picture of Russian art today. He does not assume the pompous air of an official arbiter but in the most objective way possible he undertakes to make us comprehend the tendencies which have stirred up the calm waters of pre-revolutionary art into a veritable storm. Lozowick, who himself is one of the best American artists looks at the art movement as a painter. With the eyes of a painter he analyzes what the new art has achieved. Of first importance for him are the painting problems. We must state that he has illuminated the problem in such a way that every layman can understand.

In very simple and clear language he presents before us the problems of the various schools of painting. Upon territory absolutely strange to the American public he leads us with sure hand.

From Bubnovy Valet, across the Russian cubists, constructivists, supremists to the expressionists Lozowick shows us the different schools of painting. With a cold objectivity he tries to show us the various characteristics of all these schools.

He shows the merit of the Soviets which encouraged the untrammeled development of all these tendencies, to the most audacious. He does not criticise. He only determines. He does this in such a way that everyone can judge for himself. In this objectivity he goes too far, in our opinion, and does not point out the mistakes of the various schools, such as suprematism for instance. In our opinion it was not wise to give an account of expressionism in the last paragraph because expressionism is evidently a further development of Bubnovy Valet. The determining factor in all these schools is the steady trend toward constructivism.

The writer of the book looks with too much pessimism at the effects of Nep upon art. The Nep liberated the structure of the whole economic life. And together with that it assures the final victory of the proletarian revolution. A strong proletarian state will be a greater help than before towards the further development of art. We are very sure that in Paris, Berlin or London artists cannot find a Maecenas for their paintings of black on black or white on white.

For Lozowick himself who is a wonderful, most intelligent and most capable painter who does not resemble these various schools, we have nothing but praise on account of his remarkable objectivity. The book as it is, is a splendid guide for all who are interested, in the labyrinth of the new Russian art.

The rich illustrations make the book complete. What was impossible for Lozowick to tell in words the pictures show in a most interesting manner. We recommend the book to everyone who wants to get a look into the melting pot in which is being born the new art of a new world.

"The Green Hat," a dramatization by Michael Arlen of the author's novel of the same name. Playing at the Selwyn Theater.

The Green Hat is the story of a misunderstood woman, Iris Fenwick, nee March, who battles for ten years against English prudery to attain the man she loves, Napier Harpenden,—and happiness.

Iris and Napier were palymates together, and in spite of the fact that Napier's father, Sir Maurice Harpenden, forbids their marriage, the first love of the childhood sweethearts does not grow cold.

Iris marries, her husband jumps out of the window on her wedding night when he finds her somewhat disgusted upon learning that a prostitute has given hubby a venereal disease.

Napier fares somewhat better, ten years later marrying Venus Pollen, a pure sweet angel, who, however, admits that it is somewhat boring to be a virgin.

Iris has not revealed the true reason for her husband's suicide, and in order to shield her brother, Gerard March, who worshipped her husband as an idealist, takes the blame for her husband's fatal leap and allows English society to cast her out as a harlot. Iris does not care much for English society anyhow. "There is no one so lonesome as an English woman in England," she says.

Iris is True to First Love

And so for ten years, "wearing a green hat, Iris haunts the capitals of Europe. But she cannot forget Napier, and returns a few days before his marriage to ask him to aid her dying brother. Napier sends someone else to console Gerald and spends the nite with Iris. Their son dies at birth. Later, when Napier's wife is told all, she agrees to give up Napier to Iris. But Napier shatters Iris' ideal, by telling his father that her dishonor was self imposed. Iris does not like this. "You've destroyed the only gracious thing I ever did," she says, and sends Napier back to his wife, gracefully eliminating herself by driving her auto into a tree.

Exposes Hypocrisy of Rich.

The Green Hat makes you hate upper class hypocrisy, the false morals and untrue standards of the self styled aristocracy. It makes you hate the smugness of the well bred English "gentleman."

A horde of "beastly" plutocrats march across the stage. Napier is a victim of the class from which he springs. His love for Iris is to him a weakness which he would like to overcome. Napier deserts Iris after her husband's suicide, and again, allows her to slip thru his fingers in order to marry the well brought up Venice Pollen.

Napier is bound by his position "in the foreign office," by his rigid ideas of what is right and grong in matters of sex. "I long for decency," Iris tells Napier and his crowd. "Not the decency men show when someone is looking at them, but real decency, when they are not being watched." But so smug in Napier that the shaft does not even sting him—he does not know it is meant for him.

Perhaps the play ends logically enough. Iris has put up a splendid fight against the indecent, bourgeois standards. In the end, her ideal is shattered, her long search for her lover beaten, and she has nothing more to live for.

But there is the suspicion that the author of The Green Hat, Michael Ailen, had an eye on the box office in constructing his ending. At least, two interpretations may be put upon it. We would prefer to think that Napier was a damn fool; that he lost a real woman and was shunted back to his empty headed, though sweet, angel, to stew for the rest of his life in his own upper-class pride. We prefer to think that the ending demonstrated the misery, the sad irony, the hateful rottenness that accompanies the bourgeois standards.

Part of our present day standards are to let a best seller exhibit what the bourgeois consider the rankest filth, the most perverted fulminations, as long as conventionality is served in the end and the evil one who has been amusing us for 200 pages is killed and the sweet heroine marries the stalwart hero.

A deviation from the bourgeois standards in the movies, for example, is permitted only on condition that the black sheep iis killed in a railroad wreck and hubby and wifey make up. And yet it is these human and true to life "deviations" which the people pay their money to see.

The Green Hat, of course, does not do this. Iris is the heroine to the end, and she triumphs over the conventions even in death. But the play sets one to wondering if Arlen did not make a concession to the conventions in keping the home of the weak husband and the sweet wife intact at the end.

Play Worth Seeing.

The ending leaves a way out for the conventional playgoer. He can say, "Well, the sacred marriage institution is the strongest, after all. That just goes to show, if the woman WOULD go dashing about in a green hat, she was bound to smash up against a tree sooner or later."

At any rate the ironies are there for the keen eyed to see, the bourgeoisie are dragged thru the mire of their contempt for the "improper" and unconventional, and they suffer the consequences of the system which has built up an aristocracy of the rich.

The acting, with Katherine Cornell, Leslie Howard, Ann Harding, Eugene Powers, Paul Guilfoyle and Gordon Ash supplying an all star cast, is unusually good. The play is well worth seeing.

KARL REEVE.

Scab Railroad Has Big Per Cent of Engines Ticketed as Unsafe

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.—In the first nine months of the fiscal year ending July, 1924, 21.5 per cent of the Pennsylvania railroad locomotives were ordered out of service by federal inspectors, while the percentage on the Baltimore and Ohio was 5.8, that on the New York Central was 9.3, and the average for all railroads was 9.5 per cent.

In view of this devay of the property, one finds nothing surprising in the report that the stockholders failed to adopt any appreciative resolutions when President Rea recently retired from the presidency of the company, even tho the line boasts of its company union "efficiency" in its shops.

BUILDERS AT WORK

THE EXPERIENCE OF REVERE, MASS.

"Fine Idea! It Works!" Says a Communist Builder

THE various plans proposed thru this column to better build the DAILY WORKER are accepted, acted upon and even enthused about.

The plan of circularizing workers in your community (or union) with sample copies of the DAILY WORKER for one week and then following up the names with a personal visit is a good one.

When necessary, the system of partial payment is applied, as is done in many parts of the country now, and this method is becoming a success in our land of "$1.00 down and a dollar when you catch him."

Read this letter from an enthusiastic Communist Builder in Revere, Mass.:

> Comrades:—Yes, it works! Fine idea! You are a member of a lodge, union or club; you know a number of semi ex or self-styled radicals.
> Send them the DAILY WORKER for a week or so, then visit them, show how easy it is to get the DAILY WORKER for one year by paying out 50 cents or a dollar at a time.
>
> Result: Out of five individuals approached in this manner, two subscribed for a year.
> Would suggest that all branch agents use this method and they will be greatly encouraged by results.
> With best greetings to the Builders,
>
> Charles Schwartz, Revere Agent.

• • • •

The partial payment plan is a good one in other ways. You not only get a longer term sub from a worker unable to pay the full amount at one time, but if followed up regularly for payment, you talk to him, get his views, give him yours and—nine chances out of ten you have made another Communist. (Perhaps a new member for your branch.)

As Comrade Schwartz of Revere, says: "Fine idea! It works!"

LONDON, May 3.—The foreign office stated today it considered the general European situation greatly improved, assigning three reasons for the optimistic view.

First, Aristide Briand, French foreign secretary, has notified the British he plans to take up French debt and security pact negotiations where the Herriot ministry left off.

Second, the French reply to Germany's peace pact proposal will be ready in three or four days and are understood to be of a moderate nature.

Third, Chancellor Luther's speech in Berlin was considered satisfactory.

Fruits of Class-Collaboration

All workers, and particularly the coal miners, should take careful notice of the sytematic campaign to reduce wages that is being carried on from coast to coast and in Canada.

The employers are more artful than in the last century, when the sheriff of Cook county, Illinois, for example, told a group of strikers in 1885: "You must go back to work for $1.50 a day, or I'll call the troops to compel you to do so." Those were the days when the employers openly waged unrelenting and brutal warfare on the slightest sign of unionism.

Those were the days when the labor movement grew amazingly, and was inspired by militant leaders for tremendous battles. It was the background upon which labor organized its ranks and marched to victory in the magnificent conflict for the eight-hour day in 1886. It was the foundation upon which was erected the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor in their best days.

But the employers found that frontal attack on labor organization is not always effective. The policy of corrupting the labor union officialdom and turning the whole stream of unionist ideology into class collaboration was begun and has blossomed and blown like the deadly upas tree.

Everywhere today the union bureaucracy is spreading the idea that the boss really wants to raise wages, really wants to give more employment and better conditions—and is only prevented by lack of efficiency on the part of the workers. The current and most poisonous of all is the intensive propaganda being carried on to convince the workers that the remedy for unemployment is to accept a cut in wages.

This is an international campaign begun simultaneously in Europe and America, and it would be interesting to learn what part the union bureaucrats agreed to play in the conspiracy, the existence of which cannot be questioned. The Dawes plan competition with German slave labor furnished an excellent excuse. But capitalism is responsible for the Dawes plan and the workers must not accept the burden.

In Nova Scotia, Besco gives the unemployment "starvation cure" to 12,000 miners, then demands a wage cut. In Alberta the coal operators have fairly succeeded in not only cutting wages, but declaring the open shop. The New England textile barons, after a dose of starvation, put over a wage cut. In the Pittsburgh district the coal operators are saying: "If you will take a wage cut, then we will open the mines." Ten thousand miners are getting the preparatory starvation cure. Other instances are numerous, in lumber production, for example.

The answer of American labor ought to be sharp and decisive. If it is not, and if the American workers are losing right and left, the fault is that the unions are corrupted with class collaboration and union officers teach that "industrial peace" and helping the boss is the first function of the workers' organization. Against this black betrayal all progressive forces must wage a vigorous war.

A Suitable Memorial

The committee appointed by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to erect a suitable memorial in honor of Samuel Gompers, has invited suggestions as to the form this memorial should take.

Many suitable suggestions occur to a person, suggestions that would portray the attitude of Gompers towards the struggle that always exists between the workers, on one side, and the capitalists on the other.

Here is one: A worker on his knees with forehead touching the ground. The foot of a capitalist on his neck. Gompers with a needle, representing class collaboration shooting the dope into the worker's arm.

Or another: The workers representing a flock of sheep, with Gompers, like the trained ram in the Chicago stockyards, leading them to the knife.

But remembering that Gompers did make a real serious fight for beer and wine, the dead labor leader might be represented as a male edition of the statute of liberty, bearing in his uplifted hand a foaming mug instead of the lighted torch.

Gentlemen of the memorial committee, take your choice.

The Soviet ambassador in Paris called on Aristide Briand to deny the rumors spread by Russia's enemies about the envoy's participation in revolutionary activities in France. About the same time the French ambassador in Moscow was calling on Litvinov to deny that two French officers participated in a Baltic anti-Soviet conference. Tit for tat.

"A Satisfactory Situation"

The secretary of labor in Coolidge's cabinet, Mr. James J. Davis, says that "May Day presents no industrial disputes" and that "industrial relations are very satisfactory as a whole."

While the textile workers of New England are first given the starvation cure of unemployment and then handed a wage cut, while hundreds of thousands of miners and their families are on rations below the coolie standard and face widespread unemployment, wage cuts and the assault of the operators to break up their union, while President Grace of Bethlehem Steel frankly tells the steel trust employes that they must compete with labor enslaved by the Dawes plan, and all along the line the American workers confront a terrific attack on wages, hours and unions, the secretary of the deportation department blandly remarks that the situation is "satisfactory."

In one way, that is to say from the capitalist viewpoint, the situation is, certainly, satisfactory. Capitalism has installed its most reactionary puppet in the White House, it has defeated even the most ineffective constitutional limitation to child labor, the wage cuts are for the most part meeting with only sporadic resistance, the enforcement of longer working hours is being pressed, the open shop drive is making headway—and in all these things the capitalists are enlisting the active support of the labor union officialdom.

Such a situation, from the viewpoint of Wall Street and the capitalist government of which Mr. Davis is spokesman, undoubtedly is a source of satisfaction. To the working class, however, such a situation is a living menace to life and happiness. While Bill Green and John L. Lewis and the whole tribe of labor fakers may agree that everything is lovely, few ordinary workers can look upon the following words of Mr. Davis as anything but pure bunk. He adds:

> "The American workman is entirely in accord with the policies and principles upon which the nation is established. He realizes that his welfare is dependent upon profitable and productive enterprise and he is sincerely co-operating with the employer in the endeavor."

We venture to say that the average worker is bamboozled into co-operating with the boss only by the extremest measures of trickery and fraud of the combined forces of capitalist dopesters and union bureaucracy.

And further we venture that when the bulk of workers have tasted the gall and wormwood of class collaboration such as the machinists have done under the "B. & O." plan at the Glenwood shops, they will be quite ready to listen to the Communists, who are, we imagine, the "societies advocating discontent, dissatisfaction and opposition to our form of government," which Mr. Davis condemned as disturbers in this little paradise of American capitalism.

The Annual Fright

On every May Day since the workers of the world began to demonstrate against the capitalist system the bourgeois press has indulged in a regular campaign of hysterical anti-radical propaganda, designed to frighten away the workers from these demonstrations. And yet those demonstrations grow larger year by year. The onward march of the revolutionary proletariat cannot be stopped by any force on earth.

A few days prior to last May Day, the capitalist press spread itself on plots and conspiracies in every capital city in Europe. Even in New York the police raided headquarters of the Workers Party without warrant, drove those present out into the streets, rifled desks and carried away Communist literature.

Plots to assassinate government officials were discovered in England and after the headlines had accomplished their purpose those who floated the rumors repudiated them. Mussolini filled the jails with radicals. The Paris police raided the homes of Communists and confiscated literature.

There were no attacks made on the socialists by the capitalist governments on this May Day in any country with the possible exception of Italy where the fascist gangsters tolerate no opposition. The capitalists no longer recognize the socialists as their enemies.

It is not hard to get the capitalists excited on May Day. They fear the idea of the workers of the world showing their solidarity by demonstrating their common interests against capitalism. The class struggle is no mere figure of speech. It is a living reality, as is proven not only on May Day, but on every day of the year.

"Hindy" Fills the Bill

A capacious gullet appears to be a prime qualification for the office of president of the imperial republic of Germany. When von Hindenburg celebrated his victory with his friends, he is alleged to have "drank far more cognac than Admiral von Tirpitz and the other politicians."

It was a touching scene. Politicians who frothed at the mouth in anger against each other only a week ago, blew the foam off generous steins of beer as the guests of the new monarchist president of the reich. One of the prettiest pictures at the get-together was that of Count Westarp, nationalist, and Paul Loebe, socialist. No doubt they drank to the health of the Dawes plan, the kaiser and the speedy demolition of the Communist Party of Germany.

All the misgivings as to the ability of von Hindenburg to properly fill the office of the presidency were dissipated when the old field marshal sent his competitors under the table. There were as many hochs as there were hiccoughs. It was a happy occasion.

The Amnesty in Soviet Georgian Republic

An Interview with the Deputy People's Commissar for Justice and Chief Public Prosecutor for the Republic, Comrade Krylenko.

IN the capitalist countries the terrorist justice is raging more furiously than ever. And the social democrats are more eager than ever to support this system of bourgeois terrorist justice. They are conducting a systematic campaign in order to drown the cry of the revolutionary fighters for an amnesty which again is arising from the masses.

One of their most favorite means is to point to the "terror" in the Soviet Union. Apart from the fact that the proteges of the social democrats are counter-revolutionaries and adventurers, who objectively and in almost all cases subjectively further the interests of international imperialism, and against whom the sharpest countermeasures are necessary and justified in the interest of the Soviet Union and of its working class, the campaign of the social democracy is absolutely mendacious.

THEIR outcry over Georgia is still fresh in every one's memory. All the old anti-Bolshevist stories were served up in order to praise and glorify the Georgian mensheviki, who, by means of money supplied by the entente, attempted a counter-revolutionary putsch.

The central executive committee of the Soviet Union however, at its last session, which was held in Tiflis and which was enthusiastically received by the Georgian population, decided, among other important question, upon an amnesty for Georgia.

The deputy people's commissar for justice and chief public prosecutor, Comrade Krylenko, explained to us regarding the decision of the central executive committee of the Soviet Union as to the amnesty question as follows:

"THE 3rd session of the central executive committee of the Soviet Union was held in Tiflis. The main reason for this was in order to furnish palpable proof of the close connection which exists between the central government and those sections of the union which formerly, as border states, were subjected to a regime of national oppression by the czarist bureaucracy. This proof has been furnished by the welcome accorded to the government in the capital city of the country where the national question is particularly complicated (Georgia is inhabited by about 10 different nationalities.) The reception of the government in Tiflis was a unique triumph, especially the reception accorded by the working population. It has shown that the position of the Soviet power in Georgia is so firmly consolidated, that there cannot be any talk of any hostile attitude, in spite of the counter-revolutionary putsch attempt of the mensheviki which took place as recently as August last.

"The demonstrative reception has shown that the government acted rightly in deciding to grant an amnesty, after it had become evident that the working population of Georgia are unanimously behind the Soviet power. The evidence against those who participated in the putsch is to be once more examined. This will mainly affect the members of the menshevist organizations.

"The amnesty extends still further to sentences which were imposed last year in consequence of failure to pay taxes. This item of the amnesty will particularly contribute to link up still more closely the connections between town and country, as besides craftsmen it is the peasants who are mainly affected in this connection.

"Finally, it has been decided to grant an amnesty for criminal misdemeanors. Here, of course, it is impossible to examine the evidence. Therefore, the sentences of those who have been already condemned will be reduced by a half. It would have been possible to dispense with this measure, but as an amnesty had been decided upon it was thought it would be as well to include in it these poor and uncultured elements.

"The amnesty will still further strengthen the position of the Soviet power. It is also a good lesson for the Renaudels and Vanderveldes, who in recent times have used Georgia as a pretext for an unexampled campaign against the Soviet Union."

THE facts expose the social democratic campaigns of calumny.

During the last elections in Germany and France the social democrats gave promises of an amnesty in order to capture workers' votes. After the elections they sabotaged with all their powers the workers' demands for an amnesty. The terrorist regime in Germany finds staunch defenders in the social democrats. In France the case of Sadoul shows how much the promises of an amnesty by the social democrats and the left bloc were worth.

They continually attempt to convince the workers that it is impossible to grant an amnesty to revolutionary workers in Europe so long as the counter-revolutionaries in the Soviet Union are not given an amnesty. The amnesty in Georgia destroys this argument of the social democrats.

A RUSSIAN FACTORY

(The things about Russia which seem "different," as I look back from America.)

By ANISE.

IN my lectures across the United States, I find that the hardest thing of all to explain to American workers is just what a factory means in Rusia. To an American, a factory is merely a place to work; a rather unpleasant spot where you labor eight hours or more per day, and then go home to live. To a Russian, the factory is the center of life.

Those very words sound drab and repellent to the American worker. He can't get rid of the grim unpleasantness around that word factory. Suppose you think, instead, of the words "social center." A sort of combined university, dance-hall, polling place, musical club, day nursery and sewing circle combined. Is that "jazzy" enough to sound interesting? Well, that is what a Russian factory is, outside of working hours.

OF course, they also work in a Russian factory. Not so fast as they do in America, for the Russian have never learned our speed. At the present moment, in fact, they are putting in the piece work system, in the hope of learning to produce a little more. The workers in America object to the piece-work system, because it is used to exploit them and wear them out. But extra speed in a Russian plant comes back to benefit all the workers. Besides, it will take a lot of speeding up before the Russians go fast enough to affect their nerves. And there are safeguards established, in the shape of forms fixed, not by the swiftest, but by the moderately slow worker.

In any event the Russian workers are really producing in their factories; last year the output of state industry increased thirty-three and a third per cent. Every Russian worker can see quite plainly that, as the output of his factory increases, so also his wages go up. His shop committee has access to the books of the factory, and knows just what the profits are. They can easily tell how much to demand in wages at the time of the next collective agreement. When I tell American workers about this arrangement, they usually grin with pleasure at the thought of "putting something over" on the management by knowing all the inside secrets. But in Russia it is not considered "putting anything over"; it is considered the most natural thing in the world that the increased profits of a state factory should go, in part, to increasing wages, and that the workers in the factory should know all about the balance sheets in order to encourage them to produce more and better by seeing how fast the factory is getting ahead.

BUT the Russian factory is more than a place to work. If you go in the evening to any large factory in Russia, and even to some of the small one, you find from four to a dozen rooms going full blast. Clubs and classes and lectures and concerts—these make up the evening life. In one room you find the group fighting illiteracy—a dozen or more old men and women who are painfully learning their A B C's from the young Communist who is teaching them. Down the hall come the strains of a stringed instrument; it is the factory orchestra.

Beyond is the women's club, and farther down is a chess club or a meeting of Young Pioneers. Then perhaps you come to a session of the Guardianship Committee—and you learn that the factory has assumed responsibility for helping in the cultural life of some near-by peasant community. On Sundays a group of workers goes down to take books and journals from the city, or to conduct classes and give lectures. They are meeting now to make their plans for repairing the former manor-house of that district and turning it into a little theater and club house for the peasants.

YOU would start in a class for reading and writing, every night after work. When you finish this class, you would enter your factory night school and take all kinds of subjects, history, civics, trade courses, literature—anything you want. The factory night school is a strenuous proposition, three hours after work five nights a week. I don't know of anyone but a Russian who could stand it! But tens of thousands of Russian workers are doing it in order to get ahead. But "getting ahead" in Russia doesn't mean ceasing to be a worker and becoming a small business man, as it usually does in America. It means getting more and more knowledge to use in helping other workers, and consequently gaining a higher place in union or factory activities or in general government service.

When you finish your factory night school, if you have shown ability, you may be sent by you fellow workers on a scholarship to the workers' college. This is a full time preparatory course of three years. You get you full support from your trade union during your years of study. It is not very elaborate support. I have spent many nights in student dormitories. Six or eight wooden bunks along the walls of the room, a long wooden table flanked by two long benches—this was all the furniture. What more does a student need than a place to sleep and a place to study, anyway? The meals also, are of the plainest variety. These students from the working class eat little and work hard; they spend their days in study and their nights often in teaching other workers in factory night schools. When they are sent to the university their outside work for their fellow workers increases. They are not getting an education for themselves alone, they have been sent to acquire knowledge for the benefit of all their fellow workers.

The Russian factory is not only a center for work and education and entertainment; it is the center of political life and social life and home life. When I reach the United States, I pick up the newspapers and see on the social page all the dances given by wealthy society women for their daughters. . . The only dances in Russia today are those in the workmen's clubs. No private person has a house big enough to give a dance in. But there are over three hundred workmen's clubs in the Moscow district alone, where dances alternate with lectures and concerts and the other forms of social life.

EVERYONE knows, of course, that the Russian factory is also the center of political life. It is here that the elections are held for the city Soviet, held on factory working time some afternoon early in December. The men and women who are sent as delegates to the Moscow Soviet, for instance, do not lose touch with the factory from which they come. Usually they keep right on working there; their political activities come after working hours. Only if they are chosen on committees for important full time city work do they leave their factory jobs. And even then they come back to report to the workers choosing them.

There is an obvious and striking difference between a Russian governing assembly and any parliamentary assembly anywhere else in the world. I am not speaking now of the fact that Russia is governed by Communists, while the rest of the world is under the control of capitalists. I am speaking merely of the actual types of people seen in the governing body and the way they act. If you have visited any parliaments anywhere—our senate, the German reichstag, the British house of commons—you will notice that they are all composed of people from one very small class in society—the educated middle class of public speakers. Lawyers mostly, but in any case their chief method of getting elected was by making speeches. They are as a class, a sleek, smooth group, who can talk very long on any subject whatever. But they have no vital contact with any process of construction—with transport, or mining or farming.

IN a Russian election, the candidate never makes a speech. He is nominated for the office just as a man is nominated in America for the job of secretary or president of a local union. Somebody else makes the speech and mentions the qualities for which they want to choose him. In every legislative assembly in Russia, from the city Soviets to the central executive committee, you will notice the effect which this fact produces. The men sitting in government waste very little time in debates; their government is not a "parliament" or a talking body; it is an "executive committee" for doing business. The members are workers from farms and factories and mines and railroads, chosen because of their knowledge of this basic life of the republic, and not for any talking ability.

The Russian factory is also the center of home life. This sounds, doesn't it, terribly destructive of the "home." But it isn't. For the first time, the Russian worker has reasonably comfortable living quarters. Nothing to brag of yet, but better than he ever had before. He gets them thru his factory committee, which leases large apartment houses for a term of years from the city, and thus secures cheap, comfortable quarters where a worker lodges near his fellow workers.

IT thus becomes possible for him to start co-operative kitchens, and dining rooms and day nurseries. And schools for the smaller children, right in the big house where they live. There is no compulsion about these things; each group of workers does as it sees fit about the matter. Some groups are far advanced and others are more backward. But, in general, I have never seen such well run day nurseries anywhere as I have have seen in connection with Russian factories. There is a reason for this; in most countries day nurseries are charities and the mothers who patronize them do not dare make demands. But in Russia they are under the general care of a committee of the mothers themselves, employing, of course, nurses and play teachers from the department of health or of education to do the actual work, but none the less taking a continuous interest themselves in the conduct of the place.

The factory thus [illegible] where the Russian worker expresses himself fully, not only in the act of production, but politically, socially, and in all the many phases of life. Even the arts are beginning to center around the factory. Not only do the workers' clubs invite artists from the grand opera and state theater to give them concerts. Not only are the unions the channels thru which cheap theater tickets are secured. But the really vital developments of art life now going on in Russia are to be found in the amateur dramatic work of Russian workers. In the "living newspaper" with its vivid protrayal of daily events, in satire and laughter. In the new paintings and statuary that are beginning to be ordered by some of the more prosperous central labor unions and workmen's clubs.

AFTER all, what is a factory? It is the basic cell of modern industrial civilization. Soft-souled folk have cried out that modern industrialism is ugly and debasing. But there is nothing ugly about the fact that men come together to work in common, knit by a common ownership of great machinery, instead of standing, each in his peasant hut, at the toilsome effort of hand labor. It is only when men are the slaves of the machines that modern industrialism becomes ugly. When they own the machines, together, as in Russia, then the factory is seen in its true light, as the center of socialized production, which is higher and more co-operative than individual production, and which forms the natural basis for a social and co-operating life.

AHERTY.

JOHN BULL is getting worried over revolutionary propaganda in England. This is most astounding news. In fact Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, announced that he has discovered a conspiracy fostered in Moscow which has for its object the subversion of the existing social order. This is a new achievement for Scotland Yard. We shake with terror lest some Sherlock Holmes should dig up a copy of Das Kapital and spring it on the unsuspecting Communist International.

NOTHING less than a foul conspiracy to send the capitalist class to work is on foot, says Hicks, and the dirty work is being done in England as elsewhere. What have J. H. Thomas and Ramsay MacDonald been doing all this time? Kissing the king's toe, is not, after all, the best way to keep down revolutionary propaganda. One may ask the question why has Britain become so keenly alive to the Communist peril all of a sudden?

BRITAIN has boasted of being the motherland of parliamentary government and the house of commons has been known all over the world as the "mother of parliaments." As long as the gas bags who participated in that parliament politely disagreed with the "honorable gentlemen of the opposition" and went their way rejoicing over their exhibitions of eloquence and hoping that the ministerial bench would take mental note of their usefulness to the empire at some future date, everything was sitting pretty. But a Hindoo Communist with the queer and suspicious name of Saklatvala (sounds like a bag full of daggers) gets up in the house of commons today and seriously questions the existence of grey matter under the royal dome.

WORSE than that. Left wing labor party members declare that the royal family is about as useless as a monkey without a tail in a forest. Great uproar from ministerial benches. Fast beating of hearts of Messrs. Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden, J. H. Thomas and other socialists. Mrs. Philip Snowden loves the king's [illegible] and [illegible] them [illegible] The nerves of the [illegible] class become more ragged. The calm and serene "mother of parliaments" is no longer the kind parent of yore to all her children. She now rants and raves like a swindled prostitute.

THINGS are coming to a pretty pass when a member of the British cabinet breaks into the front page with a story of revolution in England and in Europe. What's the idea? The reason is not far to seek. Things are happening in England, not only inside the house of parliament—that's where some of the talking is done—but outside in the public squares and inside in the factories and union halls. The workers are awakening. The new leadership of the British trade unions have grasped the hand of comradeship extended by their Russian comrades and a new international labor movement, unified and revolutionized is in the making. That is one of the reasons why Mr. Hicks threw this latest scare into the ranks of the bourgeoisie and the yellow socialist leaders.

THERE is another reason. British rule in the colonies is sitting on a vulcano. The British posterior is constantly irritated by a ceaseless sputtering underneath but there is a

Capitalist Commission Passes an Espionage Act for Monopolies

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A new rule adopted by the majority in the federal trade commission forbids any public statement of a complaint, such for instance as the protest against the Pittsburgh base price on steel, unless the complaint is sustained by the commission.

COOLIDGE AIDS TRUSTS IN MAD RACE FOR SWAG

Government Will Not Interfere, He Says

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Just a few hours after President Coolidge had made the announcement that the deals of big business would not be interfered with in any way by the government, Justice Bailey, in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, entered a formal order suspending the packer-consent decree in every particular, the suspension to remain effective indefinitely.

This means that the "big five" group of packers comprising the packing trust, who had agreed not to carry on unrelated lines of business, but who had done it anyhow, could openly combine as a packing trust.

Coolidge Aids Trusts.

President Coolidge let it be understood that the government not only would not interfere with the trusts or the financial manipulations of the bankers in any way, but would give big business a helping hand whenever possible. "Promoting prosperity by governmental aid to business," was the way Coolidge's announcement read.

Of course, the government was supposedly prosecuting the packers under the Sherman anti-trust law, but following Coolidge's statement, the government's objection to the judge's ruling was feeble.

No Government Interference.

Wall Street was assured, in the Coolidge statement, that "business men can safely go ahead and give their time and attention to their private business without fear of interference at Washington that might imperil their investments."

Coolidge gave big business to understand that now that congress has adjourned, no embarrassing amendments to the constitution against child labor, or other "detriments to business," would interfere with their plans. Herbert Hoover is on the job, and the [illegible] of the representatives of the trusts at Washington is to ballyhoo for a bigger navy to protect their bosses' property.

The Voice of Cal's Masters.

W. McCullough, chairman of the manufacturers' department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, showed where Coolidge gets his policy from when he declared in a speech at Atlantic City, "American business is not being persecuted under the Sherman anti-trust law. The persecutions brought against the trade organizations under the law have not averaged one a year. There has been a tremendous increase in the volume of business under the law."

The manufacturers are not afraid of the "anti-trust" law, because they know that Coolidge and all capitalist politicians will do their bidding.

Predicted Earthquake Correctly

PARIS, May 4.—The earthquake which Professor Bendandi of Grenoble University two weeks ago predicted for May 4, was registered on the seismograph today, the newspaper Liberte said. The shock was violent and 3,500 miles distant, possibly in Canada, Prof. Bendandi was quoted in Liberte as saying.

WHEAT CRASH LEAVES FARMERS BROKE WHILE GAMBLERS CLEANED UP

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—The spectacular rise in the price of wheat, followed by the recent collapse in prices, was due to the misleading of the public as to the conditions of the world grain market, and the tremendous holdings of speculators, who made millions of dollars out of the speculation, while the farmers made nothing, according to G. E. Marcy, head of the Grain Marketing corporation.

WASHINGTON WORRIED FOR FEAR AMERICAN WORKERS DEMAND OLD AGE PENSION UNIONS IGNORE

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—When Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer in the British tory cabinet, announced that his party would seek to extend and improve social insurance in Britain, he set going a new line of political apprehension in Washington. Suppose the American wage workers should begin to demand, seriously and peremptorily, that old age pensions be provided in this country, and that pensions for widowed mothers be established in every state!

Two million persons are receiving public aid in England and Scotland and Wales today, and there is urgent need for further help to the unemployed

MASS MEETING PROTESTS THE BULGAR TERROR

Shows Oppression Is Causing Revolt

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 4—An enthusiastic meeting denounced the atrocities that are being practiced by the white terror Zankov government of Bulgaria with the assistance of the league of nations against the revolutionary workers and peasants. The meeting was called by the Workers Party, Young Workers' League and the International Workers Aid and adopted a resolution demanding the stopping of the massacres and the release of all the revolutionary prisoners.

Comrade Ben Gitlow presided at the meeting and outlined in broad lines the standing of the workers and peasants in Bulgaria and the methods that the capitalist government has used in order to keep down the revolutionary movement. "The league of nations has granted 7,000 more troops to the Zankov government, whose hands are dripping with blood, in order to wipe out the revolutionists. The combined forces of the imperialists will not be able to check the revolutionary movement, which finally must win and establish the power of the workers and peasants."

The Bulgarian Background.

Bulgarian workers and poor peasants are suffering horribly from the results of the world war. Lowered wages and increased taxation for the workers, taxes and debts are crushing the peasants. The big landowners refuse to hand over the land to the land-hungry peasants.

Painters' Union Wins Against Open Shop Right in Washington!

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 4.—Four weeks of strike by the union painters and paperhangers in Washington for a wage increase from $9 to $10 a day has resulted in an offer by the master painters to arbitrate the issue. Heavy losses have been suffered by the bosses, while the strikers have shown no tendency to break.

Master plumbers have refused to join the speculative builders, real estate ring and bankers in a compact to resist all wage increases. They are now considering a demand by the plumbers for a wage of $11.

SOVIET RUSSIA PAYS FOR LARGEST FLOUR ORDER EVER SHIPPED

MONTREAL, Canada, May 4.—The Soviet government made payment on the largest flour export order ever shipped, when the Amtorg Trading company, Soviet Russia's New York commercial agent, paid checks covering $16,396,000 to the Maple Leaf Milling company of Canada.

The order, 2,629,000 bags of 140 pounds per bag, has been delivered. Thirty-four vessels were required to carry the flour to Batum and Leningrad. Nine mills were kept busy night and day for four months to fill the order.

GUN-RUNNING UP FOR DISCUSSION AT GENEVA MEET

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GENEVA, May 4. — Thirty-eight countries were represented at the opening session of the league of nations international arms conference today. The former Belgian Prime Minister Carton de Wiart presided.

Congressman Theodore Burton as chairman, headed the American delegates which included Hugh Gibson, minister to Switzerland, Admiral Long and General Ruggles.

Supervision and Publicity.

The temporary mixed commission has drawn up a draft convention which provides two methods of checking the illicit arms traffic: First, rigorous supervision of all movements of arms; second, a frank publicity campaign to tell the world the destination of all clandestine arms shipments.

Under the commission's recommendations, no exports of arms will be permitted except under government license. The government of the country of origin will take all precautions to insure delivery to the specified destinations.

Plan to Establish Deadline.

A territorial and maritime deadline will be established within which no importation, exportation or transportation of war munitions will be permitted.

The draft convention of the arms conference provides that the league will undertake to publish at regular specified intervals the number and origin of all licenses for arms exports. In this way the public will be informed in the efforts of honest governments to check arms running.

Just Like Rum-Running.

It is the purpose of the conference, if the agenda meets the approval of the thirty-eight countries represented, to make arms running as outlawed an activity in the eyes of all league members as rum-running is from the standpoint of the United States' dry navy.

KLUXER UP FOR MURDER OF GIRL AFTER ATTACK

Technicalities Hope Of Costly Counsel

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4.—A motion to strike out certain parts of two sections of the indictment returned jointly against David C. Stephenson, Earl Klinck and Earl Gentry was made by counsel for the accused men.

Judge James A. Collins set the hearing on the motion for 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Claim Attack Unconnected With Poisoning

Inman's motion objected to parts of the first section of the murder indictment describing the manner in which Miss Oberholtzer was alleged to have been forced to make a trip to Hammond with the defendants and the manner in which she was attacked and later took poison.

The motion states that the allegations contained in this section are contradictory to the manner and means by which the defendants are alleged to have committed murder, the manner charged being that Madge Oberholtzer took poison and died from the effects thereof.

The motion also declares that the first count of the indictment "constitutes a mere recital of various steps in an alleged transaction prior to the alleged taking of poison by Miss Oberholtzer and are immaterial and irrelevant to the manner and means by which her death resulted, and can only have the effect to prejudice the substantial rights of the defendants in the minds of the jury."

Inman also stated that this "mere recital of immaterial matter" throws no light upon the question of the manner by which Miss Oberholtzer is alleged to have met her death.

Gave Girl No Aid

Count four of the indictment charges that the defendants knowing that Madge Oberholtzer had taken poison refused to give her medical aid, drove her back to Indianapolis from Hammond in an automobile and held her prisoner in Stephenson's garage without calling a physician. Inman objected to this section also on the ground that the recital of the alleged acts leading to the girl's death "have the sole effect to prejudice the rights of the defendants in the minds of the jury."

"Kissing the Hand, etc."

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Senator Willis, republican of Ohio, today urged President Coolidge to accept an invitation to address the national convention of Postal Employes at Cleveland August 27. The meeting will be in the auditorium where the president was nominated.

CROUCH AND TRUMBULL CARED FOR BY RED AID; NOTE CORRECTION MADE

On the second page of Thursday's issue of the DAILY WORKER dated April 30, a statement of an official of the Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League upon the persecution of Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, by the military authorities for daring to have ideas while wearing the uniform of common soldier in the United States army at the Hawaiian garrison, erroneously stated that the International Workers' Aid was carrying on the work for amnesty of these radical soldiers. The movement for release and aid to these boys is under the direction of the International Red Aid, a separate organization from the Workers' Aid, and funds needed should be sent to the International Red Aid, 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Ill.

RED SOLDIERS ARE ILLEGALLY HELD IN PRISON

Crouch and Trumbull Broke No Civil Law

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, May 4.—The sentences of 40 and 26 years in prison at hard labor imposed on privates Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull for being members of the Hawaiian Communist League are illegal, even if the testimony of the army stool pigeon Eugene Fisher, were credited.

Fisher was told by the army intelligence department at Schofield barracks to go as far as he liked, and employ any means he desired to "get something" on the Communist soldiers stationed at the barracks near here.

"Evidence" Was False.

Fisher was the only witness to give "evidence" against the soldiers at their court martial, and his testimony was so childish that any intelligent person could see at once that the "evidence" was an obvious false concoction.

"According to the 42nd article of war, no soldier can be sent to a federal-civil prison by a court martial (except in a few specified cases) unless the crime is punishable by imprisonment for one year or more by civil law thruout the continental United States," says Paul Crouch, writing from the 27th infantry guardhouse.

"And according to accepted military law, no one is subject to state or territorial law for his conduct on a military reservation, especially in so far as political matters are concerned. Politically speaking, the military re-

Ask Grand Jury to Re-Indict the Teapot Dome Conspirators

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Re-indictment of the principals in the naval oil scandal was asked today of the special grand jury called to investigate alleged conspiracy in the leasing of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills reserves.

Bribery and conspiracy indictments against ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, Edward L. Doheny, and Edward L. Doheny, Jr., recently were quashed on technical grounds when Justice McCoy, of the district supreme court, held that Oliver E. Pagan, an assistant attorney general, illegally was present in the grand jury room during the taking of testimony.

The bribery charges have been outlawed by the statute of limitations, and the government oil counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, sought only indictments for conspiracy. The grand jury is not expected to report until early in June.

AS WE SEE IT

terrible feeling that "the worst is yet to come." India is gathering her millions for the big scrap with Britain. The millions thruout Asia who have experienced the hobnailed boot of British imperialism on their necks are in a state of incipient revolt. And behind those millions is the Communist International, with its message of salvation to the workers and peasants of the world, putting into effect the message of the immortal Marx: "Workers of the world unite; you have nothing to lose but your chains, you have a world to gain." When Britain loses her colonies "finis" will be written under the last chapter of the history of the greatest robber empire the world has ever known.

THEREFORE it is not surprising that the British government should take steps to meet this new danger. Ever since the Campbell case, when the editor of the Workers' Weekly was arrested on a charge of sedition by the Ramsay MacDonald government, and released almost immediately thru pressure from the labor movement, ever since then, it has been quite evident that a more drastic policy would be adopted by the British ruling class towards the revolutionary movement. The "Zinoviev letter" was evidence of how low this gang of political pimps would stoop to in order to gain their ends.

THE growth of the Minority Movement, in England, the successful outcome of the negotiations for international trade union unity between the Russian and the British workers, the increase of revolutionary sentiment in the colonies and the decline of the favorite socialist leaders of the ruling class from power, presents John Bull with a serious situation. This accounts for most of the fake plots and conspiracies that have inundated Europe for months. Britain is behind all this as the Soviet government knows quite well.

BRITAIN is now trying to organize a European bloc against Russia. Britain will never make peace with Soviet Russia, no matter how many treaties she may sign. While all capitalist nations are as corrupt and as treacherous as they know how, England can still show them cards and spades. But Soviet Russia is on to all her tricks, and will "foil" them as the capitalist journalists would say.

Coolidge, Foe of Foreign Workers, Praises the Jews

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—President Coolidge, the foe of the foreign-born worker, who is now actively engaged in a campaign to further restrict the admittance of immigrants, praised the Jewish race and declared the Jews "came to this country to seek freedom," in an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Jewish community center here.

Coolidge admitted in his speech that "factional, social, sectional and political lines of conflict yet persist in America," but neglected to say that he himself is attempting to divide the workers by discriminating against the foreign-born.

SOCIALIST STOOL PIGEON TESTIFIES AGAINST WORKERS

Echo of Abramovich in Los Angeles

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 4.—Julius Rebelsky, the first of eight workers held for trial because they protested the lies of Professor Raphael Abramovich, counter-revolutionary menshevik agent of the Second International, to his face when he tried to address an audience of workers in this city, was convicted here and fined $50 by Judge Georgia Bullock.

The remaining seven were granted jury trials and the cases were set for an early date.

The Los Angeles socialists, doing their best to copy the counter-revolutionary record of the professor, took the witness stand in the capitalist court to testify against the workers. Ike Weisenberg, member of the yellow socialist party and its chief stool-pigeon, declared in part:

"Abramovich came to America from the socialist international particularly to arouse public opinion against Soviet Russia."

His testimony was so plainly that of a police informer that even some of the few remaining members of the socialist party were disgusted.

But if the socialists were willing to play the informer, Judge Georgia Bullock, was willing to be informed. All rulings were grossly unfair, and the whole community is aroused over the cases.

Soviet Sympathy Stirs Trouble in Women's Meeting

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A rumor that a few women among them were sympathetic to the Russian Soviet government almost caused the convention of the International Council of Women with feminist leaders from 38 nations, to lose its American delegates.

The pampered women of the Washington aristocracy, members of the National Patriotic Council, joined hands with the women in New York who under the leadership of Mrs. Sara L. Coe sent a letter to Mrs. Philip North Moore, President of the National Council of Women demanding to know whether the International Council stood for the league of nations. The Washington women who met at the Willard Hotel went them one better and drew up a letter asking whether those who will take part in the conference have been mentioned publicly as pacifistic, communistic or supporters of the Russian Soviet government.

The convention got under way in a flurry of suppressed excitement over the criticism voiced by these leaders of American Women's Patriotic organizations. The questions asked in the letters will come before the convention.

labor" manufacturers' league that has been fighting the Reliance. It means a moral victory for the anti-prison labor forces.

But it is only a moral victory for the present. Tho the Big Yank Shirt, the Black Beauty Shirt, the Playmate Suits and a dozen other goods with the Reliance imprint to the annual value of many million dollars are now made in outside factories this does not mean that the Reliance has quit the prison goods game or that the war against the system it represents is at an end.

Moral Victory Rather Empty

The truth is that the state prisons in Alabama, Connecticut, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky and Wyoming still have 3-year contracts with the Reliance Manufacturing Co. and the firm is still producing cheap sweated goods under the stern prison discipline system and dumping them on the outside market. The only difference is that the Reliance trade marked goods are no longer made in these pens but that other goods are made instead.

Three subsidiary corporations bearing other names are being formed to sell these goods to jobbers. The name of the first, says Allison, is the East Coast Manufacturing Co. The goods from the five Reliance prison shops are being sold to jobbers and will not bear the Reliance imprint.

Gained "An Admission"

What has been gained by the foes of convict production is the admission of the prison trust that it didn't pay to make well advertised goods in prison. As the workers learned that the flaring Big Yank posters represented slave labor the market for the Big Yank shirt fell off. Research work will now be conducted to check up on the goods the Reliance is making under other names and acquaint the buying public with the facts.

The battle against the Reliance system includes an attack on the goods produced by the slaves of the Sterling Manufacturing Co. in the Iowa and Tennessee prisons, for the Sterling company's directorate interlocks with that of the Reliance.

Why Not Abolish All Exploitation?

Union labor in the garment trades is however concerned with more than the driving out of the prison contractor system. The Big Yank shirt and the other Reliance trade marked goods are no longer produced in prisons but they are made in open shop factories in the state of Indiana and wages are well under union levels. It is doubtful, as a matter of fact, whether five per cent of the cheaper work shirts made in America bear the union label.

The Rich Want to Put Up "No Play" Signs in New York's Central Park

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, brings another striking contrast in the lives of the rich and the poor in the nation's metropolis, New York City.

The rich are fighting against the setting aside of 16 acres in exclusive Central Park for a children's playground, because, they argue, the beauty of the park would be desecrated by the hordes of children who would drift over from the "East Side." But at the same time a truant officer raids a single-room houseboat on the Hudson River mudflats, within sight of which five children, the oldest ten, have spent all their lives; the mudflats their only playground.

• • • •

On West 54th Street, on the fringe of Central Park, stand two stately and attractive structures. These are the "town houses" of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The syndicate sending out the pictures says these two are the "richest father and son on earth," altho "Ford and Son" also lay claim to this dubious title.

The "town house" of John D. Jr. rises eight stories in the air, like a veritable skyscraper. We are not told how many rooms it contains, but a building of that size on the "East Side" would house hundreds. On West 54th Street it is the home of only one family, that of John D. Jr. and then only when the oil magnate's son happens to be "in town."

John D. Sr. is never in town. He has spent the winter in Florida playing golf. He has vast estates in Florida. When he comes north he goes to his estate at Tarrytown, up the Hudson. He has other estates and residences, so the New York residence, standing beside that of his son, is empty, except perhaps for the caretaker; a four-story home, boarded up, unoccupied while over on the Hudson River mudflats those five children of "Bill" Warn, a worker, are forced to live in primitive squalor in a one-room house boat, sleeping on beds made of driftwood and covered with rags. The 100 per cent American truant officer says of these children, "They can't understand English intelligently. They have no intellect. They are undernourished. They are—in other words—savages. They couldn't be duplicated in the jungles, for there even the savages have more than a few hundred yards as their navigable area." But they do exist in this capitalist jungle, where the savage profit beast everywhere seeks its working class prey.

These children of the mudflats, like many of their brothers and sisters of the "East Side," have never been to school, so it is now planned to sent them to an "institution," probably one of the many supported by Rockefeller charity. That is Rockefeller's way of keeping down discontent; the Rockefeller way of handling "extreme cases."

• • • •

The demand for the 16-acre recreation center in aristocratic Central Park arises directly out of the cry of the children of the "East Side" for a chance to play. The aristocracy replies that if the children of the "East Side" want to play, let them have neighborhood playgrounds nearer their homes. But the "East Side" is only a few steps away. Third Avenue and Second Avenue, with their tremendous congestion of human life, press very close onto Fifth Avenue, that skirts the park.

• • • •

In time the desire to play will grow to a greater desire. Instead of 16 acres the workers will demand more; the whole park, the whole city,—the nation! They, the workers, will come up out of the "East Side" and the "West Side," down from the top-floors of the firetrap tenements, and up off the mudflats and take what they need; throwing off the repression that has kept them down; fighting back and rising victorious against the oppression that has held them in its grip.

When that hour strikes the empty "town houses" of the great rich around Central Park, as everywhere else, will be occupied by the rising poor, until they can build better homes for themselves.

• • • •

They will be opposed by Rockefeller's government, to be sure. Capitalist rule will oppose working class rule with all its strength. But there is no strength like that possessed by an aroused and rising oppressed class. The workers, in the hour of their realization of their own destiny, will be triumphant. They will win their victory and build their Communist society, where fathers and mothers will live and enjoy life—where children can play. Tell that to the Rockefellers and they will frantically denounce it as "Bolshevism." For that very reason all labor should support it.

SHIPS' OFFICERS ORGANIZE TIMID INTERNATIONAL

Even Higher Officers Find Unity Needed

NEW YORK, May 4.—International organization of marine officers may may develop from the international conference of marine officers' unions called for June 16 in Paris. Captain John F. Milliken of the Neptune Assn. of Masters, Mates and Pilots says that his organization will send delegates. A temporary organization already exists, with headquarters at Antwerp. A. Brouil, general secretary of the French associations is president; G. Seret, chairman of a similar body in the Netherlands, is vice president and A. Brandt, secretary of the Belgian associations is the secy.-treas. Permanent officers will be chosen at the conference in June.

In the invitation sent to the American organization the purposes of the proposed international movement are to be as follows:

(a) To defend and safeguard the interests of the mercantile captains and officers, and to foster the ties of friendship and co-operation betwen organizations of mercantile marine captains and officers of all nations.

(b) To obtain improvements in the profesional and social situation of the members belonging to the affiliated organizations.

(c) To obtain the required legislation in favor of mercantile seaferers in general and the captains and officers in particular.

(d) To collect the necessary international documentation for use of affiliated organizations.

(e) To establish an international regulation of normal working hours on merchant ships, a manning scale a minimum wage.

(f) To send delegates to international conferences, the International labor office, league of nations and wherever it may be necessary.

Carlo Tresca to Be Freed on Wednesday After 4 Months in Jail

NEW YORK, May 4.—Carlo Tresca, editor of an Italian radical weekly, will be released from Atlanta penitentiary May 6 on completion of the 4-month term to which his one-year sentence had been commuted by President Coolidge.

Tresca was convicted on a federal statute on a charge of publishing a small birth control pamphlet advertisement in his paper. The statute had never previously been enforced in such a case but light was shed on the reasons for the prosecution when the U. S. district attorney's office said the original complaint was made by Mussolini's ambassador, Gaetani.

Riot at Napoleon's Birth Place

AJACCIO, Corsica, May 4.—Two persons were killed and four were injured in rioting which marked the municipal election today in this, the birth place of the illustrious Napoleon Bonaparte. The fatal clash was caused by ballot box "stuffing" and "repeating."

Revise Postal Rates.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The joint congressional committee charged with revising postal rates will begin hearings here on July 20. The committee created by the recent postal rate and salary increase bill, will recommend changes in rates to supplant those now in existence.

Mass Meeting Protests Bulgar Terror

In 1923, when the peasants' party was in power, the Zankov military clique overthrew the peasant government, drowned the revolutionary workers and peasants in blood and assassinated Stambulisky. Since June, 1923 the slaughter of the revolutionists has continued. For two years the workers and peasants have suffered a bloodbath. A third factor enters into the situation. The Macedonian minority is being suppressed and it is being deprived of all rights. This has given rise to a tremendous revolutionary movement in Macedonia, determined to get its rights.

League of Counter Revolution.

The league of nations has granted the Zankov government 7,000 more troops, but neither these 7,000 nor 70,000 nor 700,000 troops will be able to keep down the revolution. For the workers and peasants of Bulgaria will not rest till with the aid of the masses of the whole Balkans, they have overthrown all the reactionary capitalist governments and have established a federated Balkan Soviet republic reaching out its hand to the Soviet government of Russia.

Comrade Olgin declared that "if we want a picture of capitalist democracy we may turn our eyes to Bulgaria. If we want to see the fruits of the world war, we may turn to Bulgaria. The impoverishment of the masses, the goading of them to desperation, the crushing of the labor movement, the suppression of all newspapers and clubs, the proscription of the co-operatives, show to what length capitalist 'democracy' will proceed in order to uproot the revolutionary movement.

"This suppression cannot stop the revolutionary movement. It shows up the capitalist government in its true light and makes the workers and poor peasants aware of what they must put an end to. The workers and peasants are accepting the leadership of the Communist parties and the Communist International. A combined and savage attack is being made on the Communist International by all capitalist governments, which for the time being are forgetting their differences to a degree, in order to carry on a united campaign against the Communist parties and the Communist International.

Socialists Combine with Reaction.

"The social-democrats who conducted a militant attack against Soviet Russia are linked up solidly with the reactionary capitalist governments. This will not avail them in any way. The Communist International with its Communist parties in all countries will lead the struggle to victory."

The resolution denouncing the atrocities in Bulgaria adopted with a thunderous "aye," reads as follows:

"The murderous Zankov government, tool of the imperialist powers, is drowning the workers and poor peasants in blood. This hangman government which entered into power in June, 1923 by a military coup, immediately began a campaign of slaughter and terror and assassinated the leader of the peasants, Stambulisky. Since that time, thousands of revolutionary workers and peasants have been massacred, thousands have been driven into exile, tens of thousands have been imprisoned.

"The Bulgarian workers and peasants and the Macedonian revolutionaries have been conducting a brave, militant struggle against the bloody fascist dictator, Zankov, who has responded by murdering the best leaders of these revolutionaries.

"Against the Communists in particular the Zankov government has conducted a campaign of extirpation, since Zankov and his military clique, together with the imperialist governments recognize that their bitterest enemy is the Communist Party of Bulgaria and the Communist International. Soviet Russia is the friend of the Bulgarian workers and peasants and the Macedonian revolutionaries, for these oppressed workers and peasants 'look to their Slav friend in Moscow.'

"This mass meeting of workers in New York City protests against the atrocities practiced against the workers and peasants of Bulgaria, especially the Communists. We demand that these atrocities stop at once, that all revolutionary workers and peasants in the Bulgarian capitalist prisons be immediately released. This meeting sends its heartiest comradely greetings to the struggling workers and peasants in Bulgaria, and promises to arouse the workers of this country to loud protest against the barbarous Zankov government and its master, the imperialists. We support the struggle of the revolutionary workers and peasants and oppressed nationalities and promise them our aid so that they may soon end the savage Zankov regime and establish a government of the workers and peasants in Bulgaria.

"Long Live the Communist Party of America!

"Long Live the Communist International!

"All support to the International Red Aid!"

Communist Gains Expected in French Municipal Election

PARIS, France, May 4.—Indications were that the Communists would make material gains in the municipal elections that have just taken place thruout France. Dissatisfaction with the treachery of the Herriot left bloc regime, which is still controlling the Painleve government, is seen on every hand.

Many workers are now following the leadership of the Communists. Herriot supported the Dawes' plan, and the socialists are aiding the fascist regime in France to crush the revolt of the oppressed Moroccan colonists.

UNION TRAITORS DEFEAT DEMANDS OF TEAMSTERS

Pittsburgh Union Has Learned a Lesson

By IRWIN, Worker Correspondent.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 4.—May First is the busy moving day in Pittsburgh, Pa., and the organized teamsters, many of whom are working for as low as $18.00 a week and starving while working, for more than a month prepared and consolidated their forces for a strike to gain a living wage to begin on April 27th. But once more the shrewd maneuverings of international officials in collusion with the bosses succeeded in frustraiting the modest aspirations of the workers.

The cunning pleas made jointly by these officials, international organizers W. H. Ashton and John M. Gillespie, together with mediators of both state and federal governments and representatives of the Pittsburgh Cartage club, for "fairness" toward the latter, swung the men to accept the illusion that the signs given by the Cartage Club of willingless to negotiate would surely bring the wage increase desired.

Suddenly Willing to Talk

No particular signs of willingness to negotiate had been shown until the approach of the busy season. and if these negotiations can be carried on until after the busy season the bosses will again fell at ease, knowing that the danger point has been passed and not giving a hang what may then happen.

The Teamsters' Union of Pittsburgh, although being only one year old has witnessed a rapid growth now counting about 6,000 members.

Negro Workers True to Working Class Interests

Approximately 700 of those Negro workers who, during the preparations made, had given splendid assurance that the days when colored workers can be used to be pitted against white workers and break strikes are rapidly passing. "Nobody had any doubt shoulder to shoulder with their white that these Negro workers would stand brothers.

The teamsters demanded a weekly scale of $40.00 for heavy trucking, sliding downward to a minimum of $36.00 for light trucks. The mere threat of a strike compelled the big Heintz concern to grant a monthly wage increrse of $10.00 for all its drivers.

Bosses Rightly Depended on Union Leaders.

Several independent concerns hastened to grant similar increases while the big department stores refused to even consider any demands until the international "leaders" arrived. Meanwhile, these stores got busy and organized the Cartage Club and found that the "leaders", who were less worried about small wages, were much more "reasonable".

When the busy season is over and the results of the negotiations carried on, whatever they may be, be come known and are put into effect, this young organization will surely have received its first important lesson in the true character of the "reasonableness" of their leaders.

A Lesson Learned

They will know, or at least those who not only feel the pinch but also give serious thought to the matter. that the class collaboration policy pursued by the international organizers in this instance means the same as elsewhere—betrayal of the interests of the rank and file workers.

America's Prison Labor.

119 blows from a strap weighing 7½ pounds killed Martin Tabert, a boy prisoner flogged in a Firoida convict camp. Then the Florida legislature acted to abolish flogging—but it didn't abolish prison labor camps.

Later charges were made which showed that in Alabama the prison labor camps were even worse than in Florida. Prisoners were leased out to the coal mines. They complained that their jobs were made unbearable by rocks in the coal seam, poor food, and forced labor when they should have been on the sick list. Flogging the legally abolished still continued.

Tom Moore, Leading Faker of Canada, is Asked to Explain

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, May 4.—Tom Moore, president of the Trades Congress of Canada, who is a director of the Canadian National Railways has been given a chance to explain how it happens that he as a director of the railway condones buildings being erected under the jurisdiction of that board by bricklayers in this city receiving 25 cents per hour less than the prevailing rate.

SOME ADVANCES SOVIET BROUGHT TO COAL MINERS

First Had to Carry Rifle with Pick

By GERTRUDE HAESSLER.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—Achievements of the Russian miners and of workers since the founding of their union five years ago were outlined in an address to the All-Russian Miners' Conference by Rykov, head of the Soviet government. The conference is composed of delegates from the rank and file, straight from the pit.

When the union was first formed the men worked with guns instead of picks and shovels, for the mines had first to be cleared of Denikin's counter-revolutionary white guards. Then came the laborious work of clearing the mines of the mess left by the white guards. The mines had been flooded and general destruction reigned throughout the Don basin. At first housing conditions were poor, machinery and tools limited and old, and transportation difficult. But now production has exceeded the demand of industry and orders have been accepted from abroad.

With increased production has come improvement in conditions. Real wages have reached 70 per cent of pre-war. Safety laws are carried out as strictly as appliances and machinery in the mines permit, the unions themselves running the mines and applying the laws. A miner may leave the mine if he finds a certain percentage of gas in the air, without losing his day's pay. If a miner is left without enough timber to work safely, he can lay off without loss of time.

Lack of funds have so far handicapped housing, but garden cities, with modern sanitary arrangements are going up, especially in the oil fields where the conditions formerly were atrocious.

Herbert Smith, president of the British miners said after having examined the czarist company shacks of the Baku oil fields, "If I had had to live in a house like that, I would have had a rifle in my hand long before these fellows did." Hundreds of new homes with airy rooms, baths, kitchen with gas for cooking, electric light, garden space and lawns have been built by the Soviet government in Baku. Just as quickly as the houses are ready, the workers move out from the huts in which they lived under private ownership, into the new homes.

"B. & O." JOHNSTON'S TREACHERY HITS BOTTOM AS RAIL SHOPMEN FACE WHOLESALE UNEMPLOYMENT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 4.—A lay-off of 300 men in the Glenwood shops of the B. & O. railroad and the closing down of the Kaiser, West Virginia shops are the latest fruits of the "co-operative" plan of class collaboration carried out by William H. Johnston, president of the Machinists' Union.

B. & O. Bill's bubble of permanent employment under the Johnston plan is pierced by Willard. Permanent work was one of the tricks used by Bill Johnston to put his plan over on the workers.

This plan worked so well for the company that last year the road made $42,000,000, which is more than it ever made during any year. But for the men the plan only adds to the unemployment.

The lay-off in Glenwood and Kaiser is only the beginning of a large cut in the force.

The lion and the lamb are finally getting together on the B. & O. but the only trouble is that the lion is preparing to make a good meal for himself.

LOCALS DEFY HUTCHESON'S ILLEGAL UKASE

Have Right to Choose Their Delegates

DETROIT, Mich.—When John Potts, member of the general executive board, came before the Carpenters' District Council of Detroit with a ukase from Czar Hutcheson demanding a one way vote on several propositions and threatening expulsion of any delegates who voted against it and indirectly threatening the local unions for such a vote by their delegates, John Potts said that the only comment he had to make on the proposition and the document was that he wished someone else than himself should do the dirty work.

What Hutch Wanted.

The vote against the czar was 23 to four, and now the proposition has been put to the local unions by Czar Hutcheson thru his underling, John Potts, that the locals must repudiate their delegates or stand suspended. Within this last week, four local unions have voted a flat and unanimous refusal to repudiate those delegates who represented the will of the local unions. Now these are ordered suspended.

Czar Hutcheson's plan was that the delegates should be repudiated while Sam Botterill, general representative, whose removal has been asked by the district council and every local union, and Sharrock, the district council president, and Fish, its secretary, whose recall from office has been regularly and overwhelmingly carried by the local unions, be maintained in office.

The three above-named and a traitor by the name of Polack, recently put upon the payroll of the general office as a reward for open treachery, all took a prominent part in the recent injunction proceedings against Wm. Reynolds, the three first named being plaintiffs in the case. Hutcheson would sustain these traitors and humiliate the local unions.

Needs Stronger Stuff.

Hutcheson threatened thru Potts that unless the local unions repudiated their delegates, they would be suspended and reorganized. He is now trying to carry this out. If Potts sympathized with himself at the beginning of this dirty work assigned him by Hutcheson, he is due for a lot more self-sympathy when he goes to the local unions and starts "re-organizing" them.

The militant unionists in these locals on which the czar is now frowning, think that reorganising is a game that two can play at, and that between the thousands of militant rank and filers and Hutcheson's four weak flunkeys and their handful of mercenaries, the odds are particularly one-sided.

Militants Will Fight Back.

These high-priced union wreckers, who live in master class hotels, think master class thoughts and draw fat master class salaries out of the sweat of the workers, think that in this long drawn out fight the workers will tire and lose patience—and perhaps they will.

They are sickened with the stupidity, arrogance and conceit of these yellow fakers and the end of their patience will signalize a summary ending of this struggle, but not the end anticipated by Hutcheson and hoped for by the weaklings who represent him here. Hutcheson is too yellow to come to Detroit, but Detroit will find the way to carry the fight to him.

New Orleans Textile Workers Strike When Wages Cut One-Fourth

NEW ORLEANS—(FP)—Two hundred men, women and children walked out of the Maginnis cotton mills when an average reduction of 25 per cent in wages was posted. The plant has over 1,000 employes. The wage reduction affects materially the spinners of which over one-half are women, working at a miserable pittance. It is expected that in a few days the entire force will be out in sympathy with the spinners.

Another Daugherty Lieutenant.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Solicitor General Beck, a Harry Daugherty appointee, who "carried on" as chief of the department of justice until Stone took Daugherty's place, has resigned. He was in charge of prosecutions, and hence was responsible, under the attorney general, for the frameup against Sen. Wheeler. His getting out immediately after the collapse of the Wheeler prosecution may or may not have been invited by President Coolidge.

UNSEATED MILITANTS OF THE SEATTLE COUNCIL URGE UNIONS TO AFFILIATE AND TO FIGHT

SEATTLE, Wash.—The expulsion of the six Communist delegates from the Sattle Central Labor Council by the arbitrary rule of the president and in distinct violation of the council's rules has brot about a wave of indignation, resentment and general dissatisfaction and distrust in the minds of a large number of trade unionists and in many respects a general state of indifference.

Council Dwindling.

The attendance of the council in recent meetings has dwindled away to a bare quorum. A feeling of withdrawal of their delegations from the council as a protest against expulsions prevails in a large number of local unions according to authoritative sources.

The Communists who everlastingly have been urging the strengthening and building up of the labor movement for amalgamation and against division of labor and for the affiliation of every local union with the council and have been responsible for the reaffiliation of many locals with the council in past and recent years, have issued and broadcasted a warning and appeal to the trade unionists in the local labor movement the text of which follows in full:

Statement of Unseated Council Members.

"To the trade union members of the local labor movement and the Seattle Central Labor Council. Brothers and sisters:

"The wave of indignation and resentment against our expulsion from the council by foul means and abuse on the part of John Jepsen of the office he occupies and his gross violation of the council's constitution and rules has brot about a state of dissatisfaction and discouragement in the minds of a large number of trade union members the result of which is evident in the small attendance of the recent meetings of our Central Labor Council when hardly a quorum was present.

"And then again a large number of local unions we are told contemplate to withdraw their delegates from the council as a measure of protest against the arbitrary rule and action of Jepsen and his friends.

Warn Against Enemy Within.

"We are sharing with you the same feeling of resentment against the wrongs perpetrated upon our local labor movement and the besmirching of its fair name and that of our council by the methods by which we were unseated and more particularly so against the attempted disruption of our labor movement by the methods advocated by the enemy of organized labor the open shoppers and the advocates of the American plan who, having failed in their initial attempt to destroy the trade union movement in America by propaganda of the American plan, the open shop and, failing to divide it by the formation of bosses' unions such as the four Ls and others after spending millions, are now resorting to disrupt it, divide it and destroy organized labor from within, employing the expulsion method against the most active militants and those who have advanced political opinions and convictions.

"Witness the propaganda carried on openly by the open shoppers urging the expulsion of militants and radical trade unionists.

Urge Attendance and Affiliation

"Yet we feel compelled by duty to our class as workers and men who toil and a duty we owe to our labor movement to urge upon you and appeal to you to stand by our council and attend its meetings as regularly as in the past and even more so for this is a critical time when the enemy need be watched most and the vigilance of every true trade unionist the cost and price of preservation of our labor movement.

"And above all we urge and beseech all local unions to by all means abstain from withdrawing their delegates from the council. And we urge and appeal to every local union which has in the past severed its relations with the council to again reaffiliate with the council.

"Stay in the Council and Fight."

"We have urged in the past that it is every local union's duty to stay in the council and in this critical occasion we humbly ask you to reaffiliate and send your delegates to the council. No matter what our feelings be against this rank injustice our main concern is the welfare of our labor movement and the well-being of our class.

"The way to right wrongs in our opinion is to continue to stay by and in the local union and in the council continue to work, attending meetings, building it up and give it new strength by increasing membership; concentration of the forces and amalgamation and the presentation of a united front to the common enemy, the advocates of the open shop and class collaboration. And while so doing we hold that in time not far distant we shall be vindicated.

Thank Supporters

"On this occasion we take the liberty to thank our respective local unions and individual members whose broad vision impelled them to raise their voice in protest and give us their vote of confidence by sending us back to succeed ourselves in the council and thus vindicate us.

"We thank all those delegates who voted for us and against the violation of the council's rules and decency. We wish to assure those sincere delegates who erroneously voted to unseat us that we bear no ill feelings against them. We are confident that in time you will correct your mistake by upholding your rights and the rights of every one in our labor movement.

"To all local unions and trade unionists who have stood and stand by us and the labor movement we wish to assure them of our hearty appreciation and our loyalty to the labor movement and our class.

Fraternally yours,

"P. K. Mohr, M. Hansen, H. G. Price, J. Havel, William H. Jones and J. C. Carlson."

OPEN SHOPPERS FIGHT THEIR CLASS SCAB

Master Plumbers of Capital Scored

WASHINGTON, May 4.— Because they have failed to obey the ultimatums issued by the union-smashing alliance which was formed by speculative builders, bankers, real estate men and contractors in Washington some months ago, the Master Plumbers' Association of the capital is in disgrace.

A long letter, reciting its record of "stalling," and threatening a boycott of its members by the big builders, has been sent to master plumbers' group by Rufus S. Lusk, executive secretary of the anti-union "fair wage committee." The charge against the master plumbers amounts to one of treason to the employing class.

Lusk came into the open with an accusation that the master plumbers were flirting with the plumbers' union demand that the daily wage be increased from $10 to $11. He said the master plumbers saw in the higher wage a chance to take higher profits, since they take a percentage on the amount of money they handle in connection with any job.

Thus it was evident that the master plumbers were disloyal, greedy and unmindful of the interests of the bosses as a whole, who want wage costs reduced.

Quick Work Saves Worker's Life

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4. — Robert Searcy who narrowly escaped death by being buried alive, was discharged from the city hospital today with nothing worse than a sprained ankle and several bad bruises. Searcy was digging a sewer when the earth caved in and buried him up to his neck. Only the quick work of three men working with him saved his life.

KLAN-CATHOLIC ROW OBSTRUCTS WORKERS' UNITY

Religious Bunk Aids the Open Shoppers

DUBUQUE, Iowa, May 4.—The klan elements here made a feeble back-to-the-wall stand against the newly elected catholic majority on the school board.

About 200 people attended the open session of the board when the catholic majority, 5 out of 7, presented their program.

Cries of "turn the schools over to the pope" and "appoint the priests for teachers," were heard from the crowd.

This stupid fight has deeply affected the Dubuque unions, causing the unionists of this city to be at swords' points and making united action impossible.

Some of these same unionists have taken action to bar Communists from their meeting hall, giving as their excuse that they had also barred the klan, and would be subject to klan-kriticism if they allowed Bolshevik meetings.

Meanwhile the "unfair list" of the Dubuque unions grows continually and the open shop forces become ever more arrogant. Thus do the employers take advantage of religious quarrels and lack of militancy in the ranks of the workers.

Probe Freight Rates on Coal

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The interstate commerce commission today ordered an investigation of the proposal of the Chesapeake and Ohio, Louisville and Nashville and Norfolk and Western railroads to reduce 15 cents per ton the freight rate on coal in carloads from mines in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia to upper Mississippi River crossings, and other points in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

LEVIN GANG MAKES CONVERT TO LEFT WING

Expulsions "Tore Off Mask," Says Worker

By J. Z., Member of Local 144, A.C.W.

As a member of Local 144, Amalgamated Clothing Workers for the last six years, I wish to say that I was always under the impression that our local is different from the others. The officials of our local always boasted that in it free expression is not only allowed, but welcomed, that nobody ever lost his job because of political differences. More, they boasted that ours is an "opposition" local against Levin and company, against all who are unfair.

Is Shocked.

But the last meeting of our local, where two of our best members, Brothers Savanofsky and Rudman, were suspended because they dared to help Local 5 of New York explain its case to the A. C. W. membership by means of a leaflet, has completely shocked me.

And it was not only the suspensions, but the arguments given by our officers! I wish I had the ability to picture the meeting and summarize the arguments and the wild looks of our officials, so that all our members would also awaken.

Here are some of the arguments given for expelling militants from a "revolutionary" union: First, they gave us the usual bunk about "orders from Moscow." "We will not be dictated to by the Workers Party," "disrupters," "agents of the bosses," etc.

The Real Goods.

Then when they got warmed up they came out with the "real goods." Here speaks Spitzer, "President Wilson was a professor and a wise man, I believe he was a great man. When he wanted to defeat Germany he knew that the most effective way was leaflets, and he sent airplanes with proclamations into the enemy's ranks.

"When we used to fight against the bosses and got arrested, we used to take our medicine. Why don't you take yours?

"These people are ridiculous," he continued. "You know what they propose, week-work and the 40-hour week and so on."

Do you see the terrible crime? Naturally they have to be expelled! But greater than all was Rothbord, a man who, when defeated for business agent by the vote of the membership, simply bought his job from another business agent, and here is what he said after, you must remember, that Local No. 5 was prevented from stating its case in the Advance or any other publication of the A. C. W., and after members are taken off the job for distributing their leaflet.

What are the "Union Channels?"

He said: "If anybody wants to criticize the union or its officials he is welcome to do it, but within the channels of the union."

Will someone please explain what are the "channels of the union?" It is not the Amalgamated press. It is not the membership. What is it? Perhaps the membership are only "rascals," as he called the members of Local No. 5. If anyone is dissatisfied he perhaps should go personally to Levin or Hillman, and that will mean the "proper channels."

Vows Allegiance to Left Wing.

True, the members are expelled, but the mask is off of the officials. I, and others as well, who were up till now wavering, am convinced that it is my duty to line up with the left wing elements in our local against the bosses of our union.

I accept the challenge of our vice-chairman who said that they expel the left wingers because they were only a few, a handful, and I will do my bit together with others to see that the lefts shall not be a handful any more in our local.

Unemployed Coal Miners Hear Fred Merrick on May Day

MARIANA, Pa., May 4.—May Day was celebrated at Bentleyville in the hall of the local union of the United Mine Workers of America. Fred Merrick spoke on the present conditions of unemployment in the soft coal fields. Comrade Merrick said the unorganized mines of West Virginia are responsible for the deplorable conditions among the Western Pennsylvania miners. He suggested that the unemployed miners petition their officials to head an army of 100,000 to enter the southern West Virginia coal fields for the purpose of unionizing those fields.

Those present were enthusiastic over the proposition, and will probably take up the matter at the next meeting of the local union.

Street Carmen Ask Raise.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, May 4.—The Street Carmen's Union has demanded more money in the new contract, following a vote taken by the men. The old contract between the union and the street car company has expired.

At Last We Know.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Word from Iowa to progressives in Washington is that Sen. Brookhart has gained 600 votes in the recount in two counties, and his election is considered assured.

Holyoke Thread Mill Workers told of the Williamantic Strike

HOLYOKE, Mass., May 4.—(FP)—The United Textile Workers' Union is conducting an organization drive in this city. Three organizers spoke at a preliminary meeting of the employes of the American Thread Co asking their solidarity with the 2,500 American Thread employes on strike at Willimantic, Conn.

There are several thousand textile workers in this city. Many of those outside of the thread mills are in an independent union but the thread workers are nearly all unaffiliated with organizations.

CHICAGO A. C. W. AGREEMENT IS RENEWED—MAYBE!

But Each Shop Fights for Wage Cuts

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers have renewed the old agreement with the old reservations. The agreement is not yet signed, but committees of the union and the manufacturers recommend that it be accepted. "Adjustments" will be made in many shops.

Sidney Hillman, president of the A. C. W. stated at the Chicago meeting May Day, that the market committee of the bosses had agreed to recommend to the bosses, that the manufacturers accept the old agreement with the understanding that in each shop the bosses take up with the union the matter of "readjustments" pertaining to those shops.

Deal with Bosses Individually.

The union has agreed to take up its own demands, and the demands of the bosses with each individual manufacturer.

In the declaration which was issued by the manufacturers they tell of 21 demands which were made upon the union by the bosses. These demands were not of a general characted, they dealt with individual shops, and the A. C. W. leaders have agreed to take them up in the individual shops. The committee of the bosses therefore agreed to recommend that the old agreement be renewed.

Bosses to Reward Co-operation with Wage Cut.

According to the statement of the manufacturers, they are sure to get reductions in many shops. They praise the leaders of the union for their cooperation up to this date. They are sure that this co-operation will give them opportunity to improve their business. Such is the contents of their statement.

The meeting, held in Ashland Auditorium, opened with the music of the "Star Spangled Banner," instead of the "International," then the "International" was played as a compromise.

Schlossbergian Philosophy.

After the report of Hillman, Schlossberg spoke on the subject of the First of May, but somehow forgot to mention, in his long discourse which covered most of the globe, the existence of the Soviet Republic of Russia. But he pleaded for unity, reminding the workers of the past activities of the union, its support of the steel strike, etc. But upon this record he condoned the expulsions of the militant members who wish to continue such solidarity in the future. He ended with a benediction that God might bless the Chicago garment workers.

Striking Carpenters in East Liverpool Hear Red Message

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, May 4.—Many of the members of the Carpenters' Union here, who are now on strike demanding a two dollar a day increase in wages, came to the May Day meeting held yesterday by the Workers (Communist) Party in the Trades and Labor Hall. J. A. Hamilton, the principal speaker, described the fight of the left wing within the carpenters' union against the bureaucratic class-collaboration officials of the union.

During the DAILY WORKER distribution week, May 4 to 10, members of the Workers Party will distribute DAILY WORKERS to the picketing carpenters. They are on strike for $12.00 per day.

Charles Nichols, member of the strike committee of the carpenters will supply the DAILY WORKER with the news of the progress of the strike.

Let the Rubber Trust Run Yale University, Is Word of Trustees

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(FP)—Because he is a magnate of big business, being active in the rubber trust, copper trust, public utility trust and the National City (Standard Oil) bank of New York, Nicholas Brady, Yale '99, is being pushed among the alumni for membership on the Yale board of trustees.

"You will agree that from a financial standpoint Yale University now has to be run very much like a big business," A. G. McIlwaine, Jr., tells his class mates in boosting Brady for the job.

MAY DAY MEET IN MILWAUKEE GREAT SUCCESS

Factory Toilers Reached Thru Noon Meetings

MILWAUKEE, (By Mail). — The May Day meeting of the Workers Party here was a great success. The workers filled the Freie Gemeinde Hall to overflowing to listen to the revolutionary singing and the speeches by Tom Bell and Max Bedacht of the Workers Party.

The success of the meeting is a tribute to the vitality of the party in this city. The socialist party was unable to hold a meeting even tho Milwaukee is called a "socialist city" because renegade socialists like Hoan are in the city government.

The party here not only held a huge mass meeting but also utilised the occasion of May Day as a day in which to approach the workers in the great industrial plants of this city with the message of labor unity. All available members were on the job at the factory gates in the morning distributing May Day leaflets and leaflets announcing the Workers Party meeting in the evening.

Noon hour meetings were held at many factory gates notably at the International Harvester Co., and the Seamen Car Body corporation. At these two plants hundreds of workers gathered to hear the speakers in spite of the amusements provided by the bosses, such as horseshoe throwing. The straw bosses were active among the workers to prevent them standing listening to the speakers.

In the International Harvester Co. plant wages are as low as forty and forty-five cents an hour. Few if any of the workers are organized, and the company has formed "social" affairs to distract the attention of the workers from the burning needs of organization.

The socialist party and the socialist labor party did not attempt to reach the workers in the factories. Possibly they could not locate their few members to do the work. Certainly the socialist renegades in the city hall are not interested in reaching the workers with the message of struggle against capitalism.

MILWAUKEE, (By Mail). — The May Day celebration of the Milwaukee local of the Amalgamated Clothing workers of America showed to what depths the reactionary leadership of that organization is pushing the organization in the working out of the policy of co-operation with the bosses. In spite of the fact that the Milwaukee local of the Workers Party offered the business agent of the Amalgamated the services of a speaker he declined the offer and selected as speaker a catholic priest—a professor at the catholic seminary of St. Francis. As between a working class speaker and a representative of the church which is one of the greatest weapons against the working class the Hillman business agent chose the priest.

The priest praised Hillman highly. Particularly did he laud him because of his policy of using the strike weapon only as a last resort, and his declaration that the Amalgamated members would shoulder the burdens of the clothing industry. How far Hillman has gone in abandoning whatever militant policies he once had can only be measured in light of this testimonial from the priest.

The ideals of the Amalgamated, stated the reverend gent., consist in collective bargaining with the bosses; standards of production; unemployment insurence; and the Amalgamated banks. These things which have turned the Amalgamated from a militant organization into an organization as "safe and sane" as any to be found in the A. F. of L. constitute the great achievements of the Amalgamated, according to the priest. In these things the Amalgamated can be sure of the co-operation of the catholic church.

Among the members of the Amalgamated present at the meeting much dissatisfaction was expressed with the audacity of the officials in allowing a priest to speak at their May Day meeting. The members of the Workers Party saw to it that the workers received invitations to attend the May Day meeting of the Workers Party so that they could get the rotten taste of the priest's "co-operation between capital and labor" dope out of their mouths.

The speech of the priest and the entertainment of the burlesque show variety made up the May Day clebration of the Amalgamatcd here. Not one note of internationalism was struck. The whole thing was merely the carrying out of a custom which has lost all its significance under the present leadership of the Amalgamated.

Young Communist on Trial.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A member of the Young Workers League participated in the religious ceremonies of last Easter. The comrades of his branch are bringing him to trial for an act not worthy of a Communist. The accused will be tried before an open court, the judge and jury of which will be the audience. All young workers are invited to come to this trial which will be held on Friday, May 8, at the Workers' Hall, 1347 Boston Road.

RECORD MAY DAY CELEBRATION HELD IN NATION'S CAPITAL CITY

By S. R. PEARLMAN.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(By Mail.)—The capital city of the strongest capitalist nation of the world celebrated labor's international holiday more successfully than at any time in the past. The Labor Lyceum was crowded to capacity.

The children of the Junior Young Workers League demonstrated the remarkable progress which that group has made during the past few months. They opened the meeting by appearing in costumes representing various types of workers and sang the International. A group of the children typefied wage slavery by a role which showed them weighed down by chains of bondage. During the evening the youngsters appeared in several tableaux, including an acknowledgement of the significance of May Day. Another tableau showed the workers of the world looking toward Soviet Russia. Philip Shinberg, of the league, recited "A Junior's Call." The entire class closed the meeting by singing the Red Flag. Washington comrades have reason to be proud of the coming generaion.

Comrade Louis Hindes, of Boston, spoke in Jewish and was followed by Comrade S. R. Pearlman, secretary of the C. C. C., who appealed for subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER and to the Workers Monthly. He announced a series of lectures on Leninism to be given by Comrade H. M. Wicks, of Philadelphia, in Washington on May 8, May 15 and May 22.

The principal speaker was Samuel Sclarof, of Philadelphia, who delivered a splendid Communist speech. "Wars are not only possible and probable, but, under capitalism, are inevitable," said Sclarof. "Against militarism and imperialism the workers of the world protest on the First of May."

The speaker ridiculed the slogans of the recent world slaughter, stating that militarism had merely been transfered from Germany to France, to England and even to the United States, Wall Street financiers having been the great victors of the war.

"Morgan and company," said Sclarof, "took advantage of the opportunity to take their pound of flesh from the tortured bodies of European workers." Continuing, the speaker asserted that the states of Central and South America, of West India, and of the Philippines are nothing more than vassals of Wall Street bankers. "American imperialism is rapidly expanding thruout South America," said the speaker. "The revolutionary spirit of the working class must destroy this imperialism before imperialism destroys civilization."

Sclarof stated that Soviet Russia has successfully emerged from blockade, counter-revolution, and civil war and is distinctly on the way to stability while every capitalist country in Europe is on the brink of disaster.

In referring to America the speaker stated that capitalism attacks the militants of the labor movement first. He refered to the prosecution of the Communists in Michigan and cited this as evidence that the ruling class in this country recognizes its real enemies. "The capitalist class, thru its ownership of the schools and the newspapers, utilizes those agencies to poison the minds of the people, but working class solidarity is fast approaching the time when it will accomplish its historic mission as the executor and undertaker of the capitalist system of exploitation," concluded Sclarof amidst vociferous applause.

The collection amounted to $29.35. A motion condemning the throttling of free speech by the United States government in the cases of comrades in the Hawaiian islands was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted.

May Day in the Bronx.

NEW YORK.—(By Mail.)—May Day was fittingly celebrated in the Bronx by an ample supply of detectives of the bomb squad, re-enforced by a large group of policemen, including lieutenants and sergeants.

The night before May Day the Bronx section headquarters at 1347 Boston Road, was visited by two detectives of the bomb squad, who, after asking if we had "any more guns," also where we obtained our May Day leaflets, took those that were there, and after obtaining the names and addresses of the chairmen of the several meetings that were in progress, departed.

All afternoon, May 1, policemen were at the headquarters to prevent any indoor meetings, for they said we could stay there as long as we did not start a meeting.

An open air meeting was held at Prospect avenue and 163rd street. In spite of the drizzly weather, a crowd of several hundred workers was present, also eight policemen, including a lieutenant.

Comrade Nathan Lillienstein acted as chairman and was followed by Comrade Sylvan A. Pollack and William W. Weinstone, who called upon the workers present to rally to the Workers (Communist) Party in their fight against wage cuts, the open shop, religious training in the public schools and for unity with the Negro workers. The case of the Hawaiian Communists was pointed out as an example of the barbarous actions of American imperialism. Organization of shop committees and the slogan of a labor party were proposed as a rallying basis for the workers.

THE VOICE OF LENIN TO BE HEARD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY, MAY 24

Something new and different is being arranged by the Russian branch of the Workers Party for Sunday, May 24, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. It will be a Lenin Evening, with Comrade Nicolai Lenin as the chief speaker. This is no joke, as the talk by Comrade Lenin will be heard from a phonograph record, as well as speeches by Comrade Lunacharsky, Trotsky and others.

Comrade Alexander Chramov, national organizer of the Russian Section W. P., who is touring the United States, will bring the records to Chicago. He will also speak on Lenin as a leader of the masses. A good musical program is also being prepared. Tell your friends about it. Let them listen to the voice of Lenin!

Remember the date, Sunday, May 24, at 1902 W. Division St.

BUSINESSMEN TRY TO STOP STREET MEET

Party Speakers Stick Despite Arrest

It is evident that the Chicago chamber of commerce is inciting the little businessmen and their associations of Chicago to prevent Communist street meetings. The first signal of this campaign was the police raids on the Workers Party meeting at North Ave., and Orchard Saturday night.

Area branch No. 5 of the Y. W. L., and the German and Hungarian branches of the Workers Party started the meeting, with D. E. Earley as speaker. The hardware merchant on the corner called the police who tool Earley to the nearest station under arrest. Sam Hammersmark continued the meeting, altho a patrol wagon of police came up and invited him to stop.

"The merchants here are complaining," said the copper. "Let the workers here take notice and boycott these rats who are trying to suppress free speech," was Hammersmark's challenge. "They make their money from the patronage of the very people in this audience." The audience of 250 cheered, the police were puzzled and after talking about getting a permit and staying around for 30 minutes with the patrol wagon, decided to call it a day. The meeting was very successful.

Lectures in the Bronx.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Dr. Stamler's class in the Principles and Tactics of the Third Intrenational will be resumed Tuesday evening, at Bronx headquarters, 1347 Boston Road, at 8:30 p. m. Students will please come early

VAJTAUER FREED ON BAIL FROM ELLIS ISLAND

Labor Defense Furnishes $2,000

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 4.—Emanuel Vajtauer, editor of the Obrana, has been released on bail of $2,000. Comrade Vajtauer was arrested a few months ago for making a speech in Chicago in which he made a militant defense of Soviet Russia and explained the theory of the proletarian revolution. This was too much for the authorities, who had their spies in the audience. Vajtauer was hailed to court, where his record as a revolutionary in Czecho-Slovakia was brought out in detail. Vajtauer was seized for deportation and was taken to Ellis Island.

The interference of the Labor Defense Council New York section, prevented his immediate deportation—which is a practice of the department of immigration and of the department of labor in these days. For more than two months Comrade Vajtauer has been kept at Ellis Island, where he has spent a great part of the time in the hospital. Conditions on the Island are horrible and only the strongest constitution can resist them.

The Labor Defense Council continued the fight for the release of Comrade Vajtauer, and has succeeded in procuring his release on bail. Comrade Vajtauer, was release on time to appear before the Czecho-Slovakian comrades who were celebrating May Day. He was received with jubilation.

MAY DAY IN LOS ANGELES MARKED BY BIG PARADE

Hundreds Turned Away at Huge Red Rally

By PAUL C. REISS.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS AUGELES, Calif., May 4.—Twenty-three autos, illuminated with red lights, floats, and banners demanding the overthrow of the capitalist class featured the combined May Day and election parade conducted by the Workers (Communist) Party here. The parade, which lasted for one hour, preceded an enthusiastic May Day meeting in the Co-operative Center.

Mother Ella Reeve Bloor spoke and acted as chairman, and Tom Lewis made a brilliant May Day address. Over one thousand persons crowded into the hall, and hundreds were turned away.

Open Air Meeting.

Rose Rubin spoke for the Young Workers' League. The Junior section furnished a Communist ballet and singing.

The collection was over one hundred dollars, and all the May Day buttons were sold. May Day leaflets were distributed.

An open air meeting was held in San Pedro with Saturday evening, with Tom Lewis as the speaker. A splendid crowd was on hand. Altho many detectives were present, there was no serious interference with the meeting.

To Hold Election Parade

On the same night an open air meeting was held in Boyle Heights, with Comrades Levin and Karpiloff as the speakers. William Scheideramn acted as chairman.

Today an open air meeting was held in the Negro district. A big parade will be held on Monday to wind up the Communist election campaign. Edward Harris is the Workers Party candidate for city council in the municipal elections.

Hundreds Turned Away In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., (By Mail)—The May Day celebration here was a tremendous success. Over fifteen hundred workers packed the Lulu Temple, Broad and Spring Garden streets, and many were turned away, unable to get in. Benjamin Gitlow, member of the central executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, made a stirring address.

Arne Swabeck, Pittsburgh district organizer of the Workers Party, described the struggles of the striking steel workers at McKees Rocks and the western Pennsylvania coal miners against the open shop bosses.

Pat Toohey of the Young Workers League and Comrade Kreitzer of the Junior section were the other speakers. Comrade Ray Baker acted as chairman. The meeting was ended with the singing of the International by the entire audience.

Record Meetings In Ohio.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, (By Mail).—Record-breaking May Day demonstrations were held thruout Ohio under the direction of the Workers (Communist) Party.

An especially enthusiastic gathering was held here in Cleveland addressed by J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER; George Papcun, of the Young Workers League, and Alfred Wagenknecht, district organizer. Large numbers of police and detectives helped swell the audience.

The May Day exercises were opened with the singing of the International by the Freiheit chorus. This excellent organization of Communist singers was given a big ovation.

The sledge hammer drill of a group of eight Finnish gymnasts also proved a great attraction. It showed how the spirit of the working class can be carried into this field of activity. Engdahl spoke Sunday at Akron and Canton.

WISCONSIN W. P. IN SUB-DISTRICT CONFERENCE MEET

Performs Much Work and Pledges More

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 4.—The Workers Party has organized its forces in Wisconsin for active party work. An executive committee was elected to organize a state-wide campaign in 1926.

A large number of delegates representing party organizations in Kenosha, Racine, Milwaukee, Sheboygan and surrounding towns met in the sub-district conference in Milwaukee for the purpose of centralizing party activities and a number of very important decisions were made which will lay basis for perfecting a powerful organization in this section of the state and for extending influence and organizations of the party to all important industrial cities of the state.

In order that the decisions of the conference should be effectively carried out the conference elected an executive committee of seven to supervise the work.

Organize Forces for 1926 Campaign.

The report on the election campaign clearly indicated that there is a tremendous field for the extension of the Communist movement. In the last election almost five thousand workers voted for the Communist principles, and at the time when party organization was as yet very weak. Under these circumstances the Workers Party has registered considerable support among the workers and farmers in its first appearance on the ticket in Wisconsin.

The Workers Party was the only party that was able to maintain its ground and give a consistent support for all of its candidates while most of the parties were demoralized by the LaFollette swoop.

The socialist labor party lost over 1,000 votes to LaFollette and the prohibition party over 8,000 votes. The socialist party was out-maneuvered in its splendid maneuvers and compromises with the LaFollette groups. In the last elections the socialist party was very strongly undermined and, even as in Germany von Hindenburg came on the path of socialist compromise, so in Wisconsin the socialist party treachery prepared the way for the rule of a reactionary machine.

The socialist party is rapidly losing in Wisconsin. Following the 1924 campaign the LaFollette illusion is rapidly waning and this leaves the field for the broad extension of the Communist movement. It is of particular importance that the party should strengthen its organization as it is observed that the klan is strengthening it organization among the workers disillusioned with the social democratic traitors.

The conference decided to take an active part in the campaign of 1926, and instructed its executive committee to prepare plans for putting candidates up for all offices in the coming election.

Party Organized for Trade Union Work.

Among other important decisions the conference considered the question of trade union work and after accepting a report on trade union activities delivered by Comrade Prodanich, it was decided to mobilize the entire forces of the party for this work. Comrade Prodanich in his report outlined the important gain made by the party in the trade union activities, but emphasized that so far only a very small proportion of party members are taking part in this important field of activity.

DAILY WORKER Pledged Support.

Comrade Pilachek stressed the importance of the DAILY WORKER as the most powerful weapon of the Communist movement and it was clear that all delegates were conscious of this fact. The conference decided to complete its quota 100 per cent and accepted practical measures for carrying this into effect. The conference also pledged its support to the Red Week devoted to the DAILY WORKER for May 4 and May 9. In order to systematize this work in the future, it was decided that from time to time city DAILY WORKER agents should attend meetings of the sub-district executive committee.

Educational Work.

The report of Comrade Gibson on the importance of educational work and Communist training in Marxism and Leninism was accepted and the conference was fully conscious of the great importance of theoretical training as a prerequisite for Communist activity. The future executive committee was instructed to organize educational work in every city of the sub-district.

Other important questions such as organization of shop nuclei, the Young Workers League and Junior League work were given careful consideration by the conference.

Labor Negro Congress.

Communication from Lovett Fort Whiteman, asking for support of American Negro Labor Congress was read and supplemented by a report of Comrade Minor. Conference decided to give its undivided support to the congress and instructed all city central committees to order calls for the congress. The sub-district already registers considerable success in this work with several prominent Negro trade unionists taking an active part in the organizational work.

Over $10,000 Contributed to International Workers' Aid.

Comrade Cora Meyer reported for Local Milwaukee that over $10,000 was sent to the national office for relief work and that every moving picture issued by the organization was shown in Milwaukee. Other cities also reported that much work has been done in the field of international workers' relief.

Comrade Abern, district organizer, reported on party activities and urged the Bolshevization of the party on the basis of:

1. Intensification of the T. U. E. L. work.
2. Reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei.
3. Organization of the party in homogeneous organization.
4. A united front on the basis of concrete struggles of today.

JOHN REED JUNIOR GROUP TO HAVE BIG NIGHT MAY 23. ARE YOU COMING?

Tell it to the kids! No, it ain't about a circus, but the surprise affair that is being arranged by the John Reed Junior Group. They promise an interesting evening on Sat., May 23, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. They won't tell what they are going to pull off, but they assure that it will be a real surprise, dance, and a good time in general. So don't forget, tell it to the kids!

LOS ANGELES ELECTION FIGHT DRAWS WORKERS TO THE COMMUNISTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 4.—The Los Angeles election campaign is proving to be a great success in rallying workers to hear the message of Communism put forth by the Workers (Communist) Party.

Last Wednesday evening's campaign meeting turned out to be a mass demonstration on the streets of Los Angeles by thousands of workers who gave a tremendous ovation to the Communist speakers Mother Bloor and Comrade Globerman.

Streets were crowded from curb to curb and above the crowds the party banners told in bold big letters the slogans of the Workers Party while red fire lit up the faces of the packed throng who cheered enthusiastically the message of proletarian revolution and the example of Soviet Russia.

At San Pedro harbor the following night the largest open air meeting held for years, at which were gathered many of the I. W. W. Marine Transport Workers' Union actively assisting to make the meeting a success, was addressed by Comrades Stevenson and Mother Bloor.

LIKE TWO ARMS TO A BODY

The Daily Worker is the powerful right arm.

In it, for the busy worker, the world of labor is reflected briefly, clearly and, in addition to a world view of Communist activity, with articles that add further light to each step of labor.

Like the left arm to a fighting body is the Workers Monthly.

Here, each month, not only are the outstanding events brought to the worker's attention and made more attractive by photographs and cartoons of leading artists, but also—

The theoretical background that leads to a better understanding is supplied by the outstanding writers in the American and world Communist movements.

Both are essential. Both are official organs of the Workers (Communist) Party. To make both possible in

JAPANESE PRESS SEES MENACE IN HAWAIIAN 'WAR'

Imperialist Clash Is Foreseen by All

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Japan, May 4.—The Japanese conservative press, which is the mouthpiece of the Japanese imperialists whose interests conflict with American imperialism in the fight for robbery of China, sees a menace to their aims, in the Pacific in the maneuvers of the American fleets in Hawaii.

The Chugai Shogyo, the paper of Japanese big business declares, "The American naval maneuver plan is boldly provocative against Japan. The fleet will visit Australia for the secret purpose of conducting further maneuvers in conjunction with the Australian fleet. The visit of the American fleet to the Australian fleet is a great menace to this nation."

"As a result of the maneuvers, further fortifications of Hawaii are to be recommended to congress, American dispatches state. America seems to intend to disturb the peace of the Pacific by strengthening her forts."

The Tokio Kokumin and other papers representing Japanese business interests take the same view, declaring that the Hawaiian maneuvers are a sign of "the ill-will of the American government toward Japan."

New York Public Service Workers Aid Irish Relief

NEW YORK CITY, May 4.—At the last membership meeting of the Amalgamated Public Service Workers' Union, Nicholas Rose was elected to represent that union at the New York Volkszeitung conference, and Patrick J. McClellan and James S. Holland elected to represent them at the conference for the relief of the Irish workers and peasants.

A motion pledging support to our fellow-workers in the famine area of Ireland was unanimously adopted—also a resolution pledging our continued support to the New York Volkszeitung was passed unanimously.

An assessment of 25 cents per member for the purpose of aiding the famine stricken Irish workers and peasants and for the press fund of the New Yorker Volkszeitung was unanimously passed.

Governor of Gag Law State Gives Detective Fat Job

LANSING, Mich., May 4—Governor Alex J. Groesbeck announced the appointment of Alan G. Straight as commissioner of the department of public safety to succeed Harry H. Jackson who recently became warden of Jackson prison.

Straight at present is attached to the Detroit United States secret service staff.

SCIENTISTS CONDEMN AS GRAVE PUBLIC DANGER THE STANDARD OIL'S USE OF "LOONEY GAS"

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Ethyl Gasoline corporation, backed by Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Motors corporation and the Du Pont interests is in for more condemnation as a danger to the nation's health.

A forthcoming report of the scientists at Columbia University who have been investigating the "looney gas" fuel for the Ethyl corporation will condemn it as a "menace to public health."

Cannot Control It.

This rebuke to the corporation, soon to come, follows a disaster to two research men who were experimenting with the fluid in the university laboratories.

Both Dr. Frederick B. Flinn, assistant professor of physiology and his assistant, Miss A. Tarkton, were overcome with lead poisoning altho "every conceivable" precaution had been taken.

Kept on Making It.

The Ethyl Gasoline corporation has continued to manufacture the dangerous motor power that increased automobile efficiency thru reducing the knocking of engines—but an efficiency at the price of public health.

The ethyl fluid has been repeatedly denounced by prominent scientists since the deaths of 11 workers in laboratories in Bayway, Wilmington and Dayton drew the world's attention to it. The last and most sensational expose was brot by Dr. Yandell Henderson of Yale University. But the firm has stood pat on the clean bill of health given it by the U. S. bureau of mines, in a report which it has since admitted it helped to finance.

Declared a Public Menace.

Wording of the Columbia report is awaited with great interest. Dr. Henderson declared the tetraethyl lead treated gasoline issue was the biggest public health issue before America, that unless the corporation's plans were halted vast numbers of Americans would get lead poisoning from breathing the fumes of passing automobiles using the new fuel.

Governor Vetoes Klan Bill to Dope School Children

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 4—The bible bill, passed by the Ohio legislature, which would have made the daily reading of the bible in the public schools compulsory, was vetoed by Governor Donahey, on the ground that "it opposes the principles of civil and religious liberty of our government." Donahey, however, recently sponsored the drive against radical college professors.

The bill was supported by the ku klux klan.

HOOVER HELPS WALL STREET IN NEW TRADE WAR

Uses Government to Preach Higher Sway

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover, whose government department has been made the efficiency and service office of Wall Street imperialism has openly enlisted the government in behalf of the struggle of these financiers to wrest domination of the world's trade from England.

In line with the propaganda being spread by Vice-President Charles Dawes, General John Pershing, and leading American capitalists, Hoover urged exporters to provide more adequate distribution and selling methods. "American exporters are losing millions of dollars annually," Hoover said, "thru ineffective distribution and selling methods."

Hoover knows that he is being retained in the cabinet for the sole purpose of serving the financiers, and he is continually seeking out ways to turn the government to their interests.

Hoover made a plea for more intensive exploitation by American capitalists of the South American markets, and warned that European competitors are offering sharp competition in this field.

Hoover has admitted that his statements are part of a campaign of the capitalists to find an outlet for their surplus products.

Yesterday They Cried for His Blood, Love Him Now as Red Foe

WASHINGTON, May 6—(FP)—Mrs. Potts, head of the local Daughters of 1812 and chairman of the patriotic council, created by a score of superpatriot organizations last year to crush radicalism in the national capital, has come out for Hindenburg.

In a press interview she says the women of Germany voted for Hindenburg because they stand for orderly government and against Bolshevism and radicalism. The inference is given by her remarks, that patriotic women everywhere are against the things that Hindenburg opposes.

Spokesmen for middle class women's clubs expressed confidence that Hindenburg would establish "orderly" conditions in Germany.

DAILY WORKER DRIVE IN EAST ROUSES IRE OF THE SOCIALISTS

READING, Pa., May 4.—The success of the campaign we are conducting for increasing the circulation of the DAILY WORKER can best be judged from an item which has appeared in the yellow socialist sheet, the Reading, Pa. Advocate. with a headline in big display caps "NOT A SOCIALIST PAPER" the following item is set in a double column box:

"The attention of the Advocate has been called to the fact that a number of registered socialists have been placed upon the mailing list of the DAILY WORKER, a newspaper published in Chicago. Certain articles appearing in the WORKER have a socialist tinge, altho the general policy of the paper is one of antagonism to the socialist party. For the information of Reading socialists, it is well to state that the DAILY WORKER is a Communist paper and has no connection whatever with the socialist party. The fact that free papers are being sent to a large number of socialists in this city can be explained only as an effort on the part of the Communist forces to gain favor with the radicals of Reading at the expense of the socialist party."

The copies of the DAILY WORKER referred to in the article were sent to a large list of workers in Philadelphia. The comrades reported seeing the paper in their shops and the workers reading and discussing the paper. This week a committee of four appointed for the job is canvassing those who received the sample copies and we expect good results.

"Impartial" Machine of Arbitration Has Test in New York

NEW YORK, May 4.—The "impartial" arbitration machinery set up by the employers and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in the cloak industry is receiving a sharp test at the hearings of the union's charges against the firm of R. Sadowsky, cloak manufactures.

This firm is charged with violating their agreement in several fundamental respects: It is accused of receiving work from non-union shops; of sending work to sub-manufacturers when its own contracting shops were not busy and with failing to divide work evenly among union members.

In former times a strike might have been called. Now the procedure is arbitration. The hearings are being conducted before "impartional" Chairman Raymond V. Ingersoll.

Girl Models Organize for Better Conditions and Less Lurid Lies

NEW YORK, May 4.—Models in fashionable Fifth avenue shops, New York, are organizing to better their working conditions and prove to the world that they do work hard and earn their wages. Dorothea M. Pensel is the originator of the idea which brought the Fifth Avenue Model Association into being.

The girls' reasons for organizing, aside from improving working conditions, are to "tell the world" that sensational magazine stories about them are wrong; that models are home girls and don't marry millionaires; that they are not jazz mad and gold diggers; and that they are "serious minded business girls."

There are about 600 models in New York and 1,000 who work occasionally as models.

Anti-Klansmen in Control of Herrin Supervisor's Board

MARION, Ill., May 4—Williamson county scored another victory over the klan with the decision of Judge John C. Gowan who ruled in favor of Robert Deaton, anti-klan candidate, who contested the assistant supervisor seat to which A. M. Garrison, klan candidate, was at first declared elected. A recount gave Deaton a majority of thirteen votes and placed the county board in control of the anti-klan forces.

SCAB DRIVER UNION LEADER WANTS SUBSIDY

But He Wants to Call It a "Wage Bonus"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 3.—T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the shipping board and former head of the International Longshoremen's Association, has joined the administration's ship subsidy propaganda drive. He offers a scheme for federal subsidy under the name of "wage bonus."

His excuse is the statement, which has been disproven by Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's Union of America, whenever it has been made before a committee of congress, that American ships have a higher labor cost than do foreign ships. Furuseth has repeatedly demonstrated that this is a falsehood kept going by the anti-union shipowners.

American seamen demand higher wages per capita than do seamen of some of the other maritime nations, but they perform more work per dollar of wages than do foreign seamen, except Asiatic coolies.

On the basis of this false representation of the demands of American seamen, O'Connor proposes that a wage bonus be paid the shipowners by the federal treasury.

Some years ago O'Connor testified before the Cooper committee in the house that he had turned [illegible] payment funds to maintain the anti-union employment offices on the Pacific coast that were used to break a strike.

One-Man Car, Open Shop Scheme, Kills Many in Accidents

NEWARK, N. J., May 5.—Twenty persons were injured today when a trolley car of the one-man type, speeding beyond control down a steep hill, left the tracks and crashed into a telegraph pole. The injured were taken to hospitals.

A head-on collision between the car and a motor truck at the top of the incline sent the light trolley car careening down the hill. The one-man type of car, which the utility companies have put into effect to reduce the size of the payroll, is responsible for many accidents. The motorman also acts as conductor. Thus the copany cuts in half the working force, the car workers doing twice as much work for the same pay.

Hands Off Soviet Russia!

When A. Mitchell Palmer, the quaker, was the attorney general of the United States, the upsweep of mass discontent which followed the war for "democracy" savagely persecuted and opened the way for the open shop drive and the wholesale wage cuts of the era in which the capitalist class was preparing for "normalcy."

The fact that in the British cabinet, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, raises an alarmist voice against the "red peril" in true duplication of Palmer's melodramatic style of preluding illegal sorties upon some workers' organisation with sensational warnings against the Bolshevik "menace" which filled acres of space in the capitalist press, is an example of international Palmerism which has a grave meaning to the world proletariat.

The "democratic pacifist" era is decidedly ended. The reactionaries, having persuaded the socialists to do the dirty work of making the world proletariat accept the Dawes plan, have neatly cut their throats in England, France and Germany, and now are arrogantly challenging their own workers while showing signs of again beginning armed war upon Soviet Russia.

The fact that the ministers of England, France, Italy and the United States, called in a body at the foreign offices in Belgrade and Sofia, and compelled these two Balkan governments to unite with each other and with these great capitalist powers to fight upon Bolshevism, and to begin the assault with an unparalleled massacre of Communists and other workers and peasants, is a declaration of war upon the working class of the world.

The further proof, if any were needed, of an international conspiracy of the capitalist governments to open a murderous attack on the world proletariat, is seen in the hitherto unprecedented search for, arrest and deportation back to the clutches of the Bulgarian white guard of Bulgarian refugees in Germany, Turkey and other countries, at the behest of the great capitalist powers.

The powers of international reaction are undoubtedly preparing another war upon Soviet Russia, and the barrage of silly lies about "plots from Moscow" and a new campaign of utter falsehood about the economic situation in Russia, runs arm in arm with the murderous attacks upon the working class organizations of western Europe. Soviet Russia has need to look to its defense. And the world's workers outside Soviet Russia have the duty of saying in stern tones: "Hands off the workers' and peasants' republic!"

Friendly Advice

The New York police raided the headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party in that city last week, confiscated some literature and drove those who were present out into the streets. The Milwaukee Leader thinks the police were foolish, tho it admits that the Communists are lawless people, who deserve nothing better from the capitalist thugs. The point is that this policy of breaking up Communist meetings is bad—for the capitalists. This is the way Victor Berger, socialist, looks at it.

In an editorial entitled, "Witless Suppression," Berger's paper advises the capitalists to let the Communists hold their meetings without interference lest their sufferings excite the sympathy of the workers. "Another thing," declares the Leader, "if our ruling class wants to kill off the Communist movement entirely, let it exercise better judgment in its attitude towards the workers and refrain from embittering them. The ruling class ought to have enough sense to stop its anti-union policy and come out wholeheartedly for universal collective bargaining. This would smooth the edges of the class struggle and make for the peaceful evolution of society."

No doubt the capitalists will appreciate this friendly advice from the socialist bufoon, Victor Berger. The employers are not even urged to drop an extra meatbone at their slaves in the name of sweet charity, but in order to avert the growth of the Communist movement.

How many people would believe, ten years ago, that the socialists of all countries would become the most loyal allies of the capitalists and the most dangerous enemies of the workers? But such is the case. The few who still flourish in America under the old name have thrown off the old camouflage, just as they have done in every country in Europe. If there are honest proletarian rebels in the socialist party of Milwaukee, the Leader editorial of May 2 should completely disillusion them, unless they are as bankrupt in intelligence as Victor Berger is in political morals.

Unemployment and Suicide

The news dispatches reveal that unemployment is so terrible in Austria, that on May Day alone 19 jobless workers committed suicide.

The same tendency is to be noticed among the unorganized, unenlightened workers in this and other countries when overtaken by the miseries piled upon them by capitalism.

Yet this "way out" is seldom chosen by the worker organized in unions, and never will a revolutionist choose such methods of escape from capitalism.

The unionist has learned, however vaguely, the lesson of collective struggle and instinctively looks to the organization of which he is a member to save him from extreme privation. The revolutionist, the most optimistic of humankind, puts aside the despair which overcomes the unenlightened worker, and merely as a matter of course adopts the attitude of struggle together with his fellows against capitalism for a betterment of conditions.

Suicide is for those who believe in the permanence of capitalism, who are convinced that its contradictions have no solution, that the rule of the exploiters cannot be questioned, modified or ended, and that their position as its victims is a hopeless maze of misery from which there is no escape but self-murder.

The revolutionist, with his knowledge that capitalism is not only doomed to ultimate overthrow by the conscious effort of himself and his class, but that its rapacious demands for more profits at the expense of the workers can be modified, and the miseries of the workers alleviated by the workers uniting themselves for militant conflict, chooses instinctively the path of struggle against conditions. He "takes arms against this sea of troubles, and by opposing, ends them."

The revolutionist confronting the hunger and misery of unemployment is a man of action. He does not see the swarms of other unemployed workers as his rivals quarrelling over a chance job, but the material for organized demonstrative protest against the capitalist class and its governmental instrument. He sees in them his comrades in the overthrowal of capitalism, his army of discontent which it is his duty to mobilize into an army of protest that demands work at good wages or maintenance by the capitalist government.

Let the unemployed worker take notice that his misery is common to that of his class, that by unity and struggle they can be relieved, and by revolutionary struggle of the masses they can and will be ended. The capitalist class looks upon the unorganized and hopeless masses of starving unemployed with a sniff of indifference. But if they organize and are revolutionary in action, ah, the case is quite different.

Moral: If you must die, die fighting for something.

When Bank Meets Bunk

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, resents an editorial published in a recent issue of the Chicago Tribune, which stated that "Fitzpatrick and a committee of his federation is at Springfield to see that any traction legislation that may pass shall have a referendum clause attached." The Tribune editorial to which Fitzpatrick objects is entitled "bunk" and no doubt the editorial is entirely worthy of the title.

In an open letter to the Tribune, the president of the Chicago Federation of Labor denies the allegation and asks: "Why not try and set a good example by stating facts and the truth and not always resort to lying, vicious distortion and misrepresentation?" A proper question. But—

On the very page of the Federation News that carries Fitzpatrick's open letter to the Tribune is a fake story, entitled "Reds for Reaction." The material out of which this story was fabricated was obviously taken from the Chicago Tribune, or some other equally lying capitalist paper. The Communists are charged with being tools of Hindenburg in Germany, even tho the most unintelligent and ignorant of editors knows that there are thousands of Communists in prison in Europe, and that German Communists are being tried for treason to the government of the Hindenburgs.

Fitzpatrick should write an open letter to the official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor and urge that publication to observe some of the ordinary rules of newspaper decency. Only recently the Federation News published a yarn about a large sum of money received from Moscow by the American Communists. The story originally appeared in the Chicago Tribune. The editor of the Federation News did not want to handle the fake, but Edward Nockels, official business manager of the paper and secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, is reported to have insisted on the lying yarn being re-written.

It is only natural that capitalist papers should lie about the workers and their organizations. But something better should be expected from a labor paper, even from a yellow sheet like the Federation News.

"The ants have worked out a Soviet system of social and industrial life that is several millions years older than that of the human race," declares an entomologist. The scientist has committed two crimes: he speaks rather kindly of a Soviet system and he hints that the human race did not begin when Adam lost his rib.

The American minister in Sofia hastens to deny the statements attributed to the three British labor members of parliament who said that the American minister acted in an advisory capacity to the Zankov government. But a diplomatic denial means less than nothing.

INDUSTRY LIMPS AT 77 PER CENT TOTAL CAPACITY

Bankers Use Coue System of Self Kidding

By LELAND OLDS.

Bankers have taken up "new thought" to sustain them in the sickness of the industrial order. This the Chicago Journal of Commerce finds in a St. Louis bank statement that "It will be better to have fair conditions for an extended period than to repeat the violent fluctuations from very good to very bad." The bosses have given up the idea that they can maintain good business and full employment.

Production in the basic industries in March slumped 5 per cent below the high reached in January, according to the federal reserve.

Employment in factories in March was 4 per cent below March, 1924, 11½ per cent below March, 1923, and 21 per cent below March, 1920, according to the U. S. department of labor. Decreases from March, 1924 and from the average of 1923 in important industries were:

Job Decrease	From March '24	From Av. '23
Meat packing	11.7	14.8
Cotton goods	2.2	12.2
Wool goods	4.2	8.1
Men's clothing	9.3	11.0
Iron & Steel	5.3	—
Foundries and machine shops	7.0	19.0
Lumber products	4.4	7.5
Automobile	12.6	2.4
Car bldg & repair	1.0	15.0
Electrical	12.3	10.4

Of the 2,125,000 employes in establishments reporting per cent operation, 1,500,000 were working full time and 625,000 part time. All industry operated about 77 per cent of capacity.

Production of steel, it is now admitted, has been running far ahead of consumption, which cannot average more than about 74 per cent of the present capacity of the industry. Recently orders have been only from 50 per cent to 60 per cent of capacity. Production has fallen to about 77 per cent of capacity compared with over 90 per cent earlier in the year. It will fall further.

"The general picture," says Baker of the Annalist, "is the now familiar one of an overdeveloped productive plant slowing down to match the unequal consuming power of its present markets."

Right! Money continues to go to the investing class that ought to go to the consuming class.

Washington Gets Worried Over Labor's Demand for Pensions

and the unemployable. What would be the situation disclosed in the United States, if a survey were made?

Reactionaries Could Not Deliver High Wages

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor says that the federation is now on record in favor of old age pensions. For many years the conservative element in the federation held out against any form of state aid, insisting that the trade unions should provide wage earners with a wage that would enable them to take care of themselves in old age. This theory did not work out in practice, and so, after years of study by special committees, the convention of 1923 adopted this report:

"The federation endorses the principle of old age pensions for those who have given the best period of their lives to industry in order that they may have sustenance without charity when they are no longer able to work. The officers and executive council of the A. F. of L. are requested to investigate or cause to be investigated the several state constitutions with particular reference to the enactment of appropriate legislation herein contemplated and that consideration be given by the executive council to the preparing and drafting of constitutional amendments or legislative proposals embracing the principle and purpose herein declared for."

El Paso Convention Buried the Subject

Yet in the report of the executive council at the convention of 1924 the whole subject was again obscured.

This El Paso convention was in the nature of a ratification meeting. Few issues were really debated. So the report of the committee that handled this part of the executive council's report was approved without a word of discussion. It concurred in the view that "The problem of old age pensions be made a part of the larger problem of labor insurance."

Old age pensions have become again an issue. The British tories' program, stolen from the labor party, may throw it into practical American politics next year.

DOLLAR LACKEYS WAR ON MAY DAY AT KANSAS CITY

Try to Stir Youth with Fake "Boys' Week"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., (By Mail).—International Boy's Week, April 27 to May 3, celebrated May Day with a patriotic parade of 25,000 youths and as usual the discrimination against the Negro youth excluded them from the parade.

In the evening the national oratorical contest, financed by 30 newspapers, giving total prices of $45,000 for the best property rights interpretation of the constitution by our youth, is holding its final elimination process, the winner to speak before "Cal" Coolidge and "our" supreme court bench-warmers.

This contest with its May Day climax is directed from Washington by the sinister hands of Wall Street interests. At the oratorical contest you found the sleek muddle-class and Kansas retired farmers.

But in the Musicians' Hall the united front of the workers was demonstrated. Not by the well fed big bellied middle class type but by a gathering of brawny workers.

Com. Manuel Gomez, main speaker of the evening in a forceful speech told the workers that May Day was an American contribution to the international labor movement, pointing out that it is not imported as the press would have us believe.

The capitalist lackeys may check the advance of the proletariat for the time being but they can never stem the tide of the oppressed masses, never turn the events backward for the rulers of men are destined to be the workers of the world thru the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Hoover's Lies Fail To Stop Trade With The Soviet Union

development in Siberia, and how readily the Lena basin may be made to yield more than the Klondike and all Alaska in their boom days.

Rich strikes were made in the Aldan region, some 550 miles north east of the Lena district, last year, and a rush of some 5,000 prospectors to the new diggings took place. These men are now at work, and a preliminary estimate puts the resources of the region at 250 tons of the yellow metal. Farther east is the Amur district, whose resources are estimated at three billion dollars, and the Plagovaschensk section of this field is being systematically explored by government experts. A small Anglo-American concession has been located there for three years past.

Hoover Spreads Anti-Soviet Lies

Discussion of whether British and American mining syndicates are going to get the lions' share of the profits from the operation of creating a big gold reserve for the treasury of the Soviet Union is more agreeable, in the commerce department, than its explanation of a new book they have issued, on the international cotton trade. For in this book Hoover's department utterly misrepresents the facts as to Russia's cotton trade with America, just as his department has repeatedly, in the past four years, sabotaged the resumption of Russo-American trade.

Everyone familiar with the American cotton situation knows that the Russian government textile syndicate has bought and shipped from this country about $40,000,000 worth of cotton in the past year. The amount bought between Dec. 13, 1923, and September 30, 1924, was 222,645 bales, for which the Soviet Union agents paid $36,682,000. Yet Hoover's publication, submitted to him for his approval on Jan. 30, 1925, declares that Rusian imports of cotton are negligible. It's the same old Hoover who was furious because his British associates lost their mining properties in the revolution, and who undertook to choke Russia into submission.

Rich Jewel Passers Hit.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The spotlight of publicity was today turned on offenders against the customs laws of the United States when Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. C. Andrews removed the barrier which has for years restrained customs officers from making public details of operations against smugglers. Rich society women who smuggle costly jewels and clothes will be hardest hit by the ruling.

servation is not a part of the territory, and even if the Hawaiian Communist League had been a secret organization, (which it was not) there would have been no violation of section 4214, revised laws of Hawaii, as all acts of the league mentioned in the court martial were on the U. S. military reservation."

The trumped up charges of the spy Fisher would not stand the test of even the perverted civil courts of the bosses in the United States.

"President A Disgrace."

Three charges were placed against Walter Trumbull, and the charges against Crouch were practically identical.

The first charge, read before the court martial, was that Trumbull, "Did orally and publicly use the following disrespectful words against the president of the United States, to wit: 'The president may be all right as an individual, but as an institution he is a disgrace to the whole god damned country.'" Fisher misquoted Trumbull, the latter charges.

Disprove All Charges.

The second charge against Trumbull was divided into three parts. It is charged that Trumbull was a "member of the Hawaiian Communist League, a secret organization having as its object revolutionary Communism, and did persuade Corporal Eugene Fisher (the stool pigeon), to become a member of said secret organization, to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

The evidence presented by Trumbull at the trial showed conclusively that the Hawaiian Communist League was not a secret organization, that the letters were sent to newspapers with the letterheads of the league naming its purposes and officers, and that the stationery was printed in the government's printing office.

It was further shown that Fisher was not admitted to the Communist League, altho he asked to be taken in. Fisher was unable to show evidence that he belonged to the Communist League.

Freely Admits Communism.

The next charge was that Trumbull wrote a letter to the Communist International asking that the Hawaiian Communist League be admitted to that organization.

This letter was freely admitted, and Trumbull reiterated his Communist principles. But no article of war was violated by the expression of Communist ideals. Even in the charge, which at every other point had cited articles of war which were alleged to have been violated, nothing was said about a violation of any specific article of war. The charges simply stated that the letter was written, "to the prejudice and good order of military discipline."

Court "Deliberated" Ten Minutes.

The farce of the entire court martial proceedings was exposed when the "court," after a recess of less than ten minutes, found Trumbull guilty of every charge, and sentenced him to 26 years at hard labor and "dishonorable" discharge from the United States army.

It was obvious that the evidence presented could not have been given the slightest consideration by the court in the ten minutes of its "deliberations."

In violation of the military law, Trumbull was sentenced to be taken to a civil federal prison after his case has been reviewed by the department headquarters. Both Crouch and Trumbull have been sentenced on "charges" and "evidence," that will not hold water in a civil court.

NUCLEUS MEETING BRINGS WORKERS CLOSER TOGETHER

NEW YORK, May 4.—Shop Nucleus No. 11 of New York at its last meeting showed very clearly by its activities that the shop nucleus is the only real Communist form of organization for our party. This nucleus which started with six members now has 13. Of this number 12 were present at the meeting, which is an excellent attendance record and all are paid up and in good standing.

At first one would suppose that no work could be done with the remarkable mixture which made up this nucleus. The comrades included those of the following nationalities: Italian, Jewish, Russian, Czecho-Slovakian, Roumanian and Armenian. Here indeed, it seemed that the foreign language problem presented an insurmountable difficulty. But what happened? The meeting ran along as smoothly as a clock. It was conducted entirely in English. It was surprising the amount of English which the comrades could command when they tried it in the nucleus. Occasionally a Russian comrade would be at a loss to find the right word. But immediately he would be helped out of his difficulty by others who volunteered the right word. Suffice it to say that everyone understood practically all the proceedings and that everyone took part.

The first problem taken up was the question of candidates for membership to the party. Here we did not have the situation which usually takes place in our present branches. Comrades did not come to meetings first and then receive approval. The entire staff of the shop was carefully analyzed and all those suitable for membership in the party were picked out, on the basis of their past record and history. Certain comrades were assigned to follow up those candidates who had been approved, on the basis of language and department. Among the questions asked about each prospective member were the following: What papers does he read? What are his former affiliations? What does he say on political questions? What is his record in the hop? It is very likely that the nucleus will have three times its initial membership before it is very much older.

A motion was then passed to institute a series of lectures in the nucleus so that the comrades should be in close touch with all important party problems.

The comrades are also pushing the DAILY WORKER and the Red Aid subscription lists. Wherever possible they get the sympathisers to work with them on these matters.

The workers in Shop Nucleus No. 11 are very enthusiastic about their work and hope soon after May 1 to launch a campaign for the unionization of the entire shop.

Southern Mob Which Mutilated Salesman Defendants in Trial

WILLIAMSTON, M. C., May 4—The thirty members of the mob alleged to have mutilated Joseph Needleman, a salesman, in Martin county last March, went on trial here today.

Indications pointed to a lengthy legal battle. In that event, solicitor Gilliam declared he would seek removal of the cases against the mob, which also would cause removal of the trial of Needleman, charged with assault upon a young girl here.

The solicitor also planned to send bills against the 30 men charging them with conspiracy to break jail.

Twenty-four of the mob have made detailed confessions of their participation in the attack on Needleman. The men are not expected to be convicted.

RED SOLDIER [illegible] S. ARMY AT HAWAII WR[illegible] VIEWS ON 40 YEAR COURT MARTIAL SENTENCE

Paul Crouch, Communist soldier sentenced to 40 years in prison for organizing the Hawaiian Communist League, is being held in the 27th infantry guard house, at Schofield Barracks, deprived of the usual prison privileges, and uncertain as to what his future shall be.

In the following letter written by Crouch, which has come into possession of the DAILY WORKER, Crouch tells how he and his fellow soldiers were spied upon and framed up by a professional stoolpigeon sent out by the government.

Crouch tells how the newspapers are allowed to print lies about his statements, and the military authorities refuse to permit him to answer them—how the "evidence" against him was manufactured and how "news dispatches" from Washington carry on the lieing propaganda against the little band of Hawaiian red soldiers.

The letter follows:

"Walter M. Trumbull and I remain in prison while army authorities are trying to find out what to do with their mistake—the outrageous illegal sentences given us when we were true to the interests of the working class

"It is not pleasant to be under a forty year sentence, yet when one can face it with the knowledge that his only "crime" is devotion to Communism, it is better than to be one who has been a traitor to the workers—one of the Abramovich type.

"My personal treatment has been much better since our trials and my health is improving but Comrade Trumbull and I are not permitted ordinary individual rights such as permission to see our friends, or write or talk for publication. Newspapers in Hawaii print false statements about us and we cannot deny them.

"For Convenience of Government."

"Trumbull and I are the only political prisoners in Hawaii who have not been released, tho Creque is said to be 'arrested in quarters.' Corporal Eberts, Creque and Domagalski are to be discharged 'for the convenience of the government' and Comrade Widean is expected to be 'fired'—for 'the good of the service.' Probably Ebert, Creque, Domagalski and Nadeau will be sent back to the mainland for discharge on the next transport.

Sentences Illegal.

"The sentences of Trumbull and I are illegal, according to the 42nd article of war, no soldier can be sent to a federal civil prison by a court martial (excepting a few specified cases) unless the crime is punishable by imprisonment for one year or more by civil law thruout the continental United States (or words to that effect). And according to accepted military law, no one is subject to state or territorial law for his conduct on a military reservation, especially in so far as political matters are concerned.

"Politically speaking, the military reservation is not part of the territory and even if the Hawaiian Communist League had been a secret organization (which it was not) there would have been no violation of section 4214, revised laws of Hawaii, as all acts of the league mentioned in the court martial were on the U. S. military reservations.

Misquoted by Press.

"What constitutes a secret society? Even Corporal Fisher, with his perjured testimony, said the league held its 'secret' meetings in the squad room, that there were no pass words, no ritual—nothing, in fact, that is supposed to make a secret society.

"Please do not believe all that the Honolulu papers say about the case. I am misquoted several times regarding testimony at Trumbull's trial, and I am not a graduate of the University of Deleware.

A Deliberate Frame-Up.

"Trumbull and I are victims of a deliberate frame-up. The following remark was made to Creque by Lieutenant Colonel John B. Murphy, assistant chief of staff, G-2, Hawaiian division: 'I would like to convict you, Creque, but I haven't the evidence to take you before a court martial and do it.' (Evidence was manufactured against Trumbull and me.) Some time

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

TWO cruisers and two gunboats fired the royal salute of twenty-one guns when the battleship Repulse, carrying the Prince of Wales, steamed into Table Bay, South Africa. This idea of shooting off gunpowder is a pretty good one. Lots of noise impresses people who do not house a lot of intelligence in their mental garrets. Noise coming from guns is perhaps the most impressive. It can hurt.

WHEN the Prince of Wales landed, he shook hands with the Earl of Athlone, governor general of South Africa. The earl kissed Princess Alice "affectionately," says the report and he smiled at Lady May Cambridge. Premier Hertzog, old republican fire-eater who hated Britain almost as much as an Irish-American undertaker, shooks hands warmly with the prince. There was a royal procession thru the city and the people of Capetown roared themselves hoarse. It is not so very long ago since Britain was shooting British civilization into the people of South Africa. The sound of the guns proves that she can do it again if need be. The kisses and the handshakes mean nothing. You might recollect that the fellow who shot Dean O'Bannion, the notorious Chicago bootlegger, hi-jacker and gunman, first gave him a hearty mitt clasp.

THE Chicago Tribune says that the European May Day is as foreign to us as the May Day of the pagan world, disregarding the historic fact that the idea of universal celebrations by labor on May Day originated in the United States. But whenever facts interfere with the point a capitalist hack writer wishes to make, so much the worse for the facts. The Trib says the workers of this country have nothing in common with the workers of other countries. Unfortunately the majority of the wrokers do not yet believe that they have. But they are learning fast despite the efforts of the Tribune and the capitalist press in general.

WHEN the tories rave, rant and yell in the house of commons, the discord is characterized as simply a "protest." But when the labor representatives shout (those of them who are not too dignified to do so) the reporters refer to the vocal commotion as a "howl." When Winston Churchill, the most notorious political changeling in England, introduced his budget, he aroused the anger of the laborites by his sarcastic remarks at the expense of the unemployed workers who receive the unemployment dole. The labor members resented this insult and demanded that he

BLANKET INJUNCTION ASKED AGAINST UNION MINERS IN W. VIRGINIA

WHEELING, W. Va., May 5—Petition for a blanket injunction to cover 20 mines in the northern Panhandle region of West Virginia has been filed in the United States district court here by operators of non-union properties.

They ask "protection" against union activities by the United Mine Workers of America. The petition was filed last week, but did not become known until today.

POLISH WHITE TERROR GIVES REDS LONG PRISON TERMS, GENERAL WHO KILLED STRIKERS GETS 3 MONTHS

GRODNO, Poland, May 5.—Thirty-four Communists were convicted here of "plotting against the state." One Communist was sentenced to twelve years, three to six years, four to four years, six to three years, and the rest to two and one-half years in prison. Thirty-eight of the 72 Communists who were on trial were acquitted.

At the same time, Gen. Cziekiel, commander of the Cracow garrison, who was convicted in Cracow, Poland, of giving "hasty orders," to fire on striking pickets, was sentenced to only three months in prison. His subordinate officers, who shot down the strikers, killing many, were given only a few days each in prison.

Most of the Communists were sentenced on charges of "spreading propaganda."

ASK IMMEDIATE AID FOR IRISH FAMINE VICTIMS

Chicago to Have Mass Meeting Friday

"Irish distress acute. Starvation not remote. Send us help at once."

This is the message that flashed over the wires yesterday from Helen Crawfurd, secretary of the Workers' International Relief in Britain to the Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, at 19 South Lincon St., Chicago, Ill.

That conditions are getting worse instead of better is the story told in every communication from Irish sources of information.

"Robert Stewart, secretary of the Workers' International Relief in Ireland also cabled yesterday: Following mesage just received from Ardara, Donegal. 'I certify that distress is acute in this district. Am in a position to state positively that in many cases starvation is not very remote. Charles H. Falvey, medical officer.'"

Immediate help must be sent to the workers and peasants in the West of Ireland if they are to be saved from a slow and horrible death as a result of starvation. It is up to the workers to send this help. The bourgeoisie will not do it.

All sections of the International Workers' Aid in the United States are called upon by the secretary of that organization to organize affairs at once to raise funds. Money must be sent immediately. There is no time to be lost. From Berlin, London and Dublin, every mail brings requests for assistance.

Meeting For Famine Relief

Next Friday evening May 8, John P. McCarthy who has recently returned from a visit to the famine region will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting in North Side Turner Hall, 827 North Clark St. The object of the meeting will be to raise funds for relief and to tell the truth about the situation in Ireland. The other speakers will be William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, T. J. O'Flaherty, secretary of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee and Robert Totten, secretary of the Irish Workers' Republican Club.

Besides the speeches there will be Irish scenes. Every reader of the DAILY WORKER is urged to attend this meeting.

SCAB COAL MINE HAS BAD LUCK; CHARGES HOUSES SET AFIRE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WELLSBURG, W. Va., May 5.—Arrests are expected before tonight in connection with the burning of three non-union miners' settlement houses at Hoover Heights near here today, with an estimated loss of $30,000.

O. J. Keyes, superintendent of the West Virginia-Pittsburg Coal company here in a statement declared the fire was of incendiary origin and that three men were seen running from the vicinity of the blaze just before it broke out.

The company's production has been cut from 1,900 to 400 tons daily since the union strike went into effect here, it is said.

CONDUCTORS MAY CRAWFISH FROM A THIRD PARTY

Sheppard Moves That Bob be Ditched

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Min., May 5.—The question of withdrawing from the third party political movement and becoming a neutral political body was faced today by the Order of Railway Conductors of America, holding their thirty-eighth national convention here.

A resolution drafted by L. E. Sheppard, grand president of the order, demanding that the organization formally decide what part it is to play in future political activity was given its first reading before the convention.

As a result, the convention, prior to its adjournment will decide whether the Order of Railway Conductors will withdraw from the third party, indorse and support candidates supposed to be friendly to labor, regardless of what party they belong to, or continue to support and aid in perpetuating the third party, generally recognized as the LaFollette group.

At the present time the order is on record supporting the third party movement.

DETROIT'S MAY DAY A DAY OF REAL ACTION

20,000 Dailies Put Out; Seven Arrests

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., May 5.—May Day in Detroit was a demonstration, not merely of fine sentiment, but of willingness of the members of the Workers (Communist) Party to do party work. No less than 20,000 copies of the DAILY WORKER special edition were distributed, half of them at the Ford plants. In the work seven were arrested.

Five out of the seven arrested were taken from the distribution crew covering the Ford plants, and Bud Reynolds, after being arrested was slugged by the police because he refused, as was his legal right, to answer a volley of questions. He had his nose broken.

Suit is being entered for $10,000 damages and the case will be pressed. It is a Ford factory case and the case will be taken to the Ford workers, as well as to the highest capitalist courts to make the damages stick.

The Way to Work

Everybody was on the job early and plenty of automobiles voluntarily loaned to aid the distributors rushed the bundles and their distributors to the place of work. Nearly all the important shops were covered and both Ford plants used 10,000 between them.

The papers went like hot cakes on a frosty morning. One distributor at the West Side Studebaker plant reports that workers packed around him in crowds waiting for papers, which he handed out as fast as hands could work. Some bundles laying on the ground beside the distributor were seized upon and opened by the Studebaker workers, each carefully carrying away a copy like a treasure.

In the evening the remaining thousand papers were taken to the Ford Highland Park plant. Again the workers stood around and almost tore them from the hands of the distributors, so eager were they to get the only Communist daily paper they had ever seen. The DAILY WORKER is certainly popular with the Ford workers.

Without any special effort, the distributors picked up 33 subscriptions.

Dunne Speaks Sunday

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will speak here next Sunday, May 10, and a large meeting is expected to gather at the House of the Masses to hear him. The meeting will take place at 2 p. m., 2646 St. Aubin.

McKEES ROCKS STRIKERS FORCE COMPANY TO AGREE TO ALL BUT ONE DEMAND; STRIKE CONTINUES

(By IRWIN, Worker Correspondent)

McKEES ROCKS, Pa., May 5.—Once more voicing their determination to win, 3,500 strikers from the Pressed Steel Car company shops at McKees Rocks, Pa., assembled at a mass meeting Monday morning, voted unanimously not to accept the concessions offered by the company because they did not include a guarantee of the reestablishment of the shorter work day.

The concessions offered by the company were—recognition of the workers' committee as a permanent institution and no discrimination against any of the strikers, on the shorter workday, however, it maintained that the nine and a half hour day must remain in force until its present contract is finished on Sept. 26, 1925, with no guarantee of a shorter workday after that date.

Due to a misunderstanding of these concessions offered the men, none of whom belong to a union, had, on the Saturday preceeding, at a smaller meeting by a narrow margin voted to go back to work. But on Monday morning when the real conditions became apparent, these who had returned, hurriedly left the shops again. From this second walk out the men marched directly to the field of the mass meeting.

Firing a Stool Pigeon

The chairman, elected by the strike committee on the first day of its organization, when but few of the men knew one another, had since quite openly admitted intimate aquaintance with the plant superintendents, and showed considerable anxiety about the interests of the company. When he now tried to open the meeting he was told in no uncertain terms where to get off. "We do not want you—you are no good—get the h.... out of there," and a few more epithets were fired at him. He hurried down from the platform.

One committeeman who had good intentions attemped to continue, but made the wrong approach and was told to get down. The men were in an angry mood. At that point Arne Swabeck of the Workers Party, stepped to the platform and was immediately greeted by a storm of applause.

Communists Trusted By Strikers.

The men knew the Communists were on the square, they had watched the tireless activities of the Communists within their own ranks to get this strike organized and get reliable leadership established. The points emphasized for effective conduct of the struggle by Arne Swabeck as well as by J. Otis, also of the Workers Party, found a hearty response.

The strike committee was reorganized and completed. Once more the demands of the strikers were gone over and made more exact, to be presented once more to the company by a smaller sub-committee which was elected. "It is not so much to negotiate with the company," said one of the committeemen, "but rather to tell them, this is what we stand for; what do you say, yes or no?"

The demands as reformulated were: No more than nine hours work a day with half day Saturday or a total of 50 hours a week, reinstatement of all men who had been fired on account of the strike, recognition of the committee and no discrimination against any member thereof or any man participating in the strike, no further wage cuts.

When presenting these demands to the company later during the day, its spokesmen declared that the terms, and particularly the nine-hour day, could not be accepted. They pleaded that it was necessary to enforce the

GERMANY, FACING RUIN, UNABLE TO PAY THE ALLIES

Dawes Payment Burden Placed on Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Germany, May 5.—The German government faces a severe crisis, recent reports show. The heavy Dawes plan reparations payments to the United States and the allies can not be met, the statement of Minister of Finance Schlieben to the reichstag intimates. The report openly declares that the 1926 reparations payments cannot be met. The workers have already been excessively taxed, and the Hindenburg minister's taxation bill, while it increases the tax on beer and tobacco, decreases the tax on high incomes.

When von Hindenburg takes the presidential chair on May 12, he will find the masses of the German workers discontented at the high cost of living, and looking upon the lowered taxes of the capitalists, and the graft of the industrialists with red in their eyes.

That the German bourgeoisie have definitely shifted the burden of the Morgan-Dawes plan to the shoulders of the workers, while they themselves take a hand in the general plundering of the workers, is seen in Schlieben's statement that 700,000,000 of the 1,500,000,000 marks surplus shown by the budget, have been paid over to the Ruhr industrialists. This was to compensate the coal and iron barons for their boycott on the allied occupation of the Ruhr. The workers were laid off in the general shut down, but were paid practically nothing, altho the government paid the industrialists their profits. Another 150,000,000 of the surplus was used to repay loans incurred during the inflation period, Schlieben said, and the rest was used for "operating expenses."

The nationalist papers, which are fighting the Dawes plan so that the German industrialists can get still more graft from the government, declares that the Dawes plan "is impossible of fulfillment."

"I foresee a considerable deficit in 1926 on account of the reparation payments," Schlieben told the reichstag. "The surplus in the 1924 budget was due only to an overstrain of direct taxation and the temporary cessation of reparation payments. As soon as the Dawes payments begin, difficulties in balancing the budget will be imminent."

The railroads, in order to meet the Dawes plan payments, will soon raise their passenger rates 10 per cent, thus placing an added burden on the workers.

France is adding to the burden of the German workers by keeping the army of occupation in Cologne at German expense. France refuses to evacuate, in violation of the Versailles treaty. If France does not remove the troops by August 15, Germany will be exempt from the Dawes plan payments, as the agreement stipulates that no allied military forces are to remain in Germany after that date.

TWO WORKERS BURIED, FOUR HURT IN FALL OF FOUR STORY WALL

Two workers were buried beneath tons of debris, and four others injured when the wall of a four story building under construction just outside the loop collapsed.

Richard Motley, who was working on the building, and another unidentified employe were buried under a huge pile of wreckage.

The other injured are Fred Bremer, Christ Kummerle and Arthur Lorving, workmen, and Miss Mildred Ritz, who was passing the building at the time of the collapse.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, England, May 5—Alanson B. Houghton, millionaire glass manufacturer, director in the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and heavy stockholder in nonunion West Virginia coal mines, warned Europe in his maiden speech as ambassador to Great Britain, that Wall Street wants payments on her loans to Europe.

Houghton, who spoke for the Coolidge government and therefore for the Morgan banking syndicate, speaking in the presence of Premier Baldwin at the Pilgrim's dinner, made it understood that Morgan's money was loaned so that the European governments could put the workers back on the job of producing wealth.

To Curb English Trade.

The money was not loaned for militarism and those he represented did not want a new war in Europe while the bankers' loans were still unpaid.

Germany's election of Hindenburg as president must not be made the excuse for the gouging of Germany by the allies outside the provisions of the Dawes plan—America wants a share of all tribute taken from Germany, that was the warning hidden within the sermon delivered by Houghton.

Must Pay Morgan.

France and England must make ready to pay her war debts to America, and France must obey Coolidge's call for a new "arms conference," whether she likes it or not. These are the conditions on which the Morgan bankers are willing to continue pouring gold into Europe. Of course it is understood that a high rate of interest and trade concessions to America are, as before, a part of the arrangement.

War Clouds Gathered.

Houghton's reminder to England and France, as well as the smaller European countries, that the United States government and the Morgan bankers control Europe's finances, comes at a time when signs of another war are apparent. The Balkan countries, controlled by fascists, are at the same time that they murdered and tortured the workers within their borders bickering for the extension of their territory.

England has just established the gold standard, with the aid of a $200,000,000 loan from the federal reserve bank and a $100,000,000 loan from the House of Morgan.

Morgan Grips Europe.

Morgan has a grip on practically every country of Europe, thru the loans of hundreds of millions of dollars to France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Poland, England, and many of the smaller countries.

France is struggling with wrecked finances, and Germany is faced with a load of debt and inability to meet the Dawes plan payments.

Morgan, Coolidge and company will tighten the purse strings if these countries do not concentrate their efforts toward paying their debts. Thus the two-fold purpose is served of curbing the imperialistic aims of the European powers, and receiving the payments on foreign debts.

Negro Paper Prints Communist Statement on United Front

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 5.—The response of the Negro workers to the call of the Workers (Communist) Party for a united front of both white and Negro workers against attempts of the United States government to destroy mass organizations of the Negro workers, is demonstrated by the reprinting of the Communist statement in the Negro press.

The Pittsburgh American, one of the leading Negro newspapers, prints the statement of the central executive committee of the Workers Party in full on the front page.

The Workers Party statement points out that altho Marcus Garvey has refused to fight for the oppressed masses of the Negro workers, both for their rights in the trade unions and against the peonage of the Negro agricultural workers, and has refused to take a stand against the ku klux klan, yet the attack of the United States government against the Universal Negro Improvement Association is an attack against the right of the Negro workers to organize.

The statement calls for a united front of Negro and white workers against this attack of the government, backed by the exploiters who see in the unorganized Negro a cheap labor supply, upon their right to organize to fight for better conditions and full equality.

Out Again.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 5.—Mrs. Mary Shank, who was convicted and imprisoned six months ago for participating in the tarring and feathering given Dorothy Grandon, 20, at Myersville, Mr., was paroled today by Governor Ritchie. She had served six months of a nine months' sentence.

Red Soldier Writes from Prison

before our trials, the president (law member) of my court martial spoke of me as a dangerous character and said Esperanto is used by 'Bolsheviks' for propaganda purposes. Corporal Fisher said Lt. Col. Murphy told him to use any means to get evidence against me that might seem desirable.

Lies of Kept Press.

"The Star-Bulletin, Honolulu, of April 4, in a long editorial—'The Crouch Case,' said among other things:

"'The echo of the Crouch case at Schofield Barracks will be heard from Washington to Moscow.'

"'The majority of the plentiful "pinks" and "reds" in America are merely such because they're just naturally agin' the government; and the high-sounding, sonorous phrases of the Trotskys and the Kameneffs and the Chitcherins sound like good and handy stuff to get off at a meeting of the BROTHER SLAVES.' (Caps mine.)

"'Forty years at hard labor is something that no Communist, however sincere and enthusiastic, can look forward to with pleasure.'

"'And this 40-year sentence is bound to attract not merely national and international attention. It is likely to start another case which will make as much noise as that of Sacco and Vanzetti. All Communist Russia was stirred up about that, and still is.'

"'All the "reds" and "pinks" in the United States and many other people will want a congressional investigation to determine whether Crouch is an agent of Zinoviev and Zinoviev's pet, the Third International, or merely an ill-balanced sealot who picked the army instead of a stump or a soap-box to "sound off" on the familiar subject of the proletariat.'

Intelligent Support of Capitalism.

"In an editorial entitled: 'More Echoes—and Rumblings,' the Star-Bulletin (April 10) says:

"'The Star-Bulletin has printed fully the charges against both these men, and their offenses—apparently have not gone beyond Communistic agitation and an effort to form a little Bolshevik "circle" at Schofield.'

"'On the face of the charges and on the testimony as published, sentences which amount to life imprisonment will make martyrs out of ill-balanced and demagogic propagandists.'

"'These men are propagandists and agitators, and Crouch at least seems to be shrewd and perfectly well aware of what he was doing. Obviously, the agitation could not be permitted to continue.'

"All this means that the Star-Bulletin is a more intelligent supporter of capitalism than court martial—not that they are sorry for us. I expect no true sympathy from capitalistic sources.

"The Honolulu Advertiser has had but little to say about our case. The editor is said to be a personal friend of Lt. Col. Murphy.

Likes Daily Worker.

"We would appreciate any radical literature and magazines. I am receiving the DAILY WORKER and every copy, with its news of victories of the working class, is read and reread with pleasure by us.

Asks for Letters.

"Comrade Trumbull and I would welcome letters from any comrades who care to write to us. Letters to us are not censored at present, and, at last, mail is reaching us with little delay.

"We receive equal treatment with other prisoners who have long sentences and we have about the same work as the others.

"Comrade Trumbull and I are in the same 'guardhouse' (27th Infantry.)

Cannot Be Bribed.

"Comrade Trumbull requests that I inform you that he still believes that 'only Communism can free the working class and nothing can change my opinion. Communism, only, should be tolerated by class conscious workers.'

"Capitalistic favors cannot bribe us—and imprisonment cannot kill our devotion to the cause of the proletariat.

Is in Ill Health.

"I cannot be imprisoned for forty years—for long before that time I expect the workers of America to rule their destiny. Of course, on account of poor health, I could not live in prison many years, but I would give my life rather than worship at the feet of autocracy.

"Tho my letters are read by prison authorities, I am permitted to write quite freely to my parents and personal friends.

"Prison life is educational and one does fully understand the evils of the capitalist system until he meets its unfortunated victims—in prison.

"Your comrade, Paul Crouch, 27th Infantry Guardhouse, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

More Lies from Washington.

"P. S.—Today's Star-Bulletin carries an Associated Press 'news' item from Washington to the effect that the Hawaiian department had cabled Washington authorities a report on our case in which statements were made that I enlisted for the purpose of fomenting the civil population of Hawaii, and that Trumbull and I had been engaged in activities against the government before coming to Hawaii.

"The statements are diabolical, damnable lies!

"No evidence was introduced at our trials that would support the charges mentioned above.

"One day Gen. Smith tells me I am just a 'visionary'—not dangerous, and the next day a report is sent to Washington describing me as one of the most dagerous of men.

"Schwartz was confined at hard labor—then released because there was no evidence against him. Domagalski was confined at hard labor three weeks—released without trial to be discharged.) Corporal Ebert was given three weeks in solitary confinement—released, and Creque was confined (in hospital—later at hard labor) for three weeks."

LORD Astor's horses made a killing in the stakes at Newmarket, England, a few days ago. Astor is now a British subject. He was once an American citizen, and a number of patriotic Americans are angry at the lord because he deserted them. He put himself under British registry, so to speak, just as shipowners change the flags of their vessels when it suits their pockets. Astor is having a jolly old time over in England, playing the races and spending the money received in rentals from patriotic American paupers, on impecunious British dukes. There is a great kick in that kind of a thing.

THE patriotic American workers, who resent Astor's change of patriotism, seem to think the system that enables Astor to dine with the King of England, because his great grandfather happened to have a taste for real estate on Manhattan Island, is perfectly alright. It is, for Astor. The new lord does not care what flag he registers under so long as the capitalist system is not interfered with. Aga Khan entered a horse in the Newmarket race. We are not acquainted with this gentleman, but it is a safe assumption that he is some princely oriental faker who sold out his country's resources to the British capitalists in return for enough money to enable him to spend the rest of his life in riotous luxury.

THE United States is not the only country that has trouble with the liquor question. The King of Jugo-Slavia has placed his older brother George in a sanitarium. Too much rum is given as the reason. But it is quite possible that too many knives is a more likely reason. A royal windpipe in a Balkan country is not worth a calico necktie, and no doubt the King of Jugo-Slavia feels considerably easier around the gills with his loving brother safely tucked away in a bughouse.

WALL Street has sent a new ambassador to London and no sooner did he arrive than he began to say something. No doubt the speech will receive the warm approval of the Nation and our pacifists in general, who care little how much the world suffers unless there are indecent exhibitions of blood letting disturbing their equanimity. Ambassador Houghton warned Europe that Wall Street would not stand for any more unseemly quarrelling among its European poor relations. He hinted that when this country wants a war, it will be time enough for Europe to tackle its shooting irons. Wars cost money and are luxuries that only well-to-do nations can afford.

DOES this mean peace between capitalist nations? The Nation will think so, until next week. In the meantime France is cleaning up on the Riffians in Morocco and protesting that its armed forces are only carrying on an offensive in their own territory. American battleships are prowling around the Pacific and British airplanes are bombing Hindu villages. But those incidents are rather distant and black, yellow or brown people do not matter so much provided they die without rending the air with their shrieks.

BELGIAN MINE STRIKE MAY CALL HALT TO THE WAGE CUTS OF BOSSES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 5.—Ninety-seven per cent of the 16,000 mine workers in the Mons region voted to-day to strike if the mine owners reject the men's proposal to accept a 5 per cent reduction in wages provided a second 5 per cent reduction, planned for June, is abandoned.

Small's Legislature Passes Huge Graft, Snubs 8-Hour Blil

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 5.—For another week the fate of the women's eight-hour bill will be an uncertainty, it developed today as a result of its failure to obtain a constitutional majority when called on the order of third reading in the house.

The vote, altho unannounced, showed 76 affirmative and 57 negative. Aware that her bill was failing in support, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil, of Downers Grove, its sponsor, immediately asked that it be postponed for further consideration. The motion was carried. She said further action may be sought Tuesday, May 12.

The state legislature is controlled by Governor Len Small. The failure of the women's eight-hour bill, as well as the anti-injunction bill, to secure the necessary number of republican votes to pass, shows that Small has been quietly fighting the labor measures.

Small's control of the house, which has snubbed the women's eight-hour bill, is shown by the passage in the house of his bill creating two new state departments, and a score of high-salaried jobs. The bill adds millions of dollars to the state budget, and many of the jobs, calling for salaries of $7,000 or more per year, have no work attached to them.

CHURCHILL ADMITS WALL STREET'S HAND IN ENGLISH RULE

LONDON, Eng., May 5.—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in endeavoring to answer the charge that England, in going on the gold basis had pawned herself to Wall Stret, told the house of commons today the $300,000,000 reserve credit England had arranged in New York would be used "only in case of an emergency." He said the arrangement would permit stabilization of exchange on both sides of the Atlantic, should discrepancies in the rate be created.

Churchill admitted that the federal reserve bank had promised $200,000,000 and Morgan and company $100,000,000.

Teachers' Union Not Satisfied with Wage Veto of Gov. Smith

NEW YORK, May 5.—New York City teachers are renewing their fight for wage increases lost when Governor Smith vetoed the Ricca bill passed by the legislature. The joint salary committee is organizing interest among teachers and public in demanding a hearing before the board of education to urge that body's acceptance of the Ricca schedules instead of those prepared by the salary committee of the board of superintendents.

Benjamin Mandel, member of the Teachers' Union and publicity director of the joint salary committee, says that the examiners' resorting to radio to recruit teachers is indication of the teacher shortage due to inadequate salary. The need for men teachers is particularly acute.

Scab Coal Output is Increasing, Operators Claim in Strike Zone

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 5.—With the West Virginia mine strike well into its second month, the northern West Virginia Coal Operators' Association today reported total loadings in its district last week were 263,000 tons or 5,267 cars, or about the same figure as the preceding week.

Union mine loadings for the week were reported at 43,050 tons, or 861 cars, a large decrease from the preceding week.

Non-union coal production is increasing rapidly, according to the operators' association, which reported 132 non-union mines in operation in the northern West Virginia field.

Picketing of non-union mines has been increased, according to state police reports here.

Rye Market Has Been Inflated is Trade Board Charge

Charges flew about the board of trade here today in connection with reports that the rye market had been cornered and that artificial stimulus had sent the price of the May delivery up 11 cents to 123⅝ yesterday.

Rye is being moved from Duluth to Chicago in huge quantities, creating an unnatural market in which the east cannot trade on a Chicago basis, some members charge.

But They'll Get Muscle Shoals!

NEW YORK, May 5—Charges made by Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer, that the General Electric company is controlled by J. P. Morgan and company and the department of justice had failed to prosecute the power company because of influence exerted upon it, were denied today by Owen D. Young, chairman of the company's board of directors.

Communist Strength to Grow Under Hindenburg Dictatorship in Germany

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the German monarchists prepare to make the most of the rapidly approaching inauguration of their president—von Hindenburg.

When the American secretary of the treasury, Andy Mellon, said "Hindenburg is safe!" he also nursed the hope that Communism had received a setback at the German polls on the day that gave Hindenburg the victory. In fact, there were cheers from many sections of the yellow press in this country to the effect that the German Communists, despite the two million votes that they polled, had been hit hard.

• • • •

Herman Bernstein, one of the most prominent of the kept writes of the capitalist press, gives quite the opposite conclusion in an article in the New York Times, that occasionally publishes the truth even when it hurts. Bernstein writes:

> NEW LIFE FOR THE COMMUNISTS.
> Moreover, the Communists are sure to grow stronger and increase their activities. Those who believe that the election of Hindenburg means a deathblow to Communism because it is known that Hindenburg is a rabid enemy of the Bolsheviki are in error. Communism cannot be crushed by monarchism.

• • • •

Bernstein argues, however, that Communism can be overcome by "more and better democracy." Bernstein doesn't point out where his anti-Communist capitalist Utopia is to be found. He does not lay down the rules for its conduct. He merely peddles the phrases of an Emma Goldman or a Rafael Abramovich, frantic mouthpieces of the anti-Soviet attack, whose strident voices, like those of their masters, are drowned in the rising tide of real democracy under the proletarian dictatorship. Ninety per cent of the people of Moscow took part in the recent municipal elections; the only voting qualification being that the prospective voter could not be an exploiter. Only exploiters were disfranchised.

• • • •

Hindenburg's election will place the responsibilities of capitalist government in Germany on the shoulders of the fascist elements. It will expose Hindenburg and his monarchist allies, more than ever, and they will be revealed as the enemies of the workers and poor peasants as never before.

The "socialists," as well, under the slogan, "For the Fatherland!" will continue to sabotage and betray the interests of the working class; supporting the Hindenburg regime as against a united front with the Communists. That ruthless war be waged against the Communists is more to the "socialist" liking, than that the interests even of the capitalist republic be protected against the rise of the late kaiser's junkerdom. German "socialists," more and more, play the same role as the social-democrats in alliance with the fascist dictatorships, all the way across western Europe from Esthonia and Poland, thru Bulgaria and Hungary, to Italy and Spain. The Hungarian "socialists" made their treaty of peace with the dictator, Horthy. The German "socialists" need only cement their budding alliance with ambitious German monarchism.

• • • •

Bernstein freely admits, as all well-informed writers must, that "Hindenburg is at heart a monarchist"; that he is "regarded as a loyal adherent of Wilhelm," and that:

> In the quite little Dutch town of Doorn, the former kaiser is still dreaming of the restoration not only of the German monarchy but also of the Russian monarchy. He firmly believes that the consequences of the war show that the welfare of both Germany and Russia lies in their alliance as restored monarchies.

If this were only the dream of one man in Doorn, even tho he be the ex-kaiser, it wouldn't mean much. But it is also the hope of those great American business and financial interests for which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon speaks when he says, "Hindenburg is safe!"

That draws the American workers into the fight. They must war on American capitalism as the ally and supporter of German monarchism and the foe of labor's Soviet power. They must do this not only to protect and help maintain Soviet rule thruout the worker's republics. They must also help spread Soviet rule to Western Europe as the surest and best protection of their own class interests in this country, pending the day when an American Soviet Republic will rise on the ruins of capitalism in the United States, the capitalism, that makes its alliances with the worst anti-labor reaction wherever it raises its head over the world. Hindenburg is safe for capitalism. Soviet rule alone will make the world safe for the working class. Communism grows thru its struggles for the whole working class.

longer workday to increase the output from 24 passenger cars a day to 26 and a contract for cars had to be completed by Sept. 26.

They tried to induce the committee to have the men go back to work on the basis of the longer workday as the plant would close down on that date anyhow. The committee replied that if the men were to have a forced vacation they might as well take it now as they would not consent to any increase of working hours.

The result of this interview with the bosses will again be reported back to the next strike meeting for action.

Serious Fighting Mood

The men are very well aware that they have engaged in a real struggle. Many of them have vivid recollections of the past McKees Rocks struggles, hardly ever equalled in bitterness and intensity, nor have they forgotten the ruthlessness shown by the company to maintain its privilege of exploitation during these past struggles.

The speakers have at every meeting emphasized the need of organization, of shop committee organization representative of all the warkers in the plant elected directly by the workers in each department and empowered to take up all the grievances of the men as well as to summon them for action whenever necessary.

They have emphasized the need of union organization. The strikers have caught the spirit. They are talking organization amongst themselves.

STRIKE AGAIN TIES UP PARIS AS ECHO OF MAY DAY DEMONSTRATIONS

MOROCCANS HI IMPERIALISM I DRIVE ON FE

Military Dictatorship Challenged by Natives

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, May 5.—The success of the native Moroccans against the foreign French troops continues. Last reports stated that the Riffian natives have penerated French Morocco to within thirty miles of Fez.

Seven French outposts have been captured by the North Africans, and the garrisons either killed or captured.

Marshal Lyautey, the military dictator for French imperialism in the Moroccan colony, has arrived at Fez to push military operations against the natives.

The Riffians have crossed the Ouergha river, capturing several villages and much war material. Columns of Riffian troops are nearing the Rabat-Fez-Oran railroad, and threaten to cut communication.

The French are dropping bombs on the Riffians from their airplanes.

The city of Fez commands the rich central portion of French Morocco. The Riffian troops are in possession if vortually all of Spanish Morocco.

Swift, Notorious Booze Guzzler, in New Publicity Bid

Louis F. Swift, Jr., who has made a bid for more publicity by dressing up in overalls and posing as a "laborer" in the Omaha plant of the beef trust, attained notoriety in Chicago by his propensity for drinking large quantities of booze and speeding in his automobile. Swift has been fined numerous times by Chicago, Lake Forest and Evanston police for reckless driving while inebriated.

With Swift, money flows as easily as his booze. Swift once found himself in Zion City, and was told it would cost him a $20 fine if he took a drink. Swift emptied his hip flask down his guzzle and cherefully paid the fine.

The average wage in the packing trust plants, from which the young millionaire derives his income, hovers around 30 cents an hour.

Dawes Hit In Senate Cat-fight.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 5.—In a lengthy speech before the Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, assured the southern lumber kings that the senate rules as they are adequately protect big business.

"Vice president Dawes," Robinson said, "By the simple process of exercising the function of his office, would accomplish in a single sentence more than can be done by months of ridiculing the senate's rules." He referred to the rule that a majority vote of the senate sustains the vice president's ruling that a senator is out of order.

AKRON CARMEN VOTE STRIKE ON OPEN SHOP PLAN

Insist that Bus Men Join the Union

(Special to The Daily Worker)

AKRON, Ohio, May 5.—By a vote of 518 to 212, the men employed on the four divisions, the Akron city, the Canton interurban, the Canton-Massillon and the A. B. and C. interurban, have voted to strike in case the general manager of the traction company gives final refusal to include in the working agreement a provision that the bus men employed by the company, shall become members of the carmen's union.

The company is trying to stall the men off and defeat the union demand by so-called "impartial" arbitration. A. C. Blinn, spokesman for the company, rung in the class collaboration clause of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes' preamble to their constitution to prove that the union should surrender to "arbitration."

He said that the purposes of the union, among other things, is "To encourage the principle and practice of conciliation and arbitration in the settlement of differences between labor and capital." He added that in view of this, the union ought to submit to arbitration. Patrick Shea negotiating for the union, had nothing to say, but holds a strike vote in abeyance.

The capitalist papers are running the usual one-sided stories condemning the proposed strike, talking about the poor public and peddling the bunk about the auto-bus replacement permanently of electric lines in case of a strike.

Another move of the company is to try to get some weakling or spy among the workers to get an injunction against the union on the ground that the vote to strike was not taken according to rule.

IMMIGRATION STOPPAGE FORCES INCREASING NUMBER OF NEGROES INTO INDUSTRY, FIGURES SHOW

By ESTHER LOWELL.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 5.—Altho Philadelphia's new subway is being dug by mostly non-union Negro labor and the bulk of Negro workers are still unorganized in the Quaker City, Negro workers in increasing proportion are penetrating semi-skilled and skilled trades and are joining their respective unions.

The Armstrong association, a Negro welfare organization, is preparing a study of Negroes in Pennsylvania industries and tabulated statistics on Negro workers in Philadelphia.

Negro Unionists.

The International Longshoremen's Union is over 90 per cent Negro and two Negro organizers are steadily maintained by the organization in Philadelphia. The Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union has a lesser percentage of Negroes but keeps a Negro organizer busy.

The International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union is 40 per cent Negro.

The Portable Hoisting Engineers' Union is 10 per cent Negro. The bricklayers' and carpenters' unions are each between one per cent and two per cent Negro. The garment workers' unions are about 5 per cent Negro with a more rapidly increasing proportion than the skilled building trades unions. Some unions still do not admit Negro workers in the trades.

Heavy Percentage and Still Increasing.

With the practical elimination of European immigration Negro workers are more and more in demand, Washington finds, in the unorganized or partially organized manufacturing industries, such as steel. Midvale Steel Co. at Philadelphia employs 20 per cent Negroes. Lakens Steel Works employs over 27 per cent Negroes. Bethlehem Steel so far employs very few.

Other large manufacturing plants employing many Negroes are: Wilson-Martin Co., 50 per cent; Fels & Co., 20 per cent; Westinghouse Electric Co., 18 per cent; Atlantic Refining Co., 15 per cent; United Gas Imp. Co., 19 per cent; Franklin Sugar Refining Co., 20 per cent; Barrett Co. (roofing material, etc.) 18 per cent; American Ice & Coal Co., 10 per cent; Philadelphia & Reading Ry., 10 per cent; Pennsylvania R. R., over 7 per cent; Baldwin Locomotive Workers, 7 per cent; Philadelphia Rapid Transit, 6 per cent; Henry Disston & Sons, 7 per cent.

Largely Unskilled Labor.

Except in Lukens plant few of these Negroes are given skilled work. In Midvale Steel, Atlantic Refining, P. & R. R., United Gas Imp., and Pennsylvania R. R., a considerable number of Negro workers are in semi-skilled work. Philadelphia trade unionists confirm Washington's statement that in general Negro workers are not allowed by employers in skilled jobs.

Philadelphia is a city of nearly two million population and Washington claims that its Negro population is already larger than that of Chicago, with a million more pupulation. According to the 1920 census the Negroes were over 7 per cent of Philadelphia's total and since that time southern migration has tremendously increased their numbers in this and other northern cities. The total number of Negroes employed in Philadelphia is 78,601 out of 819,000 total workers in the city, giving the Negroes a little less than 10 per cent.

Industrial Classification.

Of the Negro total, 13,239 men are in unskilled jobs in manufacturing and mechanical industries. The total in skilled work in these industries, including building, is 3,990; semi-skilled in the same, 2,085. Semi-skilled in transportation, 4,623; unskilled, 2,794; in trades, 2,010; laborers, porters, etc., 2.127; public service (police, etc.), 933 and 865 laborers; male domestics, 9,378; professional men, 443; clerical workers, 906.

Negro women dressmakers and seamstresses, workers in clothing, textile, tobacco and food industries amount to 2,773. Negro professional women are 483; clerical workers, 280; clerks, etc., 287; women domestic workers, 23,344.

STATE LEGISLATURE KILLS LABOR'S MILD MINNESOTA PROGRAM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, May 5.—It was nothing doing in the 1925 session of the Minnesota legislature so far as labor measures are concerned. All the items on the modest program of organized labor were killed either on the floor or in the committee. These included safeguarding the job of teachers, improving the workmen's compensation law, giving one day rest in seven, state highway patrol, prison labor betterment and proposed partial repeal of the women's minimum wage act.

"As far as organized labor is specifically concerned, the session cannot be said to be a great success, altho the measures backed by labor were not of a vital character," says the Minnesota Union Advocate, official organ of the State Federation of Labor.

WORLD BANKERS AID ALBANIAN MURDER REGIME

Peasants Discontented as Dictatorship Oppresses

VIENNA, May 5—The Albanian reaction, which seized power by means of the support of international reaction and with the aid of the bayonets of the Yugo-Slavian bourgeoisie, has placed Achmed Zogu at the head of the government and also had him elected as president.

In order to concentrate power into his hands, the reaction has done away with the former system of administration which consisted of the parliament and the upper council, the latter consisting of four members elected by parliament, and has set up a senate, the 18 members of which consist mainly of big landowners. Of these 18 members of the senate, 6 were nominated by the president of the republic.

Many Political Murders.

The government has handed over to Yugo-Slavia the strategically important district of St. Naum and granted a naphtha concession to the Anglo-Persian Oil company. The government can only rely upon the feudal big landowners, and is therefore exercising the greatest terror, which even exceeds that experienced by the country during the occupation.

Several political personalities have been murdered in the country. Many murderers have been released from prison and sent abroad in order to carry out political murders among the emigrants. In Bari they have already assassinated Guarki, the former finance minster in the Fan Noli cabinet.

Population Discontented.

Thruout the whole of Albania mass arrests and expulsions are taking place. The discontent of the population is growing daily. Many have fled to the mountains where they are organaizing armed "tcheten." Such tcheten exist thruout the whole country.

One of these tcheten bands, 150 strong, recently had a collision with the government troops who were driven out of a mountain district in Ardugo Kastro. This district is now in the hands of the tcheten.

The tcheten movement is supported by the discontented peasantry thruout the whole country.

ELECTION OF YALE TRUSTEE SHOWS HOW FINANCIERS CONTROL SCHOOLS

By ART SHIELDS

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 5.—Now comes further proof of the way "big business" keeps its hand on the helm of education. The evidence is furnished by Yale University against itself in the form of a booklet issued by the office of the university secretary on the election now taking place for the vacancy in the Yale corporation left by the expiration of the term of William Howard Taft.

There are seven candidates for the vacant post on the university's governing board. Their biographies are briefly given by the university secretary for the information of the alumni who will do the voting and these official statements are supplemented by the signed arguments of their supporters.

All Are Financiers

Without exception each of the candidates is the executive of great corporations, a banker or a wealthy attorney. And without exception none of the candidates is mentioned in connection with any scholarly attainments.

Nicholas Frederick Brady, executive committeeman of the National Civic Federation; president of the New York Edison Co.; president of the Municipal Gas Co. of Albany; director of the Anaconda Copper Co. and 12 other corporations, has these facts listed to his credit. He is not credited with scholarship tho such a qualification would supposedly be of interest to university men.

Clarence Blakeslee, director of the New Haven & Shore Line railway, New Haven Gas Co., Water Co., Community Chest and chamber of commerce, is also neglected as to his scholarship record.

No Scholarly Qualities.

Alfred Lawrence Aiken, president of the Massachusetts Bankers' Association, director of the New York Life Insurance Co. and other corporations, is lauded for federal reserve and city planing activities, but any educational qualifications he may have are passed up.

Edward Belden Greene, president Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, director of Title Guarantee Trust Co. and other corporations is lauded for these connections and for war-time Red Cross work but any fitness he may have as a school man is ignored.

Frederick Winthrop Allen, senior partner in Lee, Higginson & Co., bankers, and director in many huge concerns, is recorded also for Boys' Scout and stay-at-home war work but not for scholarship.

Livingston Platt, rich New York lawyer, has many backers, but all are silent as to his scholarship.

A Matter of Real Estate.

Lewis Sheldon Welch, vice president, New Haven Chamber of Commerce, and New Haven representative of Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co., Hartford, is argued for in a unique manner. His supporters urge his choice as university executive because Yale is the largest real estate holder in New Haven and Welch's experience equips him for the problems involved.

One of these big business men will join the ruling board of this big university. The bias of which can hardly but be towards the schools of economics which support the system that gave them their wealth.

Need for Workers' Education.

It should be stated here that only six of the Yale corporation men are elected by the alumni. The other 12 consist of nine who are appointed as vacancies occur in the nine successors to the original trustees and three others, the president of the university and the governor and lieutenant governor of Connecticut who are ex-officio, members of Yale corporation. A probe of the corporation connections of these other members of the Yale corporation shows connections which would naturally incline them to ultra conservative bias and furnishes an additional argument, if one were needed, for more schools controlled by the workers.

"STICK TO YOUR SLAVERY," CAL TELLS WORKERS AS HE PREPARES FOR EXTENDED VACATION JAUNT

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 5.—President Coolidge wants to be let alone to run the government. He wants the American people to turn their attention exclusively to their own private business.

He thinks he knows what sort of administration the 114,000,000 people of this country ought to get, and he sees nothing but a waste of their time in the national habit of looking toward Washington to see whether things are being run right.

"Stick to Slavery."

That is the latest message from the White House. It comes direct from the lips of the mythical "spokesman for the president"—tho of course, it was couched in smoother language. But what the "spokesman" meant was just that—the common herd had better be running their lathes and cultivators and stores and trains, and letting the Coolidge administration manage the government without being pried upon by critical eyes.

What's more, Coolidge assures them of stability. Things are going to stand perfectly still in their tracks, if he is left to take care of the government. Stability—that's the thing business needs. Let him alone and he will not introduce any agitation into the business situation. Investors can place their money with some assurance that the conditions will not be changed by federal intervention.

Takes Vacation.

This may be interpreted as a pledge that the federal trade commission and the tariff commission and the department of justice will not interfere, so long as congress is not in session, with mergers and other moves toward formation of super trusts in the industries. Coolidge is on guard for big business. He wants no more laws and no more investigations and punishments of commercial banditry. Mellonization of America must proceed in peace.

In this spirit the press of the nation has been advised. In this spirit the kept press will produce a chorus of demands for "less government, less laws, more business" during the next six months. Under cover of this harmony Mr. Coolidge will depart in June for a vacation in New England.

THE VOICE OF LENIN TO BE HEARD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY, MAY 24

Something new and different is being arranged by the Russian branch of the Workers Party for Sunday, May 24, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. It will be a Lenin Evening, with Comrade Nicolai Lenin as the chief speaker. This is no joke, as the talk by Comrade Lenin will be heard from a phonograph record, as well as speeches by Comrade Lunacharsky, Trotsky and others.

Comrade Alexander Chramov, national organizer of the Russian Section W. P., who is touring the United States, will bring the records to Chicago. He will also speak on Lenin as a leader of the masses. A good musical program is also being prepared. Tell your friends about it. Let them listen to the voice of Lenin!

Child Labor Helps Breed Criminals

these parents and do away with this imported evil."

Let us, however, look a little further than the thin surface over which the capitalist investigator skims.

Economic Necessity in 94 Per Cent.

We find in Chicago that 94 per cent of the total number of work certificates issued, are given to the children who can definitely prove "economic necessity in the home of the child." It must be remembered that this form of child labor—the issuing of work certificates—is the state's method of legalizing the toil of children supposedly above the age of thirteen. Many of the children who plead that they are "of age" are obviously below this standard.

During all the time that the writer spent in the rooms of the board of education, where the certificates are issued, not a single child was refused his permission to leave school and enter industry. The applicants came at the rate of about fifty an hour, altho April is supposed to be a low-ebb month. There were perhaps ten per cent more boys than girls.

The Sacrifice to Moloch.

The slim, pallid-cheeked girls and the slender, pale-faced boys alike, came in timidly, leading worn-out mothers. Nervously they made their way to the information desk where a typically wise and slangy office boy waved them to the rows of benches where they were to await their turn. The faces of all those waiting had the same anxious look the same meek, cringing attitude that to the social worker distinguishes the so-called "clients and cases" at the charity offices from the rest of humanity.

The mothers divided their attention between the flurried care of the three or four young children who usually accompanied her and listening with a pathetic envy to the giggles and carefree laughter that was going on between the "investigators" on the other side of the little wooden fence.

Slaves on the Market—Inspected and Passed.

In hurried turn, each applicant's first name was called off, and, after a rapid "interview" the child was hustled off to an upper floor, clutching in his hand the doctor's card. He was back inside of half an hour, all ready to get his final stamp, and be led off—a legal and capable industrial worker.

It is interesting to note here that the director of vocational guidance in his last report says that "approximately 25 per cent of all applicants for working certificates are held up temporarily on account of physical conditions, one large division being malnutrition, and undernourishment." Which means that the most pronounced type of malnutrition which can be determined in even a cursory examination.

The Delinquent Scrap Heaps of Wrecked Youth.

As for those who do not get work certificates, who are "under age" and who do not enter into the employments mentioned in the preceeding articles; what becomes of these working class children? They fall into the ranks of so-called dependent and delinquent juveniles, only a small proportion of which come to the attention of the Juvenile Protective Association.

This organization reports that at least one-third of the cases of neglected children are children whose mothers have been obliged to go out to work. Of the 399 delinquent boys, over one-third had "some direct economic aspect" to their case. These cases include stealing, begging, street vending and other crimes each with the implication that the home earnings were insufficient.

Producing Child Beggars and Thieves.

The report goes further. In a special study made of 100 boys who had been committed to the vicious Chicago and Cook county school for boys, it was found that 75 per cent of the boys' fathers had a weekly average income of no tmore that $18.30. Now, if one takes even the average family of two adults and three minor children (and most of the families were much larger) this wage adjusted to the minimum budget recently applied by the bureau of applied economics would even then be 50 per cent too small.

Juvenile delinquency is directly the result of poverty. One juvenile court report says, "Much of the delinquency of these Chicago children can be traced to small beginnings. Children picking coal, small boys picking refuse in the markets, and the small girls skulking thru downtown alleys at night to reach the rear door of restaurants dispensing stale bread and cake." (Remember that these are direct quotations from conservative government reports). Here is a typical case of the delinquency of a juvenile court case.

Revealing Reports of Parents' Wage.

"A boy of thirteen picked up in the loop for begging, had plied that trade every Friday for months. His school records showed 55 half-day absences in seven months. When brot to the office, he had several handfuls of change in his pockets amounting to $9.83—as much as his father made in a week." (The emphasis is ours.)

It would be possible to quote hundreds of other instances and examples of Chicago's child life—whether they came from the congested foreign district of the West Side or the dilapidated tenements of the South End—but all would only serve to emphasize what is a fact—that child labor, child-dependency, child-delinquency, are not a matter of choice on the part of the children or greed on the part of the parents.

These evils are the direct result of the economic level at which the workers are forced to live. Insufficient incomes of the parents, insufficient food for the children, more and greater profits for the capitalists, these are the causes for the conditions which we see all about us.

Stationary Engineers Get Raise.

Stationary engineers employed by the Chicago ice cream manufacturers were given a wage increase of five cents an hour, John Gorey, business manager of the union, announced. The pay of the engineers is now $1.05 per hour.

The Climax of the Cheka Trial in Germany

By A. R. (Berlin).

THE Leipzig Cheka trial has involved the parading of all the supports of the German republic in a perfection and beauty which is rarely to be seen. Court officials and police spies, police commissioners and eager medical witnesses have for weeks dominated the proceedings.

An exquisite example was furnished by the report of the medical expert on the mental condition of the witness for the prosecution, the police spy, Felix Neumann. It is true that the grandfather of Felix Neumann died in a lunatic asylum, and that among his relatives there are quite a number of lunatics.

While still a soldier he was subject to fits, and in fact had a fit during the trial regarding which the medical authorities were of diverse opinion as to whether it was a fit of hysteria or an epileptic fit. But the medical expert stated in his report that only a layman would hold the opinion that because an individual's forebears were mentally unsound, the individual himself must also be mentally unsound. Neumann is sane and his statements are credible. Such a scandalous medical report is almost unique even in the history of German class medical jurisprudence.

It is not worth while repeating all the inventions and phantasies which were put forward by the police and their spies. This evidence was so feeble that even the bourgeois press of Germany almost disregarded it. Only the organs of the social democratic party remained true to the public prosecutor thru thick and thin. The prosecuting authorities had reserved the chief sensation for the end.

This was the statement of Herr Vogt, the well-known Communist-hater, the preliminary examining judge in the Cheka trial. According to the principles of the German criminal code, the examining judge can only give evidence upon one point, that is regarding any contradictions between the statements of the accused at the preliminary examination and at the main proceedings.

But the principles of German criminal law are no longer valid for this court. In spite of all the protests of the defense, Herr Vogt was permitted to deliver a cleverly prepared indictment speech against the Communist Party of Germany which lasted for several days. Herr Vogt came to the court with a big attache case. This contained a mass of papers which he claims were confiscated at various house-searches and with the help of these documents he delivered a furious anti-Bolshevist diatribe. It was a regular onslaught upon the defense, which declared that it was quite ignorant of the existence of this fresh evidence.

The defense further declared that it wished to examine this fresh material brought forward by Vogt, as it contained many things which were the products of spies. How feeble an accusation must be when it is compelled to have to resort to such absurd methods! Thereupon the defense prepared to deliver a counter-blow: as Herr Vogt had accused the Communist Party of Germany, the Communist Party of Germany must be given the opportunity of defending itself. The defense submitted numerous proofs in order to reveal the fascist danger in Germany. In addition to this the defense brought forward twenty witnesses, including Communist and social democratic members of parliament, as well as simple workers, and party functionaries from Saxony, in order to give evidence as to what was the true state of affairs in 1923 and 1924.

THIS was replied to by a fresh monstrous act of violence by this exceptional court. Since the foundation of the German Empire in 1871, it has been the basic right of the accused in a German criminal trial to call witnesses on his behalf. According to German law, the court is bound to hear these witnesses. In the Cheka trial this right has been suspended for the first time. On the motion of the Public Prosecutor Neumann, the court refused to admit the witnesses brot forward by the defense. The court will from time to time decide whether it will be gracious enough to hear one or other of the witnesses for the defense. This simply means that the high state court can and will accuse the Communist Party of Germany, but it will not permit the Communists to defend themselves. This monstrous decision has been given by a court of law to which two social democratic leaders belong, one of them Herr Schilling, the chairman of the Leipzig Trade Union Federation.

THE debates, which lasted for days, regarding the proofs brought forward by the defense as to the existence of the fascist danger constituted in every respect the climax of the cheka trial.

The speeches and the evidence of the defense have thrown a fresh light upon the situation in the year 1923: the misery and the desperation of the working masses, the threatening fascist danger, the putsch of the right which was preparing and the attempt of the Communist Party leaders to create, along with the "left" social democrats, the workers' governments of Saxony and Thuringia as a bulwark against reaction.

That the events of 1923 and 1924 provide material for criticism of the Communist leadership at that time, is a well-known fact. But it is impossible on the basis of what took place at that time to bring a charge of high treason against the Communist Party of Germany. During this trial in Leipzig the charge has been completely exposed. There remained nothing else than a maneuver of the German reaction and its social democratic confederates for the purpose of striking at the hated fighting party of the proletariat. In order to achieve this aim the class court does not shrink from any breach of the law or from any baseness.

BY these maneuvers the court has achieved the exact contrary of what it set out to achieve. A judgment based upon such breaches of the law will be completely null and void. It will be impossible to make use of it with the public against the Communist Party of Germany, but vice versa: the proceedings at this trial constitute an uninterrupted defeat of capitalist reaction and its social democratic confederates. This cheka trial will not serve to injure the Communist Party of Germany.

NEW YORK CELEBRATES DESPITE THREATS OF "BOMB SQUAD" HEAD

NEW YORK CITY, (By Mail).—Despite the blustering threat of Captain Gegan of the "bomb squad" fame, during his "friendly" visit to the Workers Party district headquarters on the eve of May Day, that "no May Day meetings will be held," the militant workers gathered in many thousands in various parts of Greater New York to voice their challenge to the system of exploitation and oppression and to pledge their allegiance to the Communist International. In addition to five well attended mass meetings held under the auspices of the Finnish Ukrainian, Lettish and Czecho-Slovak language sections of the Workers Party, more than five thousand workers packed the two large meetings at the Central Opera House, Manhattan, and at the Grand Miller's assembly, Brooklyn, which were called by the district committees of the Workers (Communist) Party and of the Young Workers League.

Comrade William Z. Foster was the chief speaker at both meetings. The meetings were also addressed by M. J. Olgin, William Weinstone, Ludwig Lore, Juliet Stuart Poyntz, Jack Stachel and a number of other speakers.

The garment workers celebrated the international workers' holiday at two of the largest halls of this city. Comrade Olgin addressed the meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House, held under the auspices of Locals 2 and 9 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers. Simultaneously another meeting was held at the Carnegie Hall by Local 22, I. L. G. W., with Comrade Juliet Stuart Poyntz as speaker.

Comrade Foster's appearance on the platform was the signal for a spontaneous enthusiastic ovation which continued until he took the floor, only to start again after his opening words: "I have just come back from Soviet Russia."

The speaker dwelt on the rapid industrial revival in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. He pointed out that the Communists in America, who are confronted with the problems of developing the revolutionary movement, of building a mass Communist Party, of working in the trade unions in order to transform them into militant weapons against capitalism, it is difficult to understand the problems facing the Russian Communists, who have to make sure that the needs of the population of the Soviet Republics are taken care of. The Communists in Russia, he said, were faced with two problems which the bourgeois economic experts declared could not be solved; the problem of a stable currency (to secure a stable medium of exchange) and the problem of a balanced budget (that the expenditures of the government should not be greater than its income). The Soviet government solved the first problem in 1922, and now they have definitely solved the second problem.

In 1921 the budget deficit equaled 80 per cent, in 1922 it was reduced to 50 per cent, in 1923 to 25 per cent. For the year 1924-25 the Soviet government had hoped to reduce the deficit to 10 per cent. "No statement at the session of the enlarged executive committee of the Communist International," said Comrade Foster, "aroused such enthusiasm as the statement made by Comrade Zinoviev, that instead of a deficit of 10 per cent there was a surplus of one hundred million rubles."

"The revolution is definitely a success. With the two most difficult problems solved, there can be no doubt that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is on the eve of an unprecedent industrial development." Comrade Foster then pointed out that the terrible suffering that was caused by the civil war, the blockade and the consequent economic disorganization had a discouraing effect on the workers of the West. The social-democrats told the workers; "The conditions under capitalism are bad, but see what you will have to go thru if you attempt to overthrow capitalism." But now the Russian revolution will again become an inspiration not only to the Communists, but to the broad masses of the workers. Comrade Foster concluded with a fervid appeal to the militant workers to help build the Workers Party into a mass Communist party.

Jack Stachel, the district organizer of the Young Workers League, among other things mentioned the Crouch-Trumbull case and pointed out the significance of the fact that American soldiers sent to Honolulu to keep the native population in subjection took the initiative in organizing the natives into a Communist League to fight American imperialism. He assured the audience that the Communists will continue to carry on revolutionary propaganda in the army and the navy.

Comrade Olgin, speaking of the present world situation, pointed out that the rule of the socialists was invariably followed by a return of reaction.

"For six years Germany had a socialist president, socialist premiers, socialist chiefs of police, who fought the revolutionary movement and filled the prisons with Communists workingmen. And now von Hindenburg, the monarchist, is eleceted president. Had the Communists ruled Germany for six months the monarchists could not have returned to power."

Successful May Day meetings were held by the Workers (Communist) Party thruout District Two. About a dozen meetings were held outside of Greater New York.

North Side Branch Hears Negro Speaker; Discussion Lively

At Monday night's meeting of the North Side Branch a hearty discussion arose out of the splendid talk of Comrdae Phillips, speaker for the Young Workers League, on the problem of the Negro worker in the United States.

The lecture, different from that usually heard on this subject, proved of unusual interest because of the fundamental way in which Comrade Phillips took up the subject.

"Not by a social approach," declared the speaker, "nor by patronizing or uplift methods will we draw the Negro into our ranks, where he must be, instead of outside of our ranks and against us as he only too often is. On the question of bread and butter, in the shop and on the job, the Negro can be recruited into our party.

"Reorganization of our party on the basis of the shop nuclei," the speaker added, "will mean not only a sudden enthusiastic interest in the Negro, but of necessity an approach to this problem by our party, based on careful study and understanding.

"Discussion of shop conditions and work in the shop thru the shop nuclei will be our most effective means of organizing the Negro into the ranks of the militant working class."

Many questions were asked of the speaker and the coming American Negro Labor Congress received a large share of discussion.

RUTHENBERG SPEAKS AT MAY DAY DANCE OF THE CHICAGO LETTISH BRANCH

The solidarity of the working class of Soviet Russia, the spirit of joy with which the masses of the Russian workers and peasants go about their work of running and building their great working class republic, is the same spirit with which the militant workers of this country celebrated May Day, C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, said in a speech at the May Day celebration of the Lettish branch of Chicago.

Comrade Ruthenberg told of the huge demonstrations he witnessed in Moscow, in which more than a hundred thousand workers took part, and told of the enthusiastic spirit whith which the Red Army soldiers go about their work of defending their state.

A revolutionary play, "The Last King," which showed how the Communist world revolution finally overcomes world imperialism, was acted by the Lettish comrades.

The Red Letts Junior Group sang the International and other revolutionary songs.

Stanley J. Clark Speaks at Seattle May 8th and 15th

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., May 5—Stanley J. Clark, one of the best speakers on the Pacific coast, is scheduled for two meetings early in May, the first lecture is to be "Dictatorship versus Democracy" on May 8, the other, on May 15, to be upon "Communism versus Capitalism."

The lectures take place in Painters' Hall, Union Record Building, 1915 First avenue. Admission is free and all are welcome. There are meetings of similar nature every Friday night in this hall.

A John Reed Juniors' Affair.

We are glad to announce that our group has a new leader and is functioning again. We are starting off with an affair which will be given on May 23. Oh! the fun we'll have! The entertainment will be composed of the members of the John Reed group only. We'll have a play, and several more numbers. Of course, after the program, we'll have a dance. But one thing you must come for. That is the surprise. We're going to have a surprise which if you don't come to get, you'll regret the rest of your lives.

This grand affair will be held May 23, 1925 at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St., 4 o'clock sharp. The dancing will come at night. Get your tickets before they are all sold. Ask members of the John Reed group for them. Prices: Adults, 20 cents; children, 10 cents.

To Probe Mexicans' Death.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., May 5.—Quiet prevailed here today following the visit to San Quentin prison of Governor F. W. Richardson, who started an investigation of the killing of two Mexicans.

The governor told the Mexican consulate at San Francisco, a "thorough probe" would be made.

FIELD NOTES

By J. E. SNYDER.

"Making nothing this year, just getting by and I see no future" was the remark I overheard in a conversation between two Iowa traveling men.

A farmer sitting by asked: "When will it get better?"

"Not until we have two good crops sold on a good market. It will take the first crop to anywhere near catch up," answered one of the traveling men, who then proceeded to tell how he has been caught in three bank smash-ups this year. "In one town two banks failed in one day—they will not pay twenty per cent on the dollar," said the other.

Thus these two former capitalist flunkies and bunk peddlers went on for two long hours.

It is the same story in every hotel lobby whether I am in Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska or Missouri.

Mines Get New Victims.

My friend at Melcher, Iowa, a coal digger, tells me that "the new mine is injuring men nearly every day." This morning a miner was brot out with his face horribly cut and his body all bruised up from falling slate. Just a few days ago a young man had his arm cut off "clean." The slate caught him with his arm across an iron rail. Another man died of his injuries last week. "They don't seem to take much interest in keeping up the miner these days," says my friend. Too many miners. In some mines there are "waiting lists" equal to those working—and this only applies of course to forty per cent of the mines in the state as sixty per cent of them are idle.

Radio—Boy Scouts—Reds.

My comrade sitting at his supper table, when boys are at home—suddenly heard a big voice booming out a warning to all Boy Scouts over the radio, to beware and to prepare to put down the terrible reds and "their dangerous propaganda being imported from Moscow to America." This was in Iowa. Not many weeks ago the radio broadcasted a vicious attack on the child labor amendment—calling the attention of the farmers that their children were about to be Bolshevized and that they would not even be allowed to do the chores after school. "The children are to be nationalized!" shouted the broadcasting savior of the farmers. This was in Kansas. The amendment was defeated.

Draw a Line Around and Don't Read.

My friend the teacher, in city school, was holding forth on botany. He came to a paragraph on the evolution of plant and animal specie—He stopped—"You will not read the next paragraph—please draw a line around it and go on to the next." "Why so?" asked a student. "Why don't you know there is a law against the teaching of evolution in this state? I would lose my job if I allowed you to read that." That was in Oklahoma.

A Little of Both.

A socialist was telling me that it was the proper thing to uphold religion and socialism and thus "not antagonize people as you Communists do by attacking religion." I told him that he reminded me of the teacher who was hunting a teacher's job down in Arkansas. The school board, where he applied, had turned down several teachers as the board was equally divided on a very momentous question of astronomy. At last the question was fired at him: How'd you teach about the world being flat or round?" "Oh," said the teacher, "I teach a little of both."

MELLON WARMS PLUTES' HEARTS WITH TAX TALK

Would Lower Burden on Incomes Over $300,000

(Special to The Daily Worker)

JACKSON, Miss., May 5.—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, multimillionaire aluminum king and railroad magnate, made another speech here that warmed the hearts of the country's financiers when he advocated drastic reduction on the income surtax now levied on incomes of over $300,000. It is a shame that these poor fellows, with only a few hundred thousand dollars income, have to pay a tax to the government treasury, Mellon said.

Mellon Kind to Himself.

Of course, Mellon has not forced his millionaire friends to pay this tax anyway, a congressional investigation having shown that he allowed the steel trust, his own aluminum trust, and numerous other large corporations to steal millions of dollars from the government. But Mellon wants to remove the embarrassment of being charged every now and then with crooked work, and wishes tthe tax on high incomes to be removed.

Mellon spoke also against the federal estate tax. The members of the Mississippi Bankers' Association, to whom Mellon spoke, applauded heartily, all of them having high incomes themselves.

Mellon Praises Traction Grafters.

In an interview in Chicago, Secretary Mellon praised the public utilities czar of the middle west, Samuel Insull, and urged support of his traction schemes. Insull is now endeavoring to have the Illinois legislature pass the Barr bill, allowing him a perpetual franchise on Chicago's streets. Governor Small is backing the deal.

No One Living in Chicago Need Be Lonesome on May 9

The Young Workers' League, local Chicago, announces many interesting features for the entertainment and dance to be held on the 9th of May, at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. The hall will resound with the singing of revolutionary songs, led off by the chorus and participated in by all the league and party members present. Prominent members will deliver short talks on the activities of the league. That is the most promising part of the evening's entertainment for the Y. W. L. is con- will be dancing—lots of it.

At present the league is in need of funds to print special leaflets in its Negro campaign as well as in its anti-militarist campaign. The readers of the DAILY WORKER are urged to give the dance every possible support so that local Chicago may be placed in a better position to enlarge upon its activities.

Come to the dance, Saturday, May 9. Admission is only 35 cents in advance and 50 cents at the door. Tickets can be procured at the league office, 19 So. Lincoln St. and from all the league members.

Letters From Our Readers

From a Class War Prisoner.

To the DAILY WORKER: Some time ago I wrote you to the effect that I would contribute a composition from time to time in exchange for a subscription to the DAILY WORKER as that was the only way I had of obtaining the only paper fighting the workers' battles. And I want to thank you and all the other comrades, who may have assisted in bringing about such an arrangement.

I received my first copy today, and it is hardly necessary for me to say that I enjoyed reading it. May the DAILY WORKER always stand the militant supporter of the downtrodden and exploited. May she stand as a symbol of loyalty, an inspiration for the hard battle that the worker is confronted with. And that the DAILY WORKER will receive the workers' support in return, grow into a larger organ and cover a larger field is my one hope and desire.

Enclosed you will find a literal copy of one of my lectures titled Society vs. Criminals which I am submitting gratis to the DAILY WORKER for publication.

There is little I have to say at this time. There is only one message I wish to convey to those on the outside, my comrades in the class struggle, and that is: from the chaos of prison, from a living gray hell surrounded by prison walls, I send greetings to all who are fighting the battle for freedom, and assure them that while we may linger in the hell holes of capitalism, we will pick up the fight where we left it when we are released.

Wishing you success in any and all of your endeavors thruout the year of 1925, I reman sincerely your comrade. San Quentin Prison, California.

Los Angeles Take Notice.

To the DAILY WORKER: I would like to see a Workers Party free reading room that is open all day and evenings at 224 S. Spring Street, in Los Angeles. This reading room to contain only Communist literature and the DAILY WORKER. Then sympahizers who want to know more about the movement could spend a few hours regularly reading up on what Communism stands for. I know I would appreciate a such a place to spend a few evenings in and I know many other young workers who would too.

Los Angeles is continually getting people from all parts of the country looking for work. These workers would welcome a cheerful place where they can spend an evening in the company of comrades and it would be a splendid opportunity to bring the DAILY WORKER to them.

It should not cost much to run such a reading room. I hope you will do something about getting such a reading room started here.

An Unemployed worker in Los Angeles.

Urges Foreign-Born to Subscribe.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Our DAILY WORKER is the best Communist Marxian paper ever printed in the English language. I have had great difficulty in understanding what I read in the DAILY WORKER for the past six months, as I am just learning English, but now I can read very well and understand everything printed.

I wish all foreign-born workers who are members of the Workers Party would subscribe to the DAILY WORKER, and read it carefully. I know very well that if we take more interest in the English literature published by our party, that we can learn English and at the same time learn to become more active in the unions, and become one hundred per cent better members of the Workers Party.

We should also pass the DAILY WORKER on to neighbors and friends after reading it carefully, and should never throw it away.

Fraternally yours,
Peter L. King, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sick Worker Takes "Daily."

Seymour, Conn.

To the DAILY WORKER—I am enclosing a money order for a three months' subscription to the DAILY WORKER.

This town has a population of about six thousand. The shops are all one-horse shops. I received a copy of the Workers Monthly which was sent to me, and I will subscribe as soon as I can get some money.

I am only working thirty hours a week, and my pay is not large. My health is very poor. I am in need of a physician and hospital care. It will take some money and a little time in a hospital to get my health back again. Fraternally yours, A. S., Seymour, Conn.

To the DAILY WORKER:—We are in the midst of seeding and are working 14 hours a day to produce another wheat crop for the speculators to make some more millions on and the bankers can get their interest.

The farmers here are going to put in a record crop. They are buying tractors and breaking up new land, so business for implement dealers is good and the farmers' own business is going to ruin.—Andrew Omholt, Bonetrail, N. Dak.

Does your friend subscribe to the DAILY WORKER? Ask him!

DO YOU KNOW—
That (until June 15) with every year's sub to the DAILY WORKER you can get a six month's sub to the Workers Monthly?
THAT—
You can have a choice of either this offer or a special Loose-Leaf Binder with pocket for receipts and note-paper for your use?
THAT—
These advantages are youre while at the same time you are doing something that will surely build the Communist movement in this country?
IF YOU KNOW—
all this and find the sub blank in this issue—especially if you are a Communist or sympathetic worker—
TELL US—
Just what are you going to do about it?

The Theory and Practice of LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

A brilliant exposition of Communist theory and practice in the period of Capitalist Imperialism—during which our great teacher, Lenin, lived and led.

No book recently issued can be of more value or importance to the worker who would learn of Communism.

This book by the secretary of the Russian Communist Party, who has been a constant and intimate co-worker of Lenin, is not only an extremely timely work, but also one that is destined surely to become one of the classics of Communist literature.

ILDING TRADE NIONS' RIVAL COUNCILS MERGE

But Four Lacals Hold to Old Council

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary Tracy of the building trades department American Federation of Labor, leaving Washington headquarters to help the special election of officers of the Cleveland building trades council, announced the terms of settlement of the dispute between the rival councils in Cleveland.

International executive officers of building trades unions unanimously agreed that the carpenters as well as all unions affiliated with the department should have the right to submit nominations and to vote in the election, thru their certified delegates.

Each union was given the proportion of delegates provided for such council representation under section 6 of the department's constitution. The officers chosen at this "merger" election will hold office until next January.

Unions refusing to join the irregular council in carrying out this plan were four: Bricklayers, plumbers, iron workers and sheet metal workers. They insisted on the regularity of the old council, in which they alone remained.

Court Declares Law Regulating Grain Elevators Invalid

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The North Dakota grain grading act was declared invalid today by the supreme court of the United States in a suit brought by the Farmers' Grain company of Emden, N. D., against Attorney General George F. Shafer, of that state.

Enforcement of the law was prevented temporarily by the federal district court in North Dakota. It was held to be in violation of the commerce clause of the federal constitution and the United States grain standards law.

The law provides for state inspection of grain regulation of state elevator companies, and licensing of buyers.

DID YOU KNOW?

In 1923 every automobile license plate issued by New Jersey was made by convict labor.

The District of Columbia has 7,300 persons a square mile. Rhode Island comes second with 556 persons to a square mile, and Alaska last with one person to every ten miles.

There are one hundred ninety-five religious sects listed in the United States census. Each one has a first mortgage on God.

Because of seasons and slack times the clothing worker is idle 31 per cent of the year, the shoemaker 35 per cent of the year, the builder 63 per cent.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

By a Philadelphia Garment Worker.

THE Biberman Bros. corporation, manufacturers of dresses, uniforms, etc., not only exploit workers in Philadelphia, but also in Porto Rico and in several rural sections near here, where labor standards are low.

When I applied for employment, having been lured by an elaborate ad, promising everything but a living wage, I was sent to a new department for children's dresses.

This corporation, notoriously open shop, has been boycotted more or less by experienced operators, familiar with union conditions, who know that when an advertisement promises such things as sick and death benefits, fresh air and hot lunches, none of which ever materialize, that there is a fly in the ointment.

The children's dresses department on the fifth floor is still fairly light and clean, and for the reason of a tremendous labor turnover, in spite of considerable unemployment in the trade, the iron heel of the corporation had not as yet descended so vigorously there.

On inquiry, I discovered the lunch room was located on the second floor.

This was, indeed, a sweatshop! Here they produced the adult dresses and uniforms. Such horrible congestion! Piles upon piles of dresses. Every space occupied either by machines or equipment. So dark in some spots the operators were forced to use artificial light all day. And in the midst of this confusion, was the lunch room.

At noontime, I saw a crowd of hungry, over-worked women and girls crowding the place.

This dingy imitation of a lunch room is all that remains of the company cafeteria that occupied the fifth floor. And tho the lunches were sold at a nominal rate, the wages of the workers were so low, that they were unable to buy, so the corporation closed it up.

This sweat shop, not content with paying starvation wages to its workers, under the guise of welfare schemes, steals ten cents weekly from their scanty pay envelopes, for alleged sick and death benefits.

Another condition the workers have to fight is a typical spy system, which the bosses use to terrorize them and prevent any solidarity in the shop.

While I was employed there, a small group of militancy and solidarity held sway for a while but were soon weeded out.

Very little attempt has been made by the local union of the needle trade to organise the slaves of this gigantic labor sweating corporation.

All of these conditions simply prove that this shop, like many others in Philadelphia, is rotten ripe for organization on class conscious lines and is equally ripe for the creation of a Communist shop nuclei to teach the workers that not bogus insurance schemes and hot lunches is the goal of labor, but control of the industry and abolition of the wage system.

Coolidge Afraid To Act Against Mary MacSwiney

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

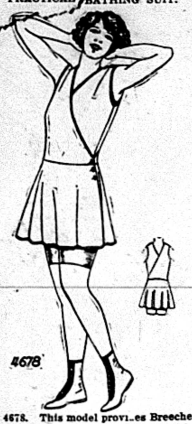
WASHINGTON, May 5.—No definite action concerning any deportation proceedings against Miss Mary MacSwiney, Irish republican has been taken by the immigration authorities despite the fact that they have not been able to find any record of her entry into the United States, it was learned today.

Commissioner General of Immigration W. W. Husband, said he had been informed by Commissioner Curran of New York that search of the Ellis Island records failed to show any information regarding Miss MacSwiney's arrival there. Miss MacSwiney when questioned by immigration officials in Chicago, asserted she had landed in New York from a British vessel on January 24.

The Coolidge government has not been so indulgent with Communists who face deportation.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

PRACTICAL BATHING SUIT.



4678. This model provides Breeches joined to one-half of the waist and the Skirt joined to the other half, both forming the complete design illustrated. The waist portions cross each other in surplice style with a very simple effective closing. One could use jersey, oil silk, rubberized gingham or silk, as well as alpaca, gingham or satin.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires 3⅜ yards of 40 inch material.

CHICAGO ONLY LARGE EDITION OF MAIN STREET

Babbitry Rules Over Burlesque of Life

By TOM MATTHEWS.

My impressions of Chicago?

Yes—A large city, full of smoke, noie, dirt, grime and all that. But more.

Chicago is a collection of Main streets. Here have been thrown together the Main streets of Centerville and Marshalltown, Muscatine and Niobrara—it would seem a thousand more.

Yet the intelligence of Main street has been left behind; all the ignorance has been preserved.

Chicago reads the same cheap, capitalistic press; laughs at the same slapstick comedies, runs to the same baseball games and burlesque shows—"even as Main street."

Chicago has a real newspaper, the DAILY WORKER, but Chicago reads the Tribune.

Chicago has proletarian artists, but who would expect the "thousand main streets" to appreciate its little proletarian culture?

Chicago has proletarian moving pictures, and proletarian actors, but Chicago pays for slapstick and burlesque.

Chicago has all the dumbbellism, all the boobism, all the yokelism, all the "Truestoryism" of Main street.

Chicago falls for "success." Chicago reads its "American Magazine" on the "L" as complacently as any Marshalltowner. Chicago admires its "big men," altho they're only big in wealth and circumference.

Yes—Chicago hurries and the tranportation companies reap their harvest. But Chicago hasn't time to think, hasn't time to appreciate any real art or literature, hasn't time for understanding of the class struggle and Communism.

So Chicago rushes on accumulating more wealth, more filth, more ignorance, more nerves.

Chicagoans hate each other with all the hate that shattered nerves can engender. Friendship and love are rare in Chicago. Even friends seem to glower at each other.

Chicago is a triumph of capitalism—a sick triumph of a sick system.

Rich Get Away with Murder; Poor Hung "Satisfactorily"

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5—A committee of the third annual meeting of the American Law Institute here admits in a report that the rich escape even the laws governing social conduct. The report says:

"While reasonably satisfactory results have been obtained in the prosecution of offenses committed by those without money or influence, it is often possible for a defendant with money and influence to delay the trial of a criminal charge."

Lower Court Upholds Income Tax Publicity Decision Not Final

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The right of newspapers to publish income tax returns was upheld today in a decision rendered by Judge Hatfield in the district court of appeals.

The same question is now before the United States supreme court and is slated for early decision.

The decision was given in the case of Gorham Hubbard of Boston, who, when publication of income taxes was first started, applied for an injunction to prevent the treasury from giving newspapers access to the treasury records.

BUILDERS AT WORK

A BUILDER CAN "WAX POETICAL"

And My, How He "Waxes"!

AN ODE TO THE DAILY WORKER ARMY.

By MOTT SWEHTTAM.

LET us build the DAILY WORKER, 'tis no job for a shirker, but a job for many a willing heart and brain. There's pep and power in "our daily," that's why we work so gaily, without a thought of avarice or gain.

We gotta build that circulation, scatter it thru all creation; that the capitalist may feel the power of truth. So get busy with your sub cards, go and sign up all those "die-hards," then we'll make the DAILY WORKER a giant in its youth.

Yet beware lest good intention make you drift into abstention, from at least a little knocking at their door. Don't expect that new subscribers should just spring up like those riders that you read about in antique Greecian lore.

Join our DAILY WORKER army, we will cure your rheumatarmy; you're the kind our rarin' regiments all need. What with Engdahl, Dunne, and Carmon, out to teach this job of farmin,' there's need of willin' hands to follow with the seed.

So go get the sub card habit, 'twill be a shock to Babbitt, to see our Builders' Army growing all the while. We must sow this land with "Dailies." knockout blows for those Svengalis, who hypnotize the workers with their guile.

Don't put off until tomorrow getting subs, unless with sorrow, you would see our DAILY WORKER shrivel away! It's the subs that keep it going, and our army, ever-growing, must never fail to get them every day.

(Don't fire, men, 'till you see the whites of their eyes!)

• • • •

AND THE BEAUTY OF IT IS—that this poetical Builder is not only talking (poetically?) about it but is also "going out to get them" and we are sure that new subs will come from his district every week. Just as sure in fact as these subs sent in to us by other Builders on

BANG, GOES ANOTHER CHALLENGE!

Comrades Stachel and Zam of New York, attention!

Comrade M. L. Malkin of the Down Town English branch of New York sends us this letter which puts the matter up to two other comrades:

> Enclosed are two subs to the DAILY WORKER, one for one year and one for three months.

Now that's shouting! Comrades Stachel and Zam—how about it?

GREAT NORTHERN MEN SHOULD GET RAISE, IF COLLABORATION PAYS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, May 5—Sticking the workers with lower wages probably accounts for the fact that Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railroad is reporting that the first quarter of the year shows, in spite of the fact that the Great Northern took $47,694 less income during the first three months of this year than the same period last year, still the road made an increase in net profits of $270,336.

Answer the International Open Shop!

With the dispatches from Britain one may see clearly why the British labor unions are seeking despite every obstacle put in their way by the Amsterdam socialist reformists and the outspoken reactionary capitalist forces, to unite themselves with the Russian unions and work for world trade union unity.

The mine owners of England, considered as a whole, cannot pay even the starvation wage needed to keep the miners and their families alive—and still pay profits. This is because all mines are privately owned, many use out of date machinery, inefficient methods, and each one has a group of leeches consisting of stockholders and overlapping managerial boards eating up vast expenses. The miners of England have rightly demanded nationalization of the mines and organization of the industry into a unit to produce efficiently.

The railroads have begun an open shop drive, in which they ask longer hours, wage cuts and wholesale discharges. The company has gone to division organizations and asked the men to accept these conditions, and has refused to deal with the national unions. A giant lockout thus threatens.

In addition the employers in the metal trades propose that from three to five and a half hours be added to the working week with a practical abolition of overtime penalty rates. They cite the fact that Greman workers, driven under the Dawes slave plan, are working 60 and more hours per week, and say they cannot meet competition unless the British unions agree to longer hours and less wages.

The plan of General Dawes, characterized as the "international open shopper," is the battering ram used by the employers of all the world to beat down the living standards of the workers. The British workers have instinctively and definitely turned to the only source of labor unity and militant struggle in the international labor union movement—the Red International of Labor Unions.

The masses of the British workers are not going to take a beating lying down. The British unions, the strongest section of the Amsterdam International, are determined upon the immediate unity of that body with the R. I. L. U., and woe be unto any hesitating reformists and reactionary labor fakers who stand in the way.

This brings to mind the status of the American Federation of Labor and other great American unions. Are they going to meet the same international open shop drive with class collaboration or a united fighting front? It is up to the American militants to point the way.

Rather Disappointing

The Chicago Tribune is not entirely pleased with the way things are going in Italy. When Mussolini seized power the fascist regime was greeted by the Tribune with acclaim. For the capitalists, this was a delightful change from the days when the workers appeared to be on the threshold of power, when people expected every day to read of the establishment of a Soviet republic in Italy.

Mussolini and his dictatorship saved the day temporarily for capitalism and the American capitalist press was not slow to make proper acknowledgement. In fact it may not be known until the workers of Italy throw the archives of the bourgeois government open to the world, how closely connected the capitalists of Wall Street were to the plot that landed Mussolini on the throne as dictator. It is known that the then Ambassador Washburn Child greeted Mussolini on the success of his violent revolution, as the American ambassador to Spain greeted Primo de Rivera later on.

But the American capitalists are disappointed in the result of the fascist regime. It doesn't work. The masses are against it and their opposition is not lessening but becoming more pronounced. The workers who were at first deluded by the fine phrases of Mussolini and his assassins, now see that the dictatorship which promised to give a square deal to "all classes" (as if this were possible) is only a government of the capitalist class, like all governments, except that of Soviet Russia.

The broad masses in opposition to Mussolini are becoming bolder. The Matteotti murder will not down. The dictatorship of the majority by a minority has proven a failure. Therefore the Tribune washes its filthy hands of the Italian muddle and calls it a day.

The Tribune changes its mind occasionally. It once favored the child labor amendment. It suddenly switched and discovered revolution lurking in every clause of that innocuous bill. It now leaves Mussolini in the lurch. It's the old story of rats deserting a sinking ship.

A Blackshirt Whitewash

The senate commission appointed to sift the charges of complicity in the murder of the socialist Deputy Matteotti, made against Premier Mussolini, brought in a report absolving the dictatorship from blame, and treating the case as a criminal one involving only those directly implicated in it.

It is reported that the king, using his royal perogative ordered the commission to bring in such a report. It is also undoubtedly true that Mussolini, using his assassin's dagger, ordered the king to order the commission to whitewash the fascisti regime on pain of losing his royal head.

Matteotti's widow may appeal, but this will do her little good. The senate and parliament are the tool of the fascist government, which is yet supported by the capitalists, who prefer the devil they know to the devil that a breakdown of Mussolini's rule might let loose on them.

It may be only a concidence, but it is nevertheless significant that Thomas Lamont, big figure in the House of Morgan, was in Rome recently. What he said to Mussolini and the king of Italy we do not know. But there is no doubt but Lamont and Morgan are not anxious to see the fascist regime replaced by one not so easily handled. The action of the senate commission coming on the heels of Wall Street's emissary may be only a coincidence, but it is a very suspicious one.

The Italian courts, like the American courts, serve the interests of the class that controls the government. This is never so apparent as when that government is faced wit ha crisis. The power of Mussolini and his cutthroats hangs by a slender thread. While he was ill recently, the peasants were seizing the estates of the Roman nobles and building nice little gallows on which to hang their owners. If the senate commission appointed to probe the Matteotti murder haled Mussolini before the public as the principal culprit, his government would not last long.

In which event the gallows would not be idle. Hence the whitewash.

Another Coolidge Appointee

"We are entertained by the news that President Coolidge will appoint John B. Stetson, Jr., of Pennsylvania, as minister to Finland.

Mr. Stetson, it must be remembered, is the son of the founder of the famous scab hat manufacturing company.

Bolshevik persons are perhaps inclined to be critical, but the appointment by Coolidge of one after another of the most brass-faced enemies of the workers somehow seems to indicate that John L. Lewis and Mother Jones were not exactly correct in their touting Mr. Coolidge in the last election as a great friend of the workers.

The country had not yet finished vomitting over the Warren appointment, until the most expert of of liars about Soviet Russia in the Far Eastern department of the state department was made consul general at Hankow, China. Now, one of the outstanding open shoppers of the nation is sent to an important post in a country which is obligated to the United States bankers and which is expected to continue its role as a barrier to Bolshevism.

Doubtless it is fitting that white guard Finnish heads should wear scab hats and consort with their open shop sponsor. Laboring men and women who are inclined to show surprise that Coolidge should appoint avowed enemies of organized labor to responsible posts, may be reminded that Coolidge represents a capitalist political party in a capitalist government, and that not until labor as a mass suuports a political party of the workers, overthrows capitalist rule and establishes a workers' and farmers' government, can they expect anything different.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America is organized for this special purpose, and workers who are disillusioned with labor support of capitalist government, should join and support the Workers Party.

"Green" Goods

Woodrow Wilson once made a hit with the employing class of this country by declaring that the heavy unemployment existing at the time was a "psychological" condition. Evidently William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, not only votes the democratic party ticket, but also does his thinking after the fashion of the dead leader of a half-dead party.

Speaking in Fall River, Mass., a great textile center, Green declared that, tho there was unemployment just now, the situation was not menacing. "We are sound," he said. "There is understanding and belief among the people that conditions are going to be good and when the people believe that conditions are going to be good, then your battle is more than half won," continued the Ohio baptist. His message reads like a dollars worth of Christian science.

Green did not confine himself to proving that not having any job is not so bad provided you think you have a job. He lectured the textile slaves on their duty to the boss. "His rights should be recognized," declared the leader of the American Federation of Labor, "the right of managing the affairs of his organization, of his company, the right to earn a fair return on invested capital."

Who is going to determine what is a fair return on invested capital? The worker or the employer? Green knows quite well that a constant struggle will go on between the workers and their masters until the former are in a position to determine how much of the product of industry shall go to the capitalists. That will be so little that the poor capitalists will have to decide on doing some useful work or going without food.

The Recent Elections in Belgium

By A. Harb

THE elections in Belgium, which took place on the 5th of April, have resulted in a great victory for the socialist party and a defeat for the liberal party, and have also given the Communist Party of Belgium the opportunity of sending its first representatives to parliament. The labor party has become the strongest group in the chamber, in which no party possesses an absolute majority. The government which will be formed will necessarily be a coalition government. It can already be seen that this government will meet with great difficulties in the chamber itself.

Belgium has three great traditional parties:

1. The catholic party. This conservative party finds its support in the rural districts, where the influence of the clergy and of the big landowners is very great among the small peasants. It is also supported by the catholic sections of the middle classes and the workers in the christian trade unions, which latter comprise 200,000 organized workers. Before the war, when a system of plural voting prevailed, it wielded power alone.

2. The liberal party. This party is the party of the industrial and commercial big bourgeoisie, as well as of the petty bourgeoisie of the industrial centers. After having for many years fought along with the Belgium labor (socialist) party against the catholic domination, it abandoned its anti-clericalism in order, after the war, to form a catholic-liberal bloc.

3. The labor party. Founded forty years ago the Belgian labor party is not a purely political party but comprises political, educational, convalescent, co-operative, trade union and provident organizations, which are closely allied with one another. This is the sole explanation of its strength (more than 600,000 members) and its cohesion.

In addition to these three great parties there exist the Communist Party, whose influence, while still weak, is growing from day to day, and the front party, a nationalist Flemish party which demands complete autonomy for the Flemish provinces of the country.

In November, 1921, the parliamentary elections gave the following results:

	Votes	Seats
Catholic Party	774,132	80
Labor Party	672,474	68
Liberal Party	346,419	33
Front Party	58,790	4
Ex-Service Men	19,401	1
Communist Party (in Brussels and Verviers)	3,165	—
Total		186

This time, as a result of the annexation of the Eupen-Malmedy district, 187 deputies had to be elected. With the exception of the ex-service men whose representative had joined the labor party, the same parties took part as in the 1921 election. The results are as follows:

	Votes	Seats
Labor Party	820,685	79
Catholic Party	787,379	78
Liberal Party	304,735	22
Front Party	84,133	6
Communist Party (in 12 electoral districts)	34,147	2
Total		187

It should be noted that the system of proportional representation is in force, under which the superfluous votes are taken into account, which renders impossible any great change over in the distribution of seats. The socialists have therefore a great victory to record with their gain of 11 seats. And the liberals, who have lost the same number of seats, have suffered a very severe defeat. The catholic party also suffers a severe reverse in the loss of two seats. In posing as the only party of law and order it endeavored to rally round it all the patriotic elements in order to obtain the absolute majority. In Brussels it concluded an election alliance with the fascists, whose leader ran on the catholic ticket.

The defeat of the bourgeois parties is partly to be accounted for by the impotence of the last coalition governments who were unable to do anything to prevent the fall of the Belgian franc and the increase in prices. The Belgian labor party, which was the great opposition party, reaps the benefit of this defeat, which constituted a condemnation of the incapacity of the bourgeois parties. This, however, is not the sole explanation of the socialist victory.

The Belgian labor party, by retaining the form of its organization upon a centralized basis, preserves its influence upon the great masses of the proletariat and at the same time wins the support of the backward sections of the working class and is also beginning to penetrate into the petty bourgeoisie and the peasantry. For years its tactics have consisted in repudiating even the appearance of being a class war party. In every situation it subordinates the interests of the proletariat to the interests of the capitalist state. Excluded from participation in the ministry, it works with the bourgeoisie in a great number of committees. It is the collaborator with the industrial magnates on the national committee for industrial production. It nips in the bud any inclination to fight on the part of the proletariat, and when strikes break out it sabotages them "in the interests of the community." It poses as the great party of the left, which respects the firmly established order, is loyal to the monarchy and is hostile to any revolutionary action. The christian workers, the petty bourgeois and the intellectuals are gradually coming over to it.

The Communist Party is captur the elite of the class conscious sections of the proletariat. In spite of the reformist and democratic traditions which prevail among the Belgian workers, in spite of the weak resources it had in the election campaign, which met with resistance on all sides, in spite of the terror organized against its supporters by the socialists of the Borinage district and of the Flemish provinces, the Communist Party of Belgium received 34,000 votes and captured two seats: Jacquemotte in Brussels and Van Overstraaten in Liege. The Communist Party only met with a failure in Charleroi, where it obtained 6,000 votes. In Seraing it obtained just as many votes as the Belgian labor party. The Communist Party of Belgium showed itself to be a party of the workers which from now on must be reckoned with, and which will know how to win the confidence of an ever increasing number of workers.

At the moment of writing it is impossible to predict to which party will fall the task of forming the government. A new catholic-liberal coalition? But the liberals appear to be determined to remain in the opposition. Coalition of the three parties? This idea finds no supporters and seems only to be possible in the form of a cabinet of experts. There remains the possibility of a catholic government supported by the liberals. And finally, there is a possibility of a very questionable left government, a "democratic government" which will be formed by Vandervelde with the support of a group of Flemish catholics, democratic liberals and christian democrats.

The hopes of the socialists are directed to this solution, the realisation of which depends upon the attitude which the Flemish catholics will take. Vandervelde, who is an astute maneuverer, has already laid down the program of such a government.

Sunny Jim, the Slum Proletarian

By Robin E. Dunbar

JERRY BARTLETT was walking down 37th Place, or rather, shuffling along with the help of a disreputable stick, and he looking twice as dirty and disreputable, limping, in worn out shoes double his size, pants so large he had to take a tuck in front with a safety pin to hold them on; a shirt that looked so soiled it was doubtful if any of our modern steam laundries could cleanse it in one washing; altogether he so much reminded me of that most filthy old wreck who ever trod the streets of Los Angeles, that I at first mistook him for old Jim himself, and asked him diplomatically about Jim so as to be on the safe side, should I happen to be mistaken.

Jerry, whose real name is Winfield, and whose lottery in life has been almost as luckless as Jim's, and whose story will appear hereafter, quickly gave me the few salient facts about his friend's miserable end, as well as some interesting details about his unlucky life. It seems a couple of years ago Sunny Jim got so sick and so violent that he was taken to the County Hospital and operated on. He had to be strapped down to his couch to keep him from raving and committing violence, and after a short hectic struggle, he gave up trying to win life's lottery and passed out.

"So he's buried in a pauper's grave?" I inquired.

"Yes, hain't it terrible!" exclaimed Jerry.

"And you were a friend of Jim's? Can you give me a few details of his life?"

He told the story as such things are told: not as in books where the narrative flows along as smoothly as in "Vanity Fair," but brokenly, disconnectedly, disjointedly; now a fine stroke here, and again a dash there thrown on the canvas from some inner impulse.

Sunny Jim's real name will never be known. He refused to tell it even on his death bed; altho he said his folks back east had asked him to return to them and they would take care of him while he lived and bury him honorably after he died. He said: "No, no; I don't want to have anything to do with them!" And so he ended unknown; inconnu; solitary as he had lived; with his blackjack as his sole hereditament; the weapon that had slugged so many friends and foes, who had been unfortunate enough to arouse that quick swift temper of the case-hardened old wreck; a memorable wreck of western capitalism.

Jim was a scene painter by trade, and he worked around the old Burbank theater in Los Angeles painting the scenery there and at the Orpheum until he got so drunken and worthless that no one would tolerate him around; then he drifted over back of the railroad yards, and got into trouble robbing a car. He served four years in San Quentin for that. His companions ran away and left old Jim there sitting beside the loot, while the cops outpointed him; loaded him up and took him off to the stir.

"They would never have got me, if I had had my gun." Jim said to Jerry.

When Sunny Jim got thru serving his bit he returned to the scenes of his old haunts; a shack on the corner of 34th street and St. Andrews Place, a block from Jerry's room. He bought wine from the winery nearby, which he could purchase then in the prewar period, for two bits a gallon, kept his skin soaked full of gin fandel and muscatel and then added wood alcohol ad lib and other vile concoctions after the manner of buying as long as he could beg, borrow or steal a cent whereby to purchase them.

"'Jerry, I hain't got a cent. Lend me a dime and I'll go down town; and tonight when I come home, I'll have $60.' And sure enough, when he came home, he showed me two twenties and a ten!" . . .

"The question is, Jerry, where did he get his money?"

"I don't know; all I know is he got it. Why Jim was a smart man; well educated too. He was born in Germany and he had painted the pictures of some famous men there and got lots of money for 'em too. His folks was worth thousands and thousands of dollars; but he wouldn't have anything to do with them. He was too proud. In a way you had to pity the man. He got so nobody would have him around; they all would turn him out. He had an incurable disease. The doctor said something was eating his vitals out. He didn't know what it was; but it was terrible. When Jim came home with that sixty dollars, he would go over to the winery and buy five gallons of wine, and stay in the house until he drank it all up. One time he said, 'Jerry, if you are going to drive your horse and wagon down town, I want you to take me to the wholesale house over on the San Fernando road, and I want to get some wine and fetch it home and drink it up.' And when I told him, 'Jim, you ought not to act like that.' He would say, 'Shut your mouth. That's my business.' And that's just the way he would do. He wasn't right; he was crooked and he was crazy, but some way you had to feel sorry for him."

"Why did they call him 'Sunny Jim?' He was the crabbiest, meanest, dirtiest, grouchiest specimen of humanity it ever became my misfortune to meet? Ugh! His whiskers were one filthy mat of corruption; his clothes were soaking with slime of the gutters and the sewers; his hands and face were caked with filth. He was so repulsive that few men and women had the nerve to look him squarely in the face. And yet they called him 'Sunny Jim.'"

"Oh, I guess the boys just did that to have their way. He was awful grouchy. He would hit his best friend with that blackjack over nothing. I knew a man who offered him a big peach once. Jim knocked it into the gutter and hit the man's wrist such a lick with that billy it almost broke it."

"Didn't the police arrest him?"

"The took him in hundreds of times for being drunk and making trouble, but they knew he wasn't right and so they turned him out after warning him to keep off the streets as much as he could."

"He used to walk around in the rain in his stocking feet, didn't he?"

"Yes, and lots of times he'd never come home, but sleep in an alley; or in some box car. The boys used to slip him a dime or a quarter or four bits even; they felt sorry for him. But it didn't do him no good. He would just go and drink it up. It was awful. One day he threw an ax at me and the handle hit me on the ankle, and I told Jim, 'Look ahere, Jim, you've got to cut that out!' It hurt like sixty. If the blade had struck me, it might have cut my leg. I didn't have much to do with him after that. I wouldn't mess up with him. Says I to myself, he'll get me into some sort of scrape and then slip out of it himself and let me swing for it. He's always slipping out of everything. He could blackjack a man and get out of it; while I couldn't do nothing."

"Did you ever drink with him; get drunk with him and so on?"

"Oh, I wasn't never much of a hand to drink. You see, I always had my horse and wagon. I could go out and get a good price for hauling away rubbish; but Jim didn't have nothing; tho he wouldn't beg; he was too proud for that. In a way I felt sorry for Jim; but wasn't it awful the way he ended?"

This story was written for a union paper, that professes to circulate amongst the workers of Los Angeles. The dope proved too strong for the editor's weak stomach, and so it is handed on to this journal, whose readers aren't so squeamish.

The point is: Amongst the bourgeoisie it isn't polite to speak about the losers in life's lottery. The sooner they are gone and forgotten, the better. What is the use of spending much time over the down-and-outs anyway? No use at all. Yet the members of the bum's brigade have the mean capacity of writing their names more indelibly in the memories of the populace than the current millionaires. More of the citizenry of this town remember old disreputable Sunny Jim than old What's-His-Name who used to own and edit the Los Angeles Times? His name was . . . Otis! Yes, that's it. Col. or was it Gen. Otis? Nobody professes to recollect his first name, while everybody has a vivid picture of poor old Sunny Jim. Both are supposed to have passed out of the field of contemporary interest; Otis is gone where the MacNamaras can't blow him up; Jim has left the scenes and the scenery of the old haunts. The Burbank was a stock house in Jim's day; it played "Peg O' My Heart" while Jim painted the set. Now it is a burlesque house, showing vulgar women in nude undress and playing on the sex excitement. Sailors and desert rats and lewd men and sex-starved slaves pour out their wages seeking for false relief from animal appetites. They, like Jim, set their innards on fire, and commit self-destruction while under a wholly natural animal impulse. "Sunny Jim"? Another bright man gone wrong under the iron heel of capitalism. The pressure of that heel sets the whole world awry.

Red Students in Soviet Sugar Industry

(Shopliansky State Sugar Factory, Kiev, Gubernia, Soviet Ukraine, U. S. S. R.)

PREVIOUS to the revolution our bourgeois students devoted most of their time to the study of theoretical subjects and paid very little attention to acquiring practical knowledge of production.

On the other hand, the private sugar manufacturers themselves gave little encouragement to the students in the way of giving them opportunities for practice.

Consequently, engineers were graduated from the engineering institutes, who were often overburdened with utterly unnecessary theoretical knowledge, and who were unfit for practically directing our industrial production.

THE October (Nov. 7, 1917) revolution established the power of the working class firmly and the sugar industry was taken over by the sugar trust, which together with other trusts comes under the supreme council of national economy of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

At the same time, those revolutionary students in our high schools (and they are mostly of working class and peasant origin) who have selected the sugar industry as their specialty are given every opportunity to spend two to four months every year in the beet sugar and refining works during the period of production as well as during the repairing period.

THE workers as a whole have been given an opportunity to take conscious and useful part in production to a large degree owing to these revolutionary students who not only learn from the workers the practical side of industry, but also impart theoretical knowledge to the latter.

By this means the workers are now beginning to come forward with business-like proposals at the production conferences, thus helping to remedy shortcomings, which, altho small are quite important, whereas in the pre-revolutionary period, these questions were left entirely to the discrimination of the factory management and technical staff.

AS a result of systematic conferences on production, in which the administration, the higher and lower technical agronomical personnel, the representatives of trade union and party organizations (factory committees and Communist nuclei) as well as large numbers of factory workers participate—our sugar industry which was all but destroyed by 10 years of imperialist and civil war, foreign intervention and blockade, is now beginning to revive. And in this revival of the sugar industry, in this move forward, our red students, young engineers and agronomists who, coming from the working class and the peasantry, have been trained and educated in the Soviet high schools in the spirit of socialist construction, are playing no small role.—President of the workers' correspondents' bureau in the Shpoliansk state sugar factory—a worker . . . The above signatures are countersigned and stamped with the official stamp of the factory committee of the Shpoliansy sugar factory.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

TRAFFIC in limburger cheese may be merely a commercial matter but traffic in arms is not. This was the gist of a speech delivered by a Belgian count, in opening the international conference for the control of traffic in arms, a few days ago. The count's listeners applauded the speech. Tho the United States is not affiliated with the league of nations, there is an American delegate at the arms conference. The thing is a fake and will have no detrimental effect on the business of making, selling and shipping lethal weapons any more than the opium conference had on the business of making profit out of dope.

IT is funny to hear some of the delegates talk about "the sacred right of revolution." This may sound revolutionary, but the hidden joker in the woodpile is that this gives the big powers a strong lever against any small country that will not take their orders. It is a well known fact that the United States uses this club in South America. The group that lines up with Wall Street gets the guns and their opponents get the bullets. So much for capitalist peace conferences.

The "poor working girl" will wear artificial stockings, and woolen substitutes and pay dearly for them so long as the employing class own the industries and run the government. Only when "the poor work-

General Superintendent.

OHIO SUPREME COURT BRANDS UNION ILLEGAL

Smashing Blow Aimed at Carmen's Union

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, May 6.— The Ohio supreme court delivered one of the most telling blows ever directed at the trade unions when it handed down a decision declaring the closed shop illegal in the case of the Cleveland Railway company against its unionized employes.

The case has been in the courts for almost a year. About that time an arbitration committee handed down a wage award which the company refused to accept, on the ground that one of the arbitrators was favorable to the workers. The men immediately took a strike vote. Then the republican party convention was held and fake labor leaders advised the union to call off the strike for the time being.

Offered Five Cents.

The company offered the union an increase of five cents an hour and when the men turned this offer down, the company declared an open shop. The president of the union secured an injunction preventing the company from declaring an open shop and the company bulletin announcing the scab shop was held in abeyance until a few days ago when the supreme court decision was handed down.

No sooner had the open shop decision reached President John J. Stanley of the street car company than he had couriers on their way to all car barns posting up the open shop announcements and a notice that each man would receive a five-cent an hour increase in wages. Stanley declared that he would no longer recognise the union representatives but would deal with individual employes.

Would Not Break Laws.

Stanley will not consider any suggestions to make another agreement, he told reporters. With mock sincerity he said: "You mustn't ask me to make any agreements when the courts have said plainly that I am forbidden to do so. I know you would not ask me to do anything illegal."

Strikebreakers are being assembled at all the car barns and guards are being posted all around the company's properties. Heavy wire armor for the cars, thousands of wooden clubs, barricades for the barns, mess halls and bunk houses for strikebreakers, have been in readiness for more than one year.

The supreme court decision is considered the most drastic ever handed down by a capitalist court in the United States. It means that:

No public utility enjoying a monopoly of its field can make a closed shop union contract with any kind of labor.

Closed shop union contracts are contrary to public policy on the ground that they might bar from employment individuals not wanting to join a union.

The Fakers Crawled.

Radicals point out that the crawfishing of the labor fakers to the capitalists, did not mollify the latter's bitter hatred against organized labor. A Workers Party leader in Cleveland declared that "had the streetcar employes of Cleveland struck when they threatened to do so last June, when the republican party convention was in session, they would have compelled the company to surrender." He continued: "The workers have again learned to their cost that the capitalist courts are tools of the employing class. The workers' only salvation lies in their trade union and political class organizations."

International officials of the street carmen's union are expected in Cleveland.

CROUCH GIVEN FORTY YEARS BY AMERICAN IMPERIALISM FOR HIS DEFENSE OF HAWAIIAN WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, May 6—Paul Crouch was sentenced to forty years in a United States federal prison at hard labor for declaring his solidarity with the workers and soldiers of Hawaii.

The principal "evidence" used against Crouch at the court martial of the Hawaiian Communist soldier, was a letter written by Crouch and signed by the executive committee of the Hawaiian Communist League to the Communist International.

Rouses Ire of Imperialists.

It was this letter, which pointed out the oppression of the Japanese and Filipino workers by the American sugar trust which roused the ire of the American imperialists who control the United States army.

Gets Favored Position

GENEVA, May 6.—The United States was today unanimously elected a member of the international bureau of nine countries to carry on the work of the present conference for the control of international arms traffic.

International security was the chief issue before the conference today. The Swedish, Polish and Greek delegates were the principal speakers.

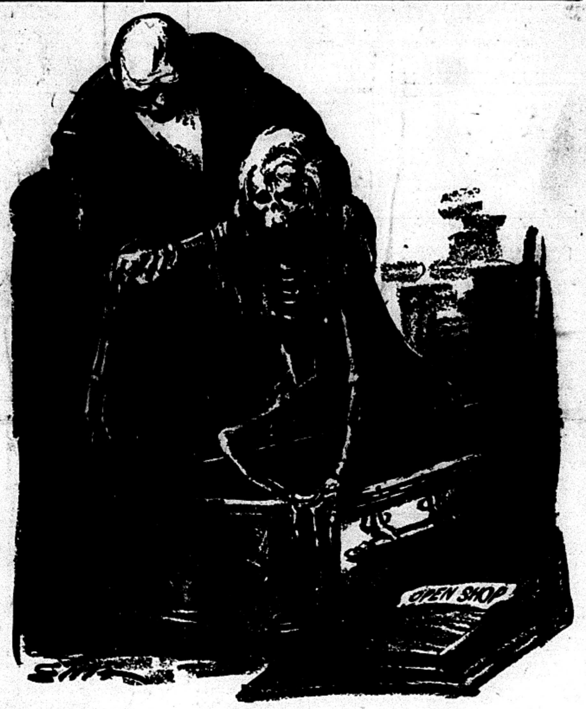
MEXICO JOINS MORGAN'S INTERNATIONAL WAR ON LIFE OF SOVIET RUSSIA

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, May 6.—The direct subservience of Mexico to Wall Street is seen in the fact that President Calles today formally notified Soviet Russia thru the Soviet legation here, that Mexico would not tolerate any interference in her internal affairs nor permit Russia to "use the Soviet legation as a stepping stone to Communize the Americas."

This follows the acceptance by Calles of the Morgan-made Lamont-De la Huerta agreement, which is the signal of Mexican servitude to United States imperialism.

THE BOSS RESURRECTS AN OLD FRIEND



COMMUNIST CANDIDATE IN LOS ANGELES GETS 23,041 VOTES FOR REVOLUTIONARY PLATFORM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 6.—Emanuel Levin, candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party for member of the Board of Education, has polled, even according to the capitalist vote counters, 23,041 votes in the city election held yesterday.

Limited as were the issues involved in the control of city schools, Comrade Levin raised in connection with every one of them the major issue of the class struggle and declared his advocacy of a Communist society as the only method of the workers attaining even the immediate educational needs of their class.

The program began with the charge that the present educational system is simply a part of the capitalist dictatorship, as follows:

"The existing school system is one of the institutions used to perpetuate the capitalist system. The working class has no voice or influence in shaping the educational policies. Our school system must be changed to train and fit the child and youth to be citizens in a society based upon production for use and not for profit; in which the means of production and distribution and natural resources are in the hands of the workers and farmers."

A complete change was outlined in detail, embracing the policy of the educational system toward the class struggle and definite issues including management of schools by councils of teachers and students, unionization, opposing military training and race segregation.

If Elected Would Work for Communism

Comrade Levin, however, dispelled any illusions that these demands would be permitted realization under capitalism. He said: "The candidate running on the above platform knows that the ruling class will not permit the realization of his demands under the present system of society, and therefore pledges himself when elected to work for the establishment of a Communist society."

BUILDING TRADE WORKERS STRIKE FOR UNION SHOP

2,000 Walk Out on New Market Project

Two thousand building trades workers employed on the immense new market project at 14th St., and So. Racine Ave., being constructed for the Central Cold Storage company by the McLennan Construction Co., went on strike yesterday morning against the open shop.

Strikers, which include the bricklayers, sheet metal workers, tile setters, the structural iron workers, the electricians, the plumbers and the ornamental iron workers, demanded that the several thousand carpenters, cement mixers and laborers who are working on the market buildings under the non-union "Landis award" scale, be unionized. All laborers who belong to the union have come out on strike, and the non-union workers are expected to join the walkout this morning.

Unorganized to Join Strike

A conference was to be held last night between the McLennan company contractors, who are building the project to replace the old South Water St., market, and representatives of the Building Trades Council, 179 West Washington St., which called the strike, J. J. Conroy, secretary of the council, said.

When the DAILY WORKER reporter talked to groups of workers gathered around the cement mixing machines, the non-union workers expressed the desire to be organized.

"Everybody will be on strike Thursday morning," was the statement of all workers questioned.

The I. W. W. members working on the construction job have joined the walk out and are co-operating to make the strike effective.

CROUCH CASE STIRS ANGER OF VETERANS

Ex-Soldiers in Fight on "Labor" Editor

By JOS. A. WINTERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GIRARD, Ohio, May 6.—The Labor Record, official organ of the trade unions in Mahoning and Trumbull county, supported by most of the trade unions in the valley, has come out and out as one of the leading red-baiting sheets in these parts.

Edited by an ex-socialist and recent supporter of LaFollette, this sheet turns loose its vomit upon the two soldier members of the Hawaiian Communist League, privates Crouch and Trumbull, and applauds the efforts of the enemies of labor in sentencing these soldiers to long terms in a military prison for the exercising of their so-called political rights.

Ex-Socialist a Public Stool Pigeon.

In an editorial dated April 30th and headed "Bolshevist Propaganda In Army Aimed At Our Democracy" this sheet applauds the army authorities for jailing these two soldiers and thereby saving "our democracy." The editor calls upon the government to go further and jail "the directing heads of this vast organization aiming to undermine our army and our navy."

Progressive members in the trade unions are preparing to demand that the career of this red-baiting editor be cut short. The combined efforts of the labor faking and capitalist sheets are being used to support the brutal sentences handed out to soldiers Crouth and Trumbull, and especially in the steel district where a strong sentiment amongst the ex-servicemen exists in favor of Crouch and Trumbull.

War Veteran Aid Soldier Victims.

A clear and honest statement of the cases of Crouch and Trumbull will be sent to every labor organization in the valley and the red-baiting work of the Labor Record exposed as doing the dirty work of the foes of labor.

Jos. A. Winters, of Masury, O., a veteran of the Canadian forces during the world war, heads the committee of ex-service men leading the fight in behalf of Crouch and Trumbull and for the public education on the so-called democracy that sentences soldiers to prison for 40 years for exercising their alleged political liberties.

SMALL DEALS ANOTHER BLOW AT LABOR, HOUSE KILLS 8-HOUR BILL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 6.—The bill to limit the labor of Illinois women to eight hours a day failed by one vote to secure the necessary number of votes to pass the bill. The vote was 76 in favor and 57 against.

Mrs. L. H. O'Neill, who presented the bill, changed her vote in order to move for a new roll call. It is admitted that the bill has little chance of passing.

Governor Len Small is in control of the Illinois house, and the failure of the bill to pass is seen as further evidence that Small is aiding the manufacturers' lobby against the labor bills.

McCARTHY WILL TELL STORY OF IRISH FAMINE

Mass Meeting Will Be Held Tomorrow Evening

John P. McCarthy, recently returned from Ireland, will be the principal speaker tomorrow evening at an Irish famine relief mass meeting in North Side Turner Hall, at 827 North Clark street. Comrade McCarthy spent several months on the west coast of Ireland where the failure of the crops and the constant downpour of rain hit the peasantry most severely.

During the course of his visit to Ireland McCarthy interviewed leaders of all factions of the trade union and radical movements in Ireland. He tells a very interesting story of the present situation in that country which has passed thru years of revolution and civil war.

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, T. J. O'Flaherty and Robert Totten will also speak.

Pictures of Irish scenes will be shown. The proceeds of the meeting will go towards the relief of the famine stricken workers and peasants of the west of Ireland.

HOLD FULL N. E. C. SESSION OF Y. W. L. HERE ON SATURDAY

A full session of the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League will be held on Saturday and Sunday, May 9 and 10, to hear the reports of the delegates to the sessions of the enlarged executive committee of the Communist International and the Young Communist International and to lay out the plans of work for the American league up until the coming national convention.

The session of the N. E. C., it has been announced, will be open to all league and party members, and the place and time of the two days' sessions will be announced in an early issue of the DAILY WORKER. Out-of-town comrades are especially invited.

The sessions will also be occupied with reports on the work of the league in the past few months, as well as special reports on Negro work, press, and Leninist education.

The first session will be held from 1 p. m. to 6 p. m. on Saturday at the Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. (upstairs hall).

The second day's session will be held Sunday beginning at 11 a. m. at the same place.

CHICAGO CARMEN MAY STRIKE FOR THE 1922 SCALE

Ask Nickel Raise on New Contract

Chicago streetcar and elevated workers are likely to face a wage war with the traction magnates when their contract expires on May 31.

Conferences will be asked by President Wm. Quinlan of Division 241 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, with President Blair of the Chicago surface lines.

The union has instructed its officials to fight for the 1922 scale, calling for 80 cents an hour, limitation of night runs to not later than 6 a. m. and insurance to be paid for by the company. The elevated employes are also demanding the 1922 scale. The surface men are now getting only 75 cents an hour.

The matter of whether there shall be a strike or not is wholly up to the company, and depends upon whether or not it refuses to consider the demands.

Firemen Die in Atlanta Blaze

ATLANTA, Ga., May 6.—Six firemen are dead and others are missing in a fire that destroyed the cotton warehouse of Schoen Brothers here today. While firemen are fighting the flames, a number of bales of cotton crashed thru the floor of the second story and the walls toppled in, burying a number of firemen in the blazing debris.

STANDARD OIL FORCED TO STOP SALE OF "LOONEY GAS" DESPITE AID GIVEN TRUST BY THE GOVERNMENT

NEW YORK, May 6.—The sale of ethyl "looney" gasoline, has been temporarily suspended by the General Motors corporation and the Standard Oil company, following universal condemnation of the "looney gas" as a menace to public health.

'RED MENACE' HAUNTS WOMEN AT WASHINGTON

Super-Patriots Shiver at "Plot" Charges

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Moscow has tainted the program of the International Council of Women, with the purpose of undermining American institutions; or, Moscow has plotted to undermine the International Council of Women, and thereby the conservative institutions for which it stands.

Take your choice. The "red menace" is discovered by super-patriots in Washington, operating from both sides of the issue.

"Warn" the White House.

It was just a few days ago that a protest meeting was held by "patriotic" women's organizations in the capital, to warn the white house and state department and citizens at large that Lady Aberdeen and her fellow-delegates from bourgeois women's organizations in 42 countries were dangerous. They were agitating for internationalism, which was much the same as Bolshevism. They were advocating the league of nations and the world court, which would mix us up in European affairs and teach our public men to tolerate discussion with radicals who hold office in those foreign countries.

But on the opening day of the quinquennial sessions of the International Council of Women, when the delegates claiming to represent 39,000,000 women had gathered, the Washington Star, in first column, first page, announced "Red Plot To Wreck Women's Council Meeting Charged," and followed up the headline with an account of the fact that one Milton Fairchild, president of the Character Education Institute, had visited the convention headquarters with charges that the Communist International was trying to break it up. It appeared that he felt sure that "the world Communist organizations had agents in the capital who were using various patriotic organizations as their tools to discredit the purposes of the convention."

Shades of Sam. Gompers.

Inasmuch as the patriotic organizations referred to as tools of the Communist International were the ones with which the late Samuel Gompers associated himself, along with army officers of the rank of Gen. Fries of the chemical warfare service, in viewing with alarm Jane Addams and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, this was a severe blow to the women patriots.

Lady Aberdeen explained that the governments of 38 of the countries affiliated in the council are members of the league of nations, and that that issue would not be raised as to America. There was nothing radical about the organization. This statement was borne out by the program and the character of the speakers.

When not discovering red plots, Fairchild is identified in the local public mind with so-called character education, and with a sleeping-box in which he induces slumber by the aid of colored lights.

Cop Thought Idea a Crime That Classes Have Differences

NEW YORK, May 6.—Arrest of persons distributing Communist literature does more to spread radicalism than anything radicals can do, Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan rules and discharged two Italian workers whom police had arrested for handling out May Day literature.

Guseppe Mozzola and Vincenzo Perrone are the men and the Italian newspaper they were giving out near a public school contained an article, Policeman Thomas Kutzer charged, which translated: "The working class and the capitalists have nothing in common, etc."

Builders Strike for Union Wages

endeavoring to persuade the Building Trades Council officials to call off the strike, the company's "watchmen" and private guards were spreading the story that "there is no strike."

Negroes Refuse To Scab

On the corner of 15th St. and Racine Ave., a private detective of the company was trying to persuade a group of unemployed Negro's to go to work. They had been sent up from the downtown employment office at 218 S. Clark St. "But I don't see any men working on that building," one worker said. "You tell me the men were called off the job by the union. If that isn't a strike then I never saw one." They refused to go to work.

"Go down to city hall," said one boss when questioned. "They have a report on the situation up here, and they can tell you about it."

The carpenters employed on the new buildings are hired at non-union wages. The cement mixers, and workers on the cement mixing machines, are all hired as "common laborers" and receive the same non-union, "Landis award" scale, 82½ cents an hour.

Strike Spreading

There are two main plants under construction. On the one nearer completion, work was at a standstill, the structural iron workers, electricians, plumbers, tile setters and bricklayers having quit work in a body.

On the other building, most of the work is "common labor" and cement mixing. Workers were still to be seen on this building, but all those interviewed by the DAILY WORKER declared they had decided to walk out this morning. Those who were on the job were working very little, most of the men talking about the walkout.

Whether or not the Building Trades Council officials will be induced by the contractor to order the men back to work remains to be seen. The council has announced no definite steps to organize the laborers who are willing to join the walkout.

NEW YORK LABOR PROPOSES AN EXTENSIVE EDUCATIONAL PLAN OF CHANGE IN SCHOOL SYSTEM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 6.—Beginning with free text books for all school children, the New York Federation of Labor outlines an extensive plan for education reforms in the state school system.

Dental, medical, optical and surgical treatment and care for all school children is the second point. Strict enforcement of the compulsory education law and its extension on full-time or part-time basis to the 18th year is the third proposal.

Favors "Vocational Training" School For Creating Scabs.

Limitation of pre-vocational training to children under 16 and of vocational training to those over 16; more free scholarships for grammar school graduates are urged.

Establishment of state and city supervised and supported vacation camps for school children to provide educational and physical training; first aid courses in schools; establishment of nominal priced school lunches to counteract undernourishment and teach food values; separate educational budgets in all cities and school districts; reorganization of rural school system to enable all children to enter high school are proposed.

For Closed Shop in Schools.

Organization of all teachers in the American Federation of Teachers, affiliated with the state federation and American Federation of Labor, and aid of all central bodies to the teachers' union is sought.

Elective self-governing school and district councils of teachers; guarantee of job tenure to teachers during efficiency are suggested.

Opposes Subsidized Schools.

Elimination of rating system and substitution of professional standards worked out by teachers and principals are asked.

The New York Teachers' Union has been fighting the rating system which allows too much politics to enter the educational system.

Repeal of state law chartering Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board; state investigation of all private trade schools having benefit incomes from trust funds established for trade or industrial education purposes of less than college grade are sought.

For "Free Speech."

Finally, the State Federation of Labor asks that students in schools be given facts; that controversial questions have both sides presented; that propaganda for or against anything has no place in the schools. The attempts to revise history to eliminate facts which would enable students to draw proper and unbiased conclusions are regretted.

Painters' Strike Goes On.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—No compromise is in sight for the 300 members of the local union of painters and paperhangers who are in the fifth week of their strike for the $10 wage scale. Five hundred members of the local are claimed to have secured jobs at the new rate, either in Washington or outside. A conference for discussion of a compromise settlement broke down before it was organized, because neither side would recede from its original stand.

Financial backers of the bosses refusing to pay the new scale are promising to raise a big fund to make good the losses the contractors are now suffering.

THIRD PARTY SUPPORT FOUGHT BY SHEPPARD AT CONDUCTORS' MEET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 6.—L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, who recommended in the political committee of the union that support of the third party by the union be withdrawn, caused a row in the executive committee meeting yesterday over the question, and the meeting broke up in confusion before a vote was taken.

The Order of Railway Conductors is in convention here and Sheppard yesterday presented a resolution to the delegates demanding that they "decide" whether or not the union shall continue support, previously voted, of a third party.

FEDERAL COURT AND MARSHALS FIGHT STRIKE

Blanket Injunction in W. Virginia

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WHEELING, W. Va., May 6.—Application for a blanket injunction restraining officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America from interfering in any way with the mines of 15 coal companies in the pan-handle district, was made in federal district court here today.

The application will come up for hearing at Parkersburg June 6 and if granted, operators said, would end the coal strike in this section which has, they admitted, seriously crippled production.

United States deputy marshals immediately began serving some two hundred persons named in the application.

10 Year Old Children to Work 12 Hours if 'Reform' Law Passes

SHANGHAI, China, May 6—Another attempt to pass a child labor law will be made on June 2 at a special meeting of the foreign tax payers in Shanghai's international settlement.

The calling of this meeting follows the loud outcry against the failure of the meeting held a fortnight ago to pass this much-desired measure.

If passed the measure would free 22,000 children from labor in mills and factories. It would at once prohibit the employment of children under the age of 10 years, and after four years would prohibit the employment of children under the age of 12. It provides for a twelve-hour day, including an hour of rest, and a full holiday every two weeks.

Reactionary Raids Reduce St. Paul Trades Assembly

ST. PAUL, May 6.—Out of 43 miscellaneous organized trades in St. Paul, 37 are affiliated with the Trades and Labor Assembly. Of 18 buildings trades unions, 13 are affiliated, but only 6 out of 31 railroad unions and only one of four federal unions. Many of the rail locals withdrew after the disastrous 1922 national shop strike.

RAILROADS SWELL PROFITS BY STEALING PUBLIC LAND GRANTS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How millions of acres of public lands granted to the railroads as an investment by the people in a public enterprise have been converted into the swollen fortunes of railroad magnates is suggested by the testimony of D. F. McGowan, attorney for the U. S. forest service, before a congressional committee investigating Northern Pacific land grants. The carrier is claiming additional acreage in spite of its failure to carry out the full terms of its contract with the government.

The railroad, according to McGowan, has already received $134,000,000 from the sale of lands granted by the government to cover the cost of constructing the road. He places the actual cost of building the railroad at $70,000,000. The carriers are now demanding rates which will produce a net income of at least 5½ per cent on their entire value.

Profits to Private Investor.

The Canadian Pacific railroad shows how public land grants swell the returns of private investors. Canadian Pacific got over 31,000,000 acres in land grants from the government of Canada. It sold about 25,000,000 acres for $190,000,000 and has put $108,000,000 of this into building up the road, thus avoiding borrowing a like amount.

This saving in interest is estimated by the Wall Street Journal at $4,000,000 a year. Will this make possible lower transportation rates? No, indeed. The Wall Street Journal says "The dividend rate of 10 per cent which has been maintained since 1911 could hardly have been paid continuously without the lower fixed charges made possible by financing capital expenditures from the sale of lands which were a gift to the company."

Stockholders have also received $7,308,600 in cash from the sale of these lands. The company still holds land valued at $97,684,203 exclusive of the value placed on its rights and holdings in mineral, natural gas and petroleum lands. Common stockholders to date have received 260 per cent on their original investment.

Land Grant Grafts.

These two roads are representative of the many land-grant railroads which which have poured wealth into the laps of the Hills, Goulds, Harrimans and other railroad families. The records of the general land office at Washington show that congress has appropriated approximately 190,000,000 acres, or 296,975 square miles, for railroad building. This represents an area as large as all New England with the addition of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. In 1914 the Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe were reported by the bureau of corporations as still holding over 33,500,000 acres in spite of enormous sales to favored lumber companies, copper companies and to smaller purchasers. This exceeds the total improved acreage held by farmers in states traversed by these lines.

These three roads have paid dividends to common stockholders as follows: Northern Pacific since 1899, 165 per cent; Southern Pacific since 1906, 113 per cent; Santa Fe since 1901, 136 per cent. But the real millions have been tucked away in the strong boxes of the financiers thru the financial juggling which marks their early history. The public has been deprived of the lower rates which its stupendous investment should have produced.

40,000 WORKERS AVERAGE 20 CENTS PER DAY WAGES UNDER STARS AND STRIPES IN PORTO RICO

NEW YORK, May 6.—In Porto Rico 40,000 workers average 20 cents a day for their work and few get $3 or $4 a week, says F. Paz Granela, vice-president of the Porto-Rican Free Federation of Labor. These 40,000 are the women and children in the dress, blouse, embroidery and lace industry of the little island dependency of the United States. Their employers are New York firms whose business, according to their own statement to the senate labor commissioner is worth $12,000,000. The employes demand that some work by these 40,000 women and children continue. Senator Pablo Iglesias, American Federation of Labor organizer for the island, has a bill before the island senate to compel employers to establish proper work shops. The Porto Rican men average only 40 to 60 cents a day for long hours of labor and 7,049 children out of 9,778 in agricultural districts did not attend school for lack of clothes and food.

Big Bosses on Job Only Two Hours Daily, Admits Kept Financial Editor

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, some of the truth leaks out about those "excessively long hours" that great industrial capitalists and financiers, according to all the rules of "success" propaganda, are supposed to toil at their desks.

The monotonous tune played is to this effect: the capitalist toils long hours, therefore the wage worker, in mill, mine and factory should be content to remain at his machine the day thru.

• • • •

One financial writer, however, in order to relieve the monotony of his daily department, took up the discussion of the seven-day week, and it has led him into interminable pitfalls. He has been compelled to criticize the long work-week for the wage worker; at the same time revealing some of the short workdays of capitalist executives who hold high official positions, and have not yet decided to retire as 100 per cent parasites. Here are some of the facts:

Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, does not work long hours.

Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Co., "during more recent years has not worked long hours."

Except during his early years, John D. Rockefeller never was a slave to long hours. Neither was Andrew Carnegie.

Clarence Dillon, the investment banker, who sprung into prominence thru purchase of the gigantic Dodge automobile enterprises, WORKS ABNORMALLY FEW HOURS, FEWER THAN ALMOST ANY OTHER IMPORTANT MAN OF AFFAIRS. Many days he is at his desk only two or three hours. Other days he does not go downtown at all. Then, he always takes several vacations every year, including, always, a stay in Europe.

The leading Kuhn, Loeb & Co. partners (Wall Street bankers) work only short hours.

Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., is a short-hour rather than a long-hour man.

• • • •

It is good for the steel workers to know that when Gary and Schwab were urging the 12-hour day for steel workers, they contented themselves with dropping around to their offices an hour or two each day, when they were not enjoying themselves in Europe. It leaks out now that "John D." did not overwork himself in building the oil trust, altho large armies of oil workers toil the 12-hour day and the seven-day week in order that the profits of "John D." may not diminish.

It is especially good for the great armies of office workers, who toil excessively long hours in the "largest mail order house in the world," to know that their multi-millionaire boss, Rosenwald, takes things easy.

It should be an incentive to the workers in these categories to unite their unorganized numbers and battle for a little leisure for themselves.

• • • •

Workers can use the argument for short hours for the capitalist, to apply equally well in demanding the short workday for themselves. The great employer says he "can do more and better work in two hours than his predecessor of 50 years ago could do in twelve—not because he is a better or a bigger man, but because he has more and better tools with which to do his work."

Thus the boss is not adverse to using all the modern appliances invented by mechanical genius to shorten his own workday. His "business" can be so organized that practically all work can be sloughed off onto "white collar slaves," who are nothing more than wage workers who refuse to admit it.

The employer who now gloats over his own two-hour day, with plenty of time for the golf links, is the same employer who makes patriotic speeches at the banquets of the Chamber of Commerce and argues that the eight-hour day is too short for his wage slaves. They should work ten and twelve hours per day. The fact that the increased use of machinery has added enormously to the productive power of the wage worker, coupling growing unemployment with the long workday, does not trouble the boss. Unemployment is the employer's best ally in the war on labor.

• • • •

The myth of the hard-working boss is thus exploded. Back of the two-hour employer must be revealed, clearer than ever, the great army of parasites, who do no work at all, yet live richly off the fruits of industry. This is also a growing army under capitalism. Riches and poverty; both are bred under capitalism. Only the workers can change this condition by ending the rule of capitalism. Only the Communists lead in the struggle for this change.

POLISH COURTS AND POLICE CLUBS HIT AT TRADE UNIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, Poland, May 6—(I. R. A.)—The union of the tobacco workers in Warsaw has been disbanded for the third time by the courts in Warsaw. The union has been already twice disbanded last year. Proceedings were started against the executive body of the union represented by Bitner, Ullmann and others who are very popular among the workers of Warsaw.

As we are informed, searches and arrests have taken place among the members of the Jewish unions and the Leather Workers' Union. On the whole 130 persons were arrested of whom 36 persons are held in jail.

Big Coal Mine Fatality Record

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Accidents in coal mines in the United States during March, 1925, cost the lives of 181 employes. Of these 33 were killed in the explosion in the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s mine at Barrackville, W. Va. In March, 1924, there were two major explosions, in which 172 men and 24 men, respectively, were killed. The report of the bureau of mines does not find it necessary to mention the names and locations of thse horrors of last year. It devotes two hundred words, however, to calculation that the number of deaths per million tons of coal produced was less this year than last.

MENSHEVIKS OF GEORG[illegible] BRANDED AS PLUTE TOOLS

Purcell Tears the Hide Off Yellow Socialist

In a recent issue of the London Daily Herald, Noe Jordania, former menshevik prime minister of Georgia, scolded A. A. Purcell, chairman of the British trade union delegation to Russia for the favorable report made by them on present conditions in Georgia. Purcell comes back with a scorching reply which is written up as follows in the Herald:

• • •

Mr. Jordania's abusive remarks about the delegation are to be expected, writes Mr. Purcell, because their report has killed for ever, as far as the British trade union movement is concerned, the lying and fantastic reports about Soviet rule in Georgia, which he and his friends have been issuing ever since the Georgian people gave them "the order of the boot."

Jordania's government had "decided to establish a stable currency" and it had "concluded" an agreement with a British firm to advance it "the necessary means."

Wonderful! Soviet Russia has established a stable currency without aid from any foreign firm.

Currency Question.

Georgian currency was "100 times better than the Russian" at the time of Jordania's somewhat hurried departure from Georgia.

Marvelous! The Soviet government had been attacked and Soviet Russia blockaded for over three years; and Jordania's government had been receiving almost continual assistance first from Germany and afterwards from the allies.

Jodania's budget "was appoximately £4,000,000."

Amazing! How did Jordania's friends get that four million? Very simply; by selling to the peasants the land. The wicked Bolsheviks have an incurable weakness for restoring the land to the peasants free of charge.

Socialized Industry.

The industries of Russia, including Georgia, are now under central management. Monstrous!

The socialist parties of the world advocate precisely the same principle.

Does Jodania suggest that each province should have its own posts and telegraph institutions?

The population of Georgia has been "enslaved" by Moscow.

Is that because the land and the industries of the country have been restored to the people without any compensation to the former owners; or is it because every effort is being encouraged to develop the Georgian language and culture?

Hoover Now Co-op. "Authority."

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Herbert Hoover and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, hard-boiled big business advocates, are among the "authorities" on farm co-operatives who are listed to address the American Institute of Co-operation in Philadelphia, July 20 to Aug. 15. From headquarters in Washington the announcement is made that both cabinet members will discuss the educational aspects of the co-operative movement.

Rock Island Wants to Spread

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad applied to the interstate commerce commission today for authority to acquire complete control of the St. Louis Southwestern railroad by purchase of its capital stock. At present the Rock Island system exercises partial control over the southwestern by ownership of $14,926,800 of capital stock, consisting of $13,348,000 of preferred and $1,578,800 of common.

COLUMBIA RUSHES TO DENY CHARGE IT TELLS TRUTH

Refuse to Condemn Looney Gas

NEW YORK, —(FP)— May 6.— Columbia University appears to be too friendly to the Ethyl Gasoline corporation—which means Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Motors and the Du Ponts—to tell the truth about the tetraethyl lead treated gasoline issue.

Tho two Columbia University research workers have been stricken with lead poisoning in the course of their investigations of "looney gas" Columbia University officials are quick to deny the announcement made by the research men that the university's report would brand the new motor fuel as "a menace to public health."

Hurries to Defense of Standard Oil.

The announcement of the nature of the coming report was made in good faith by Dr. Haven Emerson in charge of the work and one of his staff, Dr. Frederick B. Flinn, assistant professor of physiology who was one of the two victims of the experiments.

The university statement in behalf of the corporation was issued thru Dr. Horatio B. Williams, professor of physiology who admited that some lead was found in the excretions of two laboratory workers but characterized the reports of actual lead poisoning as imaginative and the report of the coming condemnation of ethyl gasoline as untrue.

The Victim Has Reason to Think Differently.

Flinn, the unfortunate sufferer and the research worker closer to the facts than any of the other workers except his chief, Emerson, regards lead poisoning as an alarming menace and points out that in addition to other dangers it is common for workers in lead, to suffer from sterility.

The Columbia investigation was made at the request of the Ethyl Gasoline corporation.

Houghton's Speech Good for the Other Fellow, Plutes Say

LONDON, England, May 6. — The business interests of each European country see in the speech of American ambassador to England, Houghton, urging Europe to produce wealth and pay back her debts, a slap at the other European countries in the statement.

The English newspapers declare the speech hits at France and Germany, the German press sees a slap at France and England, France interprets the speech as a warning to Germany, and Belgian papers look on Houghton's utterances as a slap at the other European countries.

Stripped of its diplomatic courtesies, Houghton's speech was a warning to the European countries that they must use the money loaned them by Morgan and company to put their workers into industry to produce wealth, and that prompt debt payments are expected before more money will be loaned by Wall Street.

BRITISH CAPITALIST INDUSTRY BANKRUPT; DAWES PLAN ASSISTS BOSSES IN OPEN SHOP DRIVES

(By The Federated Press)

LONDON.—Capitalism as applied to the mining industry has broken down. The British coal trade cannot pay its way. These are the simple facts British labor sees emerging from the joint inquiry undertaken by the miners and their bosses. According to the publicity department of the Trades Union Congress:

"The plain fact is that the industry is not paying and cannot pay its workers a living wage. The ultimate solution lies in a more efficient and more economical method of producing and using coal. As things stand the miners are being compelled to pay for keeping old, inefficient, and obselescent mines in existence which would go out of production if the industry were organized as a national service and the overlapping of managerial and administrative expenses eliminated."

An attack on British railwaymen's national agreements similar to that led by the Pennsylvania railroad in America in 1921-22 appears to have been begun by the Great Western. The railway has gone direct to the men instead of negotiating with the three great railway unions. Its alternatives are (1) suspension of the guaranteed 8-hour day and 48-hour week, (2) reductions in all railway wages, or (3) wholesale reduction of force.

The joint sectional councils, to which the proposals were made, declared they were not empowered to deal with such demands but the general manager threatened that if they failed to choose one of the proposals the company would act on its own responsibility. He said last year the company had only earned a 3 per cent dividend, being forced to make up the rest of the 7½ per cent to stockholders out of surplus and that such a condition could not continue.

This is a surprise move by the management. The unions had presented demands for a general increase in railroad wages.

The Metal Trades Employers' federation followed with an attack on British hours and conditions. It proposes an increase in the regular week from 47 to 50 and 52½ hours and a reduction in overtime rates. The only concession these employers will make to the request of the Amalgamated Metal Trades Union for an increase of 20 shillings (1 shilling is 24c) a week is a 2 shilling increase in the weekly war bonus. This would add less than 50 cents to the weekly wage of those entitled to the bonus.

The lengthening of the week, the employers say, is necessary to meet foreign competitors who are maintaining a working week extending to 60 hours at lower wages.

• • •

The British Trades Union Congress general council has ratified the agreement reached by the Anglo-Russian trade union conference. It calls for joint efforts to obtain an unconditional conference between the Russian unions and the (Amsterdam) International Federation of Trade Unions. It also provides for a joint advisory council composed of representatives of the British and Russian unions.

Eight Sailors Drown.

LONDON, May 6.—Eight sailors were drowned as a result of the Spanish steamer Pepita colliding with the steamer Navarra, off Gijon Bay.

IRISH WORKERS' AND PEASANTS' RELIEF CONFERENCE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 6.—The conference called by the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee took place on Sunday, May 3, and laid the basis and decided on the plans for carrying on a campaign for the relief of the 750,000 workers and peasants who are starving in western Ireland.

Joseph Manley, secretary of the provisional committee, opened the conference and outlined the situation in Ireland. He showed that the International Workers' Relief is endeavoring to do the same relief work in Ireland that it did in Soviet Russia during the famine of 1921. "There is one difference, however, between these two cases. The Soviet government sent out information and photographs graphically depicting the situation, while the so-called Irish Free State is suppressing the facts by a conspiracy of silence."

Comrade Manley read some letters recently arrived from Ireland, appeals from large numbers of peasants who are on the verge of starvation. One of the letters showed that some workers were given a few days work at three or four shillings a day. "This was before the elections, and the politicians that they could buy some votes in this way. Immediately after the elections, the men lost their work and are starving today."

Exposed Free State.

P. J. McClellan was elected chairman of the conference, and Pat Moran secretary. Comrade McClellan introduced Sean Conway, who exposed the sham of the Irish Free State government, which is nothing but a tool of British imperialism. "That there is a conspiracy of silence is only too true," he said. All the foreign news coming to the United States comes thru Fleet street, London, and no editor can hold a position in the United States who does not subscribe to this pro-British propaganda in the United States. In 1847 there was a famine, which impelled the Turks to send two shiploads of grain and gold to Ireland. This aroused the anger of Victoria, who issued an edict and declared that England was taking care of the famine.

"Flotillas of steam trawlers from Yarmouth, Hull and Grimsby are sweeping the waters while the Irish fishermen stand idly by. Therefore in helping Ireland we are helping the common cause of the working class," said Conway.

Organizes Speakers' Bureau.

The conference was attended by delegates from trade unions, fraternal organizations, the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League. The chairman, P. J. McClellan, complained that the hundreds of thousands of Irish in this city did not see fit to send their representatives to carry on the work of relief of their starving brothers and sisters. Nevertheless, the conference went to work and outlined the work that must be done in the coming weeks. A speakers' bureau was elected, to call on trade unions and fraternal organizations. A publicity committee also was elected to furnish the press with the latest news of the Irish situation and of the activities of the local committee. It was decided to hold a tag day on Saturday, June 1, this allowing adequate time to organize the work.

An executive committee of twelve was elected, and later met and elected T. J. O'Kelly chairman and J. Gralton secretary-treasurer.

The conference demonstrated that the American workers are filled with international solidarity, which manifests itself when their brothers and sisters are being harassed. The call of the Irish workers and peasants for aid in their misery will not go unheard. An active campaign is promised in the next few weeks.

IT is interesting to know that the United States army secures its supply of swords from Germany. It would not be surprising to learn that the German army buys its bayonets from the United States. Should Wall Street have another scrap with the German ruling class, Johnny Smith from Davenport, Iowa, may be carving the anatomy of Hans von Groll, from Baden-Baden, with a big knife manufactured by the Krupp workers in the Ruhr. And it is quite possible the deadly weapon may have been the handiwork of the aforementioned Hans von Groll. Talk about men cutting twigs to beat themselves with!

WHO would have thot seven years ago that the proud doughboys of the United States would carry swords made by the hated "Hun"? The boobery, were booberized by the class conscious babbitry, into the belief that no good loyal son of the U. S. A. would ever wrap his teeth around a hot wiener lest his soul be defiled by the flavor of that most delicious 2 o'clock-in-the morning delicacy. But the U. S. generals learned, by heresay, that the Germans made sharp swords, and once the war was over there was no reason why the late unpleasantness should be allowed to interfere with the job of slaughtering some other enemy in the future.

DURING the war, British ammunition factories were turning out guns and shells, which paid a handsome royalty to German investors. The more shells the British used up, the more money the Germans who had money invested in English munition factories made. English capitalists had money invested in Krupps. When forty or fifty thousand British "Tommies" were mowed down on the western front by Krupp shells, some British capitalist could throw out his chest and say to himself: "That means a good addition to my bank roll." Is it any wonder that these "patriots" were not anxious to stop the fighting?

ITALY has launched a move to increase her naval and military forces and the news is said to have caused uneasiness in Washington. "Everbody is doing it" is Mussolini's alibi. Italy plans to have one of the largest air navies in the world. Poison gas and aviation are considered the two most important war weapons nowadays. What a fuss the allied propagandists made when the Germans first used poison gas in France? What lying hypocrites our capitalist moralists are! What happened to the "war to end war"?

THE fake economic expert who writes in the Chicago Tribune under the name of "Scrutator" does not see much unemployment in his travels. Walking into an employment agency, he learned that there were jobs going a-begging. Mechanics were wanted at wages running from 70 cents to $1.50 an hour. Employment office chairs were empty. Once in a while a young lad would walk in, look at the board, and walk out again. The idea of paying ten dollars to these sharks for a job that may not last twenty-four hours is not very tempting.

A CORRESPONDENT comments on Scrutator's bunk in the following fashion: "Anyone knows the reason that a mechanic will not give $10.00 to a bunch of swindlers. A mechanic would have a better chance of winning his $10.00 as a bet on Kid Murphy's old shell game, that was once so popular on the old lake front, when people took the hoosiers to see the explosion burn up the lake." That's about the size of it.

Capitalist Court for Open Shop Streetcar Company of Cleveland

COLUMBUS, O., May 6.—The state supreme court held by inference today that closed shop agreements are invalid. The court refused to review the decision in a suit brought by the Cleveland Street Car Men's Union to compel the Street Railway company to arbitrate under a contract made in 1906.

The court of appeals held this contract invalid because it contained a provision for a closed shop. As a result, 3,000 employes will not receive a 12 cents an hour wage increase.

SACCO, VANZETTI JAILED FOR FIVE YEARS, MAY DIE

Anniversary Finds the Victims Still Firm

the Bridgewater Hospital where he was being examined and treated while his nervous system was upset from his brooding on the injustice of his case.

Scaco is in Dedham jail, while the supreme court of Massachusets considers the evidence for the new trial that was denied by the trial judge, Webster Thayer.

The Murder of Salsedo

"This case which has aroused such indignant agitation in Europe and South America and caused the American Federation of Labor to brand it as a "ghastly miscarriage of justice" is closely interwoven with a sensational occurrence that stirred New York City on May 3, five years ago.

Early that morning passers on Park Row saw a body crash to the pavement from department of justice windows 14 stories high. It was Andreas Salsedo, an Italian radical who had been held incommunicado by Palmer's agents for two months while they gave him the third degree in the effort to get the names of his friends for deportation purposes and if possible to fix responsibility on him for the June, 1919 bomb explosions that subsequent evidence indicates may have been the work of agents provocateur.

How the Frameup Began

Sacco and Vanzetti were close friends of Salsedo. Vanzetti had sought his release in New York before his death and immediately after the two friends began arousing the Italians of New England to this latest atrocity of the department of justice's reign of terror. Handbills for a big mass meeting in Brockton had been drawn up, when, with a handbill in their possession, they were seized May 5 in Brockton.

For two days they were grilled as "reds." Then, their friends say as an after thought of the authorities, a charge of murdering a paymaster and payroll guard at South Braintree, a nearby shoe town, was sprung.

Cogs in the Frameup Machine

At the trial in Dedham in 1921 Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted partly on circumstantial evidence, partly on the testimony of eye witnesses and largely on prejudice.

Of five eye witnesses fixing Sacco at the scene, there were none against Vanzetti, two, Lola Andrews and Louis Pelzer have twice signed affidavits that they lied under pressure from the prosecutor; a third, Goodridge, has been twice a convict after larceny convictions and had two larceny indictments against him; both of which were quashed after his services on the stand.

Fourth and fifth, Misses Splaine and Devlin, shoe company clerical workers, were a good distance away and there is decided discrepancy in their testimony. Neither were positive at the preliminary hearing but both cocksure at the trial a year later. Most of the newspapermen who covered the trial, said, in a poll of the press table, that they regarded the conviction as unjust.

In Hand of State Supreme Court

Sacco and Vanzetti will be sentenced to death in the electric chair by Judge Thayer if the supreme court denies appeal. The fight in their behalf is conducted by the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, Box 93, Hanover St. Station, Boston, Mass.

Near East Relief Plans to "Spend" $250,000 in Armenia

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Senator Capper of Kansas, advisor of President Coolidge, is announced as chairman of the national agricultural committee of the Near East relief, which is to spend $250,000 a year on three agricultural schools for orphans in Soviet Armenia and in Palestine and Greece. Their program has been made public at the capital, with statements from Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas; Bayard Dodge, president of the American university at Beirut, and others.

It is clear from their testimony than "industrial court" Allen and Senator Capper have condoned the nationalization of private property in Soviet Armenia, where Allen has been on an inspection tour.

"America has done nothing finer in all her history than this constructive work which is going on in Armenia," says Allen. "Not only is the American farm school creating a new intelligence which will add to the productivity of these lands, but it is also creating intelligent farmers out of the orphanage children."

Dr. Frank W. Ober of Stamford, Conn., secretary of Capper's committee, explains: "The American farm school is located on a 16,000 acre ranch, formerly the property of the former Grand Duke Nicholas, which has been given to us by the Soviet government."

The grand duke is advertised as being about to offer to lead a general attack by western and central European troops upon Soviet Russia, with the purpose of "compensating owners" for lands nationalized.

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT EXPOSES TORTURE OF POLITICAL PRISONERS BY ROUMANIAN WHITE TERROR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUCHAREST, May 6—IRA—The member of parliament, Dr. J. Pistiner presented the following interpellation to the Rumanian parliament protestining against torture of political prisoners:

"Mr. President: I address the following request to the minister of the interior: Many of those who have been arrested charged with Communism have made statements that they have been maltreated by officials of the Siguranza. I read the statements of some of these prisoners:

"1. Andrei Virgi. I was arrested in my home in Tomesvar, and was there beaten in the presence of the proprietor of the house. I was beaten six times by Commissar Popescu, by the agent Toma and by others.

"2. Dr. Julius Gyongiossy, lawyer of Hermannstadt. I was beaten at my arrest by the Siguranza of Arad.

"3. Aron Kupermann. In the Siguranza at Bucharest an agent attacked and struck me with his fists at my head and in my stimach. On the third day I was led late at night to Mr. Bancjulescu who struck me immediately when I entered the door.

"4. Luka Laszlo. I was taken to the Siguranza in Kronstadt where I was beaten from 12 to four o'clock by the chief of the Siguranza, the son-in-law of the inspector and an agent with their fists and with pieces of wood. At seven o'clock they again maltreated me for two hours.

"5. Bernard Katz, from Czernowitz. In the night of December 24 I was examined in Bucharest by Commissioner Popovici, who instructed an agent to beat me. In the night of December 27 I was beaten on the instruction of Commissar Popovici by two agents with rubber sticks over my face and head; they tore my hair out and kicked my head against the wall in order to force me to sign a statement the contents of which I did not know. Later I was led to Commisar Gheorgescu who struck me for two hours with a rubber stick and threw me on the floor.

"It is clear that this 'system of examination' is not only barbarian but also criminal. I therefore have the honor to ask the minister of the interior what measures he intends to take against the guilty officials and against this whole system."

BERRY TRUST SMASHES LIVING STANDARDS IN "OPEN SHOP" TOWN

PUYALLUP, Wash., May 6.—The town of Puyallup has changed since the war. Instead of logging and lumber manufacture in the immediate vicinity, berry growing, with all the accessory jam factories, box factories and canneries is the principal industry.

War Hit Town Hard.

The war was the greatest factor in making present conditions here. Out of it came a disorganized working class. The rebels here are so scared and discouraged that they accept the general rule, "Work and be good." Many live in Puyallup, but work in Tacoma or the logging camps when they are lucky enough to get work.

Linked with the Berry Growers' Association was one ex-Senator Paulhamus, who ran for governor on a ku klux klan plank last fall. He was buried with bourgeois pomp and glory last Sunday. Paulhamus started a class collaboration scheme with the berry growers, the Puyallup and Summer Fruit Growers' Association, "profit sharing" and marketing the berries. He drew most of the producers into the association.

Trust Gobbles Industry.

After the war the management broke the association, they lost their canneries—and the Pacific Coast Canning company now has the entire business.

The results have shown themselves. Outside of some of the trades, such as the building trades, and auto shop work, the whole of Puyallup labor is affected. If you do not have acreage—mortgaged, rented or inherited—where you can make a living, or a job paying enuf to pay for rent, you can't live, that's all.

Living Standard Lowered.

Results—average wages 25 cents an hour. The women's minimum wage law provides $2.20 per day where piece work is not possible. Speed-up is the rule. Women do most of the work in the canning and jam plants, also picking berries during the season, and they are employed in the box factories.

The carpenters are the only ones strong enuf to maintain a union in Puyallup. Living expenses are as high as in the cities.

THE VOICE OF LENIN TO BE HEARD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY, MAY 24

Something new and different is being arranged by the Russian branch of the Workers Party for Sunday, May 24, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. It will be a Lenin Evening, with Comrade Nicolai Lenin as the chief speaker. This is no joke, as the talk by Comrade Lenin will be heard from a phonograph record, as well as speeches by Comrade Lunacharsky, Trotsky and others.

Comrade Alexander Chramov, national organizer of the Russian Section W. P., who is touring the United States, will bring the records to Chicago. He will also speak on Lenin as a leader of the masses. A good musical program is also being prepared. Tell your friends about it. Let them listen to the voice of Lenin!

Remember the date, Sunday May 24, at 1902 W. Division St.

Movies Used to Speed Up Diggers at Tunis

The role of the motion picture in speeding up production in machine industry, thru motion analysis, is well known, and the stimulation of rivalry between nationalities, races or departments by the adroit use of the film is also nothing new. It remained for a Franco-American expedition of archaeologists engaged in studying the ruins of ancient Carthage, to use the movie camera as a means of speeding up the native Berber workmen.

So successful has been the experiment that Count Byron Khun de Prorok observed that it was a pity that the ancient Carthaginians had no movie cameras. "Had they spurred on the slave laborers with a strip of celluloid film instead of with the whip," said the count, "they could have raised structures so enormous that we should not have to dig down for them today."

Another member of the expedition is quoted: "The role of the workmen, of course, is to work. Tho some of them at first showed little aptitude for this part, they have all exhibited for the movie camera a diligence with pick and shovel that has surprised us."

It is reported that when the cameraman appears on the diggings, not only the activity increases amazingly, but also the personnel, most of it unpaid. There is no lack of supers and no need to hire them. Whenever the workers spot the cameraman they send boys to the village to gather in the family and their friends. It would not be at all improbable that the movie man occasionally use an empty camera to stimulate production—until the workers eventually get wise to the true role of the crank box.

The count with the funny name may laugh at the poor Berbers who allow themselves to be taken in so easily. It will not be long before some of the movie cameras in Berber hands will be filming the rising of the oppressed peoples of the East. And like the films of the Russian revolution, they will be of tremendous interest and inspiration to the toiling masses of the entire world. It is a good thing for workers to make the acquaintance of the motion picture camera.

000 Cloakmakers in Red May Day Meet

(Special to The Daily Worker)

EW YORK CITY, May 6.—The tropolitan Opera House, that sh- ut and honorable art temple sub- ized by American plutocracy, on y Day trembled to the strains of e Internationale and the slogans of e revolutionary proletariat as voiced 6,000 cloakmakers of Locals 2 and of the International Ladies' Gar- ent Workers' Union at their United ront May Day celebration.

Fakers Absent.

Even more pronounced was the embling of the remaining reaction- y union bureaucracy that the tidal ave of militant cloakmakers did not t sweep out at the last election. vited and given tickets to the af- ir, they—Sigman, Feinberg et al.— t only remained away, but tried intimidate the Communists in arge of the meeting to refuse the oor to Comrade M. J. Olgin to ad- ress the workers in the name of the orkers Party.

"They failed and could not sabotage e meeting at all. Comrade Olgin allenged world reaction and its ally e socialist party, and called upon e workers to support the banner of e Workers Party and the Commun- t International.

Olgin Speaks for Communism.

"What," he asked, "have these so- alists accomplished by their compro- ise? What has the MacDonald gov- rnment done for unemployment in ngland? What have the French so- alists accomplished? What has the ocialist president in Germany with a st of German socialist chiefs of po- ice been able to do there? They have earned that alliances with liberals, that compromise bring them no- where.

Calls for Revolution.

"What can we do to solve the prole- tarit's problem, to free him from the chains of capitalist extortion? We have got to fight. We have got to shun com- promise. We have got to force our union leaders to cease dealink across office desks with employers and with governors and with judges. We have got to make them fight for our rights, not to compromise about them. We have got to fight for the recognition of the Soviet republic by this coun- try. And we have got to join the ranks of the only revolutionary party true to its mission of fighting for the proletariat—the Communist Party."

A resolution was presented calling the workers to unity and militant struggle upon all fronts, against wage cuts, the open shop, child labor, the Dawes plan, and for the release of labor prisoners, the amalgamation of craft unions, international labor unity, protection of alien workers, independent working class political action and immediate recognition of Soviet Russia.

This resolution was adopted by a rising vote of the entire audience of 6,000 workers. Now, what do you think of that, you fakers of Sigman-Cahan and company?

Wisconsin Runs Two More Movie Shows

"Russia and Germany, a Tale of Two Republics," will be run in Sheboygan, Wis., on May 20, thus breaking into new territory with a film that is particularly appropriate in that is shows in practice the difference between reformist and revolutionary political philosophy.

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik" will go back to Milwaukee for a second time under the auspices of the Slovak comrades on May 30th.

The Workers Party in Action

May Day in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES.—(By Mail.) — Los Angeles gave Tom Lewis, district organizer of the Workers Party, a royal welcome when he came down from San Francisco to speak at the May Day mass meeting. The Co-operative Hall was packed, and responded enthusiastically to Comrade Lewis' rousing address. It was a gala affair, as we compared the growth of the influence of the party since our last May Day affair. The Young Workers League and the Juniors joined with the party to make May Day a huge success. One hundred and fifty of the Juniors spent the day at Brookside Park, and when they returned for the mass meeting, they entertained the audience with revolutionary songs and with a beautiful dance pageant called the "Spirit of Communism," under the direction of the Young Workers League.

Comrade Rose Rubin spoke in behalf of the league and appealed to the youth to celebrate and observe May Day by joining the ranks of the revolutionary young workers in their struggle for working class rule. Mother Bloor was greeted with great enthusiasm, as she told of the demonstration of the Workers Party in their political campaign and open air meetings in San Pedro. Tom Lewis' speech was constantly interrupted by the prolonged applause of the audience as he told them of the rising power of the Communist International and Soviet Russia.

The meeting was preceded by a demonstration over a block long thru the entire district, and the torchlight procession stopped several minutes before the socialist headquarters to express their opinion of them. — William Schneiderman.

WORKER CORRESPONDENTS ARE ORGANIZING IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK—(By Mail)—After hearing a lecture on "Workers Correspondence" by "Bill" Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, at the party headquarters in New York, 24 of those present signed applications for a course in this subject which is soon to be organized by the Workers' School. It was also decided to organize a Workers' Correspondence Club, which is to hold its first meeting at 7:30 Saturday evening, May 16, at the headquarters, 108 East 14th street. Workers desiring to develop their ability to write and report are invited to attend this meeting. Make note of the place and date.

The official organ of the Coommunist Party of Russia, the Pravda, has gained immense circulation and tremendous influence thru its publication of correspondence from workers. The DAILY WORKER hopes to achieve similar results here by the same methods. The Workers' Correspondence Club of New York is the beginning of a movement that should spread thruout the whole country.

The Theory and Practice of LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

A brilliant exposition of Communist theory and practice in the period of Capitalist Imperialism—during which our great teacher, Lenin, lived and led.

No book recently issued can be of more value or importance to the worker who would learn of Communism.

This book by the secretary of the Russian Communist Party, who has been a constant and intimate co-worker of Lenin, is not only an extremely timely work, but also one that is destined surely to become one of the classics of Communist literature.

English Branch Is Organized for the Party at Kenosha

An English branch has just been organized in Kenosha, Wisconsin. It has already 8 members and the comrades there say that they are endeavoring to get three more comrades to join. The first activity of the branch will be to build up the circulation of the DAILY WORKER in Kenosha. They are planning to cover all the union meetings with the daily as a starter.

The branch has just asked for its charter from the national office and purchase a supply of stamps from the district office.

The organization of an English unit in Kenosha is expected to bring new life to the movement there.

Yowls to Dance Saturday.

Preparations are going full blast for the Saturday dance of the Young Workers League which is to be held on May 9 at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

Committees in all the branches are on the job, selling tickets, preparing refreshments, getting committees on the job to help at the dance.

Everybody will meet everybody else at this dance. Our international delegates, Comrades Shachtman and Williamson, will be met informally there.

Tickets are 35 cents. Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd., will be decorated and seasoned to fit the occasion.

OLGIN TO DEBATE GUTHRIE ON SOVIET RUSSIA, SUNDAY, MAY 17

(Special to The Daily Worker)

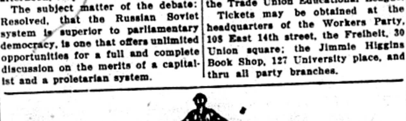
NEW YORK, May 6.—Moissaye J. Olgin of the Workers Party, and Professor William Guthrie of the College of the City of New York, will debate at the Central Opera House, 67th St. and 3rd Ave., on Sunday afternoon, May 17.

The subject matter of the debate: Resolved, that the Russian Soviet system is superior to parliamentary democracy, is one that offers unlimited opportunities for a full and complete discussion on the merits of a capitalist and a proletarian system.

Olgin is too well known to need any introduction. Prof. Guthrie is a staunch conservative, but an able debater.

Every class conscious worker will want to attend this debate, which is being arranged under the joint auspices of the Workers' School and the Trade Union Educational League.

Tickets may be obtained at the headquarters of the Workers Party, 108 East 14th street, the Freiheit, 30 Union square; the Jimmie Higgins Book Shop, 127 University place, and thru all party branches.



WITH THE YOUNG WORKERS

CONDUCTED - BY THE YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

PUT HANDCUFFS ON WRISTS OF TWO COMMUNIST YOUTHS FOR MAY DAY DISTRIBUTION OF LEAFLETS

NEW YORK, May 6.—Two young Comrades, Jerome Brandt and Zoltan Freedman, members of the Young Workers League, who were arrested on April 30, for distributing leaflets of the Young Workers League calling upon the students of the high schools and colleges to celebrate May Day with the workers, have been released on $500 bail each.

These two young comrades were considered so dangerous to the American government at the time of May Day, were first held in $7,500 bail and sent to prison in handcuffs. These dangerous "Reds," as they were called, were put in separate cells without bed or clothing and were given the rotten jail food that no prisoner can eat.

Brought to court for a hearing, at which the bail was fixed, they were surrounded by detectives intent upon protecting American capitalism from "violent overthrow." The judge questioned the two comrades, asking their views on religion in the schools, their opinion of the government, etc.

Such is American justice toward the workers—leaflets, $7,500 and handcuffs. Very much like the entire system as far as the workers are concerned.

Children Are Life of May Day Celebration in Waterbury, Conn.

WATERBURY, —(By Mail).—Over 500 workers attended the May Day celebration of the Workers (Communist) Party of Waterbury. Joseph Bradhy from New York was the principal speaker in English and there was one speaker in Lithuanian and one in Italian. The chorus of the Lithuanian children opened the meeting with the singing of the International and other working class songs. A six year old Italian comrade rendered a solo and Bessie Boyns recited a poem in Lithuanian.

The meeting was a great success. It closed with the singing of the International in which the entire audience joined with spirit.

Juniors Plan Big Picnic at Wade Park, Cleveland, Sunday

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 6.—Sunday, May 10, will find Wade Park the scene of the first Junior section picnic of the season. The picnic has been arranged by the Junior conference as a starter for the summer activity of the Cleveland Junior section. The Juniors and all of their fellow school mates whether members or not, will meet at the Workers Party headquarters, 5927 Euclid Ave., at 10:30 a. m. and will proceed to Wade Park by auto.

Games and amusements of a diversified nature, as well as races with prizes for the winners, have been arranged for the occasion. At 1:30 p. m. a lunch provided by the Young Workers League will be served.

Workers of Eastern Countries Flock to Support of Red Aid

MOSCOW, May 6.—(IRA)—While the Russian workers show a great interest for the western European working class, the Usbeks, Kirgisians, Tartars, Bashkirians, Kadshiki etc. are interested in the conditions and the struggles of the workers of the colonial countries. The Mohammedan districts of the U.S.S.R. therefore adopt prisons in Turkey, Egypt, Persia and other countries of the East.

This is no accidental feature, but the consequence of the historic past of the Mohamedan peoples in the U.S.S.R. The last happenings in Egypt and Persia naturally raises the greatest interest in the Mohamedan mass of the U.S.S.R.

The workers of the Soviet East who are not yet members of the Communist Party but are inspired by the fundamental ideas of Communism pass thru in the International Red Aid a school of international revolutionary solidarity.

SOVIET RUSSIAN PEASANTS APPLY MODERN METHODS OF AGRICULTURE

MOSCOW, May 6.—The Soviet government is giving its attention to the subject of agricultural education among the peasants. For this purpose agricultural councils are organized on which are representatives of all the village organizations, who meet to make plans for the improvement of agricultural conditions. Besides these agricultural councils, which are permanent organizations, there are also agricultural conferences and short courses for the peasants.

In 1923-24 there were 2,150 such courses with an enrollment of 160,000 students. Also the department of agriculture issued 203 books on agriculture in 1923 which had a circulation of 6,304,000. In 1924 there were 284 books published with a circulation of 15 million. During this year, 1925, the department has issued 400 books with a circulation of 21 million on April 1st.

Agricultural Machinery.

In 1922-23 agricultural machinery and implements to the amount of 6 million gold rubles were sold in the U. S. S. R. In 1924 machinery to the amount of 20 million gold rubles was sold in the Union. This year it is expected that 65 million gold rubles' worth of agricultural machinery will be sold, out of which 20 million rubles' worth will be imported.

Winter Crops.

The forecast for the winter crop is much more favorable in Ukrainia. On the first of April the crop of rye was rated 4 and wheat 2.9 on a basis of 5 grades of crops.

Renovation of Agricultural Machinery.

The renovation of the famous factory in Cheliabensk has been started. It is expected that the number of plows manufactured will be increased from 10,000 to 150,000. This factory will supply machinery to the regions of the Urals, Siberia, middle Asia and the Volga.

Delivery of Milk in Moscow.

The Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia is sending a fourth group of the Commune "Herald" to Russia in May. Commune "Herald," which received from the Soviet government a tract of land about fifty miles from Moscow six months ago, is now flourishing and has established delivery of milk to Moscow. For this purpose they have adopted the American system of supplying milk in bottles. They have brought from the United States complete dairy equipment and have just ordered a large consignment of milk bottles and bottle caps from the United States for milk distribution in Russia.

Soviet-Latvian Agreement.

A conference has just been concluded between representatives of the Russian and Latvian governments concerning export of flax on the world market.

'Planes Fighting Agricultural Pests

A report has been received from Caucasia which states that aeroplanes have been used with great success in fighting the agricultural pests. The aeroplanes cover about 100 dessiatins an hour and are successful in exterminating not only the locusts but also mosquitoes.

Agricultural Credits.

Peasant credits are provided thru the Central Agricultural Bank to the Republican Agricultural Banks and 7,000 peasant credit organizations. The common balance of this credit system amounts to 292,300,000 gold rubles on January 1, 1925.

In the middle of April about 2,000 pieces of agricultural machinery arrived at the port of Novorossiisk from the United States.

Русская Вечеринка

Another Vetcherinka, performance and dance will be given by the Workers' Home, formerly the Soviet School, this Sunday, May 10, at 1902 W. MILWAUKEE WORKERS TO HEAR WM. BRYANT ON AMERICAN NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS SATURDAY EVENING, MAY 9

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 6.—William Bryant, business manager of the Asphalt Workers' Union of Milwaukee, will speak on the American Negro Labor Congress and its relation to the American trade union movement on Saturday evening, May 9 at 7:30 p. m., at Miller Hall, 802 State street. The meeting is held under the auspices of the Trade Union Educational League. There is no charge for admission.

Learn About This Movement.

Every Negro worker in Milwaukee, every enlightened white worker and every member of the Workers (Communist) Party should attend this meeting and learn about a great movement that is under foot for the organization of the American Negro of the working class.

The American Negro Labor Congress will work for harmony between the workers of all races. It will demand and fight for the abolition of industrial discrimination, against residential segregation and its resultant evils, the abolition of Jim Crowism and for every injustice from which the Negro worker is suffering today.

The congress will be held sometime during the summer in Chicago and will be composed of delegates from various Negro labor unions, from mixed unions (white and black), from unorganized factory groups of Negro workers, of representatives of Negro agricultural workers and of individual advocates both of Negro and white who will champion the cause of the Negro working class.

Steel Mill Workers Aroused by Issues Brought Out by Reds

(Special to The Daily Worker)

YOUNGSTOWN, —(By Mail).—The May Day mass meeting in Youngstown was attended by hundreds of steel workers who listened to a fine musical program by the Young Workers League and the juniors. William J. White of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. delivered the May Day address. Resolutions for the recognition of Soviet Russia, the release of Crouch and Trumbull, and a resolution calling upon all workers to support the DAILY WORKER passed unanimously. A detail of cops attended but made no attempt to stop the meeting.

WARREN, O.—(By Mail).—Warren steel workers attended a large May Day celebration at the Hippodrome Hall. A. V. Severino of Cleveland delivered the principal address and Wm. J. White spoke in behalf of soldiers Crouch and Trumbull.

The mass meetings in Mahoning valley brought the message of international solidarity to thousands of steel workers.

Resolutions for the recognition of Soviet Russia, support of the DAILY WORKER and release of soldiers Crouch and Trumbull, were passed unanimously at all meetings.

Seventh Quake Hits Philippines

MANILA, May 6.—An earthquake rocked the southern part of the Philippines early today. It was the seventh quake during a 12-hour period, six severe tremors having shook the southern portion of the Islands during the night. No serious damage has been reported.

Probe Cause of Fire.

SWISSVALE, Pa., May 6.—With six known dead and two other persons missing in the explosion and fire which destroyed four buildings here early today, local police and County Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr started separate investigations to determine the cause of the fire.

I. W. W. Faces United Front of Capitalist State Dictatorships

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 6.—(FP) —As result of the Marine Transport Workers Union strike on the Philadelphia waterfront, William Petterson, active union delegate on Scandinavian ships, is under arrest on a deportation warrant issued by the department of labor. Petterson is out on bail furnished by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The union charges that the Danish consul requested his arrest. The strike for union recognition by the Jarka Stevedoring Co. is continuing on the job with the wearing of working buttons.

Tax Publicity Still "Lawful."

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Publishing of income tax returns of individuals is not yet unlawful in the United States, despite the squirmings of Coolidge administration officials under the operation of that Norris provision in the tax law. The court of appeals for the District of Columbia has upheld a decision by the lower federal court, denying to Gorham Hubbard, a Boston merchant, an injunction against treasury officials which would forbid them from making public the amount of his income tax declaration.

Two suits brot against newspapers for publication of income tax returns are now before the federal supreme court.

Confesses He Sent Three to Death

NEW YORK, May 6.—Nicholas (Cheeks) Luciano was silent today. After repeating over and over again that the testimony with which he helped to send Morris and Joseph Diamond and John Farina to the electric chair, was false, Luciano decided he had "said enough," and refused to discuss the case further. He even refused the offer of counsel, unless he was indicted. He was held without bail on a short affidavit charging perjury, for hearing May 12.

POILSH TERROR WORKS IN VAIN IN BINGHAMTON

Priest Urges "Stoning" Red But Meet Is Held

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 6.—The representatives of the "holy" Polish white terror failed to prevent the meeting of T. Radwanski to protest against the murder of Polish workers by the fascist regime.

Preaching on Sunday, Rev. Sciskalski exorted his parish to prevent the meeting against the white terror, "even if you have to stone the Bolshevists."

The Polish Youth Club, organised by the Polish fascists of the priest's stripe, refused to open the hall rented by the Workers (Communist) Party for the meeting.

But the Lithuanian hall was opened to the Communists, and an enthusiastic meeting was held. After Comrade Radwanski's speech, a resolution was unanimously passed which condemned the Polish white guard government and the Polish priest in Binghamton who represented the murderous white terror.

International Red Aid of Greece Helps Imprisoned Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ATHENS, May 6—The International Red Aid has issued the following appeal for relief for the imprisoned revolutionists:

Workers and peasants!

Up to the present everything possible has been done, all forces have been engaged to assist the imprisoned workers and their suffering families. But the number of the victims of reaction is so great that despite the best will and the most devoted activity the support which even now was too small, is endangered for the future.

Comrades! Fellow-workers!

The material means are completely exhausted. What will you do for those who are suffering in the jails? We have been unable to grant a regular support to the poor families.

We received letters which describe the naked and brutal reality—the pregnant wife of a prisoner in Dedeagatch dies with great pains because she had no refuge, the sick mother of another one, who was jailed in connection with the events in Larissa, died before the relief of 50 drachmen reached her. In Trikala two seriously injured comrades died for lack of medical help.

Every day we receive letters which describe the terrible and hopeless situation of the working masses.

Brothers and fellow-workers! Hunger and starvation threaten the workers and peasants who are thrown into the prisons of Larissa. We need a daily support of 1,500 drachmen so that these prisoners will not starve. Furthermore the trial against them will take place in the near future. Money for the legal defense is needed. Will you leave them at the mercy of reactionary justice? Or do you believe the lies about "Moscow money" which the press writes about all the time?

We appeal to you, to join in the campaign of support and collections for the imprisoned workers, for those who have sacrificed themselves for us, too.

We know that the united bourgeoisie will expose us to the most brutal persecutions. In such a serious political situation every indifference and passivity means to give up the struggle for the liberation of all oppressed in town and country.

Will you leave them alone?

Answer!

FANCY HOTELS AND CHEAP EAT HOUSES ALIKE IN LONG HOURS, LOW WAGES AND ROTTEN FOODS

By PASQUALE RUSSO.

"Laws grind the poor and rich men rule the law."—Oliver Goldsmith, in The Traveler.

In this glorious country of ours, the newspapers are clamoring for an increase in legislation and law to check the prevalence of theft, bootlegging and other crimes. The daily plaint of the papers is laws, laws and more laws.

Senator James Reed of Missouri tells us that there are now more than forty-five thousand useless laws in the United States, all of which should be repealed. Further, said he, many lawyers, judges and other respectable citizens violate these laws daily owing to the fact that they are ignorant of their existence.

JOHN REED JUNIOR GROUP PLANS BIG NIGHT ON MAY 23

Tell it to the kids! No, it ain't about a circus, but the surprise affair that is being arranged by the John Reed Junior Group. They promise an interesting evening on Sat., May 23, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. They won't tell what they are going to pull off, but they assure that it will be a real surprise, dance, and a good time in general. So don't forget, tell it to the kids!

Like Shaving a Jackass.

The laws can be compared with the case of the Italian peasant who took a jackass to the barber to have him shaved. He had hoped that in this manner he would stop the growth of hair on the animal's body. All went well for a few days and then the peasant discovered, owing to a new crop of hair on the jackass, that he was wasting time and money. Laws and crime are in the same case. The more laws, the more crime and vice versa. Crime is an evil of the present capitalist system and cannot be checked by any system of law making.

Nevertheless the politicians keep at the old business of making new laws. Recently we read in the papers that State Representative Theodore D. Smith has introduced in the Illinois legislature a bill providing that cooks should have as much knowledge of gastronomy as a plumber does about installing a bath tub. We are also told that the leading hotel owners favor the bill. They like the feature requiring that chefs and cooks wash their hands frequently during working hours.

From the same source we learn that Greek restaurant owners oppose the bill because it infringes that which they regard as their rights.

An Interference With Exploitation.

Nick Stamatapolous, 2009 West Roosevelt Road, in speaking of this bill, said: "The foolishest law ever brought up in Illinois. The law should say how we train our cooks. It is none of the business of the state of Illinois how I run my kitchen. That's my business and if my customers like my food what business has the politicians sticking their noses in my kitchen?"

Other Greek restaurant owners use more violent language regarding the bill. The principle reason why the Greeks oppose the bill is because its enforcement would interfere with the employment of newly arrived immigrants in their restaurants. All these owners are quite conscious of the fact that it is comparatively easy to exploit a new arrival. Another reason is because they employ non-skilled cooks. They are great believers in the open shop. The hours are 12 each day, seven days a week and very inadequate wages.

Low Wages and Poor Cooks.

The Greek restaurant owners find it difficult to secure efficient cooks at the wages they are willing to pay and for this reason are opposed to the proposed legislation.

When the Chicago Tribune states that the leading hotel owners favor the bill on account of its sanitary feature, it is evident that the Tribune has been misinformed or lies deliberately. That hotel owners favor sanitation is both false ann ridiculous. The hotel owners do not care a continental about sanitation; their object is to cheat the public; nothing less. Their motto is profit and more profit and the public be damned.

While the hotel owners are speaking of sanitation, let us ask Ernest J. Stevens, president of the Hotel La Salle some questions concerning the filthy conditions in that kitchen. Here are some of the facts:

Cooks' and Waiters' Dressing Room.

The conditions there are unspeakable. Poor ventilation, the rooms are dirty and the smell cannot be endured. In the dressing room there are no chairs and cooks and waitresses sit on boxes. There is no place to rest and it is a daily occurrence to see the tired employes lay on the floor like animals, breathing the super abundant impure air.

Towels.

Stevens may say all that he wishes regarding sanitation, but in his hotel we are faced with the facts. There the employes are denied the use of clean towels, even to wipe their perspiring faces. Is that sanitary?

Food.

Bread dressing that is served to the public is soaked in a filthy sink where the pots and pans are washed. Is this sanitary? Soup meats lay on the floor during the day with the result that they get covered with sawdust, flies and other dirt, all of which goes merrily into the soup pot. Is this sanitary?

Come backs from parties are used over and over again. Everything at the Hotel La Salle is saved, bread, cheese, cold meats, salad, celery, lettuce, scraps of meat, steaks. Surely the ownership must know that come-backs pass thru many unclean hands. Is this sanitary?

Soup Pot.

Bones, scraps of meat and vegetables are dumped in the stock pot. It is boiled all day until midnight. The pot is not covered and cockroaches and flies easily find their way into it. The contents is usually a mess of filthy slime, never the less it is served to the public as delicious soup under a dozen misleading French and English names. It must not be forgotten that while low wages are paid to the cooks and other employes, high salaries are paid to chefs.

The chefs do not receive these wages because they are more efficient than the cooks or because they are intelligent, but on account of the fact that chefs can be handled and are stoolpigeons. Chiefly they spend their time adorning the bill of fare with stupid French names. They have no meaning, but they do serve to fool the public into accepting rotten food.

All Hotels Alike.

Of course, it would be unjust to say that the Hotel La Salle was the only place where such conditions were maintained. All hotels have unsanitary kitchens and the workers are exploited in the same manner.

It is our wish that Representative Smith investigate the filthy conditions not only at the Hotel La Salle, but in the others as well. Having such an experience he would very likely then introduce a bill demanding clean and sanitary kitchens, providing for the health of the cooks. The law might provide penalties for operating a kitchen in the basement, and compel the hotel owners to provide the help with coats, aprons, towels and soap. Shower baths, clean dressing rooms and rest rooms provided with beds would not come amiss. The employes should be provided with a special dining room, and making it a penal offense to feed them on sour stew or decayed food. Finally to reduce the working hours instead of ten and twelve as it now is.

Hotel Owners Would Fight Law.

But Smith understands quite well that it would be foolish to introduce such a bill. The hotel owners have an abundance of money and they would use it to kill any such measures.

What then is the remedy? Appeal to the board of health? No, many such appeals have been transmitted to the board of health, pleading with them to enforce the law regarding the sanitation of kitchens, but we have no result from our efforts. In such cases the board of health is useless. Russell J. Poole, former city high cost commissioner, speaking in room 317 of the county building in referenece to the Smith bill, charged that the health department food inspectors are inefficient. He also stated that they "walk into an eating place, walk out and the inspection is over."

This is the substantial truth. During 1923-24, not a single food inspector ever visited the kitchen of the Hotel La Salle. It may be that the inspectors did visit the front office, and arrange the matter for a clean report.

Thus we see that the law is a weapon in the hands of the industrial master. The rich men control the law and for that reason it is nonsense to ask the board of health to take action against the restaurant and hotel owners.

So we can ask again what is the remedy?

Workers Must Organize.

Fellow workers, take a lesson from the mule. If the farmer puts a heavy load on him, he refuses to move. If the farmer whips him he shows his revolutionary heels, and in the end the farmer is compelled to remove some of the load. Workingmen, like the mule, have been exploited by the industrial lords. For centuries they have carried a heavy load on their shoulders, and submit to the exploitation of the capitalist, but to change all this is not too late. You still have the power to rebel; you have the power to kick like the mule. But to do this most effectively you must organise.

When the workers of the world organize en masse, they will then be able to kick to pieces this damnable system of capitalism, and make this a decent place for the working class.

CROUCH FOUGHT FOR INTERESTS OF THE WORKERS

at Schofield barracks, objected particularly to a paragraph which said, "The condition of the workers in Hawaii is much worse than in America and the European countries, and practically all land is in large plantations which employ Japanese and Filipino labor. Strikes are very frequent and there is a good field for propaganda."

The army officers are guarding well the profits of their imperialistic masters, which are gouged out of the oppressed dark races in Hawaii.

Letter to Communist International.

The letter written to the Communist International, as given out by the army authorities, is given below. The DAILY WORKER has not, of course, been able to ascertain from Crouch whether his letter was quoted correctly by his prosecutors.

The letter, according to the army officers, states:

Executive Committee,
Communist International,
Moscow,
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Comrades: Greetings to the Communist International from the class conscious workers and slodiers of Hawaii.

Knowing that unity is essential for the success of world revolution, the class conscious workers and soldiers of the Hawaiian islands have organized themselves into the Hawaiian Communist League.

The Hawaiian Communist League wishes to take its place in the world movement for revolutionary Communism and to enable us to co-operate with our comrades in other lands in the fight against capitalism, we desire to affiliate with the Third International.

The Hawaiian Communist League accepts the principles and regulations of the Communist International without reservation and will co-operate to the full extent of its ability in the movement to free the workers of the world from the chains of capitalism.

The members of the Hawaiian Communist League have been very active in a publicity movement for the purpose of presenting the facts about Russia to the Hawaiian proletariat for bringing all class conscious workers into a common movement. Of course this is meeting with opposition from the capitalistic forces and the immediate future promises some very important developments.

The condition of the workers in Hawaii is much worse than in America and the European countries, and practically all land is in large plantations which employ Japanese and Filipino labor. Strikes are very frequent and there is a good field for propaganda.

The Hawaiian proletariat desires to take its place with the revolutionary parties of the Communist International.

All mail for the Hawaiian Communist League should be sent to the secretary, Roderick P. Nadeau, 21st Infantry Band, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Hawaiian Communist League.
The executive committee, Walter M. Trumbull, Roderick P. Nadeau and Paul Crouch.

Spy an Ignoramus.

Another "charge" against Crouch was that he "Did on or about Feb. 18, 1925, advise counsel or persuade Corporal Eugene Fisher (the government stool pigeon), Co. G., 27th Infantry, to become a member of the secret organization, the Hawaiian Communist League, to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

Crouch, in presenting his defense, proved that the Hawaiian Communist League was not a secret organization, holding its meetings in the squad room, and sending out letters with the league's letterhead attached. He told how Fisher had asked for admittance, but he was such a blundering ignoramus, the league members knew him for a spy and refused to admit him.

Forty Years for "Disrespectful Language."

The other charge against Crouch was that "Private Crouch did orally and in the presence of other soldiers in the United States use the following disrespectful language, 'The majority of the common people will be hard to swing into the Red column. I am in favor of the overthrow of the United States government—by peaceful means if it can be done, if not by any other method that may present itself, including revolution."

Crouch Tells of Communism.

Crouch declared that he had been misquoted, and went on to explain his Communistic views. He showed what part the capitalistic state plays in the class struggle, and how it is necessary for the working class to gain control of the state in order to exterminate the profit system.

When asked whether he "believed in political action," Crouch replied that political action plays its part in the struggle of the working class to gain power.

Crouch's court martial was composed of one lieutenant colonel, one major, five captains, five first lieutenants, and one second lieutenant.

"Are you still interested in Communism?" Crouch was asked.

"I am very much interested in everything that pertains to Communism," was Crouch's reply.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Organization for the Present and Future

Kansas City, Mo., Does This

COMRADE E. HUGO OEHLER, Assistant City DAILY WORKER Agent, and other local comrades of Kansas City are beginning from the ground up.

Look closely to this plan of theirs, which is systematic, and if followed will eventually develop in Kansas City a better and bigger center for Communism. Note also that in their plans the DAILY WORKER is used as the means to build up the party thru EVERY phase of party activity—which is exactly what the DAILY WORKER is for. His letter says:

At the last business meeting of the English-speaking local they indorsed the following program that the City Agent and myself have inaugurated:

Lesser Kansas City to be divided into six districts with a manager for each district, as many assistants as possible, with the City Agent in charge.

Manager to give written report once a week in campaigns; once a month in off seasons.

Purpose is to renew subscriptions, take charge of Red Sunday drives, locate compact working-class areas within the district, and racial and religious groups.

To have an organized yearly compact mass propaganda for the DAILY WORKER, drives against deportation, strikes, unemployment relief, notices of meetings and for elections.

This will enable us to have written reports of the city according to classes so the followers may start where we left off in drives it will eliminate waste and inefficiency, giving us a periodical propaganda all over the working-class districts in the city at once, and is the rudiments of systematic propaganda for a mass party.

We are handicapped regarding number of workers to handle this in detail. However, we must start NOW.

Fraternally yours,
E. HUGO OEHLER,
Asst. Agent, DAILY WORKER,
Kansas City, Mo.

Detroit Leads Today!

LOCAL DETROIT, with a distribution of 20,000 copies of the DAILY WORKER on May Day, sends us the immediate results of 22 new subs, with 11 more on the way. In addition, this local is distributing a mountain of "Dailies" during this week. And to climax the splendid work for the official organ of our party they will cap this tremendous distribution with a mass meeting on Sunday, May 10, at the House of the Masses, 2646 St. Aubin St. Comrade William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will speak at this meeting, and without question Detroit will not only climb up to near the top of the list in the campaign but also the party is sure to feel the results in membership increase. There are real Communist Builders in Detroit and City Agent Comrade Alfred Goetz is a BUILDER of first rank, as his direction well testifies.

This is the total for—

The Dawes Plan Begins to "Work"

The much touted Dawes plan is beginning to "work." The unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation fell off 421,000 tons during March, the head of the Bethlehem Steel corporation warns its employes that they will have to prepare to compete with "foreign low cost labor."

There are close to 3,000,000 unemployed walking the streets of England while British manufacturers are placing orders for shipbuilding and other commodities on a vast scale with German firms whose workers are driven to the extreme of exploitation with long hours and starvation wages.

The same story comes from France and Czecho-Slovakia. And now the Swedish iron and steel industry reports a falling off of orders as a result of increased German competition. The Dawes plan is beginning to "work." And to prove that it can only "work" by the enslavement of the German workers and the concurrent unemployment of workers of the other capitalist nations.

Every capitalist "solution" of the contradictions of capitalist imperialism's economy only changes and intensifies the disintegration of capitalist production. Such "solutions" only alter the superficial aspect, changing the scene on the drama. One industry or one nation avoids bankruptcy only at the expense of the bankruptcy of another. Their relation changes. The drama of disintegration goes on.

And it is to be noted that—concealed among the blare of trumpets over the "success" of the Dawes plan—the German finance minister, in a gloomy forecast of German economic life, states that Germany faces a deficit in the coming year's budget and predicts that the reparations payments cannot be met next year.

While capitalist "solutions" only drive the system of wage slavery further toward its historic overthrowal by its victims, the economy of Soviet Russia is improving with great rapidity. The conditions and living standards of the workers are now improved above the pre-war standard and still going up. That is one reason that international reaction is anxious to wage war on the Communist movement to stifle the westward sweep of Bolshevism, if need be, in blood.

The Dawes plan is beginning to "work."

Threatening China

News dispatches from Pekin advise us that the forces of international capitalism are again getteng ready to initiate another civil war in China.

General Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord and former foe of Wu Pei Fu, the defeated tuchun of Chihli province, appears to be the leading militarist on the capitalist payroll. When Chang tried conclusions with Wu last year, he was supported by Japan and France, at least morally, if not in a more material way. But the result of the civil war was not entirely pleasing to either Japan and France any more than it was to England and the United States, who supported Wu Pei Fu.

The fly in the capitalist ointment was General Feng, who is called the "christian general." Contrary to expectations Feng lined up with Soviet Russia and is the military leader around whom the forces seeking Chinese unity are rallying. Feng has now taken the place of Wu as Chang's foe.

Judging by political straws blowing thru news dispatches, Feng has the support of the Kouminfang Party, the nationalist revolutionary party of China, of which the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen was leader.

The forces of world capitalism are looking with a jaundiced eye on the activities of Soviet diplomacy in China. Only recently Mongolia formed a Soviet republic and big chunks of China are liable to break away at any moment and become affiliated with the Soviet Union. The profit mongers of America, England, Japan and France, whatever their private quarrels may be, have a deadly fear of the increase of Soviet power in China. Hence it would not surprise anybody to learn inside of a short period, that the capitalist powers will attempt a coup de etat in China and establish a puppet government in Pekin which will make the vast mineral resources of that country available for the international plunderers.

Already there are rumors that the embargo against the export of arms to China will be raised. A capitalist war against the hundreds of millions of Chinese workers and peasants will be easier started than finished. Behind the exploited Chinese stands the mighty power of Red Russia, and the Communist idea, that is by itself more powerful than armies and navies.

We learn from dispatches telling of the executions at Sing Sing, that the catholic priest, who had the job of holding the crucifix to the lips of the dying but devout victims of the electric chair, is aptly named Father Cashin.

The Los Angeles Election

The Communist candidate for the board of education in Los Angeles polled 23,000 votes in the recent election. This is a real achievement for the Los Angeles comrades and for the whole party.

If there is one outstanding and stinking cesspool of reaction in all America, it is this city of Jap haters, real estate sharks, retired brewers, moving picture actors, fat-pursed Iowa landlords and the Los Angeles Times. It is in this city that the cult of 100 per cent Americanism flourishes like the green bay tree and the Better American Federation has more than once, so it claims, stamped out anything resembling intelligence in the public schools.

In San Pedro, a suburb of Los Angeles and one of the great naval bases of American imperialism, raids on the I. W. W. and wholesale police terror have been commonplaces. Every so often, the sailors and marines are turned loose on the revolutionary workers while the press of California capitalism applauds.

In such a center 23,000 votes for a Communist candidate and program means a good deal. It means that the Workers (Communist) Party is active, that it has contact with large numbers of the workers, that its militancy has aroused them and that there is in this reactionary stronghold a real protest against the exploiters which will form the foundation of a powerful working class movement.

It is not necessary that we exaggerate the results of our party's work in Los Angeles or allow ourselves to think the battle is more than beginning. In such a city at this time a begining is enough and the Los Angeles comrades have shown that in spite of the obstacles they have made a good start.

The next task is to bring into the party the best elements with which contact has been made and to broaden the movement into a fighting center for the whole working class of Los Angeles and vicinity.

Flaying a Menshevik

One of the most brutally effective blows ever received by the stoolpigeons of capitalism, who, in and out of Georgia, have carried on war against the workers and peasants of that country in behalf of the plunderbund, was that section of the report of the British trade union delegation to Soviet Russia which dealt with the Georgian situation. So fatal was the effect of this document on the pretensions of the menshevik panhandlers that a veritable shower of abuse has since then steadily emanated from the sub-cellars of Europe's capitals where these menshevik vermin hang out.

In a letter to the London Daily Herald, Noe Jordania, prime minister of the menshevik government of Georgia during 1921, attacks Purcell, chairman of the recent British trade union delegation to Russia and charges him with allowing the Soviet government to put blinkers on his eyes. Purcell comes back with a scorching retort that burns the hide off this scalawag.

Purcell says: "Mr. Jordania's abusive remarks about the delegation are to be expected, because their report has killed for ever, as far as the British trade union movement is concerned, the lying and fantastic reports about Soviet rule in Georgia, which he and his friends have been issuing ever since the Georgian people gave them the order of the boot."

Purcell's interview to the Daily Herald in reply to Jordania's attack can be read in another column of this issue. It stings.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Towards Unity

The general council of the Trade Union Congress of Great Britain, meeting recently in London, ratified the decision reached by the Anglo-Russian trade union conference. The decision agreed that a joint effort should be made by the British and Russian trade unions for an unconditional conference between the representatives of the Amsterdam International and those of the Russian trade unions, with a view to forming a united international trade union movement.

The decision also called for the formation of a joint advisory council to promote co-operation between the Russian and British movements.

The capitalist press went into hysterics when this announcement was made public. Tories furiously attacked the Russian trade union delegates in the house of commons. The right wing leaders in the unions and also the right wing of the labor party denounced Purcell and those who took the initiative from the British side in taking steps to promote the solidarity of the workers of all countries. That the general council of the Trade Union Congress has ratified the agreement reached by the unity committee, is significant. It proves that the right wing leaders in Britain have suffered an overwhelming defeat. It is the most encouraging news that has reached the ears of the working class of the world for many months.

The I. W. W. marine transport workers at San Pedro, California, are reported to have actively assisted the Workers (Communist Party to make the party election meetings at the harbor a success. While this is, of course, the unofficial action of the membership, which has learned in the bitter struggle with the capitalist state that the Communists have the same revolutionary goal as they have, and they have a more realistic way of waging the struggle and, after all, are not so intent on getting votes as to rouse the masses of workers to struggle.

FERDINAND LASSALLE'S CENTENARY

(APRIL 11th, 1825)

By HERMANN DUNCKER (Berlin).

DOES Ferdinand Lassalle belong to the ranks of great Communists from Marx to Lenin? It is true that Lassalle who was by seven years the younger, called himself Marx' disciple, looked up to Marx as the leader of the party and earnestly sought his friendship; nevertheless Lassalle was never a Marxist, either in his fundamental philosophical attitude or in his political tactics.

This became glaringly evident on various occasions, and only Lassalle's early death prevented Marx and Engels from publicly disowning him during his lifetime, and meting out political justice to him as to a Proudhon or a Bakunin. Later on, Marx, in a pitiless way, ran down Lassalle in a letter to Kugelmann (1865) and, in the marginal notes to the Gotha program, the program for an alliance between the Bebel-Liebknecht group at Eisenach and Lassalle's partisans (1875), he smashed the essential points of Lassalle's theory into smithereens.

THE leaders of social democracy, which pretend to be Marxist, indeed concealed both condemnations from the mass of their members for many years. The marginal notes were only published 16 years later, the letter to Kugelmann 17 years after the other letters had been printed.

Even in the Marx-Engels correspondence certain very harsh expressions against Lassalle seem to have been suppressed by the publisher. This is how the socialist party of Germany guards against any wrong being done to its party saint Lassalle. As a matter of fact, the socialist party of Germany has much more in common with Lassalle than with Marx, altho now it is far behind Lassalle in "practical politics" and can no longer claim to be heir to his views, for he was at least always a bitter opponent of the bourgeois party.

LASSALLE was no doubt an eminent personality, a man of genius. Possessed of titanic ambition, of an extraordinary passion for work, of quick intellectual grasp, a clever and witty writer, one of the greatest orators of history—all qualities which made Lassalle prominent in the barren field of the intellectual life of the day in Germany, it is easy to understand how he must have struck all around him, how such extraordinary homage and admiration was paid him. The greater men with whom he might have been compared, Marx and Engels, had been abroad since 1849, and were thus remote from Lassalle. Lassalle had remained in Germany as the last of the Mohicans of the Communist revolutionaries. No wonder that the self-consciousness which characterized him even in his youth gradually assumed dimensions which led to painful conflicts and thus modified even his view of life in a way which made it still more difficult for him to accept the materialistic conception of history. An idealistic conception of history was more in keeping with his mental attitude, one that regards the great personality as the bearer and manifestation of the spirit of his time and, in a certain sense, "makes history."

"You see here the remarkable spectacle of an agitation which has seized hold of the masses, which has roused a whole nation to take a stand passionately on one side or the other—all this emanating from the conscience of a single man." (Speech at the Dusseldorff trial, 1864.)

THUS Lassalle could, on one occasion (1860) write to Marx: "Hatred in the masses can accomplish anything, if only there are five people in the whole country who possess understanding also." This is a Nietzscheanism which defies all socialism and shows a complete want of understanding of the significance and the nature of a revolutionary "party." Lassalle is possessed by an "ideologism"—as Marx once called it—which constantly limits his social discernment. This had the most serious consequences in his idealistic worship of the state, and in this connection led to the worst derailments in practical politics.

LASSALLE cannot boast of a completely uniform philosophical and political view of life. He was an eclectic in the grand style, who today was under the spell of Marx, tomorrow under that of Rodbertus, but was never free from that of Hegel. . . . In a letter to Marx, Lassalle refers to Hegel's conception of history, "to which I subscribe in all essentials." The spirit, the spirit of the people, expresses itself in history, embodies itself in the moral community, the state. On one occasion, Lassalle refers to science as "a neutral territory, a sanctuary which must on no account be devastated by the storm of political hatred." It seems that the state is to Lassalle almost another such "neutral territory."

This does not indeed prevent Lassalle on the other hand, in one of his writings, from representing the "actual conditions of power" in a very telling way as the native soil of constitutions. Lassalle believes in revolution, but does not want to bring it about, but to "humanize and civilize it." Lassalle organizes the working class by the formation of the General German Labor Association on May 22, 1863, but emphatically declines the thought of a dictatorship of the proletariat. In his speech "The Worker's Reader" (1863) he protests against > "the enormity of having called upon the working classes to aim at a class supremacy over the other classes."

THE liberation of the working class can only be effected by the working class itself. Lassalle repeatedly violates even this essential Marxist doctrine of the later First International. Besides his passionate appeal to the working class, hope for help from above, for the help of the possessing classes, finally even for the help of a "social monarchy," is constantly cropping up. This places Lassalle as a utopian socialist, back into pre-Marxist socialism.

"The fetters must be struck off your feet; but only in peace, thru the initiative of the intelligenzia and with the sympathetic help of the possessing class," exclaims Lassalle in his "Speech on the Labor Question" (1863) to the German proletariat.

How did Lassalle imagine the realization of socialism? Universal suffrage is to him the great instrument of peace which will make the state accessible to the wishes of the proletariat, without any necessity for the undesirable "wild proletarian revolution." The workers form productive associations, and the democratic state—possibly even the reactionary Prussian state will make the start!—contributes the capital. In this way, private capital will gradually be ousted by competition in a perfectly peaceful manner, and there will be no need for a brutal expropriation of the bourgeoisie. On the contrary:

"The worker will never forget that all property which has once been acquired is inviolable and lawful." ("Labor Programme" 1862.)

THIS being Lassalle's fundamental attitude, it is easy to understand his so-called "tactical evolution." Lassalle wanted action, he wanted most of all to see universal suffrage established as the political foundation. The General German Labor Association developed too slowly for him. Bismark was already coquetting with the idea of universal suffrage. At this juncture Lassalle intervened personally in order to stimulate Bismarck, the junker, to quicker action in this direction, in order to make history! Lassalle had a series of private political discussions with Bismarck in the winter of 1863-64. And in the agitation of the last year of his life—Lassalle died on August 31, 1866—he made more and more definite references to this help from above, in other words, from the extreme right.

"All extreme parties have a natural affinity for one another," he said in his speech at the trial for high treason in 1864. Lassalle for instance addressed a telegraphic complaint to Bismarck with regard to the limitation of the right of assembly on the part of a progressive mayor, as he had also, as early as 1858, approached the "cartridge prince" with a personal petition—all actions which to a revolutionary like Marx would have seemed absolutely impossible. Marx indeed jeered, with bitter justification, at the "practical politician" Lassalle, who "wanted to play the part of the Marquis of Posa of the proletariat with the Philipp II of the Uckermark." (Letter to Kugelmann 1866.)

THAT which Lassalle with his own hand wrote in 1865 in his great letter to Marx and Engels about his Sickingen drama, came to pass in a terrible way on Lassalle himself:

"For in the final analysis, Sickingen's diplomatic amalgamation of his insurrection with his non-revolutionary action, and the failure of the former, arose just from the fact that he was unable in his heart to make a final break with the past, with which he himself was still connected and which he represented."

Lassalle's political legacy had further disastrous effects on German social demcoracy. It euphemized that attitude towards the bourgeois state which was finally, but in a more cynical way, expressed by revisionism, and, since 1914, has been sanctioned before the whole world as the supreme political practical policy of the socialist party of Germany within the peaceful precincts of the coalition policy. Lassalle's nationalism and Bernstein's reformism form the theoretical points of support of opportunism against Marxism. It is thus no mere coincidence that in the present-day socialist party of Germany a new Lassalleism has been spreading for some time and that from that side the slogan is heard: Back to Lassalle!—whereas the class conscious proletariat of the Third International cries: Forward to Marx and Lenin!

Elections to the Moscow Soviet

MOSCOW, (By Mail).—There is considerable animation now in this city in connection with the elections to the Moscow Soviet and to the district Soviets.

The streets are full of groups of electors who after the conclusion of the election meeting demonstrate with banners and posters bearing various devices in front of the Moscow Soviet building in the Soviet Square to cheer the representatives of the proletarian power.

The present elections stand out because of the exceptionally large number of electors participating in them.

The participators are not only those who are organized in trade unions and not only manual and office workers employed in enterprises and institutions, but also groups of unorganized workers.

HOUSEWIVES, persons engaged in home industries, carmen and cabmen, doctors, etc., in fact groups hitherto outside the political and social life, but which, having realized the importance of the role of the Soviets in the construction of the new state and the meaning of the participation of the workers in the construction of the new life, felt impelled to take an active part in such construction, and to nominate their own candidate to the Soviets.

The Moscow Soviets show better than anything else the superiority of the Soviet system and the full value of the achievements of the October revolution. This system has abolished the property and any other special qualification and has given the right to vote to all those who work.

THOSE who work and gain their means of existence without exploiting others have now the right to elect and to be elected to the Soviets, and to participate in the government of the state. There is no other qualification.

The election figures to hand show that 95 per cent of the workers took part in the Moscow elections.

By its large scale election campaign the Moscow Soviet has brought about the participation of a large number of non-party persons in the elections, and it has shown from the beginning how keen non-party workers are to do their duty as citizens.

IN the Moscow districts, about 50 per cent of the candidates elected to the Soviets are non-party. As compared with last year, the number of women elected to the Soviets has also very much increased.

A characteristic feature of the present elections, which speaks for the activity of the masses, is the large number of addenda to the election program of the candidates to the Soviets.

These addenda touch on social conditions, municipal economy, national education and health.

Another feature which deserves mention is the friendly spirit existing between the non-party and party electors, which has created an atmosphere of unanimity and has eliminated all antagonism.

THE non-party masses have had every opportunity during the years of Soviet government to realize that the Russian Communist Party is the only true champion of the workers and that it is due to its guidance that the Union of Soviet Republics has grown in strength politically and economically.

The rapid development of the reconstruction of the municipal economy of Moscow and for the gubernias, which compares favourably with the past, shows to the workers of Moscow better than anything else the efficiency of the party as a guide and leader.

HENCE, the elections show that the non-party masses have accepted the leadership of the Russan Communist Party—the vanguard of the working class.

The Moscow Soviet which has all these years set the example to the Soviet of other towns, will in its present composition work no doubt as energetically as before in the interests of the working class population, which, having in the Soviets representatives of all its groups, will be able to take an active part in the work connected with the further development of municipal economy and with the improvement of social conditions.

Day after day the results of the elections demonstrate to the whole world what a workers' government means and what power and force there is in the Russian Communist Party which has the support of enormous numbers of non-party workers ready at any time to lay down their lives for the Soviet government and for the preservation of all the achievements of the October revolution.

FOR Soviet power is the slogan of the present elections.

Long Live the Russian Communist Party. Such is the desire of all honest non-party workers who go home after the elections echoing these sentiments.

Then the election excitement will be replaced by the everyday work of the newly elected Soviet members the same slogans will guide them in their endeavor to achieve maximum successes in their work.

The present elections are the cleverest and most convincing demonstration of the consolidation and the might of the Soviet power.—A. Prigradov-Kudrin.

Plan to Have the "Union Scale" Slide with Bosses' Profits

An interesting wrinkle in class collaboration is reported in a recent issue of the Film Daily, the leading trade journal of the motion picture industry. Very seldom, do trade union affairs get mention, or especially favorable mention, in its columns. Yet here is a union, a brand new union, that is spoken of in very friendly terms.

It is to be an industrial union at that, taking in operators, musicians, door men, janitors, ushers and what not. But its scale is to be very elastic and is to depend upon the amount of profit that the boss makes. If he makes a killing, wages will go up, if there is a slump, they are to slide. It is explained that this will automatically grade the workers according to ability, the less able gravitating toward the cheaper houses and eventually out of the industry.

There is not so very much difference from the proposal of the leaders of the miners and other unions to cut wages to enable their employers to "compete" with their own mines in non-union fields. These are union leaders after the bosses own heart.

Bulgarians Fight Over Legacies

LONDON, May 6.—A hearing attended by a large number of titled persons was held Thursday at Viareggio, a dispatch to the Morning Post today related. The former Empress Zita, King Boris of Bulgaria, Louisa, first wife of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and a number of princes and princesses, gave testimony in a dispute over legacy payments made to his staff by the will of the late Duke of Parma.

ROME, May 6.—It was officially denied today by the government that the portfolio as minister of air had been offered Gabriele D'Annunzio, the poet.

MUSIC - LITERATURE - DRAMA

Arrowsmith, by Sinclair Lewis, Harcourt, Brace & Co. $2.00.

THE fellow who gets a large part of the income of many workers is Ye Old Family Doctor, so a book that tells how the doctor runs his business is of particular interest to the labor movement. Such a a volume is Sinclair Lewis's latest, his Arrowsmith.

Arrowsmith reveals the doctor in all his varieties even more fully than Babbitt does the real estate man and the salesman. So many of the doctors after all are not so different from realtors and salesmen. They are first of all businessmen with something to sell, rather than scientists with useful knowledge for a suffering world.

ARROWSMITH gives close ups of the country practioners chatting chummily together about collections; the medical student who figures that this pathology stuff may be all right but his dope on the way to succeed is a smart looking office on the best corner of the main street; of the surgical clinic where the business of selling operations is conducted on high power Go Getter principles.

Sharpest of all the satires is that of the public health officer in the business of handling out the kind of public health advice that won't offend the business interests. Always ready to compromise was Dr. Pickinbaugh. When the health department's slogan "Eat Pie and Get Pyorrhea" got the bakers' goat he was quick to can the phrase.

YOUNG Arrowsmith sees all these things as his professional career expands but his greatest disillusionment is to come when he enters the McGurk Institute for scientific research and finds that its theoretical purpose of free research into the foundations of medical knowledge is frequently thwarted by the social climbing and business aspirations of its heads.

There are pure scientists, it is true, but they are continually handicapped and fretted by the Go Getters. Yet real progress comes from what these pure scientists get done in spite of the difficulties thrown in their way.

THE story is told with fine satiric power but it is more than a satire. There is a warm human appeal to young Arrowsmith and his chum wife who laughs with him at the "Man of Measured Merriment," the smooth bunko chaps at the top of the professional ladders.—Art Shields.

O'FLAHERTY.

OW would you like to read an original draft of the Communist ifesto? Perhaps it never occurred you that such a treasure existed, it does, and the Daily Worker blishing company has done the trick making this historic document ailable to the workers in a neat, rtistic and cheap form, thru its Little Red Library series. The little book is entitled, "Principles of Communism." It was written by Frederick Engels, the co-worker of Marx and one of the founders of modern socialism.

THIS little book costs only ten cents. You can buy one dozen of them for one dollar. Thousands of this booklet should be distributed among the workers of the United States. And it is a simple matter. How could any member of the Workers Party or any reader of the DAILY WORKER who is in sympathy with our movement, spend a dollar better than by investing it in a dozen of those little books and distributing them among the wage slaves?

• • •

THOUSANDS of those little trouble makers for capitalism have already been sold. The figure must reach hundreds of thousands. The American workers can be reached and one of the most effective ways to get them thinking about their status in this capitalist world is to pass them a piece of literature that is easy to read, convincing and revolutionary. This is not a review of "Principles of Communism," merely an announcement. Read this little gem and pass it along to your fellow workers.

• • •

SEVERAL states of this union have passed laws making it unlawful to teach the theory of evolution. One of those places for morons is Tennessee. A teacher of biology in the local high school at Dayton violated this law by telling his pupils that man was not fashioned out of a fist-full of earth, by the hand of God, but was the product of evolution from a lower form of life, a process that went on thru millions of years.

• • •

THE teacher was arrested. He is a lucky teacher that he did not live a few hundred years ago. Had he made such a statement, his ears would now be decorating the cross on some Dayton church and his infidel tongue would be securely nailed up on some wall, where the sight of it could be enjoyed by the pious townspeople. As it is, nothing worse than a little publicity will happen to the teacher. The supreme court will finally hear the case and say whether the law under which the teacher was arrested, is in conflict with the basic law of the land or not. It is quite likely that the learned judges will bring God a little more up to date. Capitalism no longer has much use for the old specimen. A good capitalist God can believe in evolution in the field of biology while renouncing it sociologically.

REDS CAMPAIGN UNITES WORKERS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Challenge Labor Fakers in Election Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7—The workers of Minneapolis are being aroused to a realization of their class interests in the city election campaign now going on. It is the first campaign that a frontal attack on the citizens' alliance has been made and the class issues emphasized.

Dan W. Stevens, the Communist candidate for mayor is speaking to the workers every night, he being the only candidate that ever shows himself before the workers. The others are trying to buy the election with high priced campaign posters.

Unions Grow Smaller.

Since 1920 the labor movement has all but been destroyed in this city. From a membership of 25,000 the unions are now down to about 5,000. The campaign of the Communist candidates is clarifying the workers as to the cause of this weakness.

The workers show great eagerness in learning the facts as put forth by our party. Our advocacy of industrial unionism to be brought about thru our amalgamation, our campaign in behalf of a class labor party, our demand for higher wages and improved working conditions and the defeat of the "open shop" are reaching the ears of the workers such as they never did before.

Unity of Labor Against Capitalists.

The reactionary labor officials such as Cramer, Van Lear, and others of the same type are being called upon by the Communist speakers to explain their efforts to deliver labor hog-tied to the present republican mayor—Leach, and also to explain their refusal to fight in the interests of the workers on the industrial field.

The Workers (Communist) Party is setting forth its demand for unity of all the forces of labor in the struggle against capitalism, the speakers

COURT TO DECIDE ON ANCIENT INJUNCTION AGAINST MINE UNION

WHEELING, W. Va., May 7.—Judge W. E. Baker will announce his decision upon the demurrer filed in the contempt case against officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America, tomorrow, he announced today.

Argument in the case, which has been interrupted by routine matters was closed yesterday.

Operators contend that efforts of union miners to organize the non-union mines of the Panhandle district constitute a violation of the injunction granted many years ago. The miners' attorneys filed a demurrer, on which the court will rule.

20,000 UNEMPLOYED IN MAY DAY FRANTIC RUSH FOR 700 FORD JOBS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—The Minneapolis plant of the Ford Motor Co. began operations here May 1, with a crew of 700 workers. Officials of the company announced that altho only 700 were needed to start this new plant in operation, over 20,000 workers applied for jobs.

S. A. Stellwagen, manager of the Minneapolis assembling plant announced that ultimately 15,000 workers would be employed, but that the process of setting the many wheels in motion would be a gradual one, resembling the slow projection of a picture on a screen. Work at the plant during May will be confined to assembling cars and trucks, but this operation, beginning on a small scale, will be increased gradually as the machinery gathers speed and momentum, until a production rate is attained which will result in an output of 2,500 cars for the month of May. Officials of the company have declined to state when the process of manufacturing cars in their entirity would be undertaken in the Twin City plant. This, however, is not likely to be very soon.

Ever since the building of the factory was started, about a year ago, the citizens' alliance and the "open shop" bosses of the Twin Cities have used stories of Ford's "high wages" to flood the labor market so that they could further enslave the workers of the Northwest. In this they have been successful, thousands of workers having been lured here in the hope of securing a lucrative job in the Ford factory, only to find on their arrival that they had been goats. Many of these workers could not get out of town again and have been forced to accept the wages and working conditions that the bosses were willing to give. The city officials of both St. Paul and Minneapolis have aided in bringing these men here.

THE PLATFORM OF THE COMMUNIST CANDIDATES

PARTY PLATFORM.

THE Workers (Communist) Party, of which the above candidates are members, has persistantly fought to unite all the forces of labor in the struggle to prevent the capitalist class from reducing the wages and living standards of the workers. In Minneapolis the bosses organized in the citizens' alliance have waged a ruthless war against the workers in an effort to destroy their organizations thus rendering them helpless in the struggle. In this attack they have been to a very great extent successful due in part to the inactivity of the trade union officialdom and to the capitalist control of the present city and state governments. The socialist labor group in the council, instead of fighting to protect the interests of the workers, have used their offices to serve only their own political interests. The Workers (Communist) Party knows that the working class is capable of successfully defending itself against the capitalist attack and calls upon the workers to organize their forces under the leadership of the Communists on the basis of the following program:

(a) The immediate launching of a campaign to organize the unorganized workers.

(b) Day labor on all city work, with union wages and working conditions, instead of the present practice of "selling" contracts for city jobs to the contractor who is willing to pay the most graft to city officials.

(c) Capitalism is always able to use the unemployed workers to lower wages and to force unbearable working conditions upon the workers in the shops, therefore we demand either work or full trade union wages for the unemployed.

(d) A campaign to wipe out child labor in all department stores and factories. In order that workers may send their children to school instead of into industry, we demand that the city give full maintenance to all workers' children attending school.

(e) The socialization of all public service corporations with their control and administration vested in the unions.

(f) The use of the police and military forces as instruments in the hands of the workers to be used by them in their struggle against capitalism instead of vice versa as is the case at present.

(g) The abolition of the injunction in labor disputes.

(h) The release of all workers imprisoned because of their activity in behalf of their class.

(i) The recognition of the first workers' and peasants' government—Soviet Russia.

(j) The formation of a labor party to include all working class groups both economic and political.

(k) The amalgamation of the craft unions into industrial unions.

(l) The establishment of unity in the international trade union movement.

The Workers (Communist) Party knows that these demands cannot be secured by the workers under capitalism. We set forth the above demands because we know they represent the needs of the workers and we therefore pledge the entire power of the Communist movement to bring about the overthrow of the present capitalist government and the establishment of a government of workers and poor farmers in its place.

MOROCCANS TAKE MORE OUTPOSTS LICKING FRENCH

Imperialism in Africa Defended by France

PARIS, France, May 7.—Thirteen more French soldiers were killed when the Riffian natives of Morocco attacked French block houses along the border of French and Spanish Morocco, according to a foreign office statement.

The number killed must have been considerably higher, according to reports from Morocco.

Capture Nine Forts.

The foreign office admits that the Moroccan natives have swept past nine French outposts, capturing the blockhouses, and cutting the soldiers off from food, water and supplies.

The battle line between the native North Africans and the French army which is fighting in the interests of French imperialism, extends along a front of more than 100 miles along the Bibane mountains. The fighting continues north of Fez, the key to the interior of French Morocco.

Socialists Fight Colonials.

The Spanish, who have been beaten back to the frontiers, have given over the actual defense of European conquest in Africa to the French. The Painleve government, which includes the socialists, are the chief champions of European imperialism in its fight to conquer the native Africans.

Marshal Lyautey, the military dictator of the North African colony, now has eighteen battalions of infantry, six squadrons of cavalry, twelve batteries of artillery, and a well equipped aviation corps in the field to subdue the native Moroccans.

Charged With Killing Stack

CAIRO, Egypt, May 7.—Nine natives has been placed on trial here charged with the murder of the former British dictator, Sir Lee Stack.

SOCIALIST RENEGADES, VAN LEAR AND HARTHILL, COMMIT TREASON AGAINST WORKERS OF MINNEAPOLIS

INTRODUCTION.—In the present city campaign, both Van Lear and Lewis Harthill, are supporting the entire reactionary ticket headed by Mayor Leach. Only a few years ago, Van Lear was elected mayor of the city as an avowed socialist. Today he is in the camp of the red-baiters. They both are engaged in an unscrupulous campaign of denunciation, misrepresentation and villification of the Communist and progressive movement of the working class.

The "Minnesota" is the official organ of this pair of labor blackbirds. It is financed practically by the Citizens' Alliance. It was not so very long ago, when Van Lear advocated the amalgamation of craft unions. This he did at the Kansas City convention of the Machinists back in 1912. On the strength of his militant attitude on questions affecting the welfare of the working class, the workers reposed faith and confidence in him as a leader.

The article which follows is evidence of the fact that when these renegades commence to desert the class struggle, they don't stop on this side of hell.

The Facts About the Minneapolis Daily Star

IN 1919, Van Lear became one of the principal promoters of the Daily Star. It was his contention that the workers needed a daily paper. He used to call both the Journal and Tribune, "capitalistic rags," which, in fact, they are. Therefore, he maintained, it was the duty of the workers to establish a "workers' press."

This Daily Star business was a gigantic promotion scheme.

Van Lear took it upon himself to win the faith and confidence of the working class, for the new enterprise. And he did. That was because the workers trusted him.

It will be remembered the kind of campaign that Van Lear conducted among organized and unorganized labor. He told the unions that this would be a genuinely co-operative paper. He stressed the fact that "I will protect the interests of the workers in the paper." The workers believed him. They poured their money, representing as it does, self-denials, sacrifices and family struggles of economy, into it, at the behest of this arch

COAL MINED IN UNITED STATES HELPS BREAK STRIKE ON BESCO

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, May 7.—The first consignment of coal from the United States, imported to beat down the strike of miners of District 26, arrived Monday on the steamer Suffolk.

The coal is imported from the states by the British Empire Steel corporation, the most bitter foe of the United Mine Workers and other unions in the dominion. The cargo contains 7,000 tons.

WIN STRIKE AGAINST DISCHARGE OF MAY DAY DEMONSTRATORS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, May 7.—The striking city transport workers who struck Tuesday against the discharge of 200 workers who had led the May Day strike demonstration are back to work after complete surrender by the company.

The strikers were informed by their delegates that the company had agreed to reinstate, without exception or punishment, all the men who quit their jobs on May Day. The 200 men who were under suspension are to receive pay for the two days they were laid off.

LABOR FAKERS TRY PRAYER IN MINERS' STRIKE

Starving, Evicted; Are Expelled If Armed

(Special to The Daily Worker)

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 7.—If the West Virginia miners are inspired with spirit of battle against the savage oppression of the operators and their servile state government, it is not by reason of any militant leadership. Thruout the strike the Bittner international leadership, together with the district and sub-district leaders have shown the most craven soul. Only the miners themselves, starving, poorly clad and desperate are noble and determined.

God and the Devil.

Last Saturday, Van Bittner spoke to a packed theater in Fairmont. The meeting opened and also closed with prayer, led by Rev. M. Taggart. In the course of Bittner's speech, the following pearls of wisdom were dropped:

"We realize that in our ranks little children go to bed hungry. We realize that miners must sacrifice. But we do it with the spirit of patriotism. The United Mine Workers is a God-fearing, Christian, American institution. I believe that God will finally triumph over the Devil.

Union Expels Any Armed Worker.

"They say the mine workers are Bolshevists. I stand here pledged to the government of this state and the government of the United States of America to maintain the government. I don't want any of you to commit a breach of the peace. We promised the governor that any man found on the picket-line with a gun would be expelled. We are doing that."

Meanwhile the capitalist papers were gloating at the way the strikers parading to the picket lines were confronted by the armed force of the capitalist dictatorship. Here are some

'LABOR' BANK OF PHILADELPHIA IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

Claim Frozen Assets Enough to Cover

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—The Producers' and Consumers' Bank, a "labor bank" established by the efforts of one hundred and thirty labor organizations, is in the hands of a receiver, Albert M. Greenfield, a real estate operator appointed by the court on a petition filed by creditors.

The bank was organized by prominent labor leaders and opened on February 1, 1922, with $500,000 deposits. It now has 7,500 depositors and the sum owing them is $1,413,540.51. The trust assets are $2,732,607.28. The liabilities are $2,456,238.62. The assets are said to be incapable of immediate liquidation.

When founded, it was thought to secure a majority of labor men on the board by the charter provision that three-fifths of it should be labor representatives.

STRIKE SPREADS ON "[illegible]EN SHOP" MARKET PROJECT

Carpenters, Laborers Join Builders' Walkout

Construction work on the new Chicago market project, at 14th St., and Racine avenue, where close to two thousand bricklayers, plasterers, electricians, plumbers, sheet metal workers, structural iron workers and tile setters are on strike against the open shop, was at a standstill yesterday.

The strike was called by the Chicago Building Trades Council, in an effort to unionize several hundred common laborers, carpenters and cement workers, who were hired on the non-union "Landis award" basis.

Cement Machines Idle

The huge cement mixing machines, which until the strike had been pouring a steady stream of cement into the walls of the twenty million dollar structures, were idle yesterday. A large number of carpenters, who were at work on the non-union basis, joined the walkout as did some of the laborers.

Some of the laborers at work yesterday declared they would join the strike this morning, while others will finish out the week and walk out Monday. Thruout the day, laborers and carpenters were straggling away from work, when they realized there was a strike on.

[illegible]

Rumors were being spread that the Building Trades Council had effected a settlement and would send the strikers back to work, but J. Conroy, secretary of the council, denied this, declaring, "There is no change in the situation."

The McLennan Construction company, which is constructing the huge market to replace the old S. Water St., market, has been conferring with the building trades' representatives, but no statement was issued as to the results of these conferences.

The building trades unions have thus far made no attempt to picket the struck project, and the unorganized laborers who joined the walkout declare that if the union men were allowed by their officials to picket, every man on the job could be brought out on strike immediately.

Police Called Out

Several flivver squads" were in evidence around the plant, which covers four blocks. There were numerous armed plain clothes detectives and private guards.

The construction work will be completely tied up by Monday if the building trades union officials keep the union men from their jobs until that time. The strike of the iron and steel workers has tied up carpenter work and cement work, together with most of the common labor work.

The "Landis award," non-union workers, are highly dissatisfied with the conditions, and are anxious to join the union. They declare that the boss system, with numerous bosses to speed them up, prevails. Since the work began, they have been watched by armed guards, the workmen declare.

Senator Wheeler's Client Found Guilty in Oil Fraud Case

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 7.—Found guilty of the illegal use of the mails in promoting an oil syndicate, Gordon Campbell declared he will appeal to the circuit court at San Francisco.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler was Campbell's lawyer in his oil deals. Wheeler was found not guilty when tried for misusing his office to aid his client.

International Plunderers Meet

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.—The Pan-American union has selected Aug. 2, 1926 as the date for the assembling of the international commission of jurists at Rio de Janeiro for consideration of the codification of international law. The main task of the jurists will be to formulate laws whereby American imperialism can legally plunder the Latin-American countries.

CAL SILENT ON BROKE FARMERS' RULES FOR RICH

Coolidge Refuses to Answer Tax Questions

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Five questions have been asked of President Coolidge by the Farmers' National Council, since the White House spokesman has asked for a summer of silence on governmental matters. They are:

"Does your plan of tax 'reduction' include reduction of the internal revenue taxes, nearly $600,000,000 of which are paid, by the workers and poor farmers, who [illegible] pay infinitely more taxes in propo[illegible] to their ability to pay than your [illegible]tary of the treasury or any [illegible] extremely wealthy person?

The Bankrupt [illegible]

"Do you think Secretary Mellon, Senator Butler, Judge Gary and Wm. Wood of the woolen trust are entitled to the benefits of the present tariff on products in which they are interested, until they lay their costs of production on the tariff commission's table, as the farmers have done and are ready to do?

"Why doesn't the federal trade commission start its investigation of open price associations and of the power trust as ordered by the senate?

"How many hundreds of thousands more farmers do you hold should be bankrupted off their farms, before the agricultural situation attains the dignity of a 'vital issue'?

Cal Maintains Silence

"Since the government's approval was necessary to the entering of the packers' consent decree, how long will respect for courts and government continue if this decree is suspended, without at least appeal to the highest court in the land?"

Coolidge's only response thus far is to deny that he has legal authority to interfere in the packers' trust case.

Baltimore May 1st Rally Protests Sentence of Crouch and Trumbull

Resolutions were unanimass meeting assembled voice our severest protest against the high-handed, savage and unjustifiable court-martial that condemned privates Crouch and Trumbull to inhuman sentences that amount to a living death in a military prison—demand the immediate release of the aforesaid soldiers and the punishment of the officers responsible for their imprisonment.

More Delay in Teapot Case.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Government oil counsel seeking new conspiracy indictments against the principals in the naval oil reserve scandal today decided to postpone presentment of their case until the additional grand jury meets here Monday.

Previously they had planned to go ahead before the special grand jury. The last minute decision to alter the procedure was reached to prevent defendants filing demurrers claiming that the regular grand jury was prevented from sitting in the case.

for Evangeline. The salvation army is of greater value to the capitalists than a fire and brimstone magician who can turn a chunk of clay into a democrat or republican politician. Among the blessings that war brought to this country is prohibition, said Miss Booth. No doubt the prohibition agents will agree. Prohibition is now among the leading industries of the land. In the same paper that carried Miss Booth's propaganda, was the story of a station-full of policemen who are charged with receiving money for protecting a rumseller from the attentions of prohibition agents who might have charged more for protection than the police.

PROHIBITION was a blessing alright to some. We would not be surprised to learn that there is enough money running loose as a result of its operation to finance the salvation army and the anti-saloon league. The other two blessings that flowed from the war, according to Evangeline, are: added membership in the salvation army and increased interest in religion and welfare work. This means more money to the professional God peddlers. Let us have more and better wars! If any deluded christian was under the impression that followers of Jesus were enemies of war, they should read the history of the christian religion. It is no accident that a piece of biscuit and a glass of red eye are turned into the "body and blood of Christ" at catholic services.

All the churches without exception are willing to put out any kind of poison that will help the capitalists keep the workers doped and patriotic. It pays.

Scab Companies Conceal Assets.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Attorney General Sargent announced today since July 1, 1924, the bureau of investigation of the department of justice at Chicago has recovered concealed assets totaling $211,700 in eleven bankruptcies cases.

Sargent said the principal cases involved were in the Clark Jewelry company, the Champion Tool company and the Porter Spark Plug company.

Possibilities of a merger of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad with the Southern Pacific system "after the annual meeting of the management of the Southern Pacific June 1st" were divulged here today by J. of the samples of West Virginia's capitalist press:

"Thinly Clad and Shivering."

"The men drove thru the city in trucks, closely followed by officers and state police, arriving at the mine a few minutes later. The union men parked themselves along the highway near the entrance to the mine. Many of them, thinly clad, shivering with cold as they stood the long and futile vigil. There was no disorder, and no effort was made to molest the men going to work.

"It was reported that the outfit would march down thru the residential and business section. All of the city police, augmented by special officers were about to be ordered to go to the city limits to turn the men back, when scouts reported they would come thru in trucks.

Tear Gas and Lawyers.

"No chances are being taken. The county deputies sleep each night in a room in the court house, while the day police are required to report at 2 a. m., during the favorite hours for marching.

"Officers on duty in the early morning hours and the special deputies are all heavily armed with rifles and small machine guns. Tear gas bombs are also provided for each man to use in case of emergency. Prosecuting Attorney M. V. Ogden was out early this morning." He had the day before succeeded in getting two strikers fined and put under bond for calling a scab by name.

Forbade to Honor Dead Fellow Workers.

Meanwhile, in the Panhandle region, where the memorial meeting for the 118 miners blown to pieces in the Benwood mine one year, was on, the union officials cravenly surrendered when the authorities forbid the miners to parade in commemoration of their dead brothers. And in the face of wholesale eviction of women and children, the sub-district officials issue a circular saying:

"We have the same patriotism as we had during the war. The organization expects you to be peaceful and law abiding. See that everyone does likewise. Any man doing otherwise should be reported immediately so proper action may be taken."

Scab Paper and Ex-Socialist.

The circular is, incidentally, printed on scab paper. The president and vice president who sign the circular, Wm. Roy and Frank Ledvinka, respectively, are ex-socialist party members.

LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL DEFENDS CZECH EDITOR

Was Arrested on Charge of Labor Union 'Fink'

The Labor Defense Council, national headquarters in Chicago, is just in receipt of certain legal documents pertaining to the deportation case of Emmanuel Vajtauer, editor of the Obrana, a Czech Communist newspaper, which reveals the manner in which the immigration act of May, 1924 works.

Vajtauer was arrested for a deportation hearing in Chicago on April 4. 1924 as a result of an "anonymous complaint" from a so-called "union man," to the effect that Editor Vajtauer was "inciting the people against the government and convincing them that their only hope was in the Communist Workers Party of America." In August, 1924 he was ordered deported, and in February, 1925 sent to Ellis Island. The case was appealed and in April, 1925 the writ was dismissed by Judge Hand who remanded Vajtauer for deportation. However, deportation has been stayed and a few days ago Vajtauer was released from Ellis Island on $2,000 bail.

Refused to Answer.

Thruout the hearings of the case before Judge Hand of the United States district court of New York, Vajtauer availed himself of the constitutional provision that allows a defendant not to answer questions that might incriminate him. Vajtauer's hearings began before May, 1924, when the act was passed. The prosecution, United States attorney for the commissioner of immigration, introduces section 23 of the above act, which says in part: "In any deportation proceeding against any alien the burden of proof shall be upon such alien to show that he entered the United States lawfully."

The prosecution completely fell down in proving its case against Vajtauer. The judge admitted that. But at the same time he was forced to take cognizance of section 23 of the immigration act. Judge Hand said. "A refusal to furnish evidence for what ever reason and a reliance solely on the defendant's passport does not meet the burden of proof or require the government to go further."

Continuing the Fight.

In other words section 23 is designed to give the prosecution in deportation cases full leeway and while it does not prohibit the use of the constitutional provision that allows refusal to answer incriminating questions, it nevertheless makes it dangerous for the defendant to avail himself of it and at the same time take upon himself the complete burden of proof.

The Labor Defense Council is continuing the fight against Vajtauer's deportation. The case, which is the usual deportation frame-up of the United States department of labor will be carried to the limit. Any one wishing to contribute to the legal fund for the carrying on of this and many other cases can send donations to The Labor Defense Council, 19 South Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

Klan Main Issue in Primary Poll of Indiana Mayors

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GARY, Ind., May 7.—The ku klux klan candidate for mayor on the republican ticket, Floyd Williams, won the nomination in the primaries here with a plurality of 3,000 votes. Klan candidates were overwhelmingly defeated in South Bend, however.

Municipal primary elections were held in all sections of Indiana. The klan was the principal issue, and klan and anti-klan nominees won about the same number of victories.

In Indianapolis, John L. Duvall, indorsed by the klan, won the republican nomination for mayor by a plurality of 6,000.

Soviet Envoy to Japan Says U. S. Recognition Near

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Japan, May 7.—Victor Kopp, first Soviet Russian ambassador to Japan, declared his belief that the recognition of Russia by Japan would influence the attitude of the United States toward Russia. Opinion generally in Russia was that the change of American secretaries of state was a factor in American recognition, Kopp said.

M. Kopp said that the next move toward Soviet recognition is up to Washington, as Soviet Russia has stated her position, which remains unchanged.

Mellon Rebuked by Governor.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 7.—Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, today refused to comply with a request of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon that Maryland assign a number of free automobile licenses and operators' permits for use of federal prohibition agents.

Ritchie informed Mellon that automobiles of dry agents would be subject to the same requirements as cars of other government officials.

COMMUNIST STRIKE AGAINST HINDENBURG BACKED BY WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, May 7—The Communist Workers' Councils have indorsed the call of the Communist Party of Germany for a 24-hour general strike on Monday, May 12, when Hindenburg is due to be inaugurated in Berlin.

The Communist Party's manifesto against the menace of monarchy has stiffened the opposition of the workers within the social democratic party to president elect Hindenburg. Many of the workers will join in the general strike called by the Communists.

The socialist party contest of Hindenburg's election, on the ground that pressure was exerted on many workers, forcing them to vote for the monarchist, will come up in the election court, composed of five deputies, tomorrow.

The Communists are continuing their demand for amnesty for class war prisoners imprisoned because of activities in Workers' organizations.

GIRL CONFESSES NEGRO ATTACKER STORY WAS HOAX

Virginia Mob Arrests 2 Negroes for "Rape"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BRISTOL, Va., May 7.—A mob of 1,000 persons aided by the entire police force gave up a search for a Negro accused of raping an 11 year old girl when the girl Thelma McCary, confessed she was "joking."

The mob searched several nearby counties, terrorizing Negro quarters, holding up Negroes on the streets and searching them, and setting bloodhounds on the "trail" of the Negro.

The girl went to a filling station on Sixth St., and told several loungers there, that a Negro had attacked her. All the white men in town were called out and began the man hunt. Two Negroes had been arrested charged with the "crime" before the girl confessed.

Several of those taken into custody were threatened with lynching. The girl described her attacker minutely.

Later, in her confession, the girl said: "No Negro attacked me, but I spread the alarm because I was late for school and was afraid my father would whip me. I tore my dress to help make the men believe me."

Chicagoan's Average Life 42 Years, Say Homeopathic Docs

Homeopathic doctors in convention here at the Auditorium Hotel, say that the average span of life in Chicago is 42 years, 12 years longer than it was in 1887, when 55 per cent of the deaths were of children under 5 years. A better understanding of sanitation is responsible for the improved condition.

Legion Drive Fails

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—The American Legion drive for funds has utterly failed in New Orleans altho sponsored by the Mayor and high society.

It is a noticeable fact that society and the Mayor have not been recorded as donating, the working man and woman being the target for the fund solicitors.

Now The Middle Class Howls Because Workers Are Spending Too Little

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, "business," big and little, is letting out an awful howl, because it is claimed the people are taking "too literally," the advice of "Cautious Cal" Coolidge, to economize.

The retailers especially, a large mass of small business profiteers, who have put in their spring and summer stocks on a big scale, lament that the buyers have gone on a strike. They are not comforted in the least by the soothing press dispatches coming out of Washington, that a misinterpretation has been placed on the utterances of the White House oracle.

• • • •

There is the straw hat business, for instance, just opening up for the summer months. The merchants complain that, "If President Coolidge says he is having his straw hat of 1922 pressed once more, instead of buying a new one, nobody else will buy a new one." The clothing profiteers complain that the president's refusal to buy a new Easter suit had the same effect on their business.

This phenomenon is taking on considerable proportions. Senators and representatives, since congress adjourned, have been back home, and they have heard the kicks of their local business backing. They have not been slow to register the complaints at the White House, while the Washington Rotary Club has been in special session to consider this calamity.

The whole drive will now be to preach "economy" in government and not for the individual. As one irate petty bourgeois put it, if the president wants to economize, let him get rid of his yacht, the Mayflower, kept at government expense, costing at least $100,000 per year. They say that would be real "economy." But there is no danger that Coolidge will do that. He needs his yacht for junketing expeditions down the Potomac River, when so-called "progressive" congressmen are taken along and beaten into line for the administration's policies, which means, for the interests of the big capitalists. The yacht, Mayflower, is worth much more than $100,000 annually to Wall Street, and if it can get the government at Washington to spend that amount, it will prevent a drain on its own loose change.

• • • •

All of this, however, is but another indication of the bankrupt mind of little business, that tries vainly to solve its harrassing problems.

It vainly strives to find a solution for its difficulties under the capitalist system. The little business man never learns, until bankruptcy or some absorbing monopoly, usually the chain store, plunges him into the ranks of the working class. As an exploited wage slave his eyes are forced open, and he is compelled to see.

• • • •

The great masses of consumers in the United States are not buying today, not because Coolidge has urged "economy" upon them, but because they haven't the money to buy. In New England the workers are economizing because Coolidge's own campaign manager, the textile multi-millionaire, Butler, has forced wage cuts upon them. They were unable to successfully fight this plundering of their already slender pay envelopes.

The terrible scourge of unemployment that has been visited upon the coal mining fields of the nation, has not only cut the buying power of hundreds of thousands of these workers, but laid waste whole cities, as coal miners move en masse hunting jobs in other industries.

The almost complete closing down of the huge carshops of the Northwestern Railroad, in Chicago, followed by similar action in many other cities, is only a symptom of the jobless disease that is creeping over the nation's whole transportation system.

• • • •

With the coming in of the new crops, the prices for agricultural products will again fall to rock bottom as the farmer comes to market to sell. The farmer will again consider himself lucky if he can raise enough cash to pay interest on his debts and meet his immediate needs, which do not include the purchase of "new duds" at the city store.

• • • •

Compare with the wail of the overstocked retailer, the recent propaganda of the officials of the Printers' Union, that the workers were spending too much, that the installment payment plan was helping them go into debt. The labor bureaucracy joins the bourgeoisie in an effort to make conditions bearable under capitalism, in spite of the fact that one yells the workers spend too much, the other too little.

• • • •

But the fake cure-alls of these apologists for capitalist exploitation and robbery will in time become fully revealed to an increasingly intelligent and class conscious working class. The evils of the profit system will be chalked up against it, where they belong. Capitalism will be crushed under the weight of an intelligent working class opposition. Only the Communists educate the workers to a realization of this lone solution of their problem.

STORY OF IRISH FAMINE WILL BE TOLD TONIGHT AT MASS MEETING

The story of the famine situation in Ireland will be told this evening by John P. McCarthy, who has just returned from a visit to the west of Ireland, at a mass meeting in North Side Turner Hall, 827 North Clark St., near Chicago Avenue.

McCarthy returned to this country to take up famine relief work after he had made a tour of the most severely affected spots in the famine region. In thousands of homes even the humble potato has not a place on the bill of fare. The standard of living of those poor people is usually low, so much so, that even a slight change for the worse even in the best of times makes their condition desperate.

The Workers International Relief with headquarters in Berlin has sent out a call to its sections in all countries to send aid to the starving workers and peasants of west Ireland. The Russian, German and British workers have sent contributions. America is expected to send more than all other countries together. There are about 16 millions of the Irish race in America. The overwhelming majority of them are workers. It is to those particularly that their brothers and sisters in Ireland look for aid.

Other speakers on the program tonight will be William F. Dunne, T. J. O'Flaherty and Robert Totten. The meeting is arranged by the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee. Slides of Irish scenes, will also be shown.

Quakes in Philippines

MANILA, May 7.—Considerable damage thruout the southern Philippines as a result of the epidemic of earthquake shocks which has plagued the islands the last few days was feared by weather bureau officials here today.

Seven shocks have been felt within the last 36 hours. Negro's province was reported to have felt the tremors most severely, machinery in several sugar plantations having been dislodged from their positions.

Expose Treason of Renegade Socialists in Minneapolis

ulter to the working class. The paper finally appeared in 1920. Van Lear was on the board of directors, to act as the watchdog of the interests of the working class. I shall now trace, step by step, and strictly according to the indisputable facts in the case, how Van Lear stole the Star from the farmers and workers, in a legal way, and converted it into the property of the capitalist class.

Van Lear Starts Fight on Gaston.

Mr. Herbert Gaston was the first editor of the Star. He was a gentleman and a scholar. He edited the paper on a truly progressive policy. He also assembled a progressive staff of writers, who knew how to write for the cause of the farmers and workers.

Gaston himself wrote the universally appreciated "Topics of the Day." In this column he expounded genuine farm economics, which won the admiration of the farmers everywhere. He finally instructed the farmers concerning their ever growing plight, because he knew how and he possessed the courage of his convictions. The farmers were greatly delighted.

Gaston had a man of real talent editor of foreign news, Mr. Adler. Adler mirrored in a most effective style, the imperialistic slaughter going on thruout the world. He published accounts of the capitalist struggle for oil, coal, shipping and markets generally, in which he showed how the working classes bled themselves white for a wretched cause.

The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce was alarmed. It feared the able editorship of Gaston. The facts which Gaston presented daily to the farmers and workers, would, if left unchecked, soon destroy their political power.

They also hated the work of Adler, who was exposing the unholy game of international war. The capitalists cannot afford to let the people understand the economic nature of war. It means the doom of war. Therefore, both Gaston and Adler became the special objects of the ire of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. This is not difficult to understand.

The capitalists established a contact with Van Lear, who proceeded in a planned fashion, to harass Gaston. His first attack was made on Adler. He demanded that Adler should go as a member of the board of directors. Van Lear was helped by Thomas V. Sullivan.

However, Gaston held the fort valiantly. Van Lear fought Adler persistently, as he fights better for capitalism than he ever did for the workers. The fight lasted months. Then Gaston was forced to give in, in order to obtain the support of Van Lear and company for finances. The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce scored its first victory, thru the person of Van Lear.

The victory of Van Lear on the question of Adler, spurred him onto a fresh challenge, this time against Gaston himself. The capitalists could not wait; they wanted the head of Gaston quickly. They got it.

The war on Gaston came in the form of attacking his anti-vice and gambling den crusades. Van Lear was opposed to the policy of exposing these immoral joints, undoubtedly because he had received much financial support from them, in the shape of "campaign contributions," as a candidate for office. It may also be that his opposition to Gaston's moral policy, was based on principle.

The more Van Lear pressed for a cessation of the exposures of immorality, the stronger Gaston pursued his attacks on vice.

One day Mr. Gaston left for Chicago. Van Lear was at the office. An article exposing a new gambling den was set up. Van Lear heard about it. He flew down stairs in a rage, seized the stereotyped story, and in a true Van Learesque fashion, smashed it on the floor. He vowed that no more such rubbish would ever appear in the Star.

The fight waxed hot and long. The paper needed money. Van Lear and company refused to consent, as members of the board, to the financial plans of Gaston. Gaston, as a consequence, was put in the position of either acceding to the dictates of Van Lear and company, or getting off the paper. In fact this proposition was actually made to him.

Gaston was too honorable a man to play the role of stool pigeon for the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. He therefore resigned as editor, with his flag flying high.

Van Lear, in carrying out his promise to the workers, "I will protect the interests of the workers on the paper," hired a sports writer by the name of Fred Coburn, to edit the paper. This gentleman could not tell the difference between a trade union and a threshing machine. He was as immune to social and economic ideas, as is a piece of glass. However, Van Lear wanted the readers to get expert advice on golf, polo, baseball, football and tennis. That's why the Star was started. The capitalist press is sadly deficient in handling this sort of stuff, so extremely important for the culture of the working classes.

The ruin of the Star was now complete; it remained for the capitalists to take actual possession of the plant and the property. Van Lear set himself to accomplish this job at once.

How the Star Was Stolen from the Farmers and Workers.

Under the absolute regime of Van Lear, the Star became so rotten and treacherous to the workers and farmers, that it simply was unbearable. It sabotaged farmer-labor candidates running for office. It published news against the striking shopmen. Moreover, it actually assisted the railroads to break the strike.

The management of the paper was directed to the end of destroying it financially. For instance, four foremen were employed where only one was needed in the mechanical department. This was sheer extravagance, which was cut out as soon as the capitalists got the paper. The office staff was too large by five hundred dollars per month. This item was also corrected as soon as Frissel, the financial agent of the banks, took charge. A new press costing sixty thousand dollars was purchased. There was about as much need for this press as there is for a fifth wheel on a wagon. But somebody needed a fat commission off of the purchase price. This white elephant of a press was sold soon after the farmers and workers lost the paper.

The paper, moreover, published twenty-four page editions, when eight pages would have sufficed. This was a criminal waste of paper which drained the cash of the Star.

All this reckless expenditure was calculated to wreck the Star financially, so that the "fat boys," to use Van Lear's own expression, would get it. And they did.

All this brazen treachery to the interests of the farmers and workers so enraged the stockholders, that their annual meeting held November 8, 1923, took the form of a general indignation meeting against Van Lear, at which meeting he was jeered and hooted.

They came to this meeting organized to dethrone Van Lear. They protested loudly against all of his shady manipulations. The farmers and workers learned at this meeting the exact nature of the Star's co-operative basis. It was a fraud. Van Lear and John Thompson owned one thousand shares of common stock bought at one dollar per share. These shares represented an investde value of one thousand dollars, equalling the voting strength of about six hundred thousand dollars invested by the farmers and the workers. Some co-operation!

When Van Lear was asked how it was that he owned five hundred shares of this common stock "in the name of labor," he replied: "I bought and paid for them with my money." When this raw deal was put over the workers, the local labor fakers were interested in their pie cards, and not in the welfare of the workers whom, theoretically, they pretend to love.

At this historic meeting Van Lear was licked. A new board of directors was elected, openly hostile to the interests which Van Lear represented. The new board elected was as follows: Van Lear, Judge Harold Baker, John Thompson, A. B. Gilbert, and Thomas Sullivan who, at the first meeting of the board, resigned. Mrs. Minnie Cederholm was unanimously elected by the four other members of the board to succeed Sullivan. Van Lear was elected to the new board on a compromise and not because the rank and file wanted him.

Van Lear Takes the Last Step.

On January 7, 1924, the new board held a meeting. Among other proposals, the board submitted what follows, and which facts were issued in their letter to the stockholders on Jan. 19, 1924. I quote:

"Proposed Program of Economy."

"1st. The establishment of a budget system, under which costs of operation of the business would be fairly established in advance and adhered to by the different departments.

"2nd. The employment of a supervising accountant to approve expense vouchers and hold expenses down to the budget allowance.

"3rd. Reduction of operating expenses by rigid economies including the allowance of print paper so as to publish the paper approximately within its income.

"Majority of Board Favor Economy Program."

"When the recommendations were read to the full board on Jan. 7, Judge Harold Baker moved their adoption. The motion was seconded by Mrs. Cedarholm and Mr. A. B. Gilbert.

"Whereupon President Thomas Van Lear refused to put the motion, and announced that he had come to the conclusion that Judge Harold Baker and Mrs. Minnie Cedarholm were not properly elected members of the board and that he therefore had decided to refuse to recognize them further as directors.

"The ground on which Mr. Van Lear assumed to disqualify these members was that at the precise moment of their election the stock of the company held and owned by Judge Baker and Mrs. Cedarholm had not been transfered on the books of the company.

"Both Are Stockholders."

"The facts are that Judge Baker was a stockholder at the time of his election and delivered his stock for transfer to the secretary on the day of his election. Judge Baker's stock was not transferred on the books of the company until after he had taken his seat on the board but during the time that Judge Baker has served as a director his stock has been on record.

"Mrs. Minnie Cedarholm came into possession of her stock by transfer from her husband to herself and she likewise delivered her stock for transfer when she took her seat on the board.

"These facts were known to President Van Lear during the several weeks that Judge Baker and Mrs. Cedarholm have acted as directors, because Mr. Van Lear as president participated in the transfer of the stock of Judge Baker and Mrs. Cedarholm. President Van Lear had recognized these two directors at all board meetings up to Jan. 7, 1924. He found no occasion to disqualify them as members of the board nor did he at any time refuse to recognize them as members of the board until an issue arose between the three members of the board, Messrs. A. B. Gilbert and Judge Baker, and Mrs. Cedarholm on the one hand and President Van Lear and Vice President John Thompson on the other hand.

"When President Van Lear found that the power hitherto exercised by himself and Mr. Thompson to spend the money of the corporation and to determine the policy of the paper was about to be modified, he, Mr. Van Lear, assumed power to destroy the majority against him by attempting to disqualify two members of the board not in agreement with him.

"President Cannot Disqualify Members."

"Of course the president's arbitrary action did not and cannot disqualify Judge Baker and Mrs. Cedarholm on the board to which they were elected, and duly qualified by service thereon. The law does not give to the board members the right or power to disqualify each other. Only a court of law, or the stockholders themselves have power to take such action.

"Judge Baker and Mrs. Cedarholm, therefore continue to act as directors.

"Directors Continue Attendance at Board Meetings.

"The last regular meeting of the board was called for Monday, Jan 14. Judge Baker was holding court at that time and could not be present until Thursday, Jan. 17. Directors Gilbert and Cedarholm did not for this reason attend the board meeting on Monday. Mr. Van Lear and Mr. Thompson met and adjourned until Thursday, Jan. 17 at 5:30 p. m. at which meeting all five members attended and participated in an informal discussion. President Van Lear finally called the meeting to order formally and entertained a motion from Mr. Thompson to adjourn until 1 p. m. Saturday, the board having taken no official action.

"The directors all appeared on Saturday, Jan. 19. The three majority members of the board, Messrs. Baker, Gilbert and Mrs. Cedarholm entered the board room at exactly one o'clock and were informed by Mr. Van Lear that he had already adjourned the meeting. Whereupon the three directors named again called the meeting to order as was their legal right, the three being a quorum, and a majority, and proceeded to hold a board meeting. The minutes of this meeting read as follows:

"Minutes of Board Meeting.

"The board of directors of the Northwest Publishing company met in the office of President Thomas Van Lear, at 1 p. m., Jan. 19, 1924, Mr. Van Lear, Mr. Baker, Mr. Gilbert and Mrs. Cedarholm being present. Mr. Van Lear notified the board that he and Mr. Thompson had adjourned the meeting and were thru for the day.

"Mr. Baker urged President Van Lear to remain at the meeting but he refused and further refused the directors the use of his office.

"Mr. Baker called the meeting to order and it was moved by Mrs. Cedarholm that the board adjourn to the secretary's office. Seconded and carried. Accordingly the board adjourned to the office of the secretary, A. B. Gilbert.

"Moved by Judge Baker that Mr. John Thompson's resignation as a director be accepted. Seconded by Mrs. Cedarholm, and carried unanimously. Moved by Judge Baker that we appoint Mr. F. D. McMillan as Mr. Thompson's successor on the board of directors. Seconded by Mrs. Cedarholm and carried unanimously.

"Mr. McMillan accepted the office and agreed to serve as an active member of the board.

"Moved by Mr. Baker that we recall Mr. Van Lear as president of the board, but that Mr. Van Lear be continued as treasurer. Seconded by Mrs. Cedarholm and carried unanimously.

"Moved to elect Mr. McMillan president of the board. Seconded by Mrs. Cedarholm and carried unanimously.

"Mr. McMillan accepted the office of president and agreed to serve without pay.

"Moved by Mr. Gilbert that Judge Harold Baker be elected to the office of vice-president, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Thompson. Seconded by Mr. McMillan and carried unanimously.

"Moved by Judge Baker that the recommendations providing for economy presented on January 7, and which were not adopted because of the refusal of former President Van Lear to put the motion be now adopted. Seconded by Mr. Gilbert and carried unanimously.

"Moved by Judge Baker that we call a meeting of the stockholders to enable the majority members of the board to submit what action they have taken to the stockholders for their approval or disapproval.

"Meeting adjourned."

There you have it. Van Lear disqualified the board. He does not believe in the dictatorship of the proletariat. What he enjoys is a personal, a Van Lear dictatorship, to stool on the working classes; to betray their trust for the luster of gold.

This czaristic act upon the part of Van Lear was not something which occured to him. The hand of capitalism guided it. For the reader will take note of the important fact, stated in the above report of the new board, that "President Van Lear had recognized these two directors at all board meetings up to January 7, 1924."

Well, then, what caused him to change his conduct after that date.

When it became known to the capitalist behind Van Lear, that the economy program of the new board would save the Star for the progressive movement, they knew that the time had come for extraordinary measures. That's why Van Lear changed his mind.

As a result of this unspeakably treacherous action of Van Lear, the board called a special meeting of the stockholders for February 8, 1924, to deal with the unusual situation.

However, Van Lear and his lawyer, George B. Leonard, had everything set to spring the trap.

At a special meeting of the stockholders, Van Lear refused to make an appearance. A committee of farmers were delegated to visit him, and demand his presence at the meeting. He informed this committee, "my lawyer has instructed me not to attend." All books and records of the corporation were denied the meeting, as that would, very likely, interfere with "co-operation."

The stockholders had no other alternative left but to resort to the courts, in an effort to compel Van Lear to obey the law. So they did.

This action on the part of the stockholders acted as an automatic signal for some of the creditors to also go into court. On the heels of the stockholders' court action, the Seaman Paper company, a creditor of the Star, applied for a receivership, which the court granted. That meant that henceforth the Star was managed by the court.

The Star, in the course of several months, was sold to the highest bidder.

The farmers and workers were left with the opportunity to think how much clothing and the necessities of life they denied themselves and families in order to buy shares in the Star. The workers also have now had ample time to think over the hypocritical promises which Van Lear made them when he said, "I will be there to protect the interests of the workers." He is as reliable now, as he was then.

I do not propose to insult the Tribune nor the Journal by comparing the slimy Star to these organs of black reaction. The Star is an outcast in the journalistic house of prostitution. It deserves no support whatsoever from the working class and should get none.

There is the Money.

In 1921 Van Lear was a candidate for mayor. He was defeated. Leach was the victor. In that campaign, Leach said some very bad things about Van Lear. He wrote an open letter to Leach, in which he demanded that Leach produce some proof of his statements, and those of his henchmen, or stand convicted of "being a contemptible liar." That's what Van Lear, the master of bluff and bluster, wrote.

Soon after his defeat, he issued a universal appeal to the farmers and workers for funds, with which to fight Leach in the courts on a charge of slander. He meant business. The workers and farmers, taking cognizance of the cause for which the appeal was made, responded with their dollars.

This historical legal action vanished mysteriously into the clouds. The money was collected. But no action resulted. What happened to these funds? Nobody knows. No accounting was ever made. If this is not stealing from the working classes, then what does stealing consist of? There are men in the penitentiary for doing less than this. Van Lear is as truthful now, as he was when he circulated that appeal.

Moreover, this renegade socialist, who used to spread the doctrine of the class struggle; who preached amalgamation, has been the bosom political friend of Leach since 1922. The man whom he virtually called a "contemptible liar" in 1921. No, Van Lear is not a comedian; he is a political hypocrite. In 1923 he says, "we could do worse than not to endorse Leach for mayor." It is simply revolting, this black record of his, as it trails over the body of the working class movement.

But it is not for nothing that the Minneapolis chamber of commerce had Van Lear riding in a back seat with them over the state, in their magnificiently appointed special train in 1923. Van Lear was advising the farmers to "eat more wheat." Apparently he thought that they were eating oats.

The Descent into Hell.

Van Lear is now associated with Lewis Harthill in the publication of that harum-scarum rag called "Minnesota." With this last venture of political depravity, he has hit the very bottom of political baseness. He can't go any lower.

Since he handed over the Star to the capitalists, his job there was done. His mission now is to destroy the workers' representation in the city council by vomiting a stream of filth against the workers' movements. This is the new job which the capitalists have detailed for him. It would not do for him to remain idle. As neither Van Lear nor "Little Lou" can write a line, Howard Guilford does that.

This fellow Guilford is a professional shake-down artist, as the whole town knows. He is an expert purveyor of dirty linen; that's why decent people hold their nose when his name is pronounced.

For years he was the publicity agent for the underworld, when the town was wide open. He not only maintained a contact with the scarlet shadows of sin, but his sheet was lewd, obscene and lascivious. His rag was the official organ of Sodom and Gomorrah.

For three years this fellow lashed Harthill and Van Lear: 1917, 1918, and 1919. That was due to the fact that Guilford considered himself as being "doublecrossed" by the pair, pertaining to some pre-election promise. His dirty linen pen splashed all over Harthill and Van Lear. It was Guilford who coined Harthill's nickname, "Little Lou." Today they embrace one another. It is unbelievable, but true.

In 1921 Guilford hired out to Ed. Carpenter and an official of the Minneapolis Steel and Machinery company, to publish a broadside against Van Lear, who was a candidate for office. He was to obtain three thousand dollars for the job. However, after Guilford performed his part of the contract, the money was not forthcoming. So Guilford entered suit to recover.

Today Van Lear is an intimate worker and warm friend of Guilford. This sounds, I know, as if it was a great joke. Nevertheless, it's the truth. Do not these facts prove conclusively that Van Lear and Harthill comprehend political honor, decency and self-respect, about as much as a hog does Latin. Yet they have got the brass to misrepresent honorable men in their unscrupulous sheet. The rag became so corrupt that Guilford quit. Now the traitor Gilbert does the writing.

Is it not the duty of every honest and intelligent worker, in the light of the facts herein recorded, to shun these traitors to the cause of the working class, and for their leperous rag, as he would a poisonous serpent. Certainly it is.

This sheet is a new bit of gold for the duo. It's the price of their continued treachery. They approach the members of the Citizen's Alliance, whose good will they have got and whose ideals they are spreading in this manner:

"We want an ad from you. You know our paper is doing your work. We are gonna put the radicals on t bum. That's the purpose of our per; to raise hell with the labor m We have already tied up the unio with our work in the assembly. I your cause we are fighting for. help us do your work."

This is an exact reproduction of canvas which they put over the bu ness men. For money they stop nothing. It is said by some who ha recently returned from Washingt that this scurrilous plaster of magg is to become the official organ of t central labor union. I doubt it ve much. But should it really happ it would attest the fact that degene tion has set in so far, in that pla that hope for its redemption is fut

The truth is before you Mr. Wo ing Man, and Woman. Van Lear a Harthill stand convicted of ra treachery and monstrous perfidy the cause of the working classes. T movement that has fed and cloth them, and in the case of Van Le honored him with its leadership, th have attempted to sell out to the emies of the toilers. Van Lear, who also an expert on Russian questio about like a village pump master, an authority of dialectics, has de onstrated beyond any point of dou that he can be true to no man, ca or movement.

The Workers (Communist) Party the only organization that can prot the working class from a duplicat of this kind of treason in the futu This is true because this party i party of iron discipline. Its memb ship and its leadership are under control of the organization. Co quently, treason is unthinkable. M over, its press and publications ge ally, are the property of the organ tion, utilized for the purpose of cating the working class to orga for the overthrow of capitalism, a economic system.

It is to be noted, in conclusion, while Van Lear was perpetrating of his treason, the so-called socia labor group headed by Albert B and Lynn Thompson, not only did raise a finger to stop him, but, in m cases, actually co-operated with Between them and Van Lear is a question of degree; in principle, are the same. As for the labor fa in the unions, such as Bob Cra there is no difference at all.

The working class can very afford to sing with Lord Byron:

"I've learned to think and st speak the truth,
Learn to derive the critic's starch
cree
And break him on the wheel he m for me."

COMMUNISTS GET ENDORSEMENT OF MACHINISTS' LODGE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—Lodge No. 91, International Association of Machinists at its last regular meeting gave its endorsement to Dan W. Stevens, the Communist candidate for mayor and also to C. A. Hathaway and L. A. Roseland the Communist candidates for alderman in the first and tenth wards respectively.

This meeting was attended by Harley P. Nickerson of Milwaukee, international vice president of the machinists' union, who tried to swing the local behind "Bill" Johnston and his infamous B. & O. plan. The Communist members of the local explained that to adopt the B. & O. plan meant the destruction of the union as a weapon in the hands of workers with which to carry on the struggle against the capitalists for improved working conditions and appealed to the members to support the program of the left wing lead by the T. U. E. L. They called upon those present to vote for the Anderson ticket for the sole purpose of busting the Johnston machine, but to organize the left wing with the idea of placing the control of the union in their hands at the earliest possible time.

The vote of the local at this meeting was 25 for the Anderson slate and three for the Johnston machine. Nickerson left the meeting feeling rather blue after the left wing had challenged him to debate the class collaboration policy of the present leadership as opposed to the program of the class struggle advanced by the left wing.

CARPENTERS' UNION IS UNANIMOUS FOR ROSELAND, COMMUNIST

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—Carpenters' Local Union No. 7, at its last regular meeting endorsed L. A. Roseland, Communist candidate for alderman in the 10th ward, by unanimous vote.

Comrade Roseland has been a member of this local for the past twelve years and is now serving as president of the Twin City Carpenters' District Council. He was one of the carpenters' delegates that was the center of the fight launched by the reactionary labor officials in their efforts to disrupt the local labor movement by expelling the Communist and left wing elements. The reactionary officials of the carpenters have also attempted to destroy the confidence held by the rank and file in Roseland, but the vote of the local at its last meeting is conclusive proof that this comrade has won the support of the rank and file because of his sincerity and because of the program that he has consistently supported.

MINNEAPOLIS LABOR IN SACCO-VANZETTI PROTEST ON SUNDAY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—Workers of Minneapolis will join the swelling ranks of labor over the nation demanding the release of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, now starting their sixth year of imprisonment in Massachusetts. They are under sentence to die as the result of the frameup of the New England shoe manufacturers seeking to rid themselves of these militant labor agitators.

The Minneapolis meeting will be held Sunday night, May 10, at 8:00 o'clock, in the Court House Auditorium, with J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER as the principal speaker. There will also be addresses by local speakers.

MAGNUS JOHNSON CONVICTS SENATE FOE'S BOSS OF CRIMINAL LIBEL

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—A. N. Jacobs, campaign manager for the blind congressman, Thomas Schall, who defeated Magnus Johnson in the election last fall for United States senator from Minnesota, was found guilty of criminal libel by a jury in district court today.

His conviction grew out of the publication of a story charging Magnus Johnson with having been drunk in Minneapolis on May 8, 1923, that he was arrested, spent a night in the city jail and was fined $10.00 in municipal court the next morning. He also implied that Magnus had been involved with fast women.

Magnus Avoided Primrose Path.

This is looked upon here as the first step in the effort to unseat Schall in the senate. It is significant that prominent members of the republican machine in Minnesota testified in behalf of Johnson at this trial and were largely instrumental in bringing about Jacob's conviction.

Schall is thought to be unpopular with the republican leaders and in as much as Magnus is not asking for the seat himself, but is merely asking that Schall be unseated, they are willing to help with the job. It is also significant that the republican leaders introduced a bill in the last session of the state legislature, which was adopted, authorizing the governor (a republican) to appoint senators to fill vacancies in the event that such vacancies should occur.

To Follow La Follette to G. O. P.

Others here are of the opinion that this trial marks the beginning of the retreat of Magnus Johnson back into the fold of the republican party, where he will find many of his old farmer-labor companions such as Thomas Van Lear, Lewis Harthill and others.

Communist Campaign Unites Workers

are explaining the efforts that were made to place a labor candidate in the field in this election and calls upon the labor fakirs and the socialist-labor aldermen to explain why that offer of unity was sabotaged. In each ward our speakers are calling upon this gang to take a stand on the mayorality issue. In each case they are found to be either directly or indirectly supporting the reactionary candidate of the citizens' alliance, the present republican Mayor Leach for re-election. The working class resents this betrayal and are rallying behind Stevens.

Read DAILY WORKER.

The campaign is on full blast. Thousands of copies of the DAILY WORKER are being distributed daily to the workers in all parts of the city. They read the DAILY WORKER with great interest and ask for more.

The platform of the party which calls for day labor, maintenance of workers' children in schools, the socialization of all public service corporations with their control vested in the unions is eliciting applause from the working class because it's the only one that deals with their interests in a direct way.

Leading Party of Workers.

The labor fakirs themselves concede that Dan W. Stevens may win the nomination. They are in a flurry about it. Moreover their sabotage of Dan W. Stevens applies only to themselves.

There is absolutely no doubt that the Workers (Communist) Party is going to emerge out of this campaign as the leading party of the working class of Minneapolis.

Not withstanding the fact that the weather has been cold, our meetings have been well attended.

SOVIET RUSSIA UNCOVERS NEST OF POLISH SPIES UNDER ORDERS OF THE WHITE GUARD GOVERNMENT

MOSCOW, May 7.—Another Polish citizen who was to be exchanged (together with the priest Usasz) for the officers of the Polish army, Veczerkowitch and Baginsky, who goes under the name of Laszkewitch, formerly secretary to the Polish consulate-general at Tiflis, is now in prison convicted of military espionage.

The Izvestia has published extensive quotations from the statements made in writing by the accused during his judiciary examination. Laszkewitch declares that he was engaged in espionage since 1922.

Poland Spies on Russia.

He worked under instructions of the Polish ministry of foreign affairs, which continually demanded that he should collect information of a military character as well as data throwing light on the activities of anti-Soviet groups, the currents and tendencies within the Communist Party, and also secret economic information.

Laszkewitch had at his disposal a numerous staff, and he had established a complex system of "liason."

Besides Usasz and Laszkewitch, the Soviet government had proposed to hand over, by way of exchange, over twenty Polish spies, caught in action and convicted. However, to judge by the last note of the government of the U. S. S. R. to Poland, the question of their exchange has evidently had to be reconsidered.

Guard Polish Legation.

In view of high feeling still running among the public and the continuation of anti-Polish manifestations at Minsk, in connection with the murder of Baginsky and Veczerkowitch, the building of the Polish legation at Moscow is being strongly guarded by the Soviet militia, while at Leningrad the mounted militia is patrolling all the streets lying near and around the Polish consulate, thus keeping the crowds of manifestants from approaching the latter.

White Guards Unpopular.

It is announced that a few hours before the arrest by the militia of the priest Usasz, who was hiding in the Polish consulate at Minsk, the Polish consul had informed the local commissioner of People's Commissariat of Foreign Affairs that a stone had been thrown into his room from the street and had broken the window pane.

Upon receipt of this communication, the commissioner expressed his regrets to the Polish consul and promised to strengthen the guard outside the building of the consulate. He also ordered an investigation to be made immediately.

It is officially announced that the Belorussian state political department has uncovered an organization of espionage at Minsk, which worked under the direction of the former Polish consul Karozevsky. The latter collected secret information as to the work of various Soviet institutions and the stationing and movements of the Belorussian military units.

On March 30 last, there was arrested a Soviet citizen Garkacz, who was Karczevsky's right hand man in this work of espionage, carried on in western Belorussia. Garkacz has given exhaustive testimony at the judiciary examination.

UKRAINIANS MOURN REVOLUTIONARY POET AT SATURDAY CONCERT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—On Saturday, May 9, at Columbia Hall, 1007 Main St., the Minneapolis Ukrainian Dramatic Society is going to hold a memorial celebration on the occasion of the 64th year of the death of T. Scheweczenko, who was a great revolutionary poet of the Ukrainian people and whose work on behalf of the abolition of serfdom has endeared him to the hearts of the Ukrainian proletariat forever.

All Russian, Ukrainian and other Slovanic workers are cordially invited to attend this celebration.

The program will consist of 22 classical numbers.

U. S. S. R. Welcomes Jewish Colonists Who Start May 10

MOSCOW, May 7.—A proclamation welcoming the settlement of the Jews on the land was issued by the first Soviet conference of the District of Babruisk, which held its last session here today. It calls upon all Soviet institutions to help develop the Jewish colonization work and appeals to the Russian fellow-peasants. The Police Commissariat of the Ukraine has announced that all prospective Jewish colonists to whom land was allotted during March must settle and begin work not later than May 10 to 13. Those who will fail to do so forfeit their land, which will be given to other Jewish settlers.

Jewish Comrades of the Y. W. L. Attention!

All the Jewish comrades should attend our next joint meeting and lecture on Saturday, May 9th, at 4 p. m. sharp. Very important discussion will take place. A Workers Party speaker will speak on "The Present Situation in Europe." Come on time and bring along your friends.—Local Jewish Propaganda Com., J. Weiss, Sec'y.

AUSTRALIA HAS MAY DAY UNITED FRONT MEETINGS

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 7.—Sixty metings, 60,000 leaflets, a mass procession. This is what the Melbourne movement carried out in connection with the May Day celebrations, 1925. And this result is the logical sequence to the putting into operation of the decision of the large May Day committee meeting held at the Melbourne Trades Hall.

Delegates from every working class organisation comprised this committee, which was called into existence to assist the Trades Hall Council May Day committee of five appointed to organize this year's demonstration. About 100 delegates were present at the first meeting, representing trade unions, A. L. P. branches, the Communist Party, socialist party, I. W. W., etc.

May Day Resolutions

The resolutions carried on May Sunday last year were accepted for this year. They are as follows:

(1) "That this mass meeting of workers emphatically declares its determination to abolish the capitalist system, with its production for private profit, and pledges itself to work for the establishment of a state of society wherein the means of production will be socially owned and operated for the benefit of all."

(2) "That this mass meeting of workers sends fraternal greetings to the workers of all lands, and, believing that the abolition of war can be obtained only by the supremacy of the working class of the world, pledges itself to work unceasingly to build up international working class organizations to achieve that purpose."

(3) "That this mass meeting of workers declares that, for the attainment of the objects named in the foregoing resolutions, it is imperative that the workers wage vigorously the industrial and political struggle against the exploiting class of the respective countries."

These resolutions were the subject of addresses delivered from several platforms on the Yarra Bank on Sunday, May 3. The meetings were preceded by a mass march of men, women and children from the Trades Hall to the meeting place.

MIGRATION OF SOUTHERN NEGRO IN FULL SWING

Large Numbers Enter Northern Industries

NEW YORK, May 7.—The annual spring migration of southern Negroes from the agricultural pursuits of the south to the northern industrial centers is the largest in history this year, records of employment offices and other organizations indicate.

Each year, thousands of Negro workers leave the southern farms and come to the larger cities to seek factory work. The Negroes are now entering Illinois, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and other northeastern states.

Unemployment is already widespread in the large cities, and the Negroes are suffering keenly for lack of work. The wages paid the Negro workers are below those paid the white workers for the same class of work.

In New York, most of the Negroes from the south are entering the textile industries or are working as longshoremen, or in domestic service.

There are 5,300 Negro longshoremen in this city, ten thousand work in the clothing trade of New York, 24,000 are in domestic service or act as laundresses.

The housing problem among the Negroes in the northern cities, where the Negro faces exhorbitant rent, discrimination, and overcrowded conditions, has grown acute.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

BLACKEST CRIME OF CAPITALISM IS BROKEN LIVES OF WOMEN AND GIRLS OF COAL MINING TOWNS

By SANDE, Worker Correspondent.

When the history of the crimes of capitalism are written some of its blackest pages will be those describing the suffering and the hopeless lives of the women and girls in the coal mining camps.

The exploitation of the men and boy workers is bad enough as they at least find some "recreation" in the pool room or drown their agony in poisonous moonshine, but the women and girls must wait their fate, whatever it may be, patiently.

Dead, Dull, Drab Lives.

Their lives are as drab as their homes, wooden shacks painted either red or dull gray with the window frames and doors painted white. Some day a revolutionist will write the story of these tombs, and what a story it will make.

A few of the larger camps may have a movie show or a dance hall, but the cheapness and the mental poison of the pictures are only exceeded by the crude vulgarity of the dance halls.

The early youth of the girls are spent in getting an "education" in a so-called school house. A girl teacher, often as young as some of the pupils, teaches all grades at the same time.

Girls' Ghastly Prospect.

As the girls grow older the parents wait anxiously for someone to marry their daughter as it is a great hardship to support a family on the meager wages of a coal miner.

It is not an uncommon sight to see old men having young girls—mere children—as wives. Often when a miner's wife is still very young she has many babies to care for, missing practically her whole youth.

Crimes of the Coal Camps.

The boys can often find jobs in the mines with their fathers, but there are no jobs for the girls. She must either marry or leave home. Talk about "breaking up the family," the coal operators are the greatest family breakers in existence.

Yes, when the history of the crimes of capitalism is written, some of its blackest pages will be those describing the suffering and the hopeless lives of the women and girls in the coal mining camps of this country.

LAUNDRY WANTS WORKERS TO PAY FOR INSURANCE

But That Is a Feeler for a Wage Cut

By MURPHY, Worker Correspondent.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 7.—Signs of class consciousness have manifested themselves in the Keystone Branch of the United Laundry Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., recently. Three weeks ago the boss placed a notice on the time clock, that the group insurance which the company carried on each worker will expire March 31.

This brought a general discussion among the workers as to how they were expected to show interest in the insurance and they found that while it had cost the company a little money to keep these up, a new plan was now being developed to keep the workers from enjoying the benefit of what little it was.

Workers Discuss Their Insurance.

Last week another sign appeared stating that on Monday, April 13, Edward J. Burke, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance would give a talk on the policies. A general discussion followed among the workers, who reached the conclusion that the company wanted Burke to persuade them to take out their own policies, paid for by themselves. With this conclusion already reached, they were in no pleasant mood when the speaker arrived.

He seemed to be afraid to talk extensively but got up courage enough to tell the workers that the blame was not on the owners, that the insurance had to be cancelled and after praising the owners very highly he offered to transfer anyone's policy provided the workers would agree to pay for it.

"Pay It Yourself," Says Company

When calling for questions, one of the workers asked what the rates would be, and Mr. Burke told him whenever he made up his mind to take out one or transfer the one he previously held, he would come over and talk to him privately. This brot on a heated discussion among the employes and many of them pointed out that the bosses were afraid the workers may offer resistance.

Due to the dangerous conditions under which the workers are employed they realise that they need to be insured but the company has been paying for it in the past and they could pay for it now. They all agreed that the next thing to expect is the inevitable wage cut.

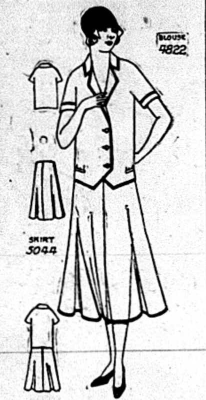
Boss May Find Some Trouble.

This insurance business was only to try us out. If we take this without fighting, the owners will know that they will not have any resistance when they get ready to use the knife. "One man cannot do much fighting alone and when wage cuts come, it is time we forget our minor grievances and try to stop the wolf before he eats us and our wives and children alive," one of the workers said.

Another said that one man was easy to replace but a walkout of the whole plant of experienced men would make the owners scratch their fat heads and think.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A PLEASING SPORTS COSTUME



4822-5044. Comprising Blouse 4822, and Skirt 5044. This model was attractively made up in kasha in a new shade of tan with bindings of silk braid in a darker shade. This is also a good style for linen and flannel.

The blouse pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measures. The skirt pattern in 7 sizes: 25, 27, 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37 inches waist measure, with corresponding hip measure 35, 37, 39, 41, 43, 45 and 47 inches. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 2⅝ yards. It is circular in cut. To make this costume for a medium size will require 3¾ yards of 40-inch material.

TWO separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 12c FOR EACH patern in silver or stamps.

COMMUNIST PRISONER TELLS STORY OF HIS 'TRIAL' BY POLISH 'JUDGE'

(By the International Red Aid.)

WARSAW, May 7.—A political prisoner, who is serving a several years' term of imprisonment, is accused of having insulted a criminal commissar. For examination he was led from his cell to a judge and a clerk. With a polite "Good morning" the prisoner entered the room of examination. He tells the following story of the insult:

"What is your name?"

"Would you not first of all inform me, who you are and what you want?"

Refuses to Tell Who is Judge.

I did not know who was the clerk and who the judge and had no idea where they came from.

No answer.

Then the man who till now had not said anything, began to take papers from a bunch of documents and asked:

"Is this correct?"

"You will not receive any information from me unless you tell me who you are."

"Write in the minutes that he refuses to make statements."

This is done.

"If I come here with documents you might very well know that I am the judge."

"Judge" Walks Away.

"Oh, then you are the judge? Why did you not tell me that before? I would have given you information immediately."

"What do you dare? Do you intend to put still more questions?"

"I, as a political prisoner, do not give information to everybody."

"I am no political prisoner and have not yet been in prison!" the judge says with contempt.

"But I am a political prisoner and I am proud of it. I am here because of my honest political convictions! I am equal to you and by no means less!"

"You wanted to overthrow the laws of this state!"

"I protest that you raise this accusation without any knowledge of my offense."

"I know what I say," the judge murmered and went away.

Children Die in Fire

MT. PLEASANT, Mich., May 7.—Two children are dead today and their mother, Mrs. Thomas Smith, is in a hospital, probably fatally injured as a result of a fire which destroyed their home near here yesterday. The victims were burned to death in their beds. The blaze started from an overheated furnace.

IF YOU LIVE IN DETROIT—

Here's the Place to Go Sunday, May 10

William F. (Bill) Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER and well known fighter for organized labor, will speak at the House of the Masses, 2646 St. Aubin, at 2 p. m.

If you ever have or have not heard him speak—this is the place to go Sunday—that's May 10.

BUILDERS AT WORK

THIS IS COMMUNIST ACTIVITY

And One Way to Make Communist History

IN the shop of "the source of all Communist literature" in this country, the presses are busy. Never in its history has the DAILY WORKER machinery, both mechanical and human, been put to such a test as it has during the DAILY WORKER Week of May 4 to 10. Literally mountains of papers are leaving the shop daily, to be distributed by busy, building Communists thruout the country.

Going from door to door of working class homes, members of the Workers (Communist) Party and sympathetic workers are bringing to them the Communist message in the DAILY WORKER. But sample copies are quite easy to give away. It is much more difficult to get subscriptions at the end of the week.

But this is absolutely essential. What one week's acquaintance with the DAILY WORKER has not done, even a short term sub will do.

Here is the field for future membership of the Communist movement and here we can "make another Communist." It must be done. And this Saturday and Sunday every home that has had a sample copy of the DAILY WORKER for one week (and other homes if you have time) must be visited.

Seldom has there been such a splendid opportunity to build the DAILY WORKER or the Workers (Communist) Party.

PIRATE SYMBOL WORN BY BULGAR WHITE GUARDISTS

Secret Session Shows Fear of Truth

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 7. — The farcical trial by court martial of the persons suppposed to be involved in the Sveti Kral cathedral explosion now going on is completely surrounded by white guard troops and a heavy veil of secrecy.

The session was secret at which the names of the supposed co-conspirators were divulged by the defendents who have apparently been promised escape from death for saying that the explosion was brought about by Communists instead of Jugo-Slavians.

It is learned however that some of the ones under arrest have definitely alleged that money and arms came, not from Moscow as alleged, but from Vienna, Austria, and was supplied by Jugo-Slavia thru Macedonian nationalist revolutionaries.

To avoid publicity of this damning fact which upsets the world wide lie of "Communist plots," the court martial sessions are secret.

The character of the "trial" may well be seen in the fact that the white guard troops surrounding the prisoners and in control of Sofia, have sculls and cross-bones painted on their helmets, and in the fact that civilian lawyers for the prisoners are forbidden. Gen. Lazaroff, the commanding military of the white terror has assigned two white guard officers as "counsel for the defense."

Patriotic Ladies Are Good Watch Dogs at Women's Convention

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Discussion on the league of nations and the world court at the quintennial convention of the international council of women brought sharp clashes here. The women from the American patriotic society were there to weigh and measure each utterance made by the delegates. The Marchioness of Aberdeen, president, sought to smooth the troubled waters by declaring that the object of the council, "Is not to promote propaganda but to form an international center for women to gather, confer, and make the voice of organized womanhood heard regarding various subjects of world interest. Promotion of an international mind in all relations of life is the purpose of the council," she said.

This is the first open meeting held by the conference. In an effort to get things done without interference from the patriotic women, all sessions were held behind closed doors.

Morgan's Peace

The United States wants peace in Europe, says the ambassador to Great Britain. "No peace, no loans," was his keynote at the reception given in his honor in London and the liberals are greatly cheered. It is a wondrous sight, say they, to see this great nation launched on a holy crusade to bring peace to a suffering world.

Loving peace as we do, it is a little hard for us to disillusion those of our readers who may have been taken in by the pacifist character of the remarks of the representative of the House of Morgan, but duty calls.

In the olden days the robber barons discouraged quarrels among their vassals, but nevertheless made war among themselves. Conflicts between the underlings resulted in a disruption of productive enterprises and made taxes hard to collect.

So it is with the new overlord of the capitalist world-imperialist America. Huge loans are outstanding in a score of nations and war among the debtors means added risk.

According to the Belgian ambassador, the speech of the American ambassador awed the assembled diplomats "as if God almighty had descended and was talking to them." This, we believe, is giving God a little the best of it. No deity worshipped by diplomats could have received the respectful attention accorded the mouthpiece of the Morgan billions unless he had materialized celestial wealth into hard cash. The paymaster was speaking and in accord with the well-known saying that "he who pays the piper, calls the tune," the diplomatic representatives of bankrupt European states made full obeisance to the American bankroll as a symbol of omnipotence.

Peace?

A formal peace, if you will, among governments but relentless warfare on the working class, war on the workers' and peasants' government of Russia, war on its supporters all over the world, war on the colonial peoples, but peace among the satrapies of American imperialism. Peace so that the full strength of the puppet governments can be thrown against the working class and the masses forced to toil without rest for the profit of the House of Morgan and its favorites.

The American imperialists do not wish to waste their substance in minor conflicts. Their only powerful rival is Great Britain, with Japan a minor obstacle, and while the American ambassador talks peace in London, at home preparations are made to strengthen the navy, naval bases and airfleets and the Pacific squadron departs, after huge maneuvers around Hawaii, for a trip of intimidation to all the ports of the Far East.

The Romans made a desert and called it peace, but imperialism goes them one better. It enslaves whole continents and, because the cries of the tortured masses cannot yet be heard by many across a waste of waters, calls this gigantic prison a proof of its peaceful intentions.

The Fight in Minneapolis

Dan W. Stevens, militant trade unionist, who was expelled from the central labor body in Minneapolis on instructions from headquarters of the American Federation of Labor in Washington, is running for mayor in Minneapolis on the Communist ticket as the candidate of the Workers Party.

Stevens is running on a platform that puts forward the interests of the workers and none else. He is the only candidate in the field who cares a tinker's damn about the working class. The workers realize this and the most politically conscious of them are rallying to his support despite the opposition of the fakers, old and new, who are lined up behind the republican party hack, the present Mayor Leach.

One of the most valuable weapons in the arsenal of our comrades in Minneapolis is the DAILY WORKER. Thousands of copies with the message of Communism are being distributed on the streets. The workers are opening their eyes. The fact that 26,000 votes were counted for the Communist candidate in the recent election in Los Angeles show that the American workers are not afraid to turn to Communism when the economic pressure becomes sufficiently strong and the party is in a position to reach the masses with its propaganda.

Another Victory for the Open Shop

While the reactionary officials of the American Federation of Labor spend their time urging the workers to co-operate with the capitalists in running industry for the benefit of the capitalists, or in hounding radicals and progressives out of the trade union movement, the employers are carrying on a relentless war against the economic organs of the workers.

The latest and most vicious blow struck at trade unionism in this country, and one that cannot fail but have far-reaching effect, is the decision of the Ohio supreme court which declares that no public utility enjoying a monopoly of its field can make a closed shop union contract with any kind of labor. The decision also states that closed shop union contracts are contrary to public policy on the ground that they might bar from employment individuals not wanting to join a union.

This is what the unions have gained out of their fawning and belly-crawling to the employers. The fakers expected that the bosses would smile upon them once the radicals were driven out of strategic positions in the unions. But once the radicals were eliminated from leadership the bosses knew that they could work their sweet will on organized labor. The rank and file will suffer from the treachery of their leaders.

The street car company in Cleveland has declared the open shop on its properties. The union officials, it is reported, have conferred with company officials on the question of retaining their union. Why ask the company's permission? But this is another indication of the depths to which the fakers have dragged the trade union movement. The carmen's union was not built by favorable court decisions. It was not built by permission and with the aid of the transportation capitalists.

There is only one course for the street carmen of Cleveland to take. That course is to fight. If they do not struggle against the open shop now and battle for the right of collective bargaining, they will have cowardly surrendered their only protection against the rapacity of the employers. They will furthermore be deserting the field of battle to a relentless enemy who never quits the fight against the workers.

"Down with the open shop," should be the slogan of the street carmen of Cleveland. They deserve the support of every other Cleveland worker in their struggle, and of every worker in the United States. They must fight.

Phist! Bolsheviks in Washington

"Buxom, blackeyed Russian girls are busy taking dictation from swarthy-bearded foreigners of the literary type, who speak English with a strong accent." Washington is always in trouble. No sooner did the Teapot Dome fade out of the newspapers than something else is discovered to disturb the equanimity of the capitol.

Nothing less than a den of Bolshevik publicity men has been discovered in Washington. Bearded men and blackeyed girls! What a Mephistophelian combination? Perhaps they have money. If so, the country is in danger. The powers of resistance of the average American government official are not too robust. Senator Albert B. Fall proved that. And there are others whose coat tails got caught in the door. But they had presence of mind enough to leave the coat behind.

"The White House and the state department are kept under close observation." More mystery. What is this object of suspicion?

The naked and unromantic truth is, that the Soviet government has a publicity agency in Washington, which publishes a paper called the Russian Review. It has been there for quite a while. It is not a secret institution like the headquarters of a gang of bootleggers or oil thieves. It has a highly developed appetite for publicity.

Every government in the world has an information bureau in the United States. There is no objection to those agencies, because they are peddling the virtues of their capitalist governments. But the Soviet information bureau is keeping the public informed on the progress of things in Russia under the rule of the workers' and peasants' government. The Soviet government is making good. The standard of living of the workers and peasants is rising. The workers and peasants in industrially backward Russia have proven that they can manage a country comprising one-sixth of the earth's surface. This is a dangerous example to the workers of the rest of the world in the eyes of the capitalists. Hence the publication of facts about Soviet Russia is anathema to the ruling class of this country, and the Soviet information bureau must be "discovered" by moronic sleuths and prostituted journalists.

NURSES' UNION FOUGHT AGAINST BY THE DOCTORS

Girl Hands Fee Shark a Stunning Query

NEW YORK, May 7.—Nurses who want to form a Private Duty Nurses' Association and possibly affiliate with the American Federation of Labor are meeting a wall of opposition in their efforts to improve working conditions for their work.

The cry for $8 for an 8-hour day was bitterly attacked at a recent meeting of nurses in their club by Dr. Augustus S. Downing, assistant state commissioner of education. When Downing attempted to charge that the $8 scale would be $168 for a 24-hour day, the nurses retorted quickly.

He said that they should be glad to take the cases of two friends who desired to be cared for together by one nurse but one of the young women challenged him by asking whether a doctor would operate on two friends for the price of one operation.

The physicians are not generally hospitable to the nurses' idea of organizing and opinion among nurses is still divided.

Negro Singers Protest Insult to Their Race by Women's Council

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7—Negro singers withdrew in protest at the treatment received by their people when the International Council of Women in convention here ordered the segregation of all Negroes who attended a concert given by them.

When the Negro women came to the concert hall they were told they had to sit on the balcony on the left hand side—the side of the house set aside for them.

Dr. Molton Fairchild, president of the Institute of Character Education still accuses the patriotic women of being under the influence of "Communist agents and the victims of a red plot." The patriotic women on the other hand thru Mrs. Noble Newport Potts, president of the National Patriotic Council say Dr. Fairchild is "the innocent smoke screen for those who desire to distract attention from the real facts in the case."

An amendment to the constitution of the International Council of Women to enable affiliation with other international organizations of women and a permanent child welfare committee were among the recommendations made to the council by the president, Lady Aberdeen.

Machine Safeguards for Clothing Workers Ignored in New York

Monongahela Valley Plasterers Strike for Wage Increase

MONESSEN, Pa., May 7.—Union plasterers have called a strike in the Mononghela valley. Their demands are for a $2.00 per day increase in wages. They have been getting $12.00 a day for eight hours. It seems that it is going to be a bitter fight as the contractors say they will not give in to their demands.

Clock Slips; Five Hurt.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Five persons were known to have been hurt today when a large clock being removed from the top of the Garfield building in Brooklyn crashed thru seven stories to the ground, showering bricks and other debris on passersby. The clock slipped loose from the cable on which it was to be lowered to the ground.

A laborer and two passersby were among the injured. Another worker was reported missing and it was feared he was pinned in the debris.

Tenants of the building had moved out May 1 and the structure was being razed.

TWELVE HUNDRED NEGRO STUDENTS OF HOWARD UNIVERSITY STRIKE AGAINST FORCED MILITARY DRILL

WASHINGTON, May 7—Twelve hundred students at Howard University went on strike this afternoon protesting against compulsory military training. Howard is one of America's leading institutions for Negro students.

Behind the college band, the students paraded around the campus, shouting, "We won't drill."

26,525 VOTES FOR COMMUNIST CANDIDATE IN LOS ANGELES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 8—Emanuel Levin, candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party for member of the Board of Education, has been shown, on a later count of Tuesday's election to have polled 26,525 in this city.

Levin ran on a straight Communist platform, as did Edward Harris in the San Pedro Harbor council election, where, in spite of the open opposition of reactionaries to count Communist votes, Harris polled 70 ballots.

FRANCE TO USE NATIONS LEAGUE AGAINST TEUTS

Socialist-Briand Bloc Seeks Workers' Blood

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, May 7—The reply to Germany's proposal for a Rhineland security agreement with France, England and Belgium submitted to the allies and Germany by France, is a notice that the league of nations will be used as the medium by which France will prevent a change in the Versailles treaty.

The French government, including the socialists, are violating the treaty by keeping armed forces in Cologne at German expense, but they insist that the section of the treaty which limits Germany's frontiers and saddles reparation payments on the German workers be lived up to by Germany.

Germany had asked that a conference take place for a security pact and also to discuss Germany's eastern frontiers. The German industrialists are anxious to extend the frontiers at the expense of Poland.

Charge Japanese Society with Plot to Murder Premier

TOKIO, May 7.—Intense excitement was created here today when it was learned that six men, three of them members of the nation wide patriotic society Kokuryakai were being held for trial on charges of plotting to assassinate Premier Kato and several members of his cabinet.

The men held were Ryohei Uchida, Kojyu Ikeda, Potaro Ikeda, Takaichi Omichi and two others. Uchida and the two Ikedas were said to be leaders of the Kokuryakai society which has for its alleged purpose a plot to oppose the government's advocacy of the manhood suffrage bill.

House Committee Draws Teeth from One Day Rest Bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 7—Altho the house judiciary committee today reported favorably on the bill allowing workers one day rest in seven, amendments were added which almost nullified the benefits of the bill.

The committee reported the bill out exempting all factories or institutions working continuously, as well as hotels, mercantile establishments and restaurants. The bill was supported by the Illinois miners' union.

Harriman Interests to Buy Manganese Ore from Soviets

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, May 7.—A formal agreement will likely be signed in a few days between the Harriman combination and the Soviet government concerning the output of the manganese mines in the Chiatura fields of the Republic of Georgia.

Negotiations for such a concession have been reported under way for several months.

FASCISTS GIVE ALL POWER TO EMPLOYERS IN NEW CONSTITUTION

ROME, Italy, May 7—The Italian parliament will open again on May 14, when the new constitution, drafted by Premier Mussolini will be voted upon. Mussolini has deprived the workers of Italy of representation in the new constitution. All except property owners are to be disfranchised, and only 300 of the 600 members of parliament are to be elected by the voters.

The other three hundred will be elected by institutions controlled by the employers, including chambers of commerce, professional organizations, and trade associations.

Tennessee Evolution Law to Be Fought Before Supreme Court

DAYTON, Tenn., May 7—A test case is being made of J. T. Scoaps, biology instructor in a local high school here. Scoaps is under arrest charged with telling his pupils that man is a product of evolution from the lower animals.

The proceedings will be carried to the United States supreme court in case Scoaps is convicted so that the recently enacted law against the teaching of evolution can get before the highest court.

The test case is being made by the American Civil Liberties Union of New York.

Montreal Fur Workers Face Open Shop Fight

NEW YORK, May 7.—(FP)—The Montreal situation for fur workers is so serious that the International Fur Workers Union is anticipating the calling of a general strike in the Canadian city. Several of the large fur firms have strikes now because of the employers' discharging of workers who refused to sign individual contracts.

A strike against Grunier's is still on in Toronto. The firm was expelled from the employers' association for violating the collective agreement and is now advertising in Detroit newspapers for strikebreakers.

The Boss Giveth and the Boss Taketh Away

UTICA, N. Y., May 7.—A 6 per cent wage increase that makes the February 10 per cent decrease a little less sharp is posted for the 1,500 textile workers in the New York Mills corporation. The workers in the New York Mills did not strike when the Utica Steam & Mohawk Valley mills operatives went out against the 10 per cent. The United Textile Workers' Union is the workers' organization in the field.

Barons Fight Co-op Mining.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 7.—William H. Howe, coal dealer of Chicago, will appear in federal court at Indianapolis Friday to seek an injunction preventing the United Mine Workers from further prosecuting their efforts to end co-operative mining, according to a notice received by District 11 officials here today.

WHO WILL FOLLOW THIS EXAMPLE?

S. Novick, member of the Jewish No. 1 Branch in the Bronx, has just donated $2.50 to the DAILY WORKER, $2.50 to the Freiheit and $2.50 to the International Workers' Aid, the total wages that he earned on May Day. He could not "Down Tools" on International Labor Day this time, so he determined to make his day's work count for the working class by donating his wages. This is a splendid example to follow. Who's next?

FORD SUED FOR VIOLATION OF ANTI-TRUST LAW

Bankers and Agents Made Co-Defendants

JACKSON, Miss., May 7.—A suit was filed in chancery court of Hinds county today by W. J. Miller, state revenue agent, against the Ford Motor company charging a criminal conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws of Mississippi. Miller sought to collect penalties of $12,000,000.

All local Ford dealers in Mississippi and the banking institutions with which they transact business were named co-defendants, and the state revenue agent sought to attach the funds of the Ford Motor company on deposit in the several banks to guarantee payment of penalties in event the suit is sustained in the courts.

The bill of complaint is based on contracts between the Ford Motor company and its local dealers and alleges that contracts violate the anti-trust laws of Mississippi; that they are in restraint of trade; inimical to the public welfare and constitute an unlawful criminal conspiracy.

Motor Busses Win Victory.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—Motor bus companies that have been in operation over rural highways without franchises from the county commissions will not be held to have operated illegally and will be entitled to obtain certificates of convenience and necessity from the Public Service commission as provided in the 1925 motor vehicle act, according to an opinion handed down today by Arthur L. Gilliom, attorney general of Indiana.

In Honor of John Reed

His Name Lives Forever.

This charming young dancer holds in her hand her cap embroidered with the name of John Reed, whom Russians consider the bravest of Americans because he risked and finally gave his young life in the service of Soviet Russia.

The dance is part of a detailed study of the life of the children in the new Russia, and is one of the many startling points of contract between conditions in this country and that of Germany, where the social-democrats are serving the world imperialists in the administration of the Dawes plan.

It is part of the great motion picture, "Russia and Germany—A Tale of Two Republics," which will be shown at Sheboygan, Wisc., on May 20th. This film has been run in many cities, but many others have not yet taken advantage of this chance to show the workers the difference between Bolshevism and reformism in actual practise and especially in their effect upon the lives of the workers.

Dates for this and eight other working class motion pictures can be booked thru the International Workers Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

MINERS' S[illegible] CONTINUES IN FIGHT WITH HUNGER AS COURT PERMITS 'PEACEFUL PICKETING'

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WHEELING, W. Va., May 8.—Peaceful persuasion may be used by union miners, in an attempt to unionize non-union coal mines, Judge W. E. Baker held in federal district court here today, in ruling on cases of alleged contempt brought against twenty officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America, cited for an alleged violation of an injunction originally granted in 1913 and made permanent in 1914. The decision was construed as a victory for the union.

In passing on the injunction the court, however, did not take into consideration the question of whether there had been contempt under the injunction. That phase of the question was postponed until Monday when counsel and operators will submit a statement of fact to the court.

The court of appeals in its modifications permitted "peaceful persuasion" in efforts of the mine organization to unionize non-union workers. The original injunction did not permit this.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va.—(By Mail.)—The miners of this city and vicinity are making a last desperate effort to win the fight against the capitalists and save themselves, their wives, and their children from future starvation.

Whether they will succeed or not cannot be determined a[illegible]nt writing but everything points to their defeat. The press, the law, [illegible] opinion (bourgeois) is antagonistic to the miners' interests.

With such mighty forces as these against them, what can the workers expect? Their united strength might be able to win the struggle but in many instances it has failed in the past and it might in this case.

April Strike Surprises Operators

Strike was declared in this region around the second week in April, much to the surprise of the local bourgeoisie as in the past few years they had found the coal miners in this section rather meek and docile wage slaves, owing to the fact that they were not organized and so could not do anything.

All of the mines in this vicinity, the Ben Franklin Coal mine, the Glendale Coal mine, the Richland Marshall Coal mine, and the Parrs Run mine had cut the wage scale within the last few months and now were going to repeat the performance.

Miners Fight Second Wage Cut

Because this is a scab region—the coal barons a few years ago having completely succeeded in disorganizing the unions—the first act was successful although some of the miners did strike, and of course the capitalists took it for granted that the same per-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

JUDGE GARY declares that there is plenty of prosperity knocking around. While things could be better, they also could be worse—for Judge Gary and his kind. The judge will not go hungry even if all his mills shut down for two years. He has plenty of money salted away, money squeezed out of the bodies of his thousands of wage slaves. When his mills run into a slack spell the judge does not worry. Perhaps he takes a trip to the Orient. Just hires a steamer and invites some friends to accompany him. He visits Mussolini or any other cutthroat who happens to excite his admiration.

THE workers who produce the wealth that enables the judge to see the world and its important personages do not take vacations when the mills shut down. They are afraid to wear out their shoes walking around the block in which they live lest unemployment should continue so long that money for new shoes would not be available. And the longer they are out of work, the more liable they will be to offer their labor power to Gary for a low price. Everything is on Gary's side. Even religion, which tells the workers that the poorer they are in this world, the happier they will be in the next.

LEON TROTSKY is back in Moscow and the capitalist journalists are working their typewriters overtime, turning out yarns about the ex-war minister's return. Trotsky will be given a big job in the Soviet government, according to reports. Zinoviev has left Moscow, the story runs. Funny they did not have him arrested. It is more than likely that within the next few weeks strange things will happen in Soviet Russia—in the capitalist press. When Lenin was alive, Trotsky and himself whiled away the

BAD WEATHER HALTS AMUNDSEN DRIVE FOR THE NORTH POLE

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—Cloudy, snowy weather today made the start of the Polar flight unlikely.

Captain Raold Amundsen, artic and antartic explorer and Lincoln Ennsworth, Ohio flyer, who will accompany him, were waiting at Spitzbergen with their amphibious airplanes for favorable weather.

The Fram and the Hobby, two ships which will serve as sea bases for the airplanes, have started for the rim of the Polar ice with provisions for the flyers. The storm started just after the Fram and Hobby got under way.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN INTERESTS TO SIGN CONTRACT WITH SOVIET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, May 8.—The Russian government shortly will sign a concession which will include British and American capital, Christian Rakovsky, Russian trade envoy to Great Britain, announced today.

The announcement was construed in diplomatic circles to refer to the Harriman interests.

• • • •

An exclusive dispatch from the DAILY WORKER correspondent in Berlin, two months ago was the first information to reach the public regarding negotiations for manganese concessions in the Caucasus. The American capital was said at that time to be represented by A. W. Harriman, the New York financier.

START READING LASSEN'S NEW NOVEL "MASTERS AND SLAVES", STARTING TODAY

• Today the DAILY WORKER, in its magazine section, begins the publication of Masters and Slaves, a working class novel by John Lassen, editor of Elore, the Hungarian Communist daily published in New York City. This is the first piece of extended fiction to appear in the English language from this brilliant working class writer. He has beein a frequent contributor to the DAILY WORKER, but this is the first time that we have had the good fortune to be able to present to our readers a long story of American working class life from this author.

The second installment will appear in next Saturday's magazine section. Send in for a bundle of today's issues for distribution among your fellow workers and neighbors. Write the DAILY WORKER, 1113 West Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

SCHEDEL CASE FELONY CHARGE NOLLE PROSSED

But Deportation Is Still Possible

The Labor Defense Council has received the information from Washington, D. C., that the government has nolle prossed the case against John Schedel, charging him with the criminal offense of having returned to this country after once being deported.

John Schedel was deported to Germany in 1920 as a "red", but, because his family of a wife and several children were forced to remain behind, and, moreover, they were all American born, Schedel, unable to accumulate enough in starving Germany to transport his loved ones to that country, returned, it is understood, without legal permission, last autumn.

He was at once arrested and not only held for deportation, but charged with the felony, so provided by the immigration law, of having returned after once being deported. It is this charge which is now dismissed by the department of justice.

The department of labor, however, still has the case of deportation pending. The immigration commissioner at Chicago has notified the Labor Defense Council that it has been advised of the dismissal of the criminal charge, and that a further hearing on the deportation charge will be held soon.

Small Sides with the Klan in Barring Sheriff from Herrin

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 8.—George Galligan, "exiled" sheriff of Williamson county, wants to go back to Marion and exercise his constitutional right to act as sheriff. But Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom disfavors the plan and probably will exercise every power to prevent it.

This was the report current today in circles close to Governor Len Small following conferences between the chief executive and Galligan.

The proposition that Galligan could stand on the authority of his office and go back any time he chose met only a negative shake of the head and the remark that "Carlstrom is very powerful—moral suasion—and probably has other means of preventing his return."

BUILDING TRADE UNIONS TIE UP OPEN SHOP JOB

Work on New Market to Be at Standstill Monday

More laborers walked out and joined the striking sheet metal workers, electricians, plumbers, bricklayers, plasterers, tile setters, and iron workers who are striking against the Landis project at 14th St. and Racine Ave.

The work had obviously slowed down yesterday, and strikers declare the plant will be completely tied up Monday morning.

To Force Union Shop.

The building trades unions called the strike to force the organization of several hundred Landis award, non-union carpenters, cement finishers and laborers. Over two hundred of these unorganized workers have already walked out and joined the union strikers, and the McLennan Construction company, which is constructing the new market for the Central Cold Storage company to replace the old Water St. market, has been able to make a show of keeping the job going only by hiring new workers who are not told about the strike conditions.

Read DAILY WORKER.

Many of the workers learned about the strike for the first time in the pages of the DAILY WORKER, several hundred copies carrying the strike story having been sold each day at the entrances to the plant. City detectives are guarding the scab McLennan company's property, chasing DAILY WORKER salesmen who sold to the workers while they were eating their lunch, off the property and across the street on to the sidewalk.

Altho the bosses were attempting to create the myth that "there is no strike," and when that lie was exploded, that "the strike has been settled." J. J. Conroy, secretary of the building trades council told the DAILY WORKER that the strike has not been settled. "Conferences all day Friday between the McLennan company and

FRENCH DRIVE AGAINST RIFFS ROILS MASSES

Communists Urge Soldiers Not to Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, May 8—The French masses are aroused over the new campaign initiated by the government to push the French flag deeper into Moroccan territory. Humanite, the Communist organ is calling on the French troops to refuse to fight against the forces of Abd-el-Krim, who are trying to free the exploited natives from the oppression of French capitalism.

The Communist fraction in the chamber of deputies is warning the workers of the fresh attacks of the ruling class against the peasants of Morocco.

Riffians Have Big Guns.

In the meantime the Moroccans are not idle. The Riffian tribesmen who were once easy "pie" for the French troops are now well equipped with machine guns, airplanes and heavy artillery with which they are raising havoc among the French invaders.

Elated with their victory over the Spaniards whom they drove into the sea, the Riffians are hurling a deadly hail upon the French from their big guns, hidden in the mountains. The French report many killed and wounded.

Riffian propagandists are going thru the country arousing the people against the enemy. The French as usual, blame the Communists.

SOVIET RULE HONORS REAL DISCOVERER OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., May 8.—Ceremonies were held thruout Russia yesterday in honor of the memory of Prof. Alexander Popov of the Electro-Technical Institute, who was the real discoverer of wireless telegraphy.

In 1895, two years before Guglielmo Marconi demonstrated his apparatus, the Rusians say, Prof. Popov received radio signals thru a thick concrete wall and later established successful wireless contact between St. Petersburg (the present Leningrad) and a station in the gulf of Finland.

His first practical test, according to local records, was carried out in 1899, when during a heavy storm at sea he received a distress call from a steamer, as a result of which many lives were saved.

His subsequent labors, according to the Soviet historians, received but scant recognition from the imperial government and he died in poverty in 1905.

TRIES TO FRAME UP SOVIET ENVOY AT COPENHAGEN

Conspiracy Against Russia Revealed

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 8.—There is apparently an international conspiracy to attack the Communist movement under the lying fairy tale of "Moscow" plots to assassinate public officials and cause "riots."

No better example could be given than the present incident revealed by the minister from Soviet Russia to the Danish capital. The minister, M. Kobetzky, reported to Count von Moltke, Danish minister of foreign affairs, that the Soviet legation had been visited by two men who offered to murder the leading social democrats, including the Danish premier, T. Stauning, to set fire to important buildings in Copenhagen and to "arrange riots."

The Soviet minister naturally, refused all their offers, explaining that such individual acts of violence do not harmonize with the Communist principle of mass action by the whole exploited population, and, as stated, notified the Danish officials, who placed the men under arrest.

In spite of this, the capitalist press has come out brazenly with lying stories charging that the men, a Swede and a Frenchman, are "in league with Communists." The obvious absurdity of the Soviet minister reporting the matter contradicting any Communist "plots" manufactured in "Moscow," has not restrained the capitalist press from the attempt to alarm the country and the world with new manufactured "plots" by Communists.

Communists look upon this new mendacity of the reactionaries as further proof of the recent conspiracy of the great imperialist powers to intensify and to spread the white terror thruout Europe.

Get Injunction Against Hatters.

NEWARK, N. J.—An injunction to compel striking hat finishers to return to work at the C. B. Rutan Co. factory has been denied the manufacturers by Vice-Chancellor Backes in chancery court. The United Hatters are striking because body makers were locked out by the closing of that branch of the work in the Rutan shops and finishers went out in sympathy.

Miners Keep Away from Montana

BILLINGS, Mont.—Stay away from Montana, is the advice to miners of Secy. Treas. Wm. Riddell of the Montana Mine Workers' Union. "There are a large number of mines shut down," he says, "and a large number of men out of work."

ATTACK ON STREET CARMEN IN CLEVELAND PART OF CAREFULLY PLANNED WAR OF OPEN SHOPPERS

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 8.—Seven column streamers upon the front pages of Cleveland capitalist sheets broadcast the words—"No Strike Now—Men Ask Terms!"

Editorials in these same sheets are telling the Cleveland public that street carmen are good people, will obey the courts, will not inconvenience the car riders, will not disturb the industries.

The street carmen, against whom the courts have rendered a decision declaring for the open shop and denying them the 12 cent raise in wages awarded them by an arbitration committee, met in mass meeting last night.

The street car men did not vote not to strike. Neither did they vote to strike. They are to meet again tonight, all of them, to hear what progress has been made during the day. They can vote to strike at any time at such a mass meeting.

Plan to Wreck Union.

John J. Stanley, the president of the Cleveland Railway company, against which the Streetcar Men's Union is at war, is following a very definate union wrecking policy, which is very apparent to any militant, even that it may be probable that many Cleveland union leaders cannot see it.

A year ago, when the Streetcar Men's Union demanded a closed shop and a 12 cent wage rise, he offered them a closed shop and a 5c wage rise. When the courts decided that a closed shop for a public utility enjoying a monopoly was illegal, Stanley changed his offer to read — 5 cent wage advance and the open shop.

Today he is hiding his real purpose to wreck the Street Car Men's Union behind the promise not to interfere with seniority rights of the men, nor with their union, nor will he refuse to deal with the union. He wants to keep the men from striking and still gain his ends. And the end he has in view he cutely states in a letter to the union, which among many promises contains these words: "You may continue as a union member if you wish. We will treat you the same whether you are a member or not a member. Wages and working conditions will remain as above stated whether you act individually or collectively."

Exposes Plot of Traction Trust.

Plain enough, surely. All that now need follow is for him to organize, among the weaker mortals and strikebreakers he may hire, a group that refuses to have anything to do with the union. Then the first sledge-hammer blow upon the wedge that will even-

CHARGE BABIES WERE STARVED TO DEATH AT NEW YORK 'BABY FARM'

NEW YORK, May 8.—Another death of a baby was added today to the list of infants who, it is alleged, have died at the "baby farm" conducted by Mrs. Helen Augusta Geinsenvolk in East Eighty-six street here.

The baby, an unidentified ten-day old boy, had been hurriedly removed from the infantorium after charges had been made that babies were being starved there. The baby died this morning in Metropolitan Hospital while Assistant District Attorney Charles White was investigating a report that a dozen deaths from starvation occurred in Mrs. Geinsenvolk's infantorium in one month.

WORKERS BLOCK EXPULSIONS BY HEADS OF A. C. W.

Levin Gang Loses Its Nerve After Protest

The membership of Polish Local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers at the meeting Wednesday night gave a mass demonstration of their unlimited disgust at the autocratic behaviour of the local and joint board officials in declaring Brother H. Bramorski "suspended" in the face of a vote against such action by the membership.

Officials Work Steam Roller.

The previous meeting, which was attended by Levin and his gang, voted against the proposal of the officialdom that Bramorski's suspension be continued. But the chairman at the behest of Levin declared, [illegible] steam roller style, that the [illegible] to take Bramorski off the job and keep him off was carried.

This time, the workers of Local were up in arms and in no uncertain tones demanded that the officers quit preventing members from earning a living on account of political opinions at variance with the yellow socialist crew represented by Levin.

Members Protest.

Over 300 members packed the hall when the local officials opened the meeting. With the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, the storm broke. The members rose to their feet en masse demanding that the part of the minutes be rejected which had falsely recorded the motion carried to suspend Bramorski.

Brother Bramorski, whom the chairman, L. Kochanski, had threatened to "throw downstairs" if he entered the union hall again, came up just as the fight was getting fast and furious. Chairman Kochanski was at that moment apologetically stating that he had "made a mistake" when at the previous meeting he had declared the motion to suspend carried. He did not seem to remember his promise about throwing the left winger downstairs. In fact he forgot the matter completely.

The members, who insisted that the hated part of the minutes be ruled out and rejected, were shouting at the officials:

"So you think you can get away with taking a worker's bread and butter from his mouth because you don't like his politics! We know that Bramorski fought for our int

Miners' Strike Battles Hunger

formance could be repeated a second time with like success.

However, the workers refused to accept a second wage cut and strike was declared. Every man walked out certain of victory and with his mind set on sticking it out to the end. The miners of the four above mentioned mines organised into a union and joined the U. M. W. of A., District No. 6 of the above organisation.

The first few days of the strike the coal companies refused to admit that a strike was in progres and gave various reasons for the cessation of operations at the mines, stating that a good percentage of the miners were working (when scarcely one worker was in the mine) thus hoping to inveigle the strikers into going back to work at cut prices. But their efforts met with failure.

The Clash At Glendale

On April 19, 1925 a number of strikers, their wives, and children surrounded the home of a strike breaker, Robert Crow, who was employed at the Glendale Coal Mine, Glendale, W. Va., a town about two miles from Moundsville. Perhaps they were hoping to remonstrate with the man and persuade him to quit working, or perhaps to frighten him into doing it.

Some of the crowd began to hurl small stones at the company house in which the scab lived, whereupon the latter seized his gun and began firing at the people. He succeeded in implanting a bullet in the head of one of the strikers, Samichow by name, and the man is yet in critical condition.

Twenty Strike Pickets Jailed

Of course, police arrived upon the scene and succeeded in arresting 20 strikers, 19 men and one woman, and immediately lodged them in the county jail. They were put under a thousand dollar bond each.

The authorities are always ready to take sides against the workers in any outbreak but never against the scabs who are aiding in lowering the already too-low wages, thus by this act reducing the standards of living of the workers, which results, as we all know, in the children growing up without proper food and clothing and education, some of them turning into criminals. The officers of the "law" in reality promote future law breaking.

No Charge Against Scab

The men and woman arrested are held under the Redman Act, on the charge of intending to willfully destroy property and intent to do bodily harm. On May 4, 1925 they were indicted by the grand jury, at the county court house, in this city. Robert Crow, the scab who shot Samichow, is reported held in the county jail but no charge as yet has been entered against him.

The result of all this was that state police are stationed here. Anybody who has observed conditions when military rule is in force knows what chances the miners have of winning ber of strike breakers employed at the Glendale Mine, in fact about 40 or 50 according to latest reports, and the strikers are powerless to do anything as picketting is forbidden. Scabs are the strike. Now there are quite a num- allowed to do as they please.

"Law Observance" Pleases Bosses

Of course this pleases the capitalists very much and flattering reports appear in the local newspapers on the observance of "law and order" by the strikers and their willingness to let those work that care to.

Two members of the state police are exceedingly patriotic (?) as they are world war veterans and were on duty in Mingo county when the workers there were struggling for their very existence. So, without doubt, the local authorities are congratulating themselves upon securing the services of two such reliable law enforcers, who by the way are not regarded with as much respect by the strikers and who are making themselves very obnoxious.

The above alone did not satisfy the coal companies. They want to break the workers' spirit altogether, so several mine officials of the U. M. W. of A. were arrested on contempt of court charges, they having violated an injunction.

The Wheeling Injunction.

Scores of mine workers and officials are appearing in the United States district court at Wheeling facing contempt charges which are the outgrowth of allegations that they have violated injunctions which prohibit interference with the operation of the open shop mines. They are charged with violating the injunction protecting the Richard Coal Co. and Pittsburgh-West Virginia Coal Co. John L. Lewis, Philip Murray, and other high officials are among those against whom charges have been entered.

The non-union coal operators are seeking a complete withdrawal of the United Mine Workers from the northern panhandle district of West Virginia thru a blanket injunction asked in United States district court at Wheeling. This petition has been filed and will be brot up for hearing during the term of court, which will open May 25 at Parkersburg.

All of the Marshall county coal mines will be affected by this injunction, which includes all the mines in this district. If the injunction is granted the end of the strike is expected, of course at the miners' loss.

The Fight with Starvation.

So, it looks dark indeed for the miners and very little hope of their winning the strike. It seems as if all the sacrifices they have undergone so far are for naught. Without doubt many of them will soon be in dire straits and perhaps many are already, as work for the past year or so has been slow indeed. Some of them have already been refused credit at the stores. With their means of existence gone what can one expect under the circumstances?

Some of the storekeepers have been so dastardly as to hint that the men return to work at the mines under the reduced wage scale, forgetting to remember that perhaps they will be as unable to pay their bills under the reduced wage scale as they are at the present time. The outlook is dark indeed for the workers.

time by arresting and assassinating each other. Lenin would flee to Spain and Trotsky would flee to Bulgaria, both taking sundry wives, not theirs, along with them.

ZINOVIEV'S "troops" may be fighting with Trotsky's "troops" within the next few days. The "fact" that Zinoviev has left Moscow will not hinder the reporters from having the president of the Comintern locked up in the Kremlin. Socialist papers will comment on these rumors and cast doubt upon their authenticity, and conclude by saying: "Socialists have always pointed out that the Communists were only a set of adventurers and would inevitably wind up by cutting each others' throats." Thus contributions are made to the gayety of nations.

SOVIET Russia is poor, her enemies say. But facts say otherwise even tho conditions are not as rosy as we would like, or as they are certain to be after a few more years of the present rate of progress. The Italian fascisti are complaining because Russia sells more commodities to Italy than the latter sells to Russia. The blackshirts therefore demand that Mussolini break off relations with the Soviet Republic. He would like to do that very thing, but business is business and Mussolini is strong for "biz."

THE capitalist powers would like nothing better than a campaign to wipe the Soviet power off the face of the earth. But the greatest obstacle in the way of the realization of this desire is the presence in every country of a strong working class movement that would give the last drop of its blood in defense of the Soviet Republic. Millions of workers in every land look on the workers' and peasants' government of Russia as their own. No matter how the minds of large masses of workers may be poisoned against the leaders of the Russian masses, by the capitalists and their yellow socialist allies, they have an instinctive love for the first workers' republic in history which the capitalist do well not to underestimate.

THE open shop decision of the Ohio courts is a direct challenge to the whole organized labor movement of teh United States. Had we a real militant leadership at the head of the A. F. of L., it is more than likley that such a decision would never have been handed down. As it is, the fakers know quite well that they have nothing to fear from the bureaucrats who have spent union funds and their own limited intelligence in finding ways and means to drive the radicals out of the unions, particularly from leading positions in the unions. This accomplished the business of selling out the workers could be accomplished with a minimum of opposition.

THE story of the Cleveland street carmen is tragic. They submitted their disagreement over wages to an arbitration committee which handed down a decision acceptable to the employes. The bosses were not satisfied and refused to accept the decision. Instead, they announced their intention of establishing the open shop. This was about the time the republican party convention was held. It was a good time to strike. But the labor fakers went to court instead, and applied for a temporary injunction restraining the company from establishing the open shop. The temporary injunction was granted. But the court of appeals ruled that the union shop was illegal and the supreme court of Ohio upheld this decision.

THE street railway magnates have now established the open shop and the rail union officials, instead of fighting, are crawfishing. While the company officials are importing strikebreakers from Buffalo and other cities, hiring armed thugs and putting an armor of heavy fence wire on their cars, the union officials are babbling about a new contract by agreement with the Cleveland Street Railways company.

IF the union fights now, with the co-operation of all the other unions in Cleveland it will win hands down. The court decision will be knocked into a cocked hat, as Alexander Howat knocked the industrial court law of Kansas. If the unions mark time, as the bosses want them to, they are lost. And this will be the signal for a revival of the open shop campaign on a larger scale than ever thruout the entire country.

RAILWAY SHOP PICKETS FREED AT JURY TRIAL

Strikers Were Sentenced by Judge in 1922

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SUPERIOR, Wis., May 8.—Charges against Samuel Michaelson and nine associates sentenced in 1922 for alleged violation of a federal court injunction issued during the railroad shopmen's strike to prevent picketing, were dismissed in federal court here today.

The action ended a case that attracted nation-wide attention and that was heralded as labor's most important victory in history. Michaelson and his associates were sentenced without jury trial, but the United States supreme court, to which the case was appealed, ruled that such action was unconstitutional under the Clayton act and ordered the defendants tried by jury.

The defendants, all residents of Hudson, Wis., were specifically accused of having congregated about the shops of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad at Hudson and "violating the federal court injunction by hooting the non-union workers."

BRITISH FAKER COMING TO PROBE LIQUOR PROBLEM

LONDON, May 8.—Several British labor politicians are planning visits to the United States and Canada next autumn. Among the intended visitors are Arthur Henderson, former secretary for home affairs in the MacDonald cabinet, who is going to the United States to study the liquor question.

Ramsay MacDonald is going to Canada on the invitation of the Canadian government. He will also visit the United States. John Wheatly, former minister of health in the MacDonald cabinet, will visit America to study industrial conditions. He will also solicit business among the catholic organizations in America for his book publishing business. Wheatly is a Roman catholic.

Southern Portions of Philippines Are Shaken by Quake

MANILA, May 8.— The southern portions of the Philippine Islands continued to be rocked today and last night by earthquakes. Considerable damage has been done, partially wrecked buildings and homes having been reported from manay localities. The quakes were reported as originating in the Pacific Ocean.

In Negros province, residents have fled to the trees, fearing a repetition of Tuesday's severe shocks, which opened cracks in the streets in the town of Bais. At two spots black sulphur-like mud was thrown four feet in the air, striking terror in the hearts of the residents.

The church at Tanajay was crumbled and many cement buildings as well as homes, have been damaged.

Exploit the Dead Sea.

JERUSALEM, May 8—A billion tons of mineral deposits in the Dead Sea will be offered for bids Oct. 31 by British crown agents, it was announced today.

Standard Oil company has been among the groups which have investigated the deposits estimated to be worth $40,000,000. Potassium chloride manufacturers also were reported interested in the bromide concessions, worth $5,000,000.

Famine Hits China.

LONDON, May 8—Cannibalism is reported and ten million persons are living on grass and trees in the province of Kwei Chou, China, according to a dispatch to the Express today. Last year's harvest has been exhausted in sixty districts and no food will be available until the rice crop matures in five months, the dispatch recited.

Britain Fears for Food Supply.

LONDON, May 8—The royal commission on food prices recommended today the establishment of a national food council which would act to assure Britain's food supply. Governmental control of British meat importers was recommended.

Prince Plans to Visit Chile.

LONDON, May 8—The Prince of Wales has accepted an invitation to visit Chile, the foreign office announced today. He is expected to go to Chile after visiting Argentine and Uruguay early this summer.

Argentinian Sticks on the Job.

TOKIO, May 8— Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator who started a flight around the world in July, 1924 but whose plane was wrecked in Japan last October, is planning to continue his flight west tomorrow.

Use "Mother's" Day to Glorify Capitalist War; Mrs. Cal Coolidge Helps

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, on the eve of "Mother's Day," the jingoes are energetically transmuting this occasion to their militarist purposes. It is to be another occasion for casting an approving halo about the last world-war.

In no other country that participated in the war could this ghastly mockery be put over. In other lands there were too many dead. The corpses, the maimed, the mad were too numerous. It would be dangerous to thus taunt European motherhood.

But in the United States even the wife of the president is to join in putting a golden wreath, Sunday, on the tomb of the unknown soldier in the Arlington amphitheater. This effort thus puts capitalism's official seal of approval on what it deems to be motherhood's highest duty,—to breed for the armies of the money changers.

• • • •

Motherhood is exalted as the breeder of fodder for cannon on the day that is supposed to be especially set apart for her glorification.

This is done on the day when the White House frantically sends out its disarmament propaganda piffle, while some Wall Street-owned statesmen even glibly talk of peace, while women's organizations in session adopt anti-war resolutions; while, at the same time, however, Morgan's mighty armada patrols the Pacific in threatening war maneuvers.

Mother's Day, 1925, drips with the blood, not only of the millions of victims of past wars, but is dedicated to the murder of more millions, many yet unborn, who will give up their lives in the wars to come, the wars of capitalism.

Mother's Day, 1925, becomes the peculiar property of the warmakers. It is a capitalist holiday. Those mothers who read the celebration aright, know what is expected of them. They know that they must give birth to sons, whose blood and bones will be but fertilizer for foreign battlefields; or whose flesh will become food for fishes in the giant naval battles ahead.

• • • •

But the charge is also made that Communists believe in war. There is the great Red Army of the Workers' Republics, and the haughty Red Fleet of the Soviet Union. This is proof, they say, that Communists are not pacifists.

All of which is true. But the Red Army and the Red Fleet of the growing Union of Soviet Republics are the powerful instruments of a rising, oppressed class, to abolish oppression forever. The Red Army and the Red Fleet, the fighting arm of the working class in the social revolution, engage in the war to end all wars. They carry aloft and defend the standards of the new social order—Communism.

Every working class mother can uphold such a struggle. Its victory not only means the emancipation of womanhood, but of the whole human race, from the bondage of the profit system.

Millions of slain in the coming U. S.-Japanese war for the control of the Pacific, if it results merely in the victory of the ruling class of either country, will not profit the working class motherhood of the United States or of Japan. Such an imperialist war, creating the basis for new capitalist rivalries, will be but the furerunner of new wars.

But when the workers of the United States and Japan turn against the capitalisms of both countries, seize power and inaugurate their own Soviet Rule, the basis for wars between the two nations will disappear. Only then will American and Japanese labor be able to live in a fraternal brotherhood.

• • • •

Let the mothers of the capitalist class celebrate "Mother's Day." It is their holiday. They are willing to send the sons of the working class to war to protect the profit interests of their class.

The anniversary of working women is "Woman's Day," March 8, celebrated every year under the direction of the Communist International. March 8th is a real "Mother's Day," rallying the women of labor everywhere for the Communist victory of the workers.

The working class has its own holidays; milestones on the highway leading toward its emancipation. The capitalists also have their holidays; an effort to glorify the past, but all confessions of the failure of the bankrupt civilization they have sought to build. Workers, men and women, be loyal to your own class holidays. Be loyal to your class. Fight for your victory.

Building Trades Workers Tie Up "Open Shop" Job

the building trades union officials brought no agreement, and the strike will still be going on Saturday morning," Conroy said.

Work Is Stopped.

The construction job covers four square blocks, running east from Racine Ave., between 14th and 16th Sts. The cement work is completed on the building furthest south, and practically no one is working on this building, as the electricians, tile setters, plumbers and bricklayers, who were doing most of the work on the building have walked out.

The cement work on the building furthest north of the three immense market structures has completely stopped, as the iron workers who were setting the rods which brace the cement are on strike.

No Work on Monday.

The only work which the Landis award, non-union workers could possibly do, providing the company is able to hire enough workers who are unaware of the strike to keep the job going, is to lay a plank flooring on the building furthest north, and remove the scaffolding on the middle building.

The carpenters and a few laborers to haul boards and clean up were the only workers on the job yesterday, and their ranks were thinned by workers walking out when they learned of the strike.

Engdahl Speaker at Sacco-Vanzetti Meet in Minneapolis, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 8.—J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will be one of the speakers at the Sacco-Vanzetti protest meeting to be held Sunday night, May 10, at the Court House Auditorium. This is the contribution of the workers of Minneapolis to the nation-wide drive to demand the immediate liberation of these two working class victims of exploiters' rule in the New England states. Sacco and Vanzetti, who are under sentence of death, have now been in prison more than five years.

Rogers Park Apartment House Owner Gets Taste of Workers' Solidarity

A union milkman, an iceman and grocery clerk were brot before Judge Sullivan on charges of restraint of trade by the owner of the Farwell Beach apartments at 1409 Farwell Ave., Rogers Park.

The charges brot against these union men by the owner was that they had not been making deliveries to his tenants since the early part of last July because he discharged his union janitor and took on a nonunion one. The tenants, he said, were breaking their leases and moving to the other side of the street and his apartments were nearly all empty.

The men said they could not as union men enter the building while it was being picketed by union man on strike.

DETROIT BOOSTS DAILY WORKER AT SUNDAY MEETING

'Bill' Dunne Will Tell of Worker Correspondents

DETROIT, Mich., May 8. — As a climax to what without question is the outstanding effort of propaganda distribution during the present Second Annual DAILY WORKER "Sub" Campaign, local Detroit will hold a mass meeting this Sunday, May 10th, with Wm. F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, as the main speaker.

This meeting to be held at the House of the Masses, 2646 St. Aubin St., comes as an additional move to the distribution of 20,000 copies of the special May Day issue of the DAILY WORKER at the large shops and factories in Detroit, made possible thru the use of many automobiles used for the purpose, and in addition to the door-to-door distribution of thousands of copies of the DAILY WORKER in the working class residential districts during DAILY WORKER Week of May 4th to 10th.

Comrade Dunne will bring to this city interesting information not only on the place of the DAILY WORKER in the class struggle in America but will deal also with the question of Worker Correspondents, a new development of the revolutionary movement. Comrade Dunne has just written a small handbook on the subject number 4, in the Little Red Library series entitled "Worker Correspondents".

Following his recent lecture in New York on the subject a club of Worker Correspondents has been formed. The same has been done in Pittsburgh, from where stories of working class life in the pages of the DAILY WORKER are drawing well deserved attention.

Comrade Dunne's lecture on Sunday, beginning at two o'clock in the afternoon, is sure to attract thousands of workers, not only interested in the subject of his lecture, but also in the speaker whose record in the struggles of American workers is widely known.

Workers Block Expulsions in A. C. W.

ests. His fight is our fight, and if you expel him you will soon be expelling us, too."

Officials Get Nervous.

Business Agent H. Bojnarowicz tried to speak and "explain" that what the officials had done at the previous meeting was all right. The workers would not listen to him. "You! We know what you speak for! You speak for your $65 a week. You shut up and let the members run this union." Some of the Levin gang were there, but were silent, while Progromist Levin failed to appear.

When the officials begged that the minutes had to be acted upon so that the new contract could be taken up, the workers retorted:

"O, it's a new contract now! And where is Levin, who was so anxious to expell Bramorski. A contract is an important thing but Levin doesn't come here to talk about that. He comes here only to expel a good union member. He don't care for the interests of the workers. He is only interested in keeping his fat job."

Only Interested In Money.

Other workers cried out, "Why didn't we have a contract before May first? We always had a contract ready before. We know that the officials were too busy moving their bank. They are more interested in money than in the membership. And you think you can expel our good union members and get away with it. We'll show you!"

As the whole order of business was tied up, the officials were in despair. Finally Bojnarowicz found a way out by moving that the matter of Bramorski's expulsion be opened up again, that the contract be handled at this meeting and Bramorski's expulsion discussed further at the next meeting.

Shall Not Be Expelled.

The workers aret determined that Bramorski shall not be expelled, and while they recognize that the Levin gang will show up in force again at the next meeting, they are not going to be unprepared to give him one of the warmest welcomes he has had in his life.

FIRE FIGHTERS FORCED TO SIGN YELLOW DOG PACT

Salt Lake City Union Broken by Mormons

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(FP)—Information has been received by the international headquarters of the fire fighters in Washington that, under threat of enactment of a city ordinance forbidding its holding metings, their local in Salt Lake City has dissolved. Former members have been compelled by the city commission to sign a pledge to remain non-union.

Leaders of the Mormon church have denounced trade unionism, and altho Salt Lake City is only 40 per cent Moron this official attitude has helped to make the fire fighters' position untenable.

On the other hand, the union succeeded, before it collapsed, in forcing the resignation, under fire, of Chief Bywater, who was president of the National Association of Fire Chiefs.

His autocratic attitude had created such relations ith the men that a witness testified, during public hearings on the charge against him, that the chief never entered a burning building. All but two of the city fire fighters were members of the union.

Scrub Woman Dies "Easiest Way."

NEW YORK—(FP)—Lizzie Davis, 60-year old scrubwoman at Bellevue Hospital, grew despondent over ill health, her neighbors say, and so she took the easiest way out and died by gas. The pay of scrubwomen in hospitals as in office buildings is notably poor and the work hard. Companions of Mrs. Davis in her many years' work at Bellevue are trying to collect a little fund to save her body from the potter's field.

tually dismember the union will have been struck. For he will stand upon the right given him by the sacred courts to hire and deal with whom he pleases upon the basis of "equal rights." If the street car men's union does not strike today to maintain what it has gained, it will have to strike some day soon to win back what it will lose in the near future.

To emphasize his atitude towards the union, Stanley said yesterday "that he wants every employe to know that now he does not neet to hire Geo. Rees (the buisiness agent of the street car men) as his representative if he doesn't want to. He can deal with us personally."

At their mass meeting last night the street car men modified their demands to a 10 cent wage rise as against the 5 cents offered by the street car company, and a formal contract recognizing the union in place of the letter given them by Stanley yesterday.

Hayes has Misgivings.

Max Heyes, editor of the Cleveland Citizen, official organ of Cleveland unions, broke into print this morning with the following gem: "In view of what has happened, I don't know whether we did right when we advised the men not to strike during the republican convention. We believed we would get a square deal in the courts and took that chance. And now John Stanley has the upper hand."

The street car men hat voted to strike just before the republican convention was to be opened last June. By the above remark by Hayes, it would seem that labor leaders of all hues advised them not to do so. By advising them not to strike they undoubtedly had the success of the republican convention in mind. Wanted it to proceed without having ti witness the turmoil and struggle of a strike. That b doing this they were helping to elect Coolidge the strike breaker, were helping to make the lower wages longer hours Dawes plan a success, were furthering the plans to further exploit the colonies and South American countries by American imperialism, this probably never entered their heads.

Know Hayes Advised Wrongly.

Every thinking worker will not wonder whether Hayes did right in advising the men not to strike. Every militant knows he did wrong.

The thousand clubs, strike breakers in readiness, armored cars ready for action, open shoppers division of the chamber of commerce prepared to compel every ounce of force to be placed into the hands of Stanley — all this proves that now that the republican convention is over and Coolidge is in and the courts have acted. Hayes' advice not to strike simply gave the enemy a chance to advance to a new and more advantageous front line of trenches.

The Workers Party in Action

REPORTS AT CHICAGO C. C. C. MEETING SHOW WIDE ACTIVITY OF PARTY IN MANY FIELDS

Thoro discussion of the Irish famine and political situation, organisation within a short time of mass protest meetings against the white terror raging in the Balkans, further development and concrete organisational steps for formation of a party book store, the very excellent report of the Young Workers League activities, the coming American Negro Labor Congress and Trade Union Educational League activities were the main matters considered at a good attended meeting of the city central committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago.

Secured Contacts for Party Thru Irish Relief Work.

Necessity of supporting the Irish famine relief campaign as a demonstration of international workers' solidarity, as a means of aiding and laying a basis for a Communist movement in Ireland and for gaining contacts with the Irish workers in America were pointed out. The party must hence give complete support to the Irish famine meeting, Friday May 8th at North Side Turner Hall.

Protest Mass Meeting Against White Terror in Balkans

With white terror holding sway truout Europe, especially in the Balkans, the party is staging a huge mass protest meeting within a few days. The South Slavic, Rumanian, Bulgarian, Greek branches especially will push this demonstration.

On The Red Aid Activity

It is evident that the International Red Aid must receive mass support from the party organization in order to meet thruout the world the increasing reaction of the imperialist nations.

The Young Workers League

The Young Workers League report was received with acclamation. The representative stated that the league was participating wholeheartedly in all the party demonstrations and affairs, such as the May Day demonstrations, street meetings, I. W. A., I. R. A., Freiheit Jubilee, etc., etc. The league is showing a noticeably healthy growth in membership, most of the members being gotten thru nuclei and factory campaigns.

A new working area branch organized taking in South Chicago and Pullman territories with their large steel mills and cars shops employing hundreds of young workers, thus offering a fine field for a factory campaign which the league is contemplating starting this summer in the heavier industries. A number of league comrades are already working in some of the steel mills and car shops.

Seven nuclei functioning and eight more can be organised immediately. Taking a very active part in the Negro campaign, getting out special leaflet, gathering information from the branches on the factories employing Negro young workers, touring Com. Phillips to all league branches to speak on this work.

Y. W. L. fractions organized in three local unions in Chicago. Industry group meetings called to organise fractions and get league members eligible for union membership into the unions. Juniors active in schools, helping league, organizing parents' councils.

Having a little difficulty in furnishing all groups with responsible leaders. Holding a dance to raise funds for organizational work this Saturday, May 9 at Workers Lyceum.

Plans For Book Store Under Way

City committee reported worked out plans for the campaign for book store. $2,500 are to be raised, the campaign to begin May 20th. Purpose is to open Workers Party Book Store by Sept. 15. There will be a general appeal for donations and those making donations will obtain a refund on literature purchased. The Chicago party book store is only one of a chain of book stores thruout the county under the direction of the DAILY WORKER Publishing Co., and the party committees. This book store undoubtedly will give a great stimulus to the sale and reading of Communist literature of every description.

It is felt that the party will respond enthusiastically for the success of the book store which will also make it possible to establish a central library and reading room. A special committee consisting of comrades Sam Hammersmark, M. Chilofsky, G. Chrysos, Natalie Gomez, Amy Schechter, Boris Shklar and M. Steinberg was elected to carry on the campaign for funds, assign the money quota for the branches, etc. This committee meets, Saturday, May 9 for this purpose.

Industrial Activity

Interest and understanding of the importance of the work of the T. U. E. L., of building a left wing in the labor movement is becoming manifest. The printers group is making gradual headway and is successfully pushing the widest distribution of their bulletin, The Amalgamationist. In the carpenters the progressive caucus has drawn up a program for the coming district elections. A program which is bound to have good effect on the rank and file carpenters and draw them towards the progressive group. This program has been printed on the T. U. E. L. page. The progressive caucus meets every Sunday at 10 o'clock in Room on third floor of the Douglas Park Auditorium, Kedzie and Ogden avenues.

In the machinists the Metal Trades' Bulletin is aiding greatly in crystalizing left wing in the elections. Thus far in the machinists the Chicago local unions which have reported have voted 4 to 1 for the Anderson slate. The machinists T. U. E. L. group has carried on an active campaign for the left wing progressive program. The barbers progressive group is now gaining new adherents, especially since their good scrap against the rotten agreement concluded by the officialdom for the barbers. Progressive group issued a special leaflet on the agreement which made a hit.

At the general meeting of the T. U. E. L., as reported, the American Labor Negro Congress and the means for drawing unions to its support were taken up and a resolution endorsing the congress passed.

The party appointed a special committee of Comrades Wirkkula, Jurich, Held, Bakiesh, Welechko, Mrs. Kalousek, Gori and a Y. W. L. representative to aid the T. U. E. L. picnic committee, in making the May 30th picnic a huge success.

A meeting of the industrial organizers of all the branches and Y. W. L. will be held on Friday, May the 15, at 19 S. Lincoln street.

A special July 4th Picnic committee, the annual affair of the party, consisting of Comrades Hans Pedersen, Geo. Maurer, M. Abern, S. Rubicki, Mrs. Filiwarkov, Jurich, Gori, A. Maki, Y. W. L., Steinberg, Mittelman and Welechko was elected to take initial steps for organizing the picnic.

May Day Demonstrations

Successful May Day meeting in Chicago was reported on and also wide distribution of leaflets at the Northwest Car shops and other meetings. On the Negro Congress work, branches are expected to call for Negro comrades to speak on the party attitude toward the American Negro Labor Congress. Local unions are being visited wherever possible and the matter presented.

The school conducted for Negro comrades helped considerably in the work. Cold weather is holding up street meetings in some instances, but they are being held at every possible moment and branches are geting on the job everywhere for them.

The DAILY WORKER

Ten branches so far have responded to the DAILY WORKER Week distribution. The total number of copies distributed is 2,561 every night. Many branches will undoubtedly be heard from eventually, but the idea of the DAILY WORKER Week was a uniform drive thruout the country.

It will be necessary to follow up all of the people to whom deliveries are made, for subscriptions. If there are any of the comrades who expect to do this work within the next few days who have not yet received the special $1.00 for 2 months' subscription cards, they should at once report at this office and secure same and also have a good supply of regular subscription blanks when they go out for subs.

This $1.00 card is sent simply as a last resort. We do not want to stress bargain prices for the DAILY WORKER, but in case the comrade cannot possibly sign up a prospect for a three, six or twelve months sub, then rather than let this prospect go, they can present the dollar card and ask for at least a trial subscription.

The sale of literature should greatly increase now with the street meetings coming on and no street meetings should be held without a good supply of at least the DAILY WORKER, Workers Monthly and the four issues of the Little Red Library being on hand. The Little Red Library should have an immense sale, because it is only a 10 cent pamphlet and also more particularly because of the great value and interest of its contents.

The office of the city literature department will be open from 9 in the morning till 7:30 in the evening every day, except Sunday and it is hoped that all literature agents will check up their present stock and also the amount they owe for literature and periodicals and make some report within the next week, if possible, to the city literature office, 19 S. Lincoln Street.

Applications were accepted from the following branches: Lake View Scandinavian 4, Douglas Park English 1, Armenian 1, Nucleus No. 3—1, Czecho-Slovak No. 1—1, Polish North Side 1, South Side English 1, Cicero English1, Northwest Jewish 1, Italian No. 1—1, South Side Scandinavian 1.

Transfers granted from Finnish Branch 4, from South Side English to Cleveland 1.

Next meeting of C. C. C. Wednesday, May 20, 1925, 8 p. m. at 722 Blue Island Ave.

Fraternally yours,
Workers (Communist) Party
Local Chicago.

May Day Celebration in Anthracite Region Stopped by Cossacks

PLAINS, Pa., —(By Mail).—Police cossacks again showed their loyalty to the American "democracy" by stopping a mass meeting scheduled for Sunday, May 3rd, in Roma Hall, here to protest against the white terror in Poland. Comrades Jakira and Radwiansky were scheduled to speak. The miners who came to attend the meeting found the doors of the hall closed. The manager reported that he was ordered by the police not to open the hall.

Soon the chief of police with several bluecoats arrived and announced that he has orders from the president of the board of commisisoners to stop the meeting and that he has no power to "disobey the instructicus." All attempts to reach the president of the board of commissioners proved to be futile. No explanation for the police action was given.

There is no other hall in the little mining town, and the rain made it impossible to proceed with an open air meeting in defiance of the police. Comrade Jakira announced to those who gathered around the hall that an open air meeting will soon be held in this town whether the police permits it or not.

A short time ago a meeting of the Workers Party was stopped by the police in Wilkes Barre, which is only a short distance away from Plains.

Outing in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 8.—We're here again. On Sunday, May 17, the Young Workers League of Los Angeles will give a Yowl Outing and Hayride at Dalton's Canyon. Remember the last Y. W. The Theory and Practice of LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

A brilliant exposition of Communist theory and practice in the period of Capitalist Imperialism—during which our great teacher, Lenin, lived and led.

No book recently issued can be of more value or importance to the worker who would learn of Communism.

This book by the secretary of the Russian Communist Party, who has been a constant and intimate co-worker of Lenin, is not only an extremely timely work, but also one that is destined surely to become one of the classics of Communist literature.

The Irish Famine

Renewed efforts should be made to raise funds for the relief of the famine stricken workers and peasants in the west of Ireland who are confronted with the prospect of slow and lingering death thru starvation, unless the workers of the world rally to their aid.

Considerable skepticism as to the extent of the famine is met with and this is not surprising in view of the propaganda put out by the Free State government, ably assisted by the catholic clergy of Ireland and the United States. The Free State threw a few sops to the people of the famine region before the last elections. When the elections were over, they locked the treasury door.

Because a famine hurts the credit of a capitalist nation which puts the interests of businessmen above human life, the Free State disapproves of efforts to raise money for the starving peasantry. Officials of that government have warned editors in the west of Ireland to "cut out that famine stuff." And the Free State government is not particular about the weapons it uses in order to make its wishes respected. Its methods are different only in degree from those of Zankov of Bulgaria.

The Peasants' International recently issued a manifesto calling on the peasants of all countries to send help to their brothers and sisters in Ireland. The industrial proletariat must do the same. Let us help and help quickly before it is too late, a people that produced a revolutionary leader like James Connolly who raised the flag of revolt against British imperialism in 1916 when the bodies of the proletariat were being mangled on the battlefields of Europe and their leaders, who had sworn to serve in the international army of labor, had betrayed the cause and the millions who trusted their leadership.

On the ninth anniversary of the Communist Connolly's death, the workers of this country could honor his memory in no better way than by helping the cause for which he gave his life. They can do this by relieving the sufferings of the workers and peasants whom Connolly loved so well that he gave his life to emancipate them. And in addition they will strengthen the bonds of international solidarity and help bring the Irish workers closer to the revolutionary battalions that are marching forward in spite of all obstacles to the conquest of power and the ownership of their world.

"Joking" in Dixie

From Bristol, Virginia, comes a story that explains more than the incident with which it deals. A young girl announces that she has been attacked by a Negro, a mob is formed, a man-hunt starts, two Negroes are seized and all is ready for that most enjoyable of southern pastimes—a lynching of a black man—when the girl admits, under pressure from the few sane persons present, that she was only "joking."

How many Negroes have been sent to their deaths in similar cases will never be known, but if the records could be probed and the evidence collected it would be found that with negligible exceptions the crime of rape, the ostensible reason for their murder, was either imaginary or had been fastened on a black man to protect some white seducer by a mental process wtih which all psychopathists are familiar.

The accusation of rape affords a convenient excuse for the periodical acts of terrorism fomented and indulged in by the southern ruling class to keep the Negro population properly intimidated. The whole southern atmosphere is such that unbalanced white women are the exception rather than the rule and any sensation-seeking female can always aid a mob in securing a Negro victim.

In this reeking southern cesspool where sadistic degeneracy is an effective weapon of the white exploiters, where vestigial remains of mediaeval chivalry have crossed with the most disgusting forms of sexual perversion to form a monstrous offspring whose bloody orgies are reported by the capitalist press with favorable comment, only militant organization of the Negro workers and farmers and alliance with the conscious white workers who repudiate the persecutoin of the Negroes, can wipe out this result of suppression of one race by another.

Such an alliance has more than a sentimental foundation. It must and will be consummated because the whole purpose of these attacks on Negroes is to keep them a subject class, lower in the social scale than the white workers, and by dissension and division of their forces lower the living standards of both, leaving the bosses and landlords supreme.

A headline in the Chicago Tribune reads, "Mussolini gags Italy with new constitution." What constitution; on that of America.

Outlawing Cleveland Street Railway Union

"One of the arbitrators was favorable to the union," was the excuse given by the Cleveland Street Railway company for refusal to accept the award of a board of arbitration rendered about a year ago.

If any doubt remains in the minds of the workers as to the fraud of arbitration this utterance of the company, now installing the open shop under the protection of the Ohio supreme court, should remove it.

In the conflicts between capitalists and workers, as in other forms of war, there are moments that are favorable to one or the other of the forces involved. Last summer, during the convention of the republican party in Cleveland, the street railway men had a wonderful opportunity to bring the company to terms. This opportunity was allowed to pass with the usual "welfare of the public" bunk played up plentifully by the officials of the street railway men's union. The company wanted delay, knowing that such opportunities do not come every day, and succeeded in stalling the strike by "submitting" to arbitration, promptly rejecting the decision of the board after the emergency had passed.

The supreme court, that staunch friend of corporations in distress, was appealed to. It not only upheld the right of the company to reject the findings of the board, but went farther and declared the closed shop illegal in public utility enterprises.

This is playing both ends against the middle with a vengeance. If the award of an arbitration board is against the workers they must, having bowed to "public welfare," either accept it or forfeit the sympathy on which they staked so much. The capitalists, however, are bound by no such restrictions. In nine times out of ten the award will be in their favor, but in the tenth case they can refuse to accept it, appeal to their courts and get a clean bill of health with a ruling outlawing the unions of the workers for good measure.

This description of the process by which unions are hamstrung might seem somewhat far-fetched if we had not a concrete example which in complete disregard of the so-called right of the workers exceeds any product of our imagination. The open shop drive of the Cleveland Street Railway company has now the sanction of the highest body in the state and the street carmen are outlaws if they strike against its ruling.

Let us remember in this connection that the "experienced, practical and legitimate" leaders of the Cleveland labor movement, with one voice, urged the street carmen to remember the "public welfare" and not strike while the city's hotels and party of American imperialism, to have faith in the party of American imperialism, to have faith ni the capitalist courts and confidence in the righteousness of their cause.

This is the day of reckoning.

Max Hays, editor of the official organ of the Cleveland labor movement, finds it necessary to say:

> In view of what has happened I don't know whether we did right to advise the men not to strike during the republican convention. We believed we could get a square deal in the courts and took that chance. And now John Stanley (head of the street railway company) has the upper hand.

Such a statement, by a man whose life has been spent in the labor movement, is an admission of defective mentality. When has labor ever received a "square deal" in the capitalist courts? And why should labor expect a square deal from institutions whose sole function is the protection of property privileges, of the power to rob labor and legalize the methods by which this is done?

The Cleveland street railwaymen now must fight an uphill battle where once they held the advantage. They have been fooled by their leaders as all workers are fooled who accept a leadership whose program consists in remaining respectable and amenable to the regulations of labor's activities by its class enemies.

The Cleveland case is first class example of the poisonous fruits of class collaboration, an example of the complete bankruptcy of a trade union leadership which rejects the class struggle. This basic error is responsible for the weakness of the American labor movement and as long as the organized workers follow such leadership just so long will they meet defeat after defeat.

It is a bitter lesson that the street railwaymen of Cleveland have had to learn, but if they have mastered it they are stronger than they were before. They have a fight on their hands and they must get the full support of the labor movement. The street car company has mustered its forces and intends to give no quarter. The street railwaymen must fight with the same spirit and by mass resistance to exceptional laws prevent their being used to destroy the union. The fight now is to maintain their organization against the conspiracy of the capitalists and their forcible methods of suppression—weapons made more effective by the cowardice and ignorance of labor officialdom.

Now that the Spanish have proven their inability to carry the "white man's burden" in Morocco, the French are taking a hand. The poor French are only acting in self defense of course. Those Moors will insist on claiming the right to live in their own country.

"His overwhelming and determined way of uttering the most threadbare commonplaces as if they were striking new discoveries makes conversation with him very difficult even for his partisans." This is a sidelight on von Hindenburg. What excellent material for an American labor faker?

Notes of the International Labor Movement

Communists in German Shop Committees

THE German Communists are steadily extending their influence in the shop committees. In the recent shop committee elections held in the important industrial Halle district, the majority of members elected were Communists. In the great Schwartzkopf shops in Berlin the votes were distributed as follows: Social-democrats, 591; Hirsch-dunker, 122; Communists and sympathizers, 956. In the shop committee of the largest metal works in Reimscheid, the Communists obtained 802 votes (five delegates); the reformists 237 (one delegate); the Hirsch-dunckers and Christian unions, together 759 (five delegates). In this last case the victory of the Communists is especially significant in view of the fact that following last year's strike, all the Communist members of the shop committees were dismissed.

Red War Veterans Meet

THE Fifth Congress of the International Veteran's Association was recently held in the Hamburg Trade Union Hall, with Comrade Pieck, Communist reichstag deputy, presiding. There were present 132 delegates from all parts of Germany, as well as delegations from Austria, Belgium and France. The reichstag Communist fraction, the International Workers' Aid, and the Red International of Labor Unions, were all represented. The reformist trade unions declined the invitation to attend.

A large part of the delegates were social democrat and non-party. Collective affiliation to the Red Aid was decided on.

After the congress a delegation went to the Fuehlsbuttel fortress, to greet Comrade Urbans, sentenced to twelve years hard labor for leadership of the Hamburg insurrection of 1923, and the other imprisoned comrades.

Coming Struggle of Polish Miners

THE coal bosses of Poland have signified their intention of cutting miners' wages 10 per cent. The workers of the Dombrowa region, who have been suffering intensely for a long time from the exorbitant cost of living and unemployment, have decided to fight the wage cut. The coal bosses give the "unproductivity of labor" as justification for the decrease, but statistics show that this excuse is in direct contradiction to the facts.

According to official figures, in January, 1924, there were 224,000 miners producing 2,964,000 tons monthly, and in November, 1924, 150,000, producing 3,036,000 tons monthly. In other words, after 74,000 miners had been dismissed, monthly coal production rase 72,000 tons, production being raised by 973 kilos per miner. Wages, however, underwent a 14 per cent reduction in the course of the same period.

The enormous increase in profits accrueing to the coal barons during this period is evident from the following figures:

1. The total reduction in wage costs, due to the reduction in personnel, 7,600,000 zloti (about $380,000) monthly.

2. The total production in wage costs due to the 14 per cent decreases, total: 2,142,00 zloti (about $107,000).

3. The abolition of the coal tax, 4,680,000 zloti (about $234,000). This makes a total of 14,422,000 zloti supplementary profits. The demands for a wage cut is meeting with bitter opposition on the part of the rank and file of the miners' unions, and it seems very probable that a general strike will be provoked by this latest attempt on the part of the bosses to make the already wretched condition of the Polish miners still worse.

French T. U. Conference and Unity

AT the recent meeting of the national committee of the French General Unity Confederation (left), in Paris, Gossip, general secretary of the British Furnishing Trades Union, and Capp, of the British Minority (left) Movement, attended, in order to tell of the efforts of the British militants towards international trade union unity, and to enlist the support of the French workers in this campaign. The great enthusiasm which greeted their speeches showed that the delegates realized the vital importance of the problem of unity, and were ready to carry on the fight together with the Red International of Labor Unions and the left wing of the Amsterdam International for the gathering of the working masses into a single international.

British Delegate Speaks.

In the course of his address, Capp showed how the disillusionment caused by the failure of McDonaldism and the offensive entered upon by the employers and the conservative government several months ago had caused a tremendous development in the tendency toward class struggle. This tendency, organized by the Minority Movement, had shown its strength at the Hull congress, which had decided to send a delegation to Russia, and to adopt a stand in favor of international unity.

It is not Purcell, Bramley, Cook and the other leaders of the left wing who personally created this will to unity, it was the working masses in the shops, and mills and mines who felt the absolute necessity for unity in the face of the menace of world reaction, who pushed on their chiefs, the latter only giving expression to the thought of millions of wage workers.

"The unity that we wish is not a marriage between red and yellow leaders, it is not a sentimental alliance, it is a basic union of the masses. And we, the minority, say that in this unity we must keep our absolute right to struggle against the social democratic conceptions of class collaboration and for our revolutionary principles."

"We hope that the delegates to the national committee will return to the laboring masses of France and show them forcibly that it is absolutely necessary to work for unity, which alone will permit the conquest of capitalism.

Liebknecht's Murder is Proved

THE bourgeois Vienna newspaper, Die Stunde, publishes sensational revelations in connection with the assassination of Karl Liebknecht, completely confirming the version of the shooting which has been consistently maintained by the Communists.

The paper gives three photographs which conclusively establish the fact that the evidence given at the trial held after the shooting was absolutely false. The photographs, which were taken at the hospital to which Liebknecht's body was carried after the murder, show that Liebknecht could not possibly have been shot at a distance of six metres while trying to escape from his captors, as was alleged, but that he was shot point-blank, at the closest quarters, the bullets entering the breast, and not the back, as was claimed.

The photographs were given out by a Dr. Jacobi, who was in attendance at the hospital to which the body was brought. Die Stunde declares that the photographic plates are still in the possession of the Berlin police.

This absolute confirmation of the fact of Liebknecht's deliberate murder has aroused intense excitement among the German workers. The Rote Fahne is demanding the immediate reopening of the case, and an investigation into the culpability of the former Berlin chief of police, Ernst, who seized and concealed the incriminating plates.

Swedish Union Delegation to U. S. S. R.

A DELEGATION of Swedish trade unionists is now visiting the U. S. S. R., carrying on a searching investigation into factories, trade union organizations and co-operatives. The delegation has been very deeply impressed by what they have seen. Matlin, one of the delegates, and editor of a Swedish social democratic paper, confessed that he had arranged with his party press to send them material to be used in attacking the Communists, but that since coming to Russia he had been convinced that his former conception of the Soviet government and Communism was erroneous, and that the Soviet Union had accomplished tremendous things by the co-ordinated effort of workers and specialists.

British Miners Must Fight

THE sub-committee of the executive of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain which has been conferring with the mine owners has made no progress, and the only course now open to the miners is to call a further delegate conference, formulate their wage demands and organize to fight for them. The Minority (left wing) Movement in the unions is keeping up energetic propaganda for the formulation of a united front of miners, metal and transport workers against the capitalist offensive on wages and hours which they are all facing.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, and a leader of the Minority Movement presented the situation forcefully in a recent address:

"This year will see the greatest struggle of British workers. Our only hope lies in a united front both politically and industrially."

Industry today, he said, was stagnant, and men, women and children were suffering more acutely than at any time within living experience.

The policy of the employers was to get uniformity of conditions based on those of the worst conditions of any body of workers in Europe.

It must be understood that the miners of Britain were not going back. Rather were they going to strive to the utmost to bring their comrades in other countries up to a higher standard.

Referring to the state of the mining industry, Cook said it must first be understood that coal, land, machinery, and capital assets today belonged to private individuals linked together in trusts and combines which controlled industry. The workers in industry had to no control whatever over production and consumption. They were simply the wage slaves who were made use of when the employers so desired.

It was now admitted that the wages of the miners were a scandal and disgrace to a civilised community. The conditions in the mining villages were beyond description. Imagine 300,000 men taking home each week amounts varying between the paltry sums of 20 shillings and 50 shillings. (About $4.84 and $12.18.)

On the other hand, during the last ten years the employers had made nearly 300,000,000 pounds of profits.

The mine owners had opposed every attempt to improve the standard of living of the mine workers, and had even opposed the introduction of legislation designed to ensure the safety of men in the mines.

Bad as were present conditions, they had only secured them in the teeth of the most violent opposition of the coal owners.

Since Black Friday wages in the majority of districts had been reduced by 50 per cent, and, not content with this, the owners were further attacking the basic rates, pit by pit, and district by district.

Sadoul Offers Services to French Communist Party

ON the evening of his acquittal Captain Jacques Sadoul met with a tremendous ovation from thousands of Paris workers. Sadoul made his first appearance as a free man at a mass meeting held by the Paris Communist Party to launch the municipal election campaign.

The meeting was held at the huge Luna Park hall, and was filled to overflowing. Comrade Marcel Cachin had opened the meeting, pointing out the necessity of conquering the municipal governments, and directing a stinging attack against the left wing government.

"We have gone thru the experience of a radical-socialist government," he said. "It is dying in impotence—it has accomplished none of the things that it promised. By its weakness, it has left the way clear for fascism."

Comrade Marguerite Faussecauve followed Cachin, and while she was speaking, Sadoul entered the hall, accompanied by his lawyer, Berthon.

Paris Workers Greet Sadoul.

As soon as the audience caught sight of Sadoul, thunderous applause swept thru the hall, and he was caught up and borne in triumph to the platform, amidst shouts of "Amnesty" and "The Soviets, the Soviets!" and the singing of the International. Great excitement had been aroused among the French workers by the trial of Sadoul, who is looked upon not only as a French comrade, but also as a messenger from the Russian workers' republic.

Deeply moved by the demonstration, Sadoul greeted the Paris workers after his seven years' exile.

"From a lawyer," he said, "I have become a man of action. I have come to the proletariat for action I want to share in the revolutionary action of the French proletariat as I did in the revolutionary action of the Russian. You can count on me, and [illegible] me. I want to work, and you can count on my complete devotion."

As Sadoul ended, the International was sung again, and shouts for amnesty and the Soviets again ran thru the hall.

Sadoul Trial and Acquittal.

Sadoul was acquitted by four votes to three of the charges of desertion and of "intelligence with the enemy" in Russia in 1918.

It was the second court martial. The first, in 1919, condemned him to death in his absence. He returned to France last December to demand a retrial, and was at once arrested.

Among those who gave evidence on his behalf were M. Rakovsky, M. Albert Thomas and M. Henri Barbusse. A letter was also read from M. Trotsky.

Sadoul's defense was simple and straightforward. He declared himself a revolutionary and acknowledged that he had taken service with the Soviet government. But he had not done so until after the war. At the time when he was serving the best interests of France by urging the Ambassador M. Noulens, to recognize and help the new Soviet Republic.

"From the day of their advent to power," he declared in court, "Lenin and Trotsky appealed constantly to the French military authorities for help in continuing the war against Germany. But M. Noulens refused, and the peace of Brest-Litovsk was signed.

"The Noulens-Clemenceau policy was responsible for the treaty of Brest, which prolonged the war. On their shoulders rests responsibility for the deaths of some hundred thousands of French soldiers."

It was not defense, but a defiant vindication and a remorseless counter-attack. A curious court martial, which was rather the indictment of French governments by Sadoul than the prosecution of Sadoul by a French government.

Sadoul launched his accusations. His lawyer, Maitre Berthon, arguing successfully that in no legal sense has the Soviet government been the "enemy" of the French republic, got the charge cut down to simple "desertion." Failure to join M. Noulens in his unnecessary and undignified flight to Finland could scarcely be counted "desertion." Sadoul could retort with some reason that it was the ambassador who had deserted, he who had stayed at his post.

BUILDERS AT WORK

A Way to Conduct a Communist Campaign.

Minneapolis Offers Lessons to Our Party.

ONE by one and with increasing rapidity the various units of the Workers (Communist) Party are learning that the DAILY WORKER is not simply a Communist newspaper of working class information but also and mainly the MEANS by which we can build the Communist movement.

Minneapolis is now in a stirring local election campaign. Dan Stevens, veteran fightec of organized labor in this city and acting city DAILY WORKER agent, is the Communist candidate for mayor. Never has Minneapolis seen such a campaign. Noon-day shop meetings, trade union meetings and open air meetings are reaching workers wherever they gather. And everywhere the DAILY WORKER is the means to bring further light on the Communist election program and the principles of Communism.

Thousands of copies of the DAILY WORKER (and the Workers Monthly) have been distributed and on Thursday night a special Minneapolis edition of 10,000 copies added another landslide of messengers of Communism.

That this use of the DAILY WORKER has proved a real means of building for Communism can be attested not only by tripling the number of subscriptions already sent in (these readers will make future Communists!) but also by the fact that many new members are joining the party according to advice received from the local headquarters.

Not only in the field of political activity but in every instance of party action, our party not only can, but must learn to use the DAILY WORKER as the MEANS of better building for Communist success.

It will not be long, when these glaring examples of the efficacy of the DAILY WORKER in every campaign will become so obvious that no unit of the party will make a single move without having the DAILY WORKER as the means by which it will work.

The "Shot-Gun Wedding" at London

By ROBERT MINOR.

"AFTER all the sacrifices the war entailed in our fight for freedom," asks J. F. Darling, director of the London Midland Bank, "is the result to be that Great Britain is now to come under financial, economic and it may be political domination of America?"

With these words begins a struggle between the British empire and the American empire.

And the struggle begins on the very day of the "happy" celebration of the joining in holy financial wedlock of the same two powers. A nice, typical, bourgeois wedding.

The solemnisation occurred last week. The wedding bells rang out from the British parliament: England has adopted the gold standard! Simultaneously the wedding bells (somewhat muffled in crepe) tolled from the bank of England, and loud and joyfully they rang at New York.

Practically from now on, and officially beginning with the 1st of January, 1926, the British government pledges itself again to make good with gold on every piece of paper money in circulation—or in the vaults of American bankers. The export of gold from England will no longer be prohibited. For the first time in ten years—since 1915, when the war caused England to drop the gold standard and to put an embargo upon the export of gold from that country—England is under the gold standard of exchange.

In the war, the sorely harrassed capitalist England made love to the beautiful young heiress, capitalist America. The coy capitalist lady responded—not too well, perhaps—but wisely. The gas burned late in the parlor of Papa Morgan (for is not J. P. Morgan truly the "Father of his country"?), and many premises were given—and who knows how many kisses? The British young man meant to keep his independence, as most young men do. But the American young lady remembered—and Father Morgan remembered.

Years passed. But the promises and kisses were not forgotten.

And then came a scene which is not unusual in this bourgeois world.

"Father" Morgan got out his shot gun. The young fellow, England, must make good. The shot gun was held to the head of the young man, England. And the wedding came last week—last Tuesday, when England announced the re-adoption of the gold standard.

Yes, the young man did "the right thing." England stood up to the altar and sorrowfully produced the golden wedding ring, while Father Morgan lowered in the background and fingered the trigger.

Happy Wedding?

THE old men of the international neighborhood smile with toothless lips, and stroke their beards and say, "Now they will live happily ever afterwards." Especially Old Man Kautsky, the benevolent oracle of the neighboring village of Germany, will wrinkle his cheeks and say, "Yes, yes, I told you so. Now the thing is done. They will live in domestic bliss forever afterward."

But the young husband of the shot gun bride was full of conflicting emotions when he slipped the golden ring on the finger of the willing virago: "Gone is my independence . . . gone . . . But these are the days of easy divorces." Into the shot gun nuptials are brought all of the rancors, resentments, "complexes" and hatreds—and divergent interests of the past and present, and still more of the future. We know these affairs. With cynical eyes of experience we pierce the curtains of the new household. There will be trouble there.

The adoption of the gold standard by England at this time is openly called in London—"a guarantee to America." Since when is the adoption by the biggest of imperialist powers of the money standard which is considered "natural" to all predatory world powers—since when is this a "guarantee" to a rival imperialist power? In a theoretical "normal" time this would not be so, and the return of England to the gold standard at some time was always considered necessary. But, coming now under the existing circumstances, Sir Alfred Mond, high politician of Great Britain, says that it will tie the British monetary system to that of America and will make the London bank rate subject more than ever before to the mercy of Wall Street, being a rash act "to obtain a purely sentimental result."

MEANWHILE the "dowry" of the American bride is open inspection of the guests. It consists of $200,000,000 in gold put at the British disposal by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York (by the U. S. government, in effect), and a credit of $100,000,000 from J. P. Morgan & Co. This total of $300,000,000 is three times the size of the recent huge loan to France for stabilisation of the franc, and is the biggest loan ever made to a foreign government in time of peace. And it is an addition to about a thousand millions of other British debts to America—already a source of gall and wormwood.

Director Darling of the Midland Bank says:

"The pre-war gold standard was fortunately free from political interference. This cannot be said of the Federal Reserve banks, or rather the Federal Reserve Board, which controls their policy. The Federal Reserve Board is practically a political body sitting in Washington. Are we then prepared to tie the pound to what Sir Basil Blackett has called the chariot wheel of the Federal Reserve?"

The dominant finance capital of England decided that it had to be done, and it was done. The doubt, reluctance and hesitancy of British capitalism, reflecting the differences of interest of the different layers of the bourgeoisie, are ridden over by the big bourgeoisie which finds the step necessary, tho not an unmixed pleasure.

Communist International Foresees.

EVEN before this spectacular step of opening up the gold market of England to the American bankers, the Communist International had been able to give a keen analysis of the rapproachment between the two Anglo-Saxon empires—a rapprochement which is both an embrace and a death grapple. Zinoviev is quoted as saying in a speech to the session of the enlarged executive committee of the Communist International on March 25:

"The most important factor in the world political situation is the relationship between England and America. The 'optimists,' who see every thing rosy in the camp of our enemies and everything black in our own camp, believe that America can put all Europe on rations and dominate it. When doing this they forget the differences between America and England, they forget that America is playing the European countries off against each other... The rapprochement between England and America is a historical fact. Both states have conservative governments, but nevertheless profound differences exist. There are differences in the question of world hegemony, for America has become a creditor of the world. There are differences in respect to Canada, Australia and Mexico. There are differences in the oil question, in the question of armaments, with respect to the debts. A fight is being waged for control of raw materials; there are even differences with respect to the Dawes plan. We see an intensification of the differences proceeding parallel with the rapprochement. It suffices to point to Canada, which is being Americanized and is slipping out of England's hands."

The internal differences within England between the sections of the bourgeoisie and between the bourgeoisie and the proletariat, are a striking factor in this case. The London Daily News now gives warning that:

"The decision to return at once to the gold standard will be sharply criticized by industrialists, who fear the

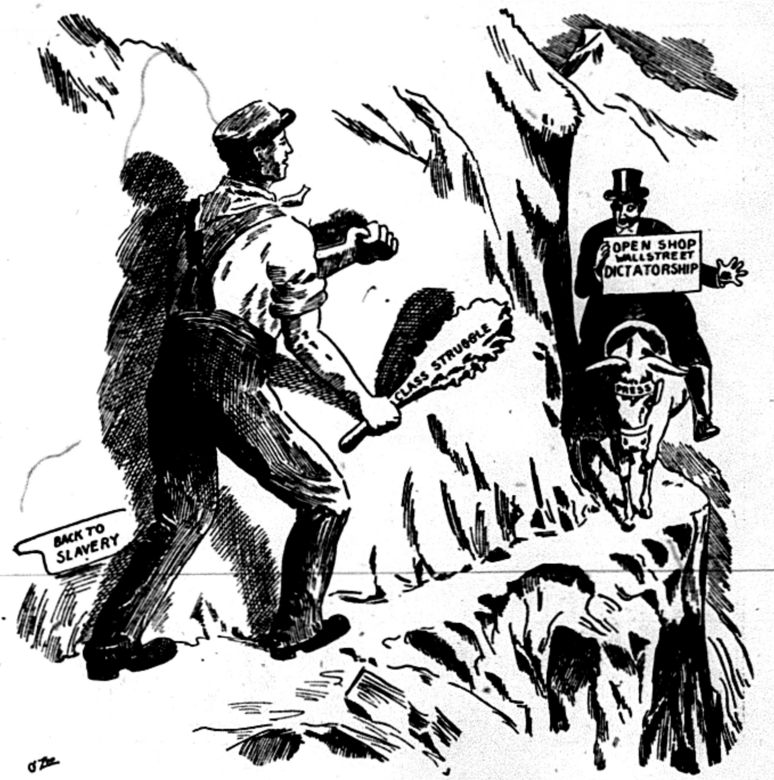
THE DECISION NEARS



The Role of the City and Land Workers

By NIKOLAI BUKHARIN,
Editor, Pravada, (The Truth) at Moscow, Official Organ of the Russian Communist Party.

MANY comrades in the foreign parties, and even in the best parties, believe that the peasant question is something of secondary importance. Altho it is now the fashion amongst us to declare oneself a Leninist and of course to combat Trotskyism most energetically, nevertheless there are in reality many parties which pay insufficient attention to the peasant question.

Amongst many comrades and many parties the opinion even prevails that the peasant question is important only for a backward country like Russia, and that this question could be assigned a minor place in the more advanced countries. Such a train of thought is entirely false and (by the way) rather Trotskyist.

It is just Trotsky who developed the following ideas in his theory of the permanent revolution: In Russia the proletariat can only retain power after its victory with the aid of the state organs of the western proletariat, because the population of our country is overwhelmingly agricultural.

THIS statement is false; it is not only false, but the matter has not been thought to its conclusion. The victory of the international proletariat would then signify its world victory, the seizure of power all over the world—and then we should have to ask ourselves: "What is the composition of the entire population of the earth?"

When we put the question in this manner we immediately see that the proletariat is relatively and absolutely the minority of the total population of the earth as against the overwhelming peasant majority.

Can this question then be eliminated? Can it be said that the world revolution and the world victory of the proletariat will solve the problem? By no means.

On the contrary, with the victory of the world proletariat this problem will be reproduced on the widest possible scale. Only a few figures to illustrate my idea: We know that the entire population of the earth is 1,700,000,000. More than half of this number live in Asia (approximately 900 millions). China alone has 436 millions.

THAT means that a quarter of the earth's population live in China; and of these 436 millions—the statistics are, it is true, extremely poor—approximately 400 millions are peasants. In India this ratio of the peasantry to the entire population is 220 out of 320 millions; in the Union of Soviet Republics it is 111 out of 130 millions. The overwhelming majority of the colonial population consists of peasants.

WE all know that the colonial question will play a great role in the process of the world revolution. We know that from a certain standpoint the antagonism between capital in the highly developed metropolis and the backward colonies is one of the chief contradictions of capitalism, that these contradictions are nothing else but—figuratively speaking—the contradiction between the world city, the centers of present industry and world economy, and the world village, that is the colonial periphery of the centers.

Almost all of the principal questions of our policy are connected in one way or another with the colonial problem. Even the question of the unity of the trade unions in connection with the left course of the British proletariat is closely related to the problem of the colonies. And the problem of the colonies is a specific form of the agrarian and peasant question.

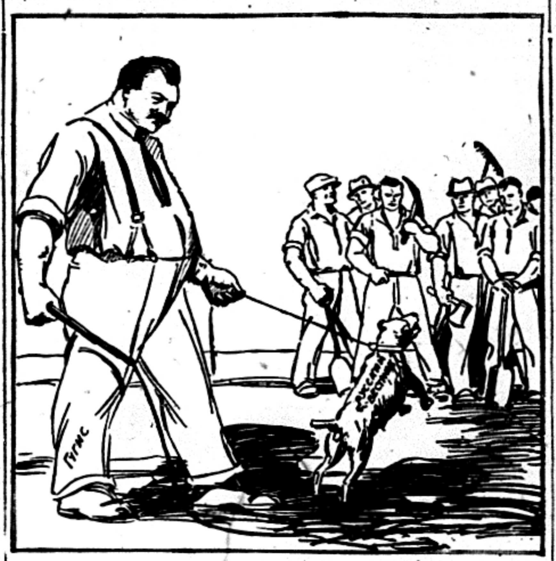
THERE is, therefore, no doubt that this problem is not a minor, secondary, subordinate problem, but that is may be called one of the most important problems of our epoch. However, this problem cannot be looked at exclusively from this standpoint, but must be considered from the standpoint of production and of the seizure of political power by the proletariat. If the peasantry is so large a percentage of the entire population, it is evident that they are of rather great weight economically speaking. The industrial proletariat of the highly developed countries often have a certain false opinion, an illusion that this problem is not of importance.

But how are matters in reality? As for the economic situation, Great Britain is in Asia, and France looked at economically is in Africa. It is evident that the close attention now paid by the British working class to the colonial problem contains a presentiment of future problems. The simple British worker, seeing the disturbances in India, must ask himself, "H'm, if I do not support India now and then it separates from Great Britain, what will I have to eat after the conquest of political power?"

The putting of the question in this light is, we see, already taking place in many circles of the highly developed economically skilled proletariat. It is closely related to the circumstance that the problem of the conquest of political power by the proletariat has become one of the chief problems of our day.

HOW do matters look when we consider the peasant question from the standpoint of the distribution of social forces at the present moment?

Local Russian Sheet Fighting Communism



As seen by the Russian Communist Daily Novy Mir

When we ask under whose influence the peasantry stands, how its forces are divided among the different classes, we must reply that in the colonial and semi-colonial countries we have great influence upon the peasantry, but that in the important industrial countries our influence is practically nil.

In Germany, a country where the economic depressions after the war with their various consequences raged most violently, we see that the "Reichslandbund," which is under the leadership of large landowners, has more than two million organised members. Half of the agricultural proletariat is in this organization.

IF we consider the fact alone and then compare the number of middle, large, small and "dwarf" peasants, who also belong to this organization, we will see that the overwhelming majority of the peasantry and one-half of the agricultural proletariat are directly organized in hostile organizations.

The social composition of the leadership of the Reichslandbund is as follows: at the top are large landowners and large capitalists. The ideology is monarchist, the backbone of the appartus consists of ex-officers and high officials.

In France also, where the peasantry is not as reactionary as it is in Germany, the picture is, for all that, to say the least—frightful. Here, we have six or seven large peasant and agrarian organizations, and all of them without exception, are led by large landlords and large capitalists.

The organizational structure of these organizations is similar in all countries. Their mainstay is a political party, or several political parties. In form, they represent a sort of agricultural trade union which organises all classes from the large landowners to the dwarf peasants, and even the agricultural laborer. Within these organizations, however, there is a sort of hierarchy at the top of which are the big capitalists. The cadres of these organizations are distinctly hostile to the proletariat.

In connection with these organizations there are various co-operative societies, which economically, are bound up with the banks.

I have quoted here only two examples; that of the French and German, but such a situation prevails everywhere.

Recently, a process of differentiation has been observed in these organizations. This is an extremely important and big process. But, when we examine the situation as a whole, when we draw the balance, excluding the colonies, we will see that our work is only in the preliminary stage.

In a period when the revolutionary wave is rushing forward we are able to carry large sections of the proletariat with us and "infuse" the other sections of the people with our ideas. In the present period of stabilization (temporary it is true) we are faced with the danger of all these strata being employed against the proletariat.

FASCISM, black reaction, has its great reserves in the rural districts. It is really a scandalous situation when in Germany half of the agricultural proletariat belongs to the enemy camp. It is very difficult to capture political power when the relation of forces are so arranged.

I can say here, quite bluntly, that from the standpoint of the revolutionary proletariat, as well as from the standpoint of Leninism, that it is a piece of utter stupidity to regard this question as a secondary question.

The bourgeoisie, the agrarian classes, the heavy industrialists, understand the position perfectly well. The professors serving the big landlords and the big capitalists, regard the peasantry as the reserves of the anti-revolutionary camp, and base their hopes upon the conservative character of the peasantry.

Naturally, comrades, we can say that the hopes of the bourgeoisie and of the landlords are very limited. The bourgeoisie and the agrarians fail to understand that conservatism under no circumstances is an eternal feature of the peasantry, that there have been epochs as the peasant revolts, in which the peasants have shown that they have nothing in common with conservatism. And even today, the capitalist system is shaken so profoundly that various features of peasant conservatism have partly disappeared. We know that in the early period of the rapid development of capitalism, particularly in those countries which developed more rapidly certain strata of the proletariat became bourgeois. The more explicable is it therefore, that various strata of the peasantry—for example those that own private property, individual farms, etc.—should to an even greater degree have inclinations towards the bourgeoisie camp. But this organic epoch of capitalism was a specific epoch, and we cannot mechanically transfer the specific character of this epoch to another epoch, particularly to the present epoch. In fact, we can establish a thesis that simultaneously with the disappearance of the bourgeois elements in the proletariat, the "de-bourgeoising" of the proletariat, if we may so describe it, a similar process is going on among the peasantry. This process commences first among the semi-proletarian stratum of the peasantry, the dwarf peasants, etc. Of course, this process will be much slower than that among the proletariat, and for that reason our task of bringing these strata of people under our influence, is much more difficult than winning that section of the proletariat, which has become bourgeois, and is influenced by social democracy. But the more energetically must we work in this field. We must bring numerous strata of the peasantry, the poor peasantry, the small peasants, under our influence, otherwise, we shall never achieve victory.

ROUGHLY speaking, the present period in the development of capitalism, regarded from the social standpoint, is nothing else than a fight for the peasantry between the bourgeoisie and the proletariat, and I must say that the bourgeoisie understands this characteristic tendency much better than do the Communist Parties. Herein lies a great danger. We talk about united front tactics, we have spoken about the workers' and peasants' government, we have passed resolutions about the necessity for winning over the peasantry, etc. But we have done very little in this sphere. Whereas the bourgeoisie is conducting real united front tactics towards the peasantry, and have done a great deal in this respect.

In many countries: Germany, France, England and partly also in America, a discussion is now going on in the bourgeois press over such questions, for example as self-sufficing economy. Certain German economists desire to see an economic system in which the industry and the agriculture of the country can satisfy all the requirements of that country. This economic motive is accompanied by a military motive: "In war, we are at the mercy of the enemy because economically, we are dependent upon other countries." And third, there is a class motive: "Strongly developed industry brings with it an increase in the urban proletariat, which is corrupted by Communism, etc. We must have a process of developing backwards; we must "become agrarianised."

It is no accident that this discussion is taking place at the present time. It is the expression of a still more active anti-proletarian orientation of the ruling class.

IN France, there is at the present time, a strong movement in the French agrarian and bourgeois circles. The slogans of this movement are approximately as follows: "Back

(Translated by Simon Felshin)

I.

“HELLO, kid!”

This friendly call rose above even the heartless rumble of the railway train. Nickles' heart went pitter-patter. He thot of all those stories that he had heard about hoboes. “Hello, kid” was what the sheriffs always said when they wanted to lay hands on a fellow. And yet even this was preferable to being beaten to death by a boss at some lumber camp. Nickles was not anxious to end up as a newpaper sensation.

Then he remembered suddenly that according to reports by comrades this friendly greeting of the sheriff was usually followed by a less friendly blow on the shoulder. And so he decided to peer first in the direction of the voice, and then he would consider whether to risk the rash jump from the moving freight train.

“Hello, kid!”—rang out again, this time more reassuring. He looked in the direction from which the voice came. Nothing . . . He wanted to pierce the darkness. Loud, hearty laughter. And still he didn't see anyone.

“Don't you see me? Here I am!”

Nickles was right. When sheriffs do any travpopped out of their sockets.

Suddenly he caught sight of a waving hand which reached out from somewhere among the spokes of the wheels.

“Well, that couldn't be any sheriff”—Nickles thot—“these gentlemen don't care much for riding that way.”

Nickles was right. When sheriffs do any traveling they prefer the passenger coaches. And besides, it did seem as if the owner of that hand among the wheels didn't find himself so uncomfortable in his surroundings.

“Now at last can you see me?”—the owner of the hand asked.

Nickles tried again craning his neck, this time with better luck.

Catching sight of the owner of the voice and the hand he felt very much ashamed that he had thot even for a moment of running away. The sight of this chap was decidedly reassuring. He was looking out at the world from his “comfortable” seat with a grin. By the light of a lantern which they passed, Nickles got a distinct view of him. He was reclining at ease against a cross beam, his hands clasped about his knee. His pants were ripped in one place, revealing a bit of his naked leg.

This sight in a trice restored to Nickels his old blitheness and now he in turn called out:

“Hello, kid!”

This, in one expression, constituted perfect solidarity, the definite sealing of the new friendship and served also as an introduction.

“Where you headed for?”—Nickles called. “I'd like to know that myself.”

“That's where I'm going too.”

And so they had immediately found a point in common: neither of them knew where he would land.

“Have you got any buttons?”—the stranger asked.

This question sounded rather queer, as the owner of the voice didn't seem to attach so much importance to whether there was any button missing from his clothing.

“What for do we want buttons?”—asked Nickles.

“So we can decide where to get off. Each button stands for a town. The last button tells us the town we get off at.”

As they talked it over they both realized that the button method of choosing wouldn't do in this case, because it presupposed a detailed knowledge of the various places along the road. They therefore had to decide on something else. As experienced travelers they could always tell a good bit ahead when they were nearing a big station; and they decided to take leave of their conveyance at the first large station.

The train rumbled.

From the locomotive came the impatient ringing of the bell. It rang as if the freight train were in some way disturbed.

The two decided: that's one of the bigger stations! They crept with skilful and practiced movements to the edge of the car. They waited for the right moment—for a bend, as the train slowed down.

Nickles gave the signal: “Careful, now!”

A swing.

The train immediately whirred on past them.

• • • •

AND they remained behind in the night.

The lights of the railroad station in the distance. And along the tracks an electric light glared from far off. It was best to keep away from the light. Nor was it advisable to come too near to the station. All kinds of unreliable persons lurged around there: detectives, sheriffs, watchmen and such like parasites.

They felt an aching all over. And so they decided to rest under a tree.

“Oh yes, what's your name anyway?”—Nickles asked.

“Joe, Joe Vavas”—and he added: “I'm a Hungarian.”

“Ah, Hungarian! That's nice. I'm Greek, and my name is Gulis Nickles.”

Nickles had been living in America for ten years. But to judge by his accent and his vocabulary, one might well say that he was not longer than two years in the country.

His life? Laundry, shoe-shining, doll factory, soap making, steel mills, milk carrying, street construction, packing sugar . . . New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver . . . and always under a train, never knowing where he was going . . . he could hardly give a proper account in one time of the fantastic contents of his eventful life.

Joe Vavas had come to America one year later. The last station of his life's road was called Denver. He had landed in that city without a cent, and unshaven. It was in spring. At the street corners there were Mexicans in blue overalls. He also stopped at the street corner and waited for good luck.

As good luck didn't come to fetch him he decided there and then to go look for it himself. He sauntered thru Seventeenth street. And he really did catch sight of a sign:

“For Purpose of Instruction
FREE SHAVE HERE
For Everybody.”

This was luck too, for he could thus save fifteen cents. He went up one floor, where he politely offered his face and his head for practice.

And now while he was telling his friend about all this his face became clouded as he depicted that harrowing half hour which gave him a cut-up face and a half-shorn head. The master who was giving instruction asked him if he had work.

“I answered:

“I only came to this town a short time ago.”

Thereupon he offered to teach him the trade. That would give him a chance to learn and get wages while he was learning.

“This offer looked very good to me”—Joe continued. “I didn't have any trade. And you can't get along without a trade. After that I found out what that school was for. And I found out it wasn't such a bad business to open a barber school. We was workin' thirteen hours and even more. We had to clean up the place. Two weeks after that we was workin' even in the rush hour. There was more and more learners, they come up like mushrooms. And what do you think happened? In Denver the barber's apprentice got paid just about as much as the boss pleased. I wanted to get away from the gang, but a friend of mine talked me out of it. A trade . . . That's the thing, a trade. So I stuck to it . . . That's how I learned a trade.”

Joe was evidently proud of that.

And he added: “And now I can join a union.”

Joe was even prouder of that.

• • • •

SOMEWHERE below, behind the hills, the sky lit up. A purple streak glimmered.

Joe discovered, full of joy, that at the break of day, just exactly as it is written in the bible, the rooster crows and the cow lows.

And these creatures evoked in him a schoolboy mood. But Nickles pulled him out of his dreams.

“The grass is wet in the morning”—he said—“it's better I think to take a little walk.”

And all of a sudden it occurred to them that they were hungry in the first place; secondly, they did not know where they really were.

“I think we ought to find out first of all where we are.”

On this point there was perfect agreement, and it was only necessary to bring about agreement as to method. One advanced the opinion that they ought to invest their capital in a morning paper. The other held that it would be wise to find the automobile road.

And this latter viewpoint carried.

The morning poured its radiant warmth with full splendor over the landscape.

The two wanderers were fresh, of good courage, and they tramped forward on the road with light heart.

“Welcome to the Pikes Peak Region,” they read, and beneath, “Colorado Springs.”

“The welcome ain't for us I think, but it makes you feel good anyway”—Joe laughed, and Nickles added:

“Mostly on account of that the puzzle is now solved, and we know where we are at.”

They stopped.

With due respect they took off their caps and spelled together:

“Co—lo—ra—do Spri—ngs . . .”

And now they went for breakfast.

• • • •

II.

IT was a festive morning of welcome. The splendid June sun was an incentive to their appetite. But everything good has an end—and so it was impossible to eat on forever. In the street they looked at each other, critically. They inspired the greatest confidence in each other. But as their glances glided over each other's shabby clothing they began to doubt whether, while on the quest for work, this mutual confidence would be communicated to the sharp-eyed boss.

This doubt bothered especially Joe who wanted to remain at his “trade.” They counted their money. It didn't take Nickles long to do that; his wealth amounted to three cents. Of course anyone would know that this wasn't enuf for a suit of clothes.

However, Joe's work at the barber school had netted him $4.27. For four dollars one could get even two suits if one only looked around a little.

It is hard to tell exactly whether the scent of the two was so sharp or whether the second-hand clothes dealer knew where to put up his stand, but the fact is that they found the second-hand dealer without any trouble.

This store had strictly one price.

The second-hand dealer succeeded in fishing out of his stock two suits for $3.98. (Joe certainly couldn't let his friend go without a suit!) And after the two had changed it did seem to them that in the spick-and-span cast-off clothes of the rich they made a much better impression. Joe promised Nickles that as soon as he got a place he would give him a haircut. They left their old rags at the dealers as a souvenir. Joe now still had twenty-nine cents. For three cents the bought a paper, the “Spring Paper.” They discovered two small ads, asking for barbers. “First class” barbers. This was a good omen.

Nickles went to Pikes Peak avenue, where there was an employment agency. Before they separated they promised each other to meet at the Busy Corner. This is the heart of Colorado Springs. At all four corners immense posters announce: “Busy Corner!”

• • • •

WORKERS in overalls sat around. There was plenty of work. It was boom time. Farm workers, road builders, canal builders, dishwashers, berry pickers were wanted—one could even pick his work. But Nickles didn't care for any of these jobs. His eyes were attracted to a ticket marked: “Experienced footman wanted for refined, aristocratic family. References required.”—That was something altogether new to him. What in the world was a “Footman” anyway? He thot it was something like a “Food Man” or “Food Worker.” That seemed rather attractive. This was the first time in his ten years of experience that such an opportunity had come his way.

One of the men looking for work noticed his interest. He said to Nickles:

“That job is no good. I been there already. They want you to do everything.”

Nickles grasped at the opportunity to find out once for all just what was a “Footman.”

“What is the work?”

“Do you mean a real footman? If you do, that's a different story. A real footman waits at the table, wears white gloves, goes riding with the master and mistress, receives guests and gets—lots of tips.”

“Oh!”

However, the other added quickly:

“But for them aristocrats . . . Bah! . . . Cleaning windows, washing floors, cleaning up . . . Bah! . . .”

That can't be hard—Nickles thought. And it began to dawn on him what a footman really was.

“Were you a footman before?” the stranger asked.

“Yes, in the old country.”

That was a lie as a matter of fact, but he didn't mind. He wanted to get that job, so under the circumstances the lie was justified.

He went straightforth to the agency.

“You're looking for an experienced footman?”

“Yes. Is that your trade?”

“Sure; but I ain't done that kind of work here, only in the old country.”

“What country?”

“Greece.—I was footman in a very high-class family”—Nickles added.

“That so? That's fine. Can you give any references?”

Reference, reference, hm. That was a hard point, it occurred to him. Nevertheless he said calmly:

“Sorry, I ain't got no references with me. (The face of the employment agent darkened.) The gentleman for whom I worked (a brillian idea), Minister Propapapadakis, was shot by the new revolutionary government.” (In a jiffy the agent's face was again bright.)

“So, that is excellent, splendid, what was the minister's name? . . . Wait, I'll write a few words of recommendation.”

He did even more, he called up the aritocratic family on the telephone.

Then he asked for two dollars.

Nickles had altogether forgotten this detail.

“Got no money with me now. But it's sure money when I land the job.”

The employment agent seemed used to these things because he didn't put up any objections. He seemed to have a trusting soul, or perhaps there were few workers.

• • • •

BROADMOOR. A white house among sycamores.

At the entrance, two small groups of cherubs with lovely flower garlands. Evidently as a symbol for the innocence of the owner.

As Nickles reached the palace, five dogs suddenly surrounded him. Five howling beasts.

A sharp whistle shrilled thru the air.

The five beasts whimpered and bared their teeth from afar.

Nickles felt himself to be like a mythological hero of ancient Greece his country—among wild beasts.

He didn't have to ring.

“Does Mr. Broidin live here?”

“Yes”—answered the servant who opened the door, and who wore a high collar. Nickles, who was quick-minded decided that the collar was tied around with a narrow black band only to keep the servant's neck from falling out. Later however he realized that he was mistaken.

“I come from the employment agent”—he said and drew the crumpled note of recommendation from his pocket.

“All right.”

Then he announced the fact that he had been footman for Minister Propapapadakis, etc. . . .

The servant tried to pronounce the long name. [illegible]— Prokala— Prosta— But he couldn't get any farther, as his tongue got twisted. He had to content himself to give the report to the Mrs. without giving the name.

Two minutes later the servant came back.

“The Mrs. wants to know if you have references?”

“My reference, I'm sorry to say, had his head cut off . . . But maybe I myself can . . . ?”

He looked at himself in the mirror and wondered if his outward apearance was sufficiently inspiring of confidence. He himself was very much impressed with himself in his second-hand clothes.

The servant went a few more times and came back again, bringing new questions and taking back answers. How long had he been in America; did he possess any papers of any kind, and more of the same sort of thing. To every question he gave unhesitatingly an outspoken lie, and the servant disappeared fully satisfied.

Now there followed a longer interval, during which Nickles felt uneasy. In such intervals the people must be thinking things over, and no good will come of it.

This time his forebodings proved wrong.

The servant came back with a long sheet of paper, containing the list of all the kinds of work assigned to the footman.

“Well, now I want to inform you what your work will be like. Come with me to the kitchen.”

Nickles obeyed.

“Sit down”—the servant said in a friendly manner—“My name is John . . .”

Nickles listened with great astonishment to the account of how many-sided a footman had to be. He was decidedly impressed with the resourcefulness with which Mrs. Broidin distributed the work to cover the whole day. One thing was certain, this many-sidedness was not so richly rewarded by the aristocratic family, for the monthly wage was only forty-five dollars. But on the other hand, there was board, lodging, clothing and other favorable points that ought to be considered.

After the long list had been enumerated John asked whether Nickles was satisfied with the work. The Greek declared that the work which he had to do for Propapapadakis was of an entirely different nature, but he hoped nevertheless, that he would be satisfactory here too.

“When I was workin' for His Excellency, Minister Propapapadakis, I only had to serve the master and mistress and to go along when they went out riding . . .”

“Tya”—John sighed—“don't forget we're in America . . .”

And the cook, a rather elderly woman wearing glasses and with a kindly look nodded:

“Yes, America . . .”

The chambermaid came. In a black dress. She seemed tired and exhausted. She filled a pail with a bored expression.

“That is Marguerite, the chambermaid”—John said.

The two pairs of eyes met each other. To indifferent pairs of eyes.

“I hope you'll stay?” said John.

“I'm going out only for ten minutes”—Marguerite answered with a laugh, and the bored face became lit up with a radiant, with a fresh look of youth.

“No, you can't”—and John explained to Nickles what these “ten minutes” meant.—Recently George had gone out in the evening for “ten minutes” and hadn't come back, and now Marguerite wanted to go out for ten minutes, when she had been there only a week!

Everybody laughed over that.

“When do you want to start work?”—John asked—“Can you bring your things yourself?”

Nickles almost blurted out that he would have no difficulty in bringing the nothing that he possessed. But he thought better of it just in time, for he had arrived at the conviction that on principle one should never tell the truth. He therefore made the following answer:

“Oh, I ain't got many things . . . I'll fetch them in the afternoon . . . I can start in today . . .”

From Broadmoor to the Busy Corner he had to walk it. Fourteen cents is a considerable sum of money, especially for one who hasn't got that much.

Still, by twelve o'clock he would be on the spot.

Pity the Poor Workers - -

By Karl Reeve

THE manufacturers and bankers have grown exceedingly kind to the men and women workers of America, and especially to their children, many of whom are child workers in the country's industries. The government and the employers and financiers have established countless seemingly philanthropic associations, departments, bureaus, clubs, councils and other organizations whose announced purpose is to care for the health, morals, education and training of the workers and their children. Liberal clubs and societies have done their bit by supporting many of these employers' associations.

A Good Investment.

The bosses have learned that the millions of tons of propaganda their organizations spread is a good investment to increase the production of their employes, and consequently their profits. So we have the United States Steel corporation "investing" in safety devices; the boys' republic "investing" in the child. We have investments in health week, safety week, clean up week, education week, child health week, school week and parents' week.

We have the manufacturers investing in gardens, shower baths, recreation rooms, safety guards, physical examinations, insurance, profit sharing plans, parks and athletic fields.

Safeguarding Profits.

And the canny manufacturers know that their investments are coming back to them manifold. The United States Steel corporation has declared an extra large dividend this year (in which President Coolidge, as a stockholder, shared), in spite of the investment in a few safety guards, and the distribution of tons of safety propaganda.

The National Cash Register company of Dayton, Ohio, is still coining millions of dollars a year net profit, in spite of the investment in a few acres of garden land and parks for their employes. The Curtis Publishing company of Philadelphia still pays big profits, despite investment in recreation rooms for the employes. The owners of the Pullman Palace Car company of Chicago are still able to roll in wealth produced by the Pullman workers, even tho the Pullman workers are allowed to play baseball in the "Pullman Park." The Western Electric company made ten million dollars net profit last year despite the hospital maintained for the employes.

To Increase Production.

The hard boiled employers refuse to invest a single dollar in workers' health or anything else, unless they get their dollar back with a high interest. The manufacturers invest in workers' lives in order to increase production, so that the same worker will produce more wealth for them at the same wage.

If some naive worker does not believe this let him look at page 13 of the April 25 issue of the Manufacturers' News, published by the Manufacturers Association "for the manufacturers' officials." The title of the article on page 13 is, "Protecting the Workers' Health—A POLICY WHICH INCREASES PRODUCTIVE POWER."

"Get 'Em Back to Job."

In this article we learn that a certain National Industrial Conference Board, promoted by the factory owners, has made a survey of "health service in industry." We learn that "Industry values the health of its workers." And we learn why! "Employers are concerned over the well being of their employes," says the article. "Much possible damage to health and THE PRODUCTIVE CAPACITY OF BOTH THE INDIVIDUAL WORKER HIMSELF AND THE PRODUCTIVE POWER OF THE NATION AT LARGE IS OBVIATED BY PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS."

The large corporations even supply visiting nurses to sick workers, we learn, and care is taken of the injured employes, not to benefit the working class, but, to quote the article again, "With a view to cutting short the period of illness and returning the worker to his job as soon as possible."

After reading this article, if the worker still thinks that the employers are interested in the welfare of the working class, or that the numerous bosses' organizations raise the standard of living of the working class, let him recall the following facts.

Let the worker recall that the steel corporation, with its investment in workers' safety, pays wages of only 44 cents an hour; that the steel trust will not tolerate a union, operating a thoro and complete spy system to discover and fire employes who are advocating a union whereby the workers may raise the standard of living conditions.

Let his recall that the Pullman company, notwithstanding its athletic park, has recently increased the hours of labor and lowered the wages; that the Western Electric company, paying a wage of 30 cents an hour and in some cases lower, has, within the last six months thrown 20,000 workers on the street, jobless, and in many cases, hired back the same workers at shorter pay.

Backbone of Open Shop.

Another point must not be forgotten, these corporations which are in the forefront of the "employes' welfare" movement, are the backbone of the open shop in this country. The Curtis Publishing company of Philadelphia, which boasts of its modern buildings and recreation rooms, is the record union smasher—together with the Baldwin locomotive works—in Philadelphia. The publishers of the Saturday Evening Post, preaching the blessings of the profit system, hire young girls at $15 a week to do the bulk of their work, and ruthlessly break efforts of the workers to organize for a living wage. And so it is with all the large corporations which prate about workers' welfare.

Communists for Workers.

There IS an organization in America which is interested in the welfare of the working class, and there is an organization which is promoting the welfare of the working class youth of this country. These are the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers (Communist) League. And strangely enough the employers who rant about workers' welfare seem to be extremely jealous of these two organizations.

The reaction of the employers to the Communist campaigns in the interests of the workers reveals the hypocrisy, and the true purpose of the bosses' workers' welfare bunk.

Plutes for Child Labor.

While the Workers Party and the Young Workers League were waging a strenuous campaign not only for the passage of the amendment to empower congress to prohibit child labor, but for the governmental maintenance of the working class children of school age as well, John Glenn, secretary of the manufacturers' association, and editor of the Manufacturers' News which emits workers' welfare bunk, was stumping the country and spending millions of dollars to defeat the child labor amendment and keep the child slaves toiling in America's factories. And this same association was at the same time spreading propaganda against the Communists because they were fighting to overthrow the profit system and for the seizure of power by the working class, after which there will be no child labor.

The bosses like associations for children when these associations can pass laws, as in Delaware, forcing the teacher to read five verses of the bible daily in the public schools, and dope the minds of the children about a heavenly life after death while their parents are starving at home.

What Bosses Like.

They like educational associations when they can pass laws, as in Tennessee, prohibiting the teaching of the truths of science in the public schools, sending teachers to jail when they tell the children of Darwin and evolution.

They like associations like the International Council of Women, now meeting in Washington, which can go into ecstacies against the spanking of children by parents, but cannot raise a finger to force the government to abolish child labor. They like other "liberal" organizations, dare not protest against the silence of Coolidge, and his bosses' government, at the needs of the workers.

The "liberal" welfare organizations, taking their cue from the Wall Street government and the manufacturers' welfare organizations, meet as did the Women Voters' League in Richmond a few days ago, to discuss a Utopian marriage law, and end up by indorsing Coolidge's "arms conference" plan to further gouge plunder from the workers of Europe.

Fight Against "Open Shop."

The Workers Party leads the workers in their fight against the open shop, against wage cuts, against long hours, against the speed-up system, against the militarization of the public school system. The workers rally around the Communists in their demand for the recognition of Soviet Russia, the workers' government, for the amalgamation of the craft unions, for the abolition of the system of exploitation and the establishment of the rule of the working class.

A Bosses' Government.

The "liberal" welfare organizations and the workers' welfare associations of the employers are put out to dupe the worker into forgetting his miserable working and living conditions, to dope him with false morals and loyalty to his bosses and his bosses' government.

The strikes of the Negro students at Fisk University and now at Howard University, the protest against the imprisonment of the Communist soldiers at Hawaii, the strikes against wage cuts and the open shop, the demand for independent political action of the working class, all these prove that the worker is not as easy to fool by these fake "welfare" organizations thrown out by the bosses.

The workers are rapidly discovering that the Communists are right when they say that there is only one class that can aid the workers to a better life thru more power—and that is the working class itself.

Paving the Way for Class Collaboration

By ARNE SWABECK.

In their reckless destruction of the effectiveness and fighting ability of the union the officials of District 5, United Mine Workers, are now attempting to expel all militant members from the organization and thus prevent any further exposure of their mismanagement and spurious pretense of opposition to the efforts of the coal operators to enforce the 1917 scale.

Viewed together with the attacks made upon members duly elected to certain offices within District 12, Illinois, who have declared themselves as Communists, it becomes clear that a well-planned and centralized drive has been launched to eliminate the real fighters from the organization and pave the way for the policy of collaboration with the operators.

On April 21, James Oates, president of Local 4546, was ordered expelled from the union by District 5 executive board after having been notified to appear to answer to charges placed against him. On May 4 Tom Ray, member of Local 2012, appeared, upon summons, before the board. He refused to answer to any charges or concede the officials the right to place him on trial. That the board will assume the same arrogant position as taken towards Oates and also order the expulsion of Tom Ray is not the least in doubt as both are well known militants leading the progressive movement of the district.

The excuse furnished to cover this high handed action is based on a motion carried at a packed district convention held in March, 1924. This motion threatened expulsion of any member participating in any kind of a conference not sanctioned by the official family. One such conference was held March 15 to consider means of relief for the Moundsville prisoners. However, this relief work is a story which has become an integral part of the miners' progressive movement of district 5, the details of which are briefly as follows.

Growing out of the Cliftonville march during the strike 1922, when several hundred Pennsylvania miners crossed the border to West Virginia to urge complete solidarity of their fellow workers, 43 men were sent to prison. When brought to trial, five pleaded not guilty and were given heavy sentences. Upon advise of the district officials with intimations of early release, the rest of the men, when later brought to tral, pleaded guilty and were given sentences from three to five years. They soon found they were left in the lurch, no real efforts were made by the officials to secure the early release. But a vigorous rank and file movement sweeping the locals finally opened the jail doors for 26 of these men.

The militant miners have repeatedly exposed the base hypocrisy and the miserable role played by the whole official family in its betrayals of the heroic efforts of the rank and file workers to establish complete solidarity during the 1922 strike. They have exposed the deals made and the swelling of the bank accounts of those board members placed in trusteeship of relief funds for the coke region miners. They have exposed the corruptness of the district office in handling relief funds to the miners who were out in the crucible strike. Accounts of funds distributed were padded from $20.00 to $40.00 a week per family. Local Union 4546, of Charleroi, Pa., on Feb. 22, 1925, at a special meeting to which delegates of other locals as well as the district officials were invited to attend, made these charges public. This meeting decided to call the conference held in Pittsburgh, Pa., March 15 and the district officials were again invited to be present, but failed to appear at either meeting.

While about 50 delegates representing almost as many local unions attended that conference the officials had meanwhile got busy circularizing the district with dire threats of expulsion of all who should decide to participate. The old motion passed at the eleventh hour at the packed convention a year ago, branding this and all such meetings as "dual" and slating for expulsion not only those who participate, but also those who give aid in any way, was dug up for the purpose.

The conference went ahead with its work planned to circularize petitions for the pardon of the Moundsville prisoners, to gather funds for relief of their families and elected a publicity committee to further this work. It also went on record urging that the local unions themselves take action on the charges, publicly made, of misappropriation of funds by the district convention to bring impeachment proceedings. This demand is now growing in volume as the resolution passes from local to local.

Charges were preferred in local 4546 against James Oates for having attended the conference. After the man who presented the charges had been compelled to admit that they were framed by the district officials the local refused to even consider the matter. Likewise in the case of Tom Ray whose local vindicated him of the charges made. Both locals had thus decided and in both instances their decisions were appealed to the district board. Very soon the board showed its hands in flagrant defiance of the constitution of the organization It did not take the matter up for adjustment with the locals, the decision of which had been appealed, but ordered these two members to appear before its meetings to take action against them individually. They hoped to get rid of two militant opponents who had always made it a point to rally the rank and file membership for the building and strengthening of the organization and for a fight against any encroachments of the operators. Naturally the both locals refused to become the tools of any such dirty dealings and refuse to carry out the dictates made in violation of their constitution.

While P. T. Fagan and the other lackeys of John L. Lewis are uniting their cunning abilities to fight those who give life to the union and make it an easy prey for the operators, union mines are being closed down and the miners constantly swell the ranks of the unemployed army. The Pittsburgh Coal company alone, in one month, closed 22 of its mines. What do the union officials propose to do for these unemployed miners? There is no sign of any move. As long as the bureaucrats have enough in the treasuries to keep up their fat salaries they have no personal worries and don't give a hang for the rank and file miners. If times get real bad they will turn to the operators for their reward or perhaps begin looking around for a soft birth in a so-called labor bank or labor union insurance company.

So while John L. Lewis is carrying on a counterfeit campaign of organization in northern West Virginia where mines are being closed down while the southern part of that state and eastern Kentucky are rapdly being developed as the coal mining center of the nation on the one hundred per cent American plan, with low wages, long hours and armed company guards his lieutenants are busy pulling the props from under. The terrific destruction wrought can be mended only by sweeping them all out of office and establishing a militant leadership with a policy of fight against the exploiters.

Fighting the Famine in Ireland

By Robert Stewart

IN 1897 there was a partial famine in Ireland just as there is this year. The English government then acted exactly as the Free State government is acting today. Thru its official press it denied famine and minimized distress. In the house of commons when confronted by the Irish M. Ps. with the names of the people who had died of starvation, Mr. Balfour jocosely asked if the Irish expected him to supply the peasants with champagne. Today Minister McGilligan in the Free State Dail, replying to the labor T. D., admitted that there would be deaths from starvation in Ireland, but added, it was not the business of the Dail to provide work for the people and the sooner they realized this the better.

I WAS in Mayo during the last big election, and in some of the homes I visited while canvassing, there was no food. Women told me they had not broken their fast that day. The woman showed me a bit of dry bread she was giving to a sick child, and said it had been given her by a neighbor, and I saw that the sugar bowl was quite empty. Hunger is written on the thin faces of the crowds of unemployed men standing listlessly about the streets. They will tell you "we want work" and turn away ashamed lest you should take them for beggars. Except the professional beggars who follow you around promising prayers, no one asks for alms. The people are very proud and very sensitive, and try to hide their poverty as if it were a disgrace. Only when someone is ill, or when the crying of the children for food becomes too intolerable some woman will burst forth and tell the truth. How they are maintaining existence on the relief that is being given them is a question that I have not been able to solve. Four shilling per week for a widow with seven children! No wonder the children are naked under the outer ragged garment, no wonder consumption is rife.

WHAT makes the danger of the present situation is that the shops also by giving credit have tided the people over many bad years, are themselves in bad straits and are able to give credit no longer.

This is the second bad harvest following on the disorganization caused by the war. In Charlestown and Swinford this is plainly evident, if one looks at the empty shelves, and the shop windows filled with dummy boxes and empty bottles, and notes the general air of depression. Many of the shop-keepers are on the verge of bankruptcy, they are going "wallop" in the local expression.

IN Ballina which is one of the most prosperous trading towns of the West and where the depletion of stocks is not so evident, I saw women from the country in shawls, buying tea by the ounce and sugar by the quarter pound, and meal by the pound, and so ashamed and so timid, fearing anyone should notice the tiny marketing, and still more fearful that their credit was outrun and that they would meet with a refusal.

Tho the roads are such as to make motor traveling exciting, little is being done to repair them. In some places, however, the Free State government has opened relief works just before the election. Three shilling four pence per day seemed to be the average pay, and compared to the one shilling per day given by the English it looked good; but the rate of living has trebled in Ireland since 1897, and the English gave work six days a week and did not make relief work conditional on belonging to any political organization while the Free State authorities generally only provide two or three days' work a week and make employment conditional on the man first paying one shilling and joining the Cumann-na-Gael organization. In cases where the man was too poor to pay the one shilling, eggs were taken in lieu of payment to the Free State party fund.

THe famine is partial and curiously patchy. It was the same in 1897. In Killala for instance, and in Ballycastle last year's potato crop was splendid and farmers have seed to sell. In Portacloy, and other places not forty miles distant it has failed completely and the people have been able to sow no seed. The oat crop on which their poultry industry so largely depends was also a failure, and the hens are dying for want of food. Seed oats and seed potatoes are the urgent need if an even worse famine is to be avoided.

After the famine in 1897 fish curing stations were put up at Belderring and others of the worst districts so that the people might salt the fish so plentiful along the coast. Fishing used to be the main industry of the people. Today the fish curing stations are closed. There are no fish. During the Anglo-Irish war and since the Free State came into existence, the English steam trawlers have been allowed to come right into the coast within the prohibited 3-mile area. With their large nets and powerful engines they have, as the poor fishermen say, "dragged the bottom out of the sea," in other words, they have destroyed the spawning beds, and now there are no fish, the little fishing boats are idle and the nets have rotted. An inspector of fisheries told me that it would take five years probably for the fishing to recover, even if the English trawlers were now to be kept outside the coastal area. The Free State evidently fears antagonizing their English masters, and makes no effort to protect the fisheries. The Helga, the gunboat used by the English to shell Dubini in 1916, has been taken over by the Free State for the protection of the coast, but the English captain is still retained and it is not likely he will be disagreeable to his own countrymen. An occasional little French fishing boat is caught and fined, but the big English trawlers who are doing all the damage are left in peace to ruin the fishing grounds on which the life of the western seaboard depends. This means that whenever, like this year, there is a partial failure of the potato crop, it means actual famine and people dying of starvation, and amongst the children only the fittest survive. Emigration goes up. The English colonies where conditions are hard, and cheap labor is wanted, profit thereby.

AS I returned in the train from Mayo, at each station I heard the emigrant "keane." All who travel by the western line know it, and it is hard to forget. It tears one's very heart out. The crying of the mothers as the train bears off their dearest to foreign slavery, the shrill cry of the old people who know they will never see the bright boys and girls who are going again, the "keane" echoes right along the line as the train steams away, to be taken up at the next station where more emigrants are waiting.

The emigrant "keane" which had almost ceased during the war when the republic brot hope to the people, is echoing wildly again thru the Free State.

At the Workers' International Relief committee I have seen letters telling of the conditions in Donegal, letters from people like P. Gallagher of Dungloe (Paddy McCope) from which it is evident that things are quite as bad there as in Mayo. Col. O'Callaghan Westhropp's statement at the farmers' congress described alarming conditions in Clare. The Irish Times had an article published from a correspondent contradicting this, but a few days later had to admit everything as far as the wiping out of the cattle and the desperate need of the small farmers.

The Role of the City and Land Workers

to the land," or "by the land and for the land," or "land for peasant families," etc. A whole literature has developed on this theme.

The discussion contains something that is of interest. There is a tendency, for example, which says more output. We must have large industrial farms. This is one of the orientations of the bourgeoisie. But, the overwhelming majority of the agrarians, say: "No! That's all very well from the standpoint of the immediate increase of output; but from our class standpoint, we must not advocate this. We must not permit such proletarians to be produced in large masses. From the social standpoint, we are on the contrary, for settling larger numbers of peasants." In France, numerous attempts were made to substitute the large number of agricultural workers who have been attracted from the land to the towns by foreigners: Poles, Czechs, Italians, etc., who very frequently obtain small grants of land, in order at the same time to extend agriculture and to secure a firmer social foundation.

IN Germany also, an analogous controversy is going on between one wing, which has a strong agrarian color, and another which is less agrarian in character.

I quote these facts in order to show that the bourgeoisie is conducting the united front tactics consciously and deliberately, not merely by means of fine phrases, as we often do.

A very precise formulation of the united front tactics as conducted by the bourgeoisie, is given in an American financial newspaper. This paper says to the farmers:[*] "The demagogues (i.e., the Communists), propose that you adopt united front tactics with the working class. The idea of united front tactics is a good one, the farmers stand in need of such tactics, of political assistance, but they should seek this with the big banks, with Big Business." This is a very precise formulation of the idea of the united front tactics with the peasantry, against the proletariat. How did they carry these tactics out? The tactics are expressed in various concession made by the bourgeoisie to the peasantry and take various forms. First of all there are the agrarian reforms in backward countries. These reforms are not very extensive, we must fight against them and advocate greater and more extensive revolutionary demands, but these reforms exist and sometimes are very cleverly introduced. For example, the peasants in the border districts are first given small grants of land intended for distribution; then another small section of the peasantry and then a third, and by this means the expectations and the hopes of the entire peasantry that their position will improve, are kept alive. That is how they keep the peasantry in hand. The situation is different in Roumania, where these reforms are not carried out so cleverly. Nevertheless, the bourgeoisie has managed to win over a section of the peasantry to its side. The second question arising out of these tactics, is that of agricultural credits for co-operative societies. In the formal aspect we have the same problem in Russia, but, from the standpoint of the class character and historical aims, the position is somewhat different. The whole weight is placed on the agricultural credits. The organizational form is the agricultural society.

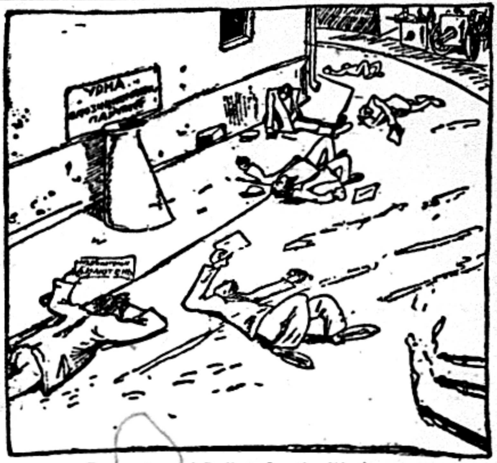
I WILL give you a small example: the agrarian and peasant organizations in Germany have their own banks which are closely connected with the biggest banks in the country. In Finland the co-operative societies are concentrated in two private banks. In the United States of America, the farmers on the one hand, are ruined by the trusts and by the financiers. On the other hand the latter give considerable financial aid to the farmers and in this way, hold them in power. Another form of united front tactics on the economic field is the demand for protective tariffs, by which during the agrarian crisis, the landlords were able to draw the peasantry into their sphere of influence.

I spoke here of the methods of the united front tactics of the bourgeoisie towards the peasantry. If we do not shut our eyes to this danger, we must realize that a new orientation is needed in the Communist Parties. The main error of Trotskyism consists in the under-estimation of the peasant question. When many comrades who raise a hue and cry against Trotskyism still hold to their wrong standpoint in this question, I say that this is an impossible attitude.

WE of the Russian Communist Party have tried to find the right standpoint and we have found it. That is one of our main reasons for fighting against Trotskyism, and that is why the other parties must do the same if they say that they want to oppose Trotskyism. Their foremost task is then to adopt the right attitude towards the peasant question, and what is more, not to swerve from the right political line of policy.

What then are the prejudices which exist in the Communist Parties against the right attitude? I think that these prejudices are mainly based on narrow guild ideology of the workers in the industrial countries. Thus, for instance some time ago, I had a conversation with a very fine German comrade, and in the course of the conversation he said to me: "What do you expect to achieve with this workers' and peasants' government. No one will have anything to do with this slogan." Now what does such a saying mean from the viewpoint of our prognosis? It means that we must concentrate all our energies on overcoming this ideology.

Imperialist Democracy in the Balkans



Bayonets and Bullets for the Workers.

LENIN said once that most of the mistakes made during struggles and in the revolution arose because slogans and devices, as well as the whole orientation which suited one epoch, are mechanically transferred to another epoch. In the earlier epoch of capitalism, the main question of our prognosis was: how will capitalism develop? Who will get the upper hand, big or small industries? What will be the process of differentiation among the former peasantry? How long will capitalism continue to develop in this way? The role of the fight was: whatever hinders the development of capitalism must cease to exist. We must do away with all the obstacles in the way of the proletariat. This was the general orientation. But today when we are confronted with utterly different tasks: conquest of political power, overthrow of capitalism, when we no longer pay attention to the prognosis, such an orientation is utterly wrong.

Formerly, the principle of organization was: the establishment of one's own class is the main task. This was almost everything to us. But in the epoch when we are confronted by the task of conquering political power, the question of allies is one of the main questions of the entire policy.

In the epoch of conquest of political power, there is nothing more damnable than this narrow psychology. No matter how we embellish it, objectively it is opportunism.

COMRADES, in what does Trotskyism consist? Among other things it consists of: "More proletarian," "more industrial," "not too much turning one's face to the villages." And this implies the risk of breaking up the workers' and peasants' bloc, consequently, the risk of destroying proletarian dictatorship.

It is just the viewpoint: "Why should I bother about these villagers?" which is the essence of Trotskyist opportunism, even if it flies proletarian colors.

In my draft theses all the great questions of the agrarian and peasant policy are considered from three main viewpoints.

1. Long before the conquest of political power.
2. Immediately before the conquest of political power.
3. After the conquest of political power.

THE failure to understand these changes was the main error of the preceding period. We have always asserted against the views of the reformists—and our assertion was right then and is now right—that industry and agriculture on a large scale is economically more rational. We would be reactionaries if we hindered its development. But if for instance, before the conquest and immediately after the conquest of power we point blank refuse to break up big agricultural concerns to divide part of them among the peasantry for the only reason that they are economically more profitable, we lose the entire revolution.

In this conection, I will mention the most striking of this, namely the examples of the Hungarian revolution. I maintain that we have not made the fullest possible use of this example given us by the Hungarian comrades. It would be very useful for all Communist Parties to read the books, documents and declarations referring to it and to try to understand what happened there. One is justified in saying that the main cause of the defeat of the Hungarian revolution was the agrarian question, the utterly inadmissable policy of our Hungarian comrades in this question.

THE position in Hungary was such that 72 per cent of all owners—peasants and big agrarians possessed only 15 per cent of the total amount of land. To set free large territories was absolutely necessary under such circumstances. Instead of winning over the peasantry socially, bringing it over to the side of the proletariat, creating thus a strong base in the midst of the peasantry and arousing enthusiasm within the Red Army for the purpose of overcoming the resistance of the peasants, a different policy was indulged in. No land was parcelled out on the plea that big agricultural concerns are technically more rational. A very interesting declaration was issued which was laid down before the meeting of the workers' councils by the Communist Party. The peasantry had revolted, the proletariat stood in need of an ally and now comes the Communist Party and says in this declaration that it would be utterly wrong to divide the big estates, as this would only strengthen private ownership. With such a policy, proletarian dictatorship was supported in a way to allow the former big landowners to be again in full possession of their former property. Even if we admit that the forces were inadequate and that were other reasons for the loss of power we would now have a strong reserve in the peasantry, if our action had been different at that time. The peasants would say: after all the Communists gave us the land, it is true that the landowners took it away from us, but the Communists are fine fellows nevertheless. This would be of course a great argument for us. But the recollection of such a declaration is a great disadvantage. Under such difficult circumstances, a proletariat without alliance was deemed to be the loser. But it is an interesting fact that some Hungarian comrades fail to understand this even today. In 1919, namely, about five years ago even Comrade Varga failed to understand what he of course understands today. But Comrade Hevesi does not understand it even now. We have statements from him in the organ of our Peasant International which are supposed to be a justification of that policy. He says that the situation in Russia is utterly different from the situation in Hungary. In Hungary it was a case of a small country with a higher industrial development than in Russia, and the small industrial workers had to live. A big revenue from agriculture was required, and this could only be achieved thru big agricultural concerns. He writes as follows: "Our mistake consisted only in not doing our utmost to impress social consciousness and especially the consciousness of the peasants with the correctness of this viewpoint."

"CONSCIOUSNESS" so to speak in the Hegelian sense, is rather good for Hungarian peasants. But the main thing is that they give nothing to the peasants, and we know that to give nothing or very little weighs heavier in the scales of history than some kind of consciousness. This applies of course in a much fuller measure to the peasantry. The Hungarian Soviet government is really a great lesson to us. We have spoken at our congress about Italy and Poland, and I think it would be as well to publish all documents from the history of Hungary as well as from the history of the revolutionary developments in Italy and Poland and also in Russia.

Comrades, we must not forget the situation here previous to the October revolution: enormous revolutionary ferment among the peasantry. Two hundred and forty-two peasant demands formulated at various meetings were sent to Moscow and Petersburg from different parts of Russia. They included many stupid utopian demands, which of course we saw at once. But nevertheless we declared to the peasantry that immediately after the conquest of political power we would put their demands into law. We supported these demands and as soon as political power was in our hands we passed them into law.

AS far as production and technique go, we probably lost by it, but this was the price we paid for victory and thru which we consolidated the dictatorship and achieved the bloc between the peasantry and the working class. Thus, we must study the negative experiences of the Hungarian revolution, the negative Italian experiences and the positive experiences of the October revolution. I am of the opinion that in order to make an end of all skepticism and in conection with this question the Communist Parties must make a careful study of these lessons in order to realize that the peasant question is not a secondary question, but a most important strategical task without solution of which victory is impossible.

In studying the present conditions in the village (in the widest sense of this word) we must first of all admit that a change has taken place after the war in the mutual relations between town and country.

Marx once said: the changes in the relations between town and country are a sign of changes in the whole epoch. This is perfectly correct. The development of capitalism meant inequality between town and country, and the present period has also specific features as far as relations between town and countryside are concerned. We notice that the relative importance of the village with relation to the town has increased. From the standpoint of economy, agriculture with the relation to industry plays today a greater role than before the war. From the standpoint of class: the agrarians, the peasantry play today relatively (not absolutely) a more important role than the urban class. And therefore, also from the standpoint of politics: the influence and the political power of the village is greater than before.

THE second important phenomenon on this field is the agrarian crisis which has already been dealt with in Zinoviev's report and in Varga's speech.

The third phenomenon connected with it is the growth of peasant activity in all countries without exception.

And the fourth fact of a social nature is the fact of the differentiation of the peasantry and its organizations. These are the specific features and the most important phenomenon of this situation.

Because of this situation there are the differences in the peasant movement which we have to record. The differences between the big agrarians and the peasants.

Another set of differences are those within the peasantry itself. All these differences give us an opportunity to make use of the situation and to draw proper political conclusions. These differences develop in various forms. The difference between the peasants and big agrarians follows in backward countries the line of agrarian reform. This is the struggle for land. The gulf between the peasantry and the bourgeoisie in the so-called civilized countries follows two main lines, on the one hand it follows the line of taxation policy and on the other hand, the line of economic policy—of syndicates and trusts. The third feature of the situation is the war peril.

ALL this represents an objective basis for our policy. We have only to take advantage of the differences between the big landowners and the peasants in the backward countries to get a revolutionary solution of the agrarian question in the chief sense of the word. In connection with questions of taxation, corn prices and prices for manufactured articles, we must use the slogan of joint struggle against trust capital.

Comrades, I must declare here most emphatically that in some Communist Parties it has not yet been understood that we must go to the peasants with wholly empiric, wholly concrete demands. The social democrats and the bourgeoisie on the other hand proceed with concrete demands, and this makes a great impression on the peasants. The Communist Parties must not ignore these partial demands. On the contrary, in this respect we can give much more, but we must associate all partial demands with our revolutionary prospects. This is the main thing as far as we are concerned.

What is the best method to rouse the peasants against the bourgeois state? Evidently the taxation problems. Taxation policy is the policy of the state. When the peasants protest against the burden of taxation they protest against the state. It is the most important thing for us to bring the peasants into conflict with the bourgeois state. Taxation policy and the Communist demands in connection with it, that is the most important bridge to bring over the peasants from the standpoint of love for the bourgeois state to the standpoint of hatred of the bourgeois state.

THERE are comrades who hold the view that by decreasing the burden of taxation for the peasantry we are increasing it for the workers. This is a very bad argument. The contrary is the case; it is because the poor and middle class peasantry is as interested in the lowering of the taxes as the working class that we must march together. The same applies to prices for manufactured articles. One of the most important causes of the problem of the scissors is the policy of the monopolist organs of capitalism. The solgan of struggle against monopolist capitalism, against cartel profits in the form of struggle for lower prices for manufactured articles is well adapted to bring together the forces of the peasants and the workers.

It is the same with the struggle against the war peril.

On the strength of this situation, we witness now various movements within the peasantry, movements of various types, revolutionary agrarian movements, movements based on the agrarian crisis, etc. A specific form was the farmer movement in the U. S. A., where close on a third of the farmers were ruined. Then there are movements based on bad harvests, as for instance in some parts of Germany. An important chapter in the history of movements are colonial movements. There are also various mixed kinds of movements. But there is no doubt whatever that the magnitude, the intensity, the social weight of these movements has been on the ascendant of late. Moreover, the differentiation process within the peasant association has been a general feature. This process takes place in all countries where peasant organizations exist.

I have already described the situation on this field. In all countries, except in the colonies, the leadership of the peasant organizations was in the hands of the big agrarians and big peasants. Lately we witness a process of differentiation and splitting off of the organizations of the small peasants, dwarf farmers, etc. In Bulgaria there is a fairly big left wing within the former Stambolisky union, in Czecho-Slovakia there are the so-called independent small owners (domoviny), and we see similar phenomena in Germany, Poland, France, etc.

This kind of differentiation in the peasant organizations is an incontrovertible fact. Here we are confronted with various questions of propaganda, agitation and organization.

In connection with peasant organizations we must take into consideration various types and various possibilities. Where organizations already exist they probably exist in two different forms, in the form of a political party and in the form of the so-called peasant federation. I think that our tactics with respect to the already existing organizations, must generally speaking, consist in supporting the left wings of these organizations or in forming a bloc with them. The form and methods depend on various circumstances. In how far and when we should split off these left wings also depends on specific circumstances. The characteristic feature of all these organizations is that they embrace a variety of social elements from the big agrarians down to the agricultural laborer. This is even noticeable in organizations which have split off, for even they embrace various sections of peasants. We must support the left organizations within the party and the federations. But when necessary must not be afraid of causing splits.

BUT the most important question is, which form of organization we should give preference to when the initiative is ours. Not the form of a political party, I think, but the form of a peasant federation. Political parties are not suitable for various reasons. For instance, this would mean the adherence of our party must be on the one hand members of the Communist Party and on the other hand members of another party. We would also have only Communist groups, among the peasants, only a federation and not an extensive peasant organization. We have no need for Communist peasant sects, little groups. We must capture and organize the large numbers of dwarf farmers and small peasants. For this the form of the peasant union is much more suitable. We need not offer these peasants the full Communist program. We do not want to bring about a state of Communist constipation. We must bring forward elementary demands, we must be much more radical than any other organization, we must give this organization great scope and must establish our influence thru the activity of our party comrades. If necessary we can form fractions in this organization. But under certain circumstances, the organization can be under our influence even without fractions. Thus the form of a peasant union and not of political parties is the most suitable form. Some of our parties have already been successful in this direction. But in comparison with the great task which is before us, these are only the first timid steps on the way to the capture of the masses.

COMRADES, I should like also to say something about the specific problem of the relations between the working class and the peasantry in Russia. But I think it will be more expedient to deal with it in my report on the Russian party discussion.

I reiterate, it is a fact that very little study goes on in our parties. And yet this is the most elementary necessity.

The bourgeoisie understands the problem much better, it studies more and is much more efficient on this field than the Communist Parties.

I close my report by expressing the wish and the hope that after this session of the Enlarged Executive and after the theses on the Bolshevization of the party, all Communist parties and the Communist International will become truly Bolshevized and will above all turn their attention to the agrarian and peasant question, applying the Leninist policy on this field. (Loud applause.)

effect of the sudden deflation of present prices by even ten per cent, but we are bound to say, assuming an immediate change to be inevitable, that authorities advising Churchill appear to have adopted the best possible method." The London Daily Mail says: "The public has not forgotten how completely financiers' predictions of benefits from the Dawes plan have been belied by events. Are the financiers going to show themselves better prophets now?"

There are ominous fears of the British industrial capitalists that the change will bring them a sharpening of friction with the British working class. The newest effort at stabilization throws again into sharp relief the fact that "stabilization" is at the expense of deeper enslavement of the working class and carries the germs of its own destruction. In considering the possibility of France following the lead in establishing the gold standard, the question seems to the French bourgeois to hinge upon a sharp reduction of wages, while in England it is already said that prices will have to be sharply lowered as a consequence of the re-adoption of the gold standard, and that therefore the British labor bull will have to be fought for a reduction of wages.

British Labor.

And here we come to the question of the different layers of the British working class—for the working class also has different layers. The dominant MacDonaldism of the labor party is a reflection of the privileged position of the higher-paid "labor aristocracy" which holds the political views of the petty-bourgeoisie and supports British imperialism, not thru some unaccountable accident, but because it has enjoyed a little share of the spoils of imperialist exploitation of the colonies. The cracking of the British colonial empire undermines the privileged position of the upper layers of the working class and precipitates them toward the really proletarian ranks and the proletarian outlook.

THE growth of the left wing of the British labor party—and the willingness of the trade unions to enter into relations with the trade unions of Russia for world trade union unity—all this is also intimately connected with the impossibility of the dream of permanent stabilization.

All will not be happy in this shot-gun marriage of British capitalism with American capitalism. The bitterest fight is provided for in the very fact of the marriage ceremony—and this is the age of international divorces.

The new housekeeping arrangements will begin, and will last for a time—and then the break-up. The 2,000,000 unemployed in England, the frightful stagnation of industry, with the only way out a struggle between capitalist England and America for redivision of the subject territories for exploitation—all this promises that the shot-gun marriage will not last to a silver wedding.

Meantime it is a time for the fast work of our British comrades and ourselves to build up our Communist Parties. In England, to develop the minority movement, in America to do the parallel thing as well as the more primitive task of drawing the working class out of political alliance with the capitalists class and into independent political action and class consciousness.

MUSSOLINI must be slipping dangerously, when a member of the toothless liberal party sums up sufficient courage to stick his index finger under the blackshirt chief's nasal organ and get away with it. The most distressing feature of the situation, from the Mussolini point of view is that the capitalist papers in other countries which extolled the assassin leader while he was riding on the crest of the wave, now praise him with faint compliments to his courage, tho confessing that his future prospects do not look brgiht.

IN criticising Mussolini, the liberal leader pointed out that the policy of repression was breeding rebellion, not only against the fascist regime, but against the social order. Capitalism, no matter how represented governmentally, will breed rebellion, but it is obvious that the open dictatorship of Mussolini feeds the fires of revolt more generously, that does the spurious democracy which prevails in this and other countries. It is because the capitalists have learned that a continuation of the fascist regime may result in a political and social Vesuvius, that Mussolini is politely patted on the back and told to take a sleep for himself.

WHILE this sad tale of a declining dictatorship is being told in one corner of the capitalist press, a combination journalist and stoolpigeon by the name of Paul Scott Mowrer is syndicating a series of fairy tales on Soviet Russia, from Paris. But whatever else Mowrer says, he does not predict the speedy collapse of the Soviet power or the Communist leadership of that country. It is there to stay for a long, long, long time, he wails. It looks that way. There are dictatorships and dictatorships, the kind that try to swim against the current of evolution and the kind that travels with it.

• • •

THE All-Russian Soviet Congress opens and Leon Trotsky is back in Moscow. Big problems confront the Soviet government. Running one-sixth of the earth's surface is no child's task, particularly when the rest of the world is in the hands of professional burglars who cannot keep their fingers out of their neighbor's pockets. Two dispatches appear in the same column of a Chicago capitalist paper which tell a story. One recites the opening of the Soviet congress. The other announces that the British government is prepared to make war on Bolshevik propaganda within the empire.

• • •

THE last British aristocrat to get funny with the Soviet government, is now reposing underneath a pile of good marble. His name was Curzon. He threatened to make war on Russia unless the Communists stopped spreading Bolshevist propaganda in India. British rule in India is the best propagandist for revolution. The Hindus will never be satisfied until the British forces are driven out of their country. Curzon did not make war on Russia. His successors may, but at their peril. The tories will have to reckon with the British working class.

RMEN LOSE TO OPEN SHOP IN CLEVELAND

Fakers Stopped Men Striking Too Often

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 10.—Street car conductors and motormen voted against a strike here Saturday. The company had declared an open shop and refused to compromise. This is the net result of the betrayal by international union officers a year ago.

Votes were cast at the barns after a deadlock between the company and union officials. A two-thirds majority was needed to empower the officials to call a strike. The vote was 1,115 for and 1,352 against strike.

Open Shop Wins by Fakers' Betrayal

The position of the men now is that they must work under open shop conditions at 65 cents an hour as the highest, altho they had formerly been awarded 72 cents by an arbitration board. When the company ignored the board's decision, the union officers, instead of allowing the men to strike, as they wanted to do, took the case to the capitalist courts.

The courts threw out the arbitration board's decision. The Ohio supreme court refused to review the case and handed down a decision practically outlawing contracts with unions in public utilittes.

Capitalist Court Against Union.

John J. Stanley, company president, then paid the men 65 cents an hour, a five-cent raise, beginning May 1. The union offered a compromise by which the men would accept the open shop in exchange for a ten cent raise, or 70 cents an hour.

Stanley declared such a contract would be illegal. Of course, he would not do anything illegal, and the supreme court decision would be violated. The men then voted on the following question distributed on ballots at the barns:

The Ballot.

"The company refuses to enter a contract with Division 268, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America. Are you willing to cease work if necessary to support your organization?"

The power to call strike was refused. The men fear a strike would fail today. Stanley, who is so "law observing" has guards and scabs in readiness and armored cars were being prepared.

Didn't Want to Inconvenience the G. O. P.

This is an outgrowth of the treachery shown by the union officers in June, 1924, during the republican party convention. The men then were prepared for and demanded a strike. But the officials counseled "discre-

RAILWAY CLERK'S FIND FITZGERALD CROOKED IN 'LABOR' BANK BUSINESS

KANSAS CITY, May 10.—Charges of misconduct in office against E. H. Fitzgerald, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers and Express and Station Employes, were sustained here late Friday, by the brotherhood's annual convention.

The charges grew out of an attempt of President Fitzgerald to organize an investment company in connection with the brotherhood bank in Cincinnati.

The convention voted 819 to 682 to sustain action of the grand executive board last July in finding President Fitzgerald guilty.

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, HONOLULU, Hawaii, May 10.—The Associated Press is America's greatest misinformer. In an A. P. In part it reads: "Private Paul Crouch, 21st Infantry, has been sentenced to 40 years' imprisonment and dishonorable discharge from the army, and two other soldiers, Walter Trumbull and Walter Ardeau have been dishonorably discharged. Crouch was accused with being the ringleader of the 'Hawaiian Communist plot' as head of the Hawaiian Communist League. COMINTERN'S STATEMENT ON BULGAR BLAST

Communists Opposed to Individual Terror

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, April 23—(By Mail)—The executive of the Communist International has issued the following statements: "Forgeries and liens are becoming more and more the tool of the enemies of the Comintern. Month for month, and more recently even week for week, ever more clumsy forgeries of alleged letters, instructions, decisions, and other "documents" ascribed to the executive of the Comintern. In this respect, the Tzankoff government has beaten all records.

On the occasion of the explosion that has taken place in the cathedral of Sofia, this fascist government has published some hastily manufactured "documents," which are supposed to furnish proof of the Comintern's implication in this terroristic act. It is superfluous to point out that in view of the fact that the Comintern is opposed in principle to individual terror, neither the Comintern nor any of its sections have had, or could have had anything whatever to do with the Sofia explosion. The executive of the Comintern declares categorically that all the documents

Court Grants an Injunction Against Indiana Mine Union

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 10.—Judge Robert C. Baltzell in federal court here overruled a petition of the defendants to dismiss the charges contained in an injunction action brought by W. H. Howe of Chicago, against officials of the United Mine Workers and others, seeking to restrain them from "interfering with the operation of coal mines in Knox county on a co-operative basis."

The court granted a temporary injunction to the complainant and set hearing on permanent injunction for ten o'clock next Wednesday morning.

Defendants filed the motion for dismissal of the action on the ground that Howe was not a proper plaintiff in the case because he was a third party and not connected with the contract effected between the miners' union and union mine operators in the Terre Haute district.

ANTI-WHITE TERROR MEETING TO BE HELD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY

GREEN HECKLED AT CONVENTION OF R. R. CLERKS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 10.—When William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, spoke before the convention of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes' Union at their convention here in the armory, 3620 Main St., his remarks were challenged by a rank and file delegate from the floor of the convention.

The delegate, amid shouts and confusion, asked Green several embarrassing questions before he was silenced by the union officials.

Opposition To Fitzgerald.

The convention has developed into a struggle of the opposition, headed by George S. Levi, secretary treasurer of the organization, and the followers of E. H. Fitzgerald, present president, who has come to the end of his second three-year term and is seeking re-election.

Employers Address Convention.

The convention has been addressed by several reactionaries and employers brought in by Fitzgerald. Among those who spoke are Mayor Beach, L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri-Pacific railroad; Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners' union, who has recent arbitrarily expelled from office the elected left wing officials of the miners' union in the Springfield sub-district, and C. E. Schaff, president of the Missouri, Kansas, Texas railroad.

A sharp fight between the opposition and the Fitzgerald group was expected on the amendment to the brotherhood constitution, which, if passed, would empower the president to appoint the editor of the Railway Clerk. The editor is elected under the present constitution.

Tulsa Residents Brand Fascists As Murderers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

TULSA, Oklahoma, May 10—Bulgarians living in this city have added their protest to the widespread denunciation by Bulgarian-Americans of the regime of white terror instituted by Premier Zankov against the Communists and other workers.

"The Zankov government is shooting down all workers who do not agree with it," said Ivan Petroff Kovacheff, of West Tulsa. "Conditions in Bulgaria are an outrage to humanity. Under the pretext of hunting down Communists, the Bulgarian fascists are making wholesale killings of political enemies."

Tyranny of Despots.

"Despotism and tyranny are the slogan of the present Bulgarian government. The situation is deplorable and the issue which the despotic government of Bulgaria has raised is a momentus one. Every man and woman in the United States should register his or her protest against the inhuman and barbarous government that has planned its campaign of terror among the workers like a despot crazed with stolen power."

Wheat Crop Below Normal, Farmers Too Poor to Buy Seed

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 10 — America's winter wheat crop will be approximately 145,00,000 bushels, or nearly 25 per cent short of last year's crop, the department of agriculture estimated today.

Sharply decreased acreage was primarily responsible, reflecting the adverse conditions that prevailed among wheat farmerrs at planting time, because of the low price wheat unable to buy seed.

The yield also will contribute to the smaller crop, the forecast being more than a bushel to the acre off.

The board reported that the crop may be larger or smaller than the forecast given, as developments during the remainder of the season prove more or less favorabble to the crop than usual.

DAWES PLAN FALLING DOWN, SAYS U. S. REPARATION AGENT; FRANCE AND ENGLAND DISCOUNT PAYMENT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, May 10.—That the Dawes plan is a failure is grudgingly and indirectly admitted by capitalist spokesmen following the report of Seymour Parker Gilbert, the "boss' of Germany and the American reparation agent under the famous "plan" which was heralded as a cure-all for the bankruptcy of capitalist production of Europe and which boosted the pipe-smoking open shopper into political limelight as American vice-president.

Reports Dawes Plan Failure.

Mr. Gilbert, tho a warm friend of "Hell an' Maria" Dawes, and joined with him as a direct representative of the Morgan banking interests, is forced to report to the reparations commission of the allied governments, that he believes Germany will be unable to pay the full Dawes instalments, and even tho by savage exploitation of the German workers, Germany may accumulate a surplus of its own money, it will be unable to transfer it abroad.

By forcing such transfer, thru using marks to buy gold in the allied countries, the basis of value will be swept from under the German mark as "stabilized" by the Dawes' plan reparations bank. Thus the Dawes' plan will defeat itself. If the allies, on the other hand, should accept the German paper marks as "payment," it simply means that they are giving Germany a loan with the paper marks as "security" and are really paying the reparations themselves.

Inherent Contradictions.

The only other alternative seen by Mr. Gilbert is the export of German made goods being developed. However, if Germany's exports are developed, it will be only at the expense of cutting down the export trade, and even infringing on the domestic trade, of the allied nations.

England is already suffering extreme unemployment and marked decline of exports as a result of the German competition in this field, and thus the "solution" of "making Germany pay" will lead to paralyzing industrial depression in the allied nations.

England Intimates Dawes' Collapse.

The collapse of the bombastic claims of General Dawes' and his famous plan, is being decidely soft-pedalled. The allied governments are forced to speak softly, and altho Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer in his budget estimate for running the British government for the coming year, quietly cut out 50 per cent of what is due to be paid by Germany to England in reparations, little is said about why this discounting of reparations should be made if the American reactionary with the funny pipe made a good plan to collect.

France Plays Shrewd Trick.

In France, also, yesterday's announcement of Joseph Caillaux, after a ministerial conference presided over by President Doumergue, that all reparations payment would not be counted in the budget as available assets, and that France would be compelled to raise the budget only by increased and unprecedented taxes laid upon the farmers and upon consumable commodities. This will at once increase the already high cost of living.

The crafty statement of Caillaux

INDIANAPOLIS POLICE FORCE IN LEAGUE WITH BOOTLEGGERS, CHARGE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 10.—A wholesale weeding out of members of the Indianapolis police force for their alleged failure to enforce the prohibition laws was promised today by William H. Remy, prosecutor.

Remy said he would canvass the entire force district by district and institute a "real clean up" made possible by the new "bone dry" law empowering any citizen to file charges of neglect of duty against any officer in circuit court.

BUILDING TRADE STRIKERS FIGHT 'LANDIS AWARD'

Strike Against the Open Shop Still Unsettled

Efforts of the non-union McLennan construction company to end the strike of the building trades workers on the new twenty million dollar market project being built for the Central Cold Storage company at 11th St. and Racine Ave., failed, and the bricklayers, plasterers, plumbers, electricians, tile setters, and iron workers are still on strike.

Officials of the building trades council, including Patrick Sullivan, J. J. Conroy, secretary, and "Umbrella" Mike Boyle of the electrical workers and Edward Ryan of the iron workers, were in conference Saturday, with the employers but no agreement was reached.

The McLennan company hired non-union laborers and carpenters to replace the "Landis award" men who had walked out and joined the non-union strikers. Some of these non-union workers were set to work on the union workers' jobs, setting the iron forms for the cement work.

The strike was called against the open shop, in order to get the unorganized laborers and carpenters into the union.

Bootlickers to the League of Nations Gather at Geneva

WASHINGTON, May 10—Leifur Magnusson, American representative of the international labor office connected with the league of nations at Geneva, is sailing to attend the annual meeting of the I. L. O. This is the seventh annual conference. The first was held in Washington in 1919.

This international conference, in which all of the 58 member countries are to have delegates, will begin May 19 and will remain in session three or four weeks. No one with sense expects it to do anything but talk.

The United States and Russia are the only considerable nations not members of the organization.

Merge Millions in R. R. Deal.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The interstate commerce commission placed a tentative valuation of $182,687,175 on the property owned by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, and a valuation of $189,257,789 on the property used but not owned by the road. The valuation was as of June 30, 1916.

This road is one of the railroads in the proposed merger plan of the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland, which the interstate commerce commission is now considering.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Unfilled tonnage of the U. S. steel corporation declined 416,996 tons in the month ended April 30, accroding to the monthly report of the corporation issued today.

Advance orders on April 30 aggregated 4,446,568 tons against 4,863,564 on March 31 and 5,284,771 on Feb. 28 of this year. One year ago the corporation reported unfilled orders of 4,208,447 tons.

VIENNA, May 10.—Current employment records of Hungary show that there are 322 applicants for every hundred jobs. This is under the fascist Horthy dictatorship.

ARREST THREE REDS IN FREE SPEECH FIGHT

Test Right of Workers Party to Hold Meetings

Three members of the Workers (Communist) Party, Thurber Lewis, Karl Reeve, and John Hecker, are to appear for hearing in the Chicago Ave. police court this morning following their arrest Saturday night for holding a Communist open air meeting on the corner of North Ave. and Orchard St.

The policemen who signed the complaint, Deviny and Koch, based their charges on an ordinance which was declared unconstitutional by the state supreme court years ago. The ordinance, 3703, prohibited speaking on the street corners without a permit, but has been invalid for many years.

Flivver Squad Arrives.

The Communist speakers will demand a jury trial, and the Workers Party will test whether or not the Chicago police force and Mayor Dever are going to continue to break the law by preventing the workers of the city from expressing their opinions. D. E. Early was arrested on the same corner a week ago, and his trial will be conducted next month.

The meeting was opened by John Hecker, member of the Young Workers (Communist) League. Immediately Deviney and Koch drove up to the speakers platform and demanded that the meeting disband. The Communists refused to close the meeting, and Comrade Hecker concluded his talk, advertising the Workers Party literature and introducing the next speaker, Thurber Lewis, circulation manager of the DAILY WORKER in Chicago. As soon as Comrade Hecker stepped off the platform he was bundled into the police car.

Patrol is Called

Deviney and Koch, lacking the nerve to stop the meeting, called up a patrol, while Comrade Lewis was talking. Comrade Lewis pointed to the police as the tools of the capitalist class who are used to beat down workers in strikes when they attempt to organize for a decent standard of living. He showed that it is only workers' organizations which are molested when they attempt to exercise their constitutional right of free speech. By this time an enormous crowd had gathered.

Comrade Lewis then introduced Karl Reeve who declared that the workers must own the industries and have a police force of their own working for them and not for the employers. The patrol arrived, and Reeve announced that another meeting will be held by the Workers Party on the same corner next Saturday night. The speakers were then driven in the patrol to the station house.

Bail was set at $100 apiece, and the speakers were released at 11 o'clock. William F. Kruse and Norman Tallantire secured the bail money, most of which was raised at the dance held by the German Workers' Educational Home Society, in which the German branch of the Workers Party took part.

As the three Communists speakers were lead away from the meeting the workers who packed the street cheered lustily and criticised the police.

JEWISH BAKERS' UNION VICTOR AFTER BATTLE

Employers and Fake Union Lose Out

NEW YORK, May 10.—The Jewish bakers in the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, won renewal of their agreement in spite of the fulmination of the employers in their recent convention.

The Jewish bakery owners at the time had Samuel Untermeyer, attorney, denounce the union but the union proved strongest in the end. The $75 weekly minimum wage, 7½ hour day, and division of work among all union bakers so that none are unemployed are retained.

A small group of desultory workers in what they called the United Bakery Workers attempted to enforce an injunction against the International and win attention for its 8-hour day, 6 day week at $55 minimum.

Concert and Dance in Brooklyn Lyceum

NEW YORK, May 10.— The Boro Park English branch of the Workers Party is giving a concert and dance on Saturday evening, May 23, at the Finnish Labor Lyceum, 764—40th St., Brooklyn. An interesting musical program and classical dancing will feature the concert. The Finnish band will provide the music for the dancing All South Brooklyn comrades are urged to come to the entertainment.

right, but we hardly think the 6,000 wage slaves who were laid off by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad a few days ago like it so well. What is sauce for the capitalist gander is poison to the proletarian goose.

THE Queen of England is a stalwart supporter of a rigid moral code. Quite recently several delightful scandals were aired in the London courts. For a while New York and Chicago were stepping pretty lively to elbow their British "cousins" off the front page. Even such experienced artists as Stillman and Stokes were working overtime to make the grade. You can't very well run up against a lord or duchess and expect to win the circulation manager's affections.

WHILE several earls, dukes, duchesses, knights and barons were being turned inside out in the court of domestic relations in London; the king and queen were taking the air along the north coast of Africa. On their return, the queen scanned the list of those entitled to visit the loyal palace. She blue-pencilled the names of those who figured in the scandals. It is a sharp deviation from the days of the Plantaganets when "a king's bastard was a house's pride." The British empire was built on the fruits of piracy and no moral scruples were allowed to stand in the way of the fortunes of its reigning heads. But like a reformed roue, the empire is assuming the mask of virtue in its old days. The fact that it is old counts for something.

COMMANDER Evangeline Booth of the salvation army told us a few days ago that war was a good medicine for the spiritual nerves of the people. But, the mother and sister of George D. Shaw, shell-shocked war veteran, are not so crazy over the advantages of war. In fact, they claim, the war made young Shaw so crazy that he carved up his father with a German sword, one of the trophies he took back with him, perhaps to show his father that he did his share in defeating the Germans. The Shaw case is not unusual. "Shell shock" has become as favorite an excuse with criminal defense lawyers nowadays as impaired pineal glands. If Evangeline Booth got the dagger of a shell-shocked war vet in her gizzard, she might not be so anxious for another carnage.

LEGAL HORSE PLAY STAGED IN KLUX CASE

Rich Kluxer Expected to Buy His Way Out

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 10.— A motion to quash the murder indictment against D. C. Stephenson, former ku klux klan leader in Indiana, Earl Gentry, and Earl Klinck was filed in criminal court here today by Eph Inman, high priced counsel for the accused.

Inman filed the motion after Judge James A. Collins had overruled a previous motion to strike out vital sections of the four counts in the indictment returned against Stephenson and his alleged accomplices in connection with the death last month of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28. Miss Oberholtzer took poison after she had been attacked by Stephenson, she charged.

Hearing on the motion to quash was set for 9 o'clock next Friday morning.

When court convened, Inman requested the presence of the prisoners before Judge Collins ruled on the motion to strike out certain parts of the murder indictment.

Stephenson, Klinck and Gentry were brought in the court room handcuffed to each other.

A brief but sharp clash between opposing counsel featured the proceedings. When court was called to order, Inman arose and stated he desired to make no oral argument on his motion since the motion was in such form as to speak for itself.

Charles E. Cox, engaged by Miss Oberholtzer's family to prosecute the defendants, jumped to his feet and declared he was "delighted at the frankness of defense as there was no merit in the motion."

Further hostilities were abruptly halted by the court who announced the motion was overruled. Inman then filed his motion to quash and both sides agreed to argue it next Friday morning.

It was announced that Ira M. Holmes, Indianapolis criminal lawyer has been engaged as additional defense counsel.

Mayor's Candidates Are Non-Commital on School Problems

Candidates chosen by Mayor Dever for the new school board refused to make any declaration of position on school questions to the city council's schools, fire and civil service committee. When questioned on their attitude toward the teachers' councils, teachers salary increases, junior high schools, the double platoon and other school administration problems confronting the school board they were non-commital.

Five of the six candidates, Edward B. Ellicott, John A. English, Charles T. Byrne, Theophilus Schmidt and James Mullenbach appeared before the committee. The aldermen cited numerous instances of the present board's refusal to co-operate with the council on school problems. Invitations sent them to appear before the schools committee were flatly ignored.

Ellicot, Mayor Dever's choice for president of the board of education, to take Charles M. Moderwell's place, said he must hear "both sides" of the story before he makes his decision. He promised the city council that "full and exhaustive hearings will be made before any decision is reached on any important problem."

Exhume Baby Farm Victims.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Acting on six new complaints by kinsfolk, authorities moved to exhume the bodies of some of the 22 infants said by records to have died in Mrs. Helena A. Geisenvolk's "infantorium" during the last 16 months.

Dunne Pays Tribute to James Connolly at Irish Meeting

The story of the famine situation in Ireland was told to an interested audience in North Side Turner Hall, last Friday evening, by John P. McCarthy, who recently arrived from a visit to the famine region. Several prominent members of labor unions were present and they promised to co-operate in raising funds for the relief of the starving workers and peasants of the west of Ireland.

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, paid a tribute to the life of Ireland's greatest revolutionary leader, James Connolly, who was executed by the British for his part in the Easter week revolution. "James Connolly died in vain nine years ago," declared Dunne, "unless the Irish workers raise the kind of a monument to his memory that is more lasting than bronze or marble, the erection of a workers' republic, in the land where he laid down his life in the struggle to free his people from British imperialism and the bondage of wage slavery."

Robert Totten, member of the Plumbers' Union was chairman. A collection was taken up for famine relief.

Italian King to Free Fascists Who Murdered Matteotti

ROME, Italy, May 10.—King Victor Emanuel is expected to declare a general amnesty in Italy next month, not to free the Communists from the clutches of the fascist terror, but to allow the fascist murderers of the socialist deputy, Matteotti, to escape trial. Mussolini has made every effort to surpress the public proof of what is already definitely known, that Mussolini instigated this and many other fascist crimes.

At the same time, on the silver jubilee of his reign, King Emanuel is expected to indorse the new fascist constitution, which will keep the Mussolini cabinet in permanent power and make parliament a body of representatives of manufacturers and business men's organizations.

The Communists will be immediately re-arrested, and the fascist murderers allowed to go free, according to Mussolini's plan.

United Labor Council of New York to Meet at Stuyvesant Casino

NEW YORK, May 10.—The United Labor Council of greater New York and vicinity, has secured meeting rooms at the Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave., N. Y. C., where they will meet regularly the second and fourth Tuesdays in each month. The office anad headquarters of the council will, however, remain as at present at Hungarian Workers' Home, 350 East 81st St., N. Y. C., and all communicattions should be addressed to Chester W. Bixby, secretary-treasurer to that address.

A bureau for speakers, information and publicity has been established and all affiliated unions having news of interest to the Central Labor movement and to the independent unions in particular should send same to Patrick J. McClellan, organizer, 350 East 81st St., N. Y. C. or telephone Lenox 0934. Speakers can be secured thru the same bureau.

World Powers Tighten Hold.

GENEVA, May 10.—The arms conference general committee with only the dissenting vote of Turkey, adopted the resolution of Delegate Bueros of Uruguay which is the basis of the conference's convention. It provides that licenses for traffic in arms will not be issued to individuals, but only to recognized governments. Thus the world powers tighten their hold on the smaller nations and the colonies by restricting their ammunition supply.

TAXI BOSSES IN DRIVE AGAINST DRIVERS' WAGE

Union Officials Dead to Possibilities

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 10.—Two years ago the taxi drivers of all the Mogul Checker Cabs joined the Brotherhood of Taxi Chauffeurs and demanded a commission of forty per cent in place of the thirty-three and one-third that they were getting in the past. The bosses refused to give the increase or to recognize the union, and the men four thousand strong went on strike.

In five days after the calling of the strike not a single Mogul Checker Cab could be seen on the streets of this city. On the seventh day of the strike the bosses came together with the men and the increase was granted, but there was no recognition of the union.

The men went back to work and four months later the Brotherhood of Taxi Chauffeurs closed its office and that was the end of that union. Two years have elapsed and no serious attemps have been made to reorganize these drivers, altho the bosses have started to cut the commission from forty per cent to thirty-five per cent.

Last month circulars were broadcast in this city calling on the taxi drivers to meet at Beethoven Hall. Many men showed up, but the officials who called the meeting were not to be seen inside or outside the hall. They were not there and there is a lot of speculation as to why the meeting was called and as to why the officials did not show themselves to hold the meeting. No meeting was held.

Two drivers of the open shop Yellow Taxi corporation who were present at the meeting were fired by that company, they were seen there by the company spotters and turned in. The sentiment among the drivers now is strong for a union and the men are in a receptive mood and the next thing is for the A. F. L. to do is to send their organizers into the garages and get busy.

SOVIET RUSSIA FLAYS ENTENTE FOR TERROR AID

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, May 10.—Pravda, official organ of the Soviet government, states in an article on the Bulgarian white terror:

The murderous Bulgarian Zankov clique is trying to hush up its bloodbath after the Sofia explosion by shouting over the 'intervention' of the Soviet Union in Bulgarian affairs. Almost the entire bourgeois press is howling against 'Russian intervention' although it has absolutely no proof of such intervention, and although they know that we are opposed to individual terror.

We have always pointed out that victory can be achieved only thru a revolutionary mass movement; yet we realize that the Sofia explosion was an act of self-defense on the part of those who literally have to fight for their very lives against the bandits that call themselves a govrenment. It is comprehensible why Zankov is shouting "intervention," and why he is appealing to all the enemies of the Soviet union. Why does the whole world bourgeoisie shout in chorus with Zankov? Besides the motive of class solidarity, there are important political interests involved, which compel England and Italy to do so.

England and Italy supported the Zankov regime in order to prevent an understanding between Stambulinsky and Jugo-Slavia. France reconciled herself with Zankov because the latter undertook no steps against Jugo-Slavia. The capitalist states have supported the Zankov regime and have continuously intervened in Bulgarian affairs. Rumania has done police service against the people's movement, and the entente allowed Zankov to increase his army in order to suppress the people's movement. The capitalists always intervene in Bulgarian affairs in the interests of the counter-revolution. They know that the Soviet Union did not intervene; yet they continue to intervene in the interests of the counter-revolution.

Cap Makers Biennial Convention Convenes

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 10.—The Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union is holding its 15th biennial convention and has already declared itself for the 40-hour week, to be obtained in the new agreement of July, 1925, if possible. Union workers in so-called corporation shops, small manufacturing shops run by partners or with few employes defying all regulation, are to be expelled from the union if they do not withdraw from such shops. The union is celebrating its 25th anniversary.

Soviet Rule or Capitalist Rule, Most Important Question in World Today

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the All-Russian Soviet Congress is in session in Moscow. The delegates, from all sections of the far-flung Soviet Union listen first to the report of Commissar of Health Semashko. They hear, from the lips of the people's commissar, of the growth of health organizations in the villages.

That is good for the Soviet power. It is not so good for world capitalism. Improving the health conditions in the villages means drawing the peasants closer to the proletarian dictatorship. It means strengthening the struggle for Communism. It means confronting world capitalism with an unconquerable working class power.

• • • •

While Soviet rule is therefore going thru a healthy development; acute and deadly maladies strike at capitalism on every hand.

It is very significant that on the same day that the All-Russian Congress assembles, an Italian senator, Albertini, raises his voice against Mussolini in Italy saying, "the present state of resignation and acquiescence of the Italian people was deceiving those who cannot see the fire beneath the ashes," while another cardinal issues a pastoral letter declaring that, "the present calm is obtained by intimidation and it isn't lasting."

The fascist dictatorship must be weak indeed if these timid elements, that remained silent when the Communists alone stood against Mussolini's reign of terror, can come into the open, giving feeble voice to their discontent. The cardinal says, "The Italian sky is filled with tempestuous clouds," but they bode ill for world as well as for Italian capitalism.

• • • •

On top of this development in Italy comes the sad confession from the lips of Morgan's man in Germany, the Wall Street prodigy, Seymour Parker Gilbert, that Germany will be unable to pay her installments under the Dawes plan. Gilbert is the American reparations agent under the Dawes plan and he ought to know. Great Britain knows, too, and figures only 50 per cent payments in her present budget. The French are getting uneasy and are planning not to carry out their promise to evacuate the Ruhr in August. That would seriously aggravate the relations between French and German capitalisms; a clash in which the workers of both countries might have something to say. The rule of the profiteers in Italy and Germany, so carefully nursed by the international bankers, thus shows itself to be in a very bad way. It is down with those incurable diseases that seal the fate of capitalism everywhere. And being down is on the road to being out.

• • • •

Just as Mussolini is trying to keep jingoism in line as an ally, thru urging a larger army, navy and air fleet, so the American warmakers center their guns on Washington, demanding of congress that it give special attention to the Hawaiian Islands, Wall Street's outpost in the Pacific. The great naval base, Pearl Harbor, upon which tens of millions of dollars robbed from American labor has been spent, is pictured as possessing no more defensive qualities than a Coney Island shooting gallery. New wealth must be wasted upon this Heligoland of American imperialism against its Japanese foe. But the workers of the United States and Japan will be heard from when that war is declared.

• • • •

All this in one day's developments. Over the Soviet Union the workers and peasants are on the job building in the most constructive era the world has yet seen.

In the capitalist world—now reduced to five-sixths of the earth's land surface—saber rattling is heard on every hand, the ominous forboder of new imperialist wars, a new epoch of destruction.

The workers of the United States must take their stand on the side of Soviet construction or capitalist destruction. They must choose between Communism and capitalism. The making of that choice is the most important question for all workers and poor farmers in the United States, and thruout the world, today.

tion" altho a strike then could have won.

The sentiment in union circles is one of disgust with the vote. The internal situation in the union is doubtful.

Only 12 Cents More a Day the Issue.

Shall the company lose $400,000 or $1,000,000 a year in dividends? This is what the difference between a five cent wage increase and a 12 cent wage increase means to the company. To the street car men the one million dollars mean only 12 cents more a day, just one extra loaf of bread. Their present wage or about sixty cents an hour, what with short turns which mean only a few hours work per day, has made none of them rich. Old, gray, weary, weak men, who have given 25 years and more to the company, are still on runs, on short shifts trying to earn a few dollars a week to keep going. None of these enjoyed last winter in Florida.

One thing must be emphasized. Many of the rank and file we interviewed realize the mistake of the leaders last June, when the strike was called off and the courts were resorted to for victory. They laugh at the attempt made to win advances for the workers in an arena owned by the enemy and where the enemy lays down all the rules of the game.

Dawes Plan Falling Down, Says U. S. Reparation Agent

that the reparation payments would "be applied on war debts" is met with ironic smiles by financiers, who, in view of this new generosity of France in setting aside reparations to pay its debts to America and England, are convinced that France sees little hope of getting much real cash out of the plan of Vice-President Dawes.

Mellon's Assistant Also Alarmed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10—Garrard Winston, under secretary of the treasury, who has been on an "unofficial" trip of investigation to Europe to probe the disquieting rumor that the plan of Vice-President Dawes to get reparations from Germany is doomed to be a discredited failure, has arrived in Washington and at once went into confidential conference with Secretary Mellon.

While no announcement is made, private advices say that Winston is very much depressed with the future of the Dawes' plan, and that he shares the gloomy opinion of Reparation Agent Seymour Parker Gilbert.

May Defeat Dawes for President.

Political circles are endeavoring to avoid publicity of the new turn of events, as it is a crushing blow if its significance is widely understood, to the political prospect of "Hell and Maria" for president in 1928.

'SAFETY DAY' IN NEW YORK ONLY ANOTHER FAKE

Conceals Capitalist Disregard of Life

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, May 10.— According to an announcement by Superintendent of Schools Dr. William J. O'Shea safety day in New York will be observed Monday, May 11, and all schools will be closed to allow the school children to participate in the parade.

Safety Day, as well as Clean Up Week and Health Week have all degenerated into hollow mockeries. At the same time that the kind-hearted city and school authorities are "worrying" so much about the children of this city, thousands of them are running around in the streets, their only playground, because the city is too poor to provide sufficient playgrounds. Hundreds more, who should be attending school, are working as bootblacks, in the busy sections of the city, Madison Square, Union Square and the crowded streets of the East Side.

There has been a noticeable increase in fatal motor accidents in this city despite all the safety days and the warnings issued by the traffic department. Children will continue to be hurt and killed on the streets of New York as long as they are forced to play in crowded, narrow streets with automobiles dashing by every minute.

Altho there are thousands of young workers employed in the factories and shops in New York who are constantly in danger of being injured because the bosses do not find it profitable to install safety devices, the superintendent of schools does not find it necessary to conduct a campaign to force these factory owners to install these necessary accident preventatives.

FREE DETROIT REDS JAILED IN MAY DAY AFFAIR

Giving Daily Worker Not Crime Judge Says

By EDGAR OWENS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., May 10.—Warrants against Bud Reynolds, Sam Harman, F. Shusterman and E. Kimdstrand for distribution of the May Day edition of the DAILY WORKER before the Ford River Rouge plant on May 1, was dismissed.

Maurice Sugar, attorney for the defendants moved to dismiss the warrant on the grounds that it was defective in that it failed to specify what section of the ordinance had been violated by the distribution of the DAILY WORKER.

The ordinance itself is practically a duplicate of the Michigan criminal syndicalism act under which the Communists who assembled in the Bridgeman convention in 1922 were indicted in Berrien county.

The charges against Frank Dazos and H. Dardariam growing out of the May Day distribution of the DAILY WORKER before the Ford Highland Park plant were dismissed when they were brought before the court in Highland Park.

Judge Diehl held that the distribution of the DAILY WORKER was no more a breach of the law than was the sale of the Free Press or the Detroit Times.

All the arrests growing out of the May Day distribution have now been dismissed.

French Socialists Back Imperialists Drive in Morocco

PARIS, France, May 10—Premier Painleve, head of the "democratic" coalition which includes the socialists, announced that the French army is acting against the native Moroccans for French, British and Spanish imperialism. The socialists have indorsed the French attack. "We are acting in full accord with the British and Spanish governments," said Painleve.

From now on, Spanish Morocco's border will be crossed when the French militarists find it desirable. France is fighting against 50,000 well armed native north Africans, with her power in Africa and the Mediterranean countries at stake.

Reinforcements are being rushed to Fez by the French to attack the Riffian tribes, who have already defeated the Spaniards in Spanish Morocco, and have captured French outposts in their drive on Fez.

CONSPIRACY TO CUT MINE WAGE IS DISCLOSED

Capitalists in Plot to Break Union

By LELAND OLDS.

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Coal operators believe the final stage in the 2-year conspiracy to starve union miners into submission about reached. According to the Chicago Journal of Commerce, large coal buyers "have been advised by the operators to hold off buying pending a wage adjustment in the coal industry of Illinois and Indiana."

"A wage adjustment in the coal industry" says the Journal, "has become more than a hope in the minds of the operators. The state of Wisconsin has postponed until June 2 the calling for bids on coal in view of the anticipated reduction in wages. Certain industrial buyers are not in the market for the same reason. Operators said consumption was ahead of production and that rapid bying can be expected after a settlement of the wage question".

Birth of Conspiracy.

This shows the operators actually encouraging stagnation in the market. They are tightening the screws in the conspiracy which was first exposed by The Federated Press June 12, 1923. The Federated Press then showed that as far back at April 1923 E. L. Greever, general counsel for the nonunion operator associations of West Virginia, secured a resolution from the National Metal Trades Assn. practically indorsing the suggestion that member concerns buy coal only from openshop mines.

A similar resolution was passed by the National Assn. of Manufacturers June 7, 1923, after an address by ex-Gov. Cornwell of West Virginia. These resolutions meant a boycott of union mined coal.

Government Commision and Operators Joint Move

Occasional evidences of the conspiracy have come to light since. Operators who signed the Jacksonville pact, Black Diamond has admitted, expected it to force a suspension at union mines.

The railroads with the connivance of the interstate commerce commission added to the depression in union fields by new rail construction and rate charges enabling non-union mines in Kentucky and West Virginia to drive out Illinois and Indiana coal in the northwest.

Mellon Covers Up Tracks.

Secretary of Treasury Andrew Mellon and his brother don't want their positions as political bosses in Pennsylvania disturbed by the fight their huge coal trust is waging against the miners. So they have withdrawn from active officeholding in the Pittsburgh Coal Co. by placing a dummy (W. C. Warden) in place of R. B. Mellon as chairman of the board.

Says Black Diamond: "The reason given is the fact that the Mellon interests have entered local and state politics and are said to be in the ascendency. Being in politics, it is argued that a fight with organized labor would not be advisable as it would lose considerable votes."

A generation ago Andrew Carnegie pulled the same stunt for a slightly different reason. He was a preacher of peace and conciliation but also a steel baron. So when the bitter Homestead strike loomed he retired to Europe leaving Henry Frick to do the dirty work. As an advocate of peace he kept his skirts clear of the bloody brutality that marked the suppression of the workers.

ELECTRIC TRUST MONOPOLIZED THE RADIO BY SPYING ON SMALL FIRMS AND BUYING UP ALL RAW MATERIAL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 10.—Industrial spies operate not only against labor unions, but against one company in the interest of another, the injunction suit of the De Forest Radio Co. against the Radio Corporation of America and its parent General Electric clearly shows.

The De Forest concern, one of the few "independent" radio firms, is fighting the Radio Corporation which is the radio trust branch of the already existing trust in which General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, American Telegraph and Telephone Co. and Western Electric, related thru interlocking directorates, participate.

Monopolized Material.

The injunction proceedings in New Jersey chancery court charge Radio Corporation of America and General Electric with buying up the Electron Relay company of Toledo, Ohio, which manufactured filament wire essential to radio manufacturing.

The purchase of the filament wire concern cut off De Forest from its necessary supplies. Furthermore, the suit is backed by affidavits from a former employe of General Electric who had previously and is now again working for De Forest.

Charles F. Bowlby relates in detail how he discovered the secret office of the Radio Corporation at 25 Beaver St., New York, where special investigators for the corporation reported the results of their espionage upon De Forest processes of manufacture and volume of business, etc.

Sent Spies Into Smaller Firm.

Other affidavits show how Radio Corporation investigators worked as stenographers in De Forest offices to secure valuable papers of the company. Meanwhile Owen D. Young, lately in the public press for his part in the Dawes' plan administration, is busily denying the charges of Samuel Untermeyer, attorney, who worked with the Lockwood investigating committee which showed up General Electric, Young's company, as under domination of J. P. Morgan & Co. (Directorates of the banking house and electric manufacturing company do interlock.)

Young is indignant that Untermeyer suggests that the U. S. department of justice was influenced not to prosecute General Electric for a monopoly on electric light bulbs.

"Yellow Peril" a Fake, Report Shows

WASHINGTON, May 10.—During the past 16 years the net increase of foreign-born Japanese in the continental United States due to immigration has been 10,959, or an average of 685 a year, according to a statement by the committee on American-Japanese relations. The census of 1920 showed a total of 111,010 Japanese, both native and foreign-born, in California and the rest of the United States; in California alone the number was 71,952, or 2 per cent of the population of the state.

Japanese own 74,769 acres of land in California, out of a total of 11,389,894 acres of cultivated lands.

The statement sets forth that Japan permits all foreigners to take perpetual leases of land, and that by a law which becomes effective on Dec. 1, 1925, Japan surrenders all claim to the allegiance of Japanese who have become citizens abroad.

Cut Political Prisoners' Mail.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., May 10.—Under the new prison regime at San Quentin the right of political prisoners convicted under the California criminal syndicalism law is further restricted by cutting off most of the letters coming from their defense organization.

The California branch of the General Defense Committee, box 574, San Francisco, urges that protests be sent to the San Quentin warden so that this and other rights may be restored.

The Theory and Practice
of LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

A brilliant exposition of Communist theory and practice in the period of Capitalist Imperialism—during which our great teacher, Lenin, lived and led.

No book recently issued can be of more value or importance to the worker who would learn of Communism.

This book by the secretary of the Russian Communist Party, who has been a constant and intimate co-worker of Lenin, is not only an extremely timely work, but also one that is destined surely to become one of the classics of Communist literature.

Steel Trust Joins Meat Trust Control of Big Universities

CHICAGO, May 10.—While the open shop meat packers put the University of Chicago under further obligation by creating research scholarships under its auspices, the open shop steel trust renews its friendship for Northwestern university thru chairman Elbert H. Gary of the U. S. Steel corporation.

The costly library building on the methodist college's down town campus will be financed by Gary, who will permit his name to be given to the structure. Three years ago, Gary permitted the university board of trustees, of which he has been a member for almost a score of years, to vote him an honorary degree.

Another Movie in the Pittsburgh District

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 10.—In addition to the six showings already heled in the Pittsburgh district within the last ten days there will be another show on Saturday, May 16, at the new Croatian Hall, West Brownsville, Pa. The show begins at 7 p. m. and tickets are 50 cents.

The program includes "Polikushka," a feature film made in Russia by the Moscow Art Theater, with Ivan Moskvin in the title role. On the program also are a two-reel Russian slapstick comedy, "Soldier Ivan's Miracle," and a news reel giving scenes from the life of Nicolai Lenin. In this district this program was received with even greater favor than the latest film from Russia, "The Beauty and the Bolshevik."

The same program will be run at the Eagle Theater, Livingston, Ill., on May 26.

Any labor organizations which have not yet run all of the films prepared by the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., should get in touch with that organization at once. There are features which make up an entire evening's educational and entertainment program, as well as short films that will round out and furnish a special attraction at meetings, picnics, etc.

U. S. Fascisti Meet Against Reds.

WASHINGTON, May 10. — (FP) — David Jayne Hill, former ambassador to Germany and now chief rival to Dawes as a reactionary, presided at a luncheon meeting of the "Natl. Assn. for Constitutional Government," in Washington, summoned to consider the "menace of radicalism."

When Hill read to the assembled fascisti a letter from Archibald Hopkins, an aged local promoter of Red-scare thrills, demanding that anarchists and "militant" socialists be deported, a row began. It lasted several hours, and disclosed that many of the members were afraid of the consequences to themselves of any drastic measures toward radicals.

Hill gave the impression that he supported Hopkins in wanting all radical thinkers shipped out of the country.

Cal's Boomlet Dies in Massachusetts

BOSTON.—A drop of about one-half per cent in employment in Massachusetts factories from February to March shows that Coolidge's little boom is collapsing in his home state. The state department of labor shows employment more than seven per cent below the 1922 average and three and one-half per cent below March, 1924. Average weekly wages remained at $24.17. Eight establishments report wage cuts.

The boot and shoe industry is particularly dull with 29 per cent fewer workers than in 1922. This marks a reduction of over 15 per cent from March, 1924. Other industries showing a heavy drop from a year ago are men's clothing 20 per cent, women's clothing seven and one-half per cent, electrical manufacture eight per cent, foundries and machine shops nearly 18 per cent.

The report shows that 38.6 per cent of the workers covered were employed in factories operating part time. In six of the 39 industries a majority of the employes were on part time.

COMMERCE BOARD USED BY ROADS TO LOWER WAGES

Governm't Forces Down Workers Standard

By LELAND OLDS.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

The futility of workers trusting in a government arbitration board, unless they can back their plea for justice with the economic power of strong independent organizations, is revealed in the wage statistics of the interstate commerce commission.

These show that in Jauary the railroads paid 200,000 unskilled maintenance of way workers at the rate of $2.79 for an eight-hour day, representing a cut of about a quarter in the wage rate established by the U. S. rail labor board in 1920.

Authorize Lowest Wages.

With 280 working days in a year these men make a total of about $780. The board is plainly authorizing the railroads to pay the lowest market rate for labor.

Wages of 10 occupations selected from the clerical, station and maintenance forces show cuts below the board's 1920 decision ranging from seven to 39.2 per cent. Here are the figures:

Rail wages for 8 hrs.	Jan. 1921	Jan. 1925	Pct. cut
Clerks	$5.12	$4.76	7.0
Telegraphers	5.41	4.99	7.8
Signalmen	6.77	5.92	9.7
Baggage handlers	4.31	3.41	19.8
Callers, loaders, etc.	4.61	3.99	13.4
Freight handlers	4.15	3.49	15.8
Bldg. mechanics	5.75	4.90	14.7
Section foremen	5.33	4.58	14.0
Section & track labor	3.68	2.79	24.0
Crossing flagmen, etc.	3.22	1.96	39.2

Need Organization.

Such a range of decreases cannot be justified by any statistics compiled to determine wages which are just and reasonable. Cost of living data which appears to justify a seven per cent cut in the well organized branches can hardly serve the board in also authorizing a 39 per cent cut in unorganized.

The period of surplus common labor following the war gave employers an opportunity to reduce workers in this group to their beggarly pre-war status. Lack of organizations outside the railroad industry precluded serious resistance. And the labor board simply followed the rates of the labor market.

Executive Council of A. F. of L. Meets with Anti-Communist Aides

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—Sessions of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor began May 5, with most of the eleven members present. James Duncan of the Granite Cutters, first vice-president, the only contemporary of Gompers still in the council, resigned from that body immediately upon its failure to elect him as the successor of the late president, in December. His resignation was not acted upon at the Miami meeting in February, but it appears likely that his successor will be chosen at this meeting.

William English Walling, former anti-Communist adviser to Mr. Gompers, and Peter Brady, New York anti-socialist leader, were in attendance on the opening day, with Flynn of Boston, representative of the News Writers of that city.

Cal Favorable to Rail Merger.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—The combining of the Erie, Pere Marquette, Hocking Valley, Nickel Plate and Chesapeake and Ohio railroads into the railroad trust by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, was approved by Richard F. Grant, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who testified before the interstate commerce commission.

In view of Coolidge's recent declaration that he would allow the trusts to do as they please without governmental interference, the rail merger is expected to be approved.

Must Pay to Work.

NEW YORK.—Cattle boats used to pay men to go over the Atlantic tending the animals but now an enterprising labor agent is offering Britishers, Hollanders and Swedes a ride back to their native lands as cattle valets for a fee of $20, a Scotch worker who applied at the 129 Greenwich street, New York address in answer to an ad relates.

POLISH FASCISTS TORTURE REDS IN "HOLY CROSS" PRISON WHERE ONLY HOPE FOR RELEASE IS GRAVE

WARSAW, May 10.—(I. R. A.)—The prison of the "Holy Cross." This is the name of the prison situated 35 versts from the town of Kelzy. Built on a high mountain, surrounded by huge walls and often veiled by mist, this old prison is called with justification a "grave for the living."

To be sent "under the Holy Cross" means slow but certain death. The conditions are so unbearable that even the Polish government was compelled to decide that everyone who is sent there must be first subjected to a medical examination, because a sick person would live here hardly longer than two months.

Makes Cripples.

This prison is destined for long term prisoners. Its purpose is to make human beings into cripples in a safe and gradual manner. Sixty per cent of all prisoners are suffering from consumption. How the prisoners are "nursed" here can be seen from a statement of the prison doctor: "For 30 hopelessly ill prisoners only two jugs of milk are provided in 24 hours. Food is given in such quantities which are just sufficient to die gradually. If these conditions are not changed, I will ask for my dismissal."

Reds Tortured.

The death rate in prison is formidable. Since 1920 to March 1924 over 500 prisoners have died. In 1923 alone 190 prisoners died. But nevertheless the number of prisoners does not decrease. The cells of the dead prisoners are immediately filled with new revolutionists. The prison administration gives no advantages to the political prisoners and treats them worse than the common criminals. They are often put into the punishment cells and exposed to hunger and maltreatment. Often they must do terribly hard labor and are tortured in all possible ways.

Not Permitted to Wash.

The walls of the prison are wet. In the cells there is nothing except the mattresses covered with vermin. The cells are not heated. The prisoners receive no soap. Water is given only for drinking, but not for washing. The underwear falls in pieces on the bodies of the prisoners.

Continuously hungry, in cold and wet cells, in dirt and stinking air, in eternal darkness—thus live the political prisoners in the prison of the "Holy Cross." Their complaints, cries and demands, their groans and shouts are heard by nobody, nobody hears the death rattling of a human being buried alove.

Foreign Delegates of Women's Council Congratulate Negroes

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Two hundred of the best Negro singers among this musically gifted people publicly walket out of the great auditorium in the national capital, just as they were announced to furnish the main part of a program of "American" music for a concret given by the International Council of Women. They struck because the members of their race who had purchased tickets to the concert given in honor of the foreign visitors had been segregated on one side of the hall.

Miss Hallie Q. Brown, of Wilberforce university, Xenia, O., who had been preparing for the negro singers' part in the program for more than a year, at the request of the International Council of Women, now in quinquennial session in Washington, explained the walkout as a protest at public humiliation of her race before the whole world. She had had a written guaranty from Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the American branch of the Council, that no segregation or discrimination would be permitted. Mrs. Moore failed to make good her pledge.

Miss Brown took the platform and stated the facts. Foreign delegates showed their sympathy, some of them hissing the management and others going to congratulate the negro musicians on their courage.

Hampton Institute choir was one of the units in the chorus which refused to accept humilation. Chief Justice Taft, chiarman of the trustees of Hampton Institute, was asked for advice but refused to give any, saying that he know nothing of the circumstances. Negro delegates in the Council kept their seats among the white delegates.

Our Readers' Views

Red Legislator in Action.

To the DAILY WORKER:—It may interest the readers of the DAILY WORKER, to know the difference between a Communist legislator and the common "progressives." From what I can gather, the following took place in the North Dakota legislature:

A bill came before the house, which would disfranchise the non-property owner from voting on any bond issue for schools or otherwise.

After the argument on this bill had gone to some length between the reactionaries and the so-called progressives, Comrade Miller, Communist member of the house, never wishing to waste time with long arguments, addressed the speaker of the house, and declared:

"It is quite natural that after the business interests of this state and nation in general, have fleeced the working people out of all the wealth they have produced, why then should they not disfranchise these same workers in as much as they have no property?

"Why should the wealthy be burdened with the expense of educating the poor?

"Is not this a government of American ideals, and fine individualism where the individual has the right to get the earth on a piece of paper and stick it in his vest pocket, and then tell the workers to get off the earth?

"Yes, it is quite natural, that a bill of this kind should be introduced in this house at this time, and that it should get the support of the henchmen of Wall Street.

"The henchmen of the czar put such laws over on the Russian people in the days before the reign of the Bolsheviki. Now if I was sure that a law of this kind would sweep czarism from this country, I would vote for it.

"But, I find that the laws in our statute books have created a conditiono where we find that 85 per cent of the people of these United States do not own a dollar's worth of wealth, the fact is two per cent own 65 per cent of the wealth, not only that the two per cent have loaned 35 billiono dollars to foreign countries."

Some day this Wall Street gang will ask your Uncle Samuel to get a loan of your sons, to collect this 35 billion from these foreign speculators.

In the midst of Comrade Miller's talk a reactionary asked the speaker of the house to make Miller get on the subject, Miller said, "The subject is too deep for you." The speaker said, "We all get off the subject so go ahead, Miller."

The bill was killed. Every other day Miller had a tilt like the above.

Protest of Workers Forced Lead Poison Gas Off the Market

NEW YORK, May 10.—Organized labor can take some credit to itself for the ending of the menace of tetraothyl lead gasoline which the Ethyl Gasoline Co. is withdrawing from the market pending the outcome of the U. S. surgeon general's conference on May 20 in Washington.

When five workers engaged in making the deadly gasoline died of acute lead poisoning, organized labor protested against its manufacture and sale until its safety was esthalished.

The bureau of mines report approved of the product but its report has been attacked by noted authorities and with the conclusion of Columbia University's investigation, anticipated to be unfavorable, the leaded gasoline is now off the market temporarily and no longer menaces the garage and filling station workers as well as the public breathing lead fumes in exhaust gases.

The 15th annual report of the ciation reprints the text of the munication to the A. F. of L. from the 1924 convention of the tional association. The growing stility leading to crisis between workers of the black and white in America is outlined.

Ask Admitance to Unions.

"Intelligent Negroes know full that a blow at organized labor blow at all labor; that black labo day profits by the blood and swe labor leaders in the past who fought oppression and monopoly organization," the communicatio the A. F. of L. relates. It says Negroes are coming into skilled semi-skilled jobs mostly as "sc because the policy of many union to admit Negro workers which ha to a cessation of black workers' ef to get into them when they felt t strength outside.

Fight Race Discrimination.

The N. A. A. C. P. reports that appeals for legal aid were dealt during 1924 by the application of tests: "First, does the case inv discrimination and unjustice bec of race or color? Second, will (of the N. A. A. C. P.) into the serve to establish a precedent will favorably affect the rights of ored people as a whole?" A re of important decisions is given. statements of residential segreg fights in Washington, D. C., and cities are given.

The progress of the Dyer Anti-ly ing bill in congress and account the 16 lynchings of 1924 are inc and the story of the anti-lync campaign in England during the ing of the American Bar Associa is retold. Considerable interest ported in Britain as a result of publicity given the association's wich men on London streets.

"For the Sake of Humanity."

DEPORTATION OF VAJTAUER HELD UP FOR REVIEW

Law Puts the Burden of Proof on the Defense

The Labor Defence Council, national headquarters in Chicago, is just in receipt of certain legal documents pertaining to the deportation case of Emanuel Vajtauer, editor of the Obrana, a Czech Communist newspaper, which reveals the manner in which the immigration act of May, 1924, works.

Vajtauer was arrested for a deportation hearing in Chicago on April 4, 1924, as a result of an "anonymous complaint" from a so-called "union man," to the effect that editor Vajtauer was "inciting the people against the government and convincing them that their only hope was in the Communist Workers Party of America.

Case Held Up For Review.

In August, 1924, he was ordered deported, and in February, 1925, sent to Ellis Island. The case was appealed and in April, 1925, the writ was dismissed by Judge Hand who remanded Vajtauer for deportation. However, deportation has been held up for review by the U. S. supreme court, and a few days ago Vajtauer was released from Ellis Island on $3,000.00 bail.

Thruout the hearings of the case before Judge Hand of the United States district court of New York, Vajtauer availed himself of the constitutional provision that allows a defendant not to answer questions that might incriminate him. Vajtauer's hearings began before May, 1924, when the act was passed.

Defendant Must Prove He Is Innocent.

The prosecution, United States attorney for the commissioner of immigration, introduces section 23 of the above act, which says in part: "In any deportation proceeding against any alien the burden of proof shall be upon such alien to show that he entered the United States lawfully." The burden of proof on all other matters is left to the government.

The prosecution completely fell down in proving its case against Vajtauer. The judge admitted that. But at the same time he was forced to take cognizance of section 23 of the immigration act. Judge Hand said, "A refusal to furnish evidence for whatever reason and a reliance solely on the defendant's passport does not meet the burden of proof or require the government to go further."

Constitutional Rights Infringed.

In other words, section 23 is designed to give the prosecution in deportation cases full leeway and while it does not prohibit the use of the constitutional provision that allows refusal to answer incriminating questions, it nevertheless makes it dangerous for the defendant to avail himself of it and at the same time takes upon himself the complete burden of proof.

The Labor Defense Council is continuing the fight against Vajtauer's deportation. The case, which is the usual deportation frame-up of the United States department of labor, will be carried to the limit. Anyone wishing to contribute to the legal fund for the carrying on of this and many other cases can send donations to the Labor Defense Council, 19 South Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

RED INTERNATIONAL OF LABOR UNIONS HAILS ANGLO-RUSSIAN UNITY—SWEDISH KEYMEN APPROVE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, May 10.—After hearing the report of Comrade Melnitchansky on the London conference of the British and Russian trade unions, the executive bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions adopted the following resolution: "The executive bureau expresses its deepest satisfaction with the results of the London Trade Union Conference. The rapprochement between the British and Russian trade unions constitutes an important step forward on the road to international trade union unity, and shows concretely that unity is not a phantasy but a reality that can be attained.

"The executive bureau of the R. I. L. U. considers the rapprochement between the British and Soviet trade unions very important, and it calls upon the revolutionary trade unions of all countries to support unreservedly and with the greatest energy the joint advisory committee formed by these trade unions, in all its efforts to bring the workers of different tendencies together, in all its efforts to bring the workers of different tendencies together, and to restore the unity of the national and international trade union movement, by creating single trade union organizations in each country and a single militant international comprising the trade unions of all tendencies and in all parts of the world."

Swedish Union For Unity.

The Swedish trade union delegation of postal and telegraph workers, which has made an exhaustive study of the conditions of their Russian brothers in Leningrad and Moscow, has left for Stockholm. Before their departure, a farewell reception took place in which participated the central committee of the Russian Union of Postal and Telegraph Workers, the representatives of the Russian shop councils, and the Swedish delegation.

Mattelin, member of the Swedish delegation declared that after taking into cognizance the positive as well as negative aspects of life in the Soviet Union, the Swedish delegation has come to the conviction that the progress made by the Russian proletariat in the field of economic reconstruction was very considerable, and that the five members of the Swedish delegation were returning to Sweden as friends of the Russian revolutionary proletariat.

The Swedish delegation presented the Russian fraternal organization with a memorandum, which, among other things expresses the hope of the Swedish delegation for the consolidation of the conquests of the Russian revolution, and the closest co-operation between the workers of the Soviet Union and the workers of all countries, thus enabling the international proletariat to fight successfully against world capitalism. The joint resolution which was adopted unanimously, declares:

"The Russian and Swedish Unions of Postal, Telegraph and Telephone Workers greet and results of the London trade union conference, and consider them the most important step to international trade union unity taken until now. It is necessary to unite the postal and telegraph workers into a single international. The efforts of the Russian union to be admitted into the international should be supported."

Bulgarian Party Branch Organized in Milwaukee, Wis.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 10.—A Bulgarian branch of the Workers Party has been organized in Milwaukee, Wis. The branch is made up of good virile elements with a thoro knowledge of Marxism and Leninism. The branch is organized at the time when white terror is raging in Bulgaria and is a worthy answer to the international imperialism.

Most of the members of the branch have been formerly connected with the socialist labor party and have been fully disillusioned with the opportunistic policy of that sectarian group. The Bulgarian federation represents the backbone of the socialist labor party and as these elements are learning a great historic lesson from their experiences in America and Bulgaria they are leaving the organization and join a real effective revolutionary organization following the same principles and tactics as the Communist Party of Bulgaria.

The failure of the socialist labor party to establish relations with the Communist International and also the failure of S. L. P. to recognize the need of proletarian dictatorship as has been clearly demonstrated in the course of the Bulgarian reaction, are the chief reasons why these members are leaving the socialist labor party. It is expected that the branch will rapidly secure support of all Bulgarian workers.

THE VOICE OF LENIN TO BE HEARD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY, MAY 24

Something new and different is being arranged by the Russian branch of the Workers Party for Sunday, May 24, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. It will be a Lenin Evening, with Comrade Nicolai Lenin as the chief speaker. This is no joke, as the talk by Comrade Lenin will be heard from a phonograph record, as well as speeches by Comrade Lunacharsky, Trotsky and others.

Comrade Alexander Chramov, national organizer of the Russian Section W. P., who is touring the United States, will bring the records to Chicago. He will also speak on Lenin as a leader of the masses. A good musical program is also being prepared. Tell your friends about it. Let them listen to the voice of Lenin!

Remember the date, Sunday May 24, at 1902 W. Division St.

LABOR DEFENSE BRANCHES MAKE FUND CAMPAIGN

All Branches Asked to Co-operate

The national office of the Labor Defense Council has just received a check for $60 from the Denver defense secretary with the information that it represents the proceeds of two affairs; one, the defense meeting at which Anna Louise Strong spoke, and the other the celebration of the seventieth birthday of Inge Skgidstad.

Honor Veteran.

All members of the party in Denver had been invited to the birthday celebration of this comrade who is one of the oldest in the Workers Party of Denver having been in it since its organization. A collection appeal at the birthday celebration resulted in $25.

The New York Labor Defense Council branch sold about $180 worth of Labor Defense buttons. They have organized systematically for tagging with these buttons at all affairs.

Fight the Deportation Menace.

The Labor Defense Council calls upon all other branches of the defense and all sympathetic organizations to run affairs for the benefit of the defense, and to buy and sell the buttons. Workers everywhere are reminded that the Defense Council is now engaged in a wide campaign against the deportation menace, for which ample funds are needed.

Comintern's Statement on Bulgar Blast

escribed to it in connection with this event, and in connection with the alleged date fixed for the Bulgarian uprising are absolute forgeries.

Becoming More Insolent.

The sworn enemies of the Comintern who are carrying on a holy war against Communism, are becoming daily more and more insolent. The executive of the Comintern calls upon the workers of all countries, to organize an effective defense against the murderous fascist Tzankoff government. The bloody Tzankoff government alone bears all responsibility for events in Bulgaria. No white terror is capable of halting the struggle of the workers and peasants for their liberation. The sympathies of the progressive workers of all countries go to the workers and peasants of Bulgaria, and to those of their champions and heroes who in their just struggle did not shrink before death.

Pravda's Comment.

MOSCOW, April 23—(By Mail)—Pravda writes: "The governmental terror and the blood-reeking dictatorship of Tzankoff's hangmen have driven the peasantry to such despair, that conspiratory organizations grew up spontaneously, which executed some of the heads of the Tzankoff regime with the sword of terror. As they bravely raised the sword, they themselves met with death. In face of the hangmen and the gallows waiting for their victims, it is not our task to reproach the militants for having chosen the wrong weapons in their struggle.

Almost the entire bourgeois press opened up a furious, dishonest, insolent and slanderous campaign. The calumnious campaign against the Communists is taking on all forms. Everywhere it is claimed that Moscow had its hand in the Soffian explosion. The American, French, Italian and German press is shouting about the "strategy of Moscow," and the "conspiracies of the Comintern." The bourgeois hirelings know well that the Comintern has nowhere and never propagated individual terror. The inkcoolies know that the Soviet has had as little to do with the explosion in Sofia as any other government.

They know that individual terror is the inevitable consequence of the mad policy of the Tzankoff regime, which rested on the bayonet.

In Bulgaria it is impossible to rule against the workers and peasants.

In Bulgaria it is impossible to rule solely with hangmen; it is impossible to rule by means of a bloody armed struggle against the people.

The Cowardly German Bourgeoisie.

Even Zankov should have realized this truth. The hired press calls the Communists the agents of Moscow. The attitude of the so-called "democratic" press in Germany is nauseating. At the time when the Ruhr was occupied, the whole world was spitting Germany in the face; only the Soviet government protested against the action of the entente imperialists. But now, when forged letters and documents fabricated by the police are being spread against Soviet Russia, the German press is shouting itself hoarse in its effort to imitate the Anglo-American press. We Communists are categorically opposed to individual terror. We have always said, and still say to the followers of the Comintern:

Resist all provocations, and base your policy on the masses! Do not let anyone mislead you! Organize the masses against the infamous actions of the government!

Thus the Communists speak openly before the whole world. They are with and for the people against the enemies of the people. It was so, it is so, and it shall remain so!

Bronx Has a Communist Library

THE Bronx headquarters of the Workers Party, at 1347 Boston Road, New York City, are ahum with commotion. Bookcases are being made and overhauled; chairs, benches and tables are being built; everybody is busy; and everybody is talking about the Bronx Library. Comrades are looking over their personal libraries, scratching their heads and wonderinghow many good books they can spare for the Workers' Library. Subscriptions are being sent in for the Workers Monthly, and some of our periodicals and daily papers, and by and by the Bronx library will become one of the finest Communist libraries in the country. The Jewish Branch No. 1 has collected $12.23 for the library fund; besides numerous books have been promised by individual comrades. One comrade in the Russian branch has promised to donate over $100 worth of Russian books; others have also pledged themselves to do likewise. The English Branch No. 1 has donated a subscription to the International News Service, and many of the individual comrades have promised books and money. Special credit should be given to the Young Workers League branches who are working with might and main to make the library issue a success. They have already contributed over 200 volumes, and promise to do much more.

Comrades of the Bronx, this appeal is addressed to you. If you want the Communist center of the Bronx to contain a real working Communist library, we call upon you to come down to the headquarters with all the books and money you can gather together and help us in the work. The library committee meets at headquarters on Tuesday, May 12. If your branch has not elected a delegate and you are interested in this work, be present yourself and let us have your counsel and help in this matter.—Library Committee, Bronx.

Olgin-Guthrie Debate Arouses Great Interest

NEW YORK, May 10—Wide interest is being shown in the forthcoming debate between Moissaye J. Olgin of the Workers Party and Professor William B. Guthrie, of the College of the City of New York, to be held on Sunday, May 17, 2 p. m., at Central Opera House, 67th street and Third avenue.

The subject to be dealt with—Resolved that the Rusian Soviet system is superior to parliamentary democracy—involves the entire question of proletarian dictatorship versus capitalist democracy. The debate is held under the joint auspices of the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers School. Admission is 50c.

Tickets may be obtained at the office of the Workers Party, 108 East 14th street; the Freiheit, 30 Union Square; Jimmie Higgins Book Shop, 127 University Place.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

From a Rank-and-Filer

DURING the slow season in the dressmaking trade, I wanted to go somewhere to meet new friends and to get some new subscribers for our DAILY WORKER. So I took a position for five days in a hunting and fishing club for millionaires. I had to wait on table for those vampires who live on the sweat of the workers, and I am quite satistfied with the results, comrades!

First of all, I want to picture to you the life of the employes under the system of the capitalistic bloodsuckers. The headwaiter has been in this country for five years and in this place for four years, employed as a slave-driver in order to protect the pocketbook of the capitalist class. There are girls waiting on from 35 to 40 people, one 17 and another 18 years of age. The menu is so long that a girl must carry from 25 to 35 lbs. of food in and out at one time. There are also six officials and two bosses in the side hall who had to be served at the same time, and every other day one of the girls had to take charge of them. At breakfast, the waitress makes her own orange juice, and she usually has five or six more orders; she has to take a big lump of ice from the box and crack it, and also to polish the silver and glasses. The dining room which accommodates 200 people and the side hall have to be swept and dusted by the girls.

The sleeping quarters are nice and clean with good beds, but after the girls are thru working, they have to take care of their own rooms. In regard to the food, the employes get the left-overs of the guests' food, and when there is nothing left, they make a very poor, so-called "lamb stew" which they serve two or three times a week. Last Sunday, I had the pleasure of tasting it. It must have boiled out, as it had no taste nor strength and was very stale.

I spoke to the headwaitress about the condition of the employers' work and food. I wanted to convince her that the workers will ruin their health under their present system, but she answered: "Nobody has to stay who does not want to, as we can always get help that will be satisfied."

"Yes," I replied, "they probably will, but it should be your duty to protect the girls by taking their part, to change the system, and in the four years you have been employed here, you could have improved the conditions a little." But she shouted, "If I ever said anything, I might get kicked out. I used to work in a nice big place in New York and I had to work much harder than the girls do."

I want to mention that this little slave-driver is a woman of about 28 years of age, small and delicate. She has absolutely no apearance as a headwitress! But the management thot she would make a good slave-driver, and comrades, I can assure you that they were not mistaken.

The girls in the dining room get $30 a month, hardly any tips. They have a nine-months' season with no Sundays or holidays off. There are over 100 people employed, most of whom are from the surrounding country. Therefore, they can't say much, or otherwise they would get discharged and they can't possibly find work out there, as the next town from Glen Eyre, Pa., is Holley, 20 miles away, and the city workers just come and go. One of the employes said that I was the first one there who spoke up for their rights.

I spoke to six people who seemed to be very intelligent and found a good understanding at the end. I told them that what I spoke of were the principles of Communisim that many of the workers misunderstand. We need and must have good food to keep our strength, as we are those who have to do the work!

The six people gave me their addresses and I am quite sure that I will get some subscribers for our DAILY WORKER. I have convinced two women of Communist ideas, and the importance of our paper. One I have already introduced to the Downtown English branch and have also sent $2 for a 3-months sub for our paper.

As soon as this is published, I will send each one a copy of The DAILY WORKER.

Wake up comrades and get busy. Spread our true friend, THE DAILY WORKER!

Crouch and Trumbull Expose Kept Press Lies

premature as he was not discharged until April 7, 1925, when he was sentenced. Crouch was not a "teacher in an army school." Our Esperanto class had no connections with army schools or the military authorities; and notwithstanding all official statements to the contrary, we were arrested about 1:30 p. m., February 19, '25.

The news of our sentences printed in the DAILY WORKER offers refreshing contrast to the methods of the Associated Press, despite the wealth and organization of the latter.

The reason for official efforts to keep our arrests secret until after the trials, so newspaper men would not be present, is now obvious to all who understand the class rule of the American government. We were not greatly surprised at efforts to frame us. But when false statements regarding our arrests, etc., were given the public press and a very inaccurate summary sent to Washington, there was no longer any doubt that army officers intended to keep us "framed."

Records Destroyed by Government.

We have just received the so-called "records" of our trials, that is the carbon copies. They are distorted beyond recognition in many places, documentary evidence of the defense is omitted altho forged documents obtainable from the state department pertaining to the Third (Communist) International are included.

Discover 78 Lies.

Altho we have not had sufficient time to make a thoro examination, we discovered 19 errors and omissions of vital importance in the record of Trumbull's trial and 59 in that of the Crouch trial with a far larger number of probable errors. Of course, we cannot remember the correct answers given by other witnesses as well as those given by ourselves, but it appears that all testimony in the Crouch case is badly distorted. It is significant that more than 90 per cent of the "mistakes" are favorable to the prosecution.

If we had legal (not military) defense we believe the distorted nature of the court records would be sufficient grounds for a new trial as there exists no accurate record of our trial (as far as we know) for use by the reviewing authority.

Oriental Workers Under Lash.

There are few places where Communism is feared as much as in Hawaii. Class distinctions are sharply defined and the ruling classes (the plantation owners) rely upon ignorance, the power of religion, Buddhist, Mormon, or Catholic, and prejudice and misunderstanding between races to keep the oriental workers under the lash of the "white" dictatorship.

The local authorities make no secret of their alliance with the ruling class against the proletariat and the army is intended as the last resort—the inner wall—of capitalism. So the thought that Communists are within the "inner wall" sends a spasm of fear and hate down the spines of army officers who think Americanism is identical with capitalism. And because of this fear and hate we cannot and we do not—expect any mercy from the agents of the "white terrors."

Comrade Andrade's Letter.

We read the letter of Comrade Juan Andrade in the DAILY WORKER. If there were more workers like Comrade Andrade, the dawn of the world revolution would be much nearer. It is quite evident that Merino Gracia, Angel Pumarega and Francisco Vall, who proved traitors to the proletariat, belong to the type of Abramovich. We do not understand how any Communist can recant his principles, even in the face of life imprisonment or death. Let them go—we will be better when we are free from all such.

U. S. Worse Than Fascist.

It is interesting to compare the treatment of political prisoners in Spain a monarchy, where one can continue to edit a Communistic publication, with the United States where we, for example, are not permitted to give news about our own case to a local capitalist newspaper.

Despite public addresses by American officials in which they speak of Communism as something foreign that could not touch the United States the fact remains that nothing is feared as much by American capitalists and plutocrats as the Red movement.

We noticed a letter published in the Honolulu Advertiser by a Harry Wong, in which he denounces the adherents of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

Threaten Sun Yat Sen Followers.

His statements are untrue and the Chinese consul placed his flag at half mast at the request of his government. But the letter is significant in view of the fact that a number of Chinese inhabitants of Honolulu, who were known as supporters of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, received letters with threats of death if they attended memorial services of the liberator.

The audacity of Corp. Fisher, the government spy, is seldom equalled. Despite the attacks we made upon an article by Isaac Marcosson in the Saturday Evening Post of Jan. 24, '25, Fisher testified that Crouch advised him to read the article because it expressed his own viewpoint. This testimony was a base falsehood!

NEGRO WORKERS READY TO JOIN LABOR'S FRONT

Vancouver Negro Toilers Unite with Unions

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

VANCOUVER, B. C.—May 10—To resist the encroachments of the bosses which have grown with the abundance cheap immigrant labor, a delega- of Vancouver Negro workers are ready to join their white comrades to make labor's front solid.

The Vancouver Trades and Labor Council has been conducting an organization campaign for the past six weeks among all trades in the city. A new local of automobile mechanics has been formed and garages in the city are displaying the union shop card. The Bakers' union has been strengthened and the organization is striving to have union labels placed on the bread sold thruout the city.

Since the government opened parlors for selling beer by the glass the Trades Council organized the beverage workers 100 per cent. A local union of the Garment Workers has been formed to take the place of the old local which fell during trade depression.

Lumber Conditions Worse.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—May 10—Conditions in the lumber industry of British Columbia have steadily grown worse since 1921 in filth and exploitation. At Horne Lake, Vancouver Island, where tents serve as bunkhouses, water rose within six inches of the bottom of the beds. It was unnecessary to get out of bed to perform the morning ablutions: all one had to do was to stick face and arms over the edge of the bed, and wash in the lake water on the floor. The camp toilet at this place flooded into the lake from which water for cooking and drinking is obtained. When a sanitary inspector finally ordered the camp closed down, the company moved camp on Sunday and refused to pay the men for moving it, but charged them board while doing the moving.

JOHN REED JUNIOR GROUP PLANS BIG NIGHT ON MAY 23

Tell it to the kids! No, it ain't about a circus, but the surprise affair that is being arranged by the John Reed Junior Group. They promise an interesting evening on Sat., May 23, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. They won't tell what they are going to pull off, but they assure that it will be a real surprise, dance, and a good time in general. So don't forget, tell it to the kids!

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE DEFEATS BILL TO PROTECT WORKERS' HEALTH

NEW YORK, May 10.—The Miller-Trueman silicosis amendment to the workmen's compensation law, drawn up by the employers, and passed by both houses of the legislature against the protest of labor and scientific experts, has been killed by the governor's veto. The employers' bill, would have placed the power within the hands of an employer to discharge any worker suffering from silicosis in any degree, and denying him compensation if he reenters any trade exposing him to silica dust. Organized labor has beaten the employers' bill, but the employers have succeeded in sidetracking labor's occupational disease amendments.

These are the amendments which labor lost:

1. Compensation for silicosis, for all workers exposed to silica (quartz) dust, including quarry workers, stone cutters, rock drillers, miners, sand blasters, potters, emery grinders, polishers and buffers.

2. Compensation for poisoning by benzol and other coal tar products, for workers among the following industries: dyes, drugs, perfumes, explosives, shoe polish, soap, photography, electro-plating, tanning, printing and lithographing.

3. Compensation for poisoning by tetrachlor-ethane and similar materials used in the dye and other industries.

4. Compensation for skin irritations caused by work materials.

5. Poisoning by naptha, bensine and gasoline, affecting painters, rubber workers, dry cleaners, dyers, chauffeurs, garage workers, workers employed by refineries in cleaning out vats and tank cars.

Labor has little to expect from the representatives in the legislature. The sum total of the two years fight to put thru these important amendments is a back-handed victory—the defeat of the employers' substitute bill.

Only four states and the federal government have a law providing compensation for any occupational disease. These states are California, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Hawaii, Porto Rico, have laws providing compensation only for a limited number of occupational diseases. This leaves workers in 37 states without compensation when their health is destroyed by poisons, dusts and fumes.

Yet securing compensation for occupational diseases is only one skirmish in the great struggle going on all over the country for industrial health. It is not a matter of one legislature or one state, but an organized drive which must be made by the trade unions against health exploitation by the employers.

PICNIC MAY 30 TO DRAW CROWD OF MILITANTS

T. U. E. L. Group Gets Altenheim Grove

The first workers' picnic of the year, given by the Trade Union Educational League of Chicago, will be held on May 30, Decoration Day, in Altenheim Grove, to be reached by direct route on the Forest Park elevated line, and by transfer from the West Madison surface cars.

Many of the branches of the Workers Party are taking part in this picnic of the Chicago militant unionists, and contests between the branches are being arranged. Two language federation groups are slated for to put on a "tug-of-war," and some of the labor athletes are volunteering to stage exhibitions.

Every party branch is supposed to get in touch with local headquarters and to furnish some feature of entertainment, game or contest.

Bulgarians in U. S. Denounce Zankov Terror

tone Genoff, Evan Koleff, S. D. Pereff, Demo Stefonoff and Allen Stefono, declared that the American workers should make a protest against the free use of machine guns against their former countrymen.

Shoot Down Workers.

"Conditions are bad," said John Kriss, another Bulgarian who has made his home in Tulsa, who received many letters from his relatives. "Letters I have received show the terrible conditions which prevail under the Zankov terror. My brother-in-law wrote me how workers are placed in box cars and then shot down with machine guns. It is terrible to think that the world will stand by and permit the things that are done to helpless Bulgarians."

The Bulgarians here point to the fact that the Zankoff regime was not elected by the workers, having gained power by the use of the gun and bayonet, and murder of agrarian party leaders. The fascists are enabled to keep power only by these murderous tactics, the Bulgarians here declare.

Not Supported by Workers.

"There is no freedom of speech, no freedom of the press and no freedom of action," Kovacheff said when interviewed. "There are newspapers, but there are no opposition newspapers because the government won't allow them."

Kovacheff, who has been receiving mail from his relatives, declared that the method of disposing of opposition by the Bulgarian fascists is simple. The Zankov fascist troops, many of whom are refugees who fought against the workers of Russia under Wrangel, surround their opponent's house, burn it, and murder or imprison the occupant.

One Bulgarian here said he had written his father asking him to describe conditions there, and the father replied that he did not dare do so, for fear of being murdered by the fascists.

Unemployment in France Mounts As Workers Flock In

PARIS, France, May 10.—France reports a slight increase in unemployment based on figures compiled up to April 1, with public labor agencies finding it impossible to find jobs for the workers.

Ten thousand workers are pouring into the country from Italy, Spain and Portugal every month.

SEAMEN CHEATED BY GOVERNMENT SHIPPING LINE

Canadian Boats Beat Men Out of Wages

By SYDNEY WARREN

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 10.—The Canadian government's merchant marine loses about a million and a half dollars annually due to the fact that the government built its fleet to make the war a "good thing" for Canadian shipbuilding profiteers. Now the officials of the government steamship line are trying to cut down this deficit by reducing the wages of seamen. Last year $448,000 was cut from the deficit, the major part through elimination of overtime aboard the vessels, cutting down crews to where it was hazardous and by cheapening the quality of food for the crews. Another source of revenue has been the fining of Canadian seamen.

The secretary of the Federated Seafarers' Union of Canada, W. Donaldson, is trying to have the labor members in the Canadian house of commons revise the shipping act. Seamen at the present time are fined two days' wages often for the slightest offenses.

A seaman injured aboard a Canadian government vessel is at the mercy of the captain. He may or may not recieve proper medical attention. The government instead of charging expenses to the Sick Mariners' fund, robs the individual seaman by making him pay all doctor bills incurred for injuries received while on the ship's articles.

Aboard the S. S. Canadian Inventor, Capt. Roberts, one of the vessel's firemen fell and split his lip. The vessel was at a port in the orient and a doctor was summoned who attended to the injury and instructed the chief steward how to attend to it after the vessel put to sea. On arrival at Vancouver the seaman had $8 deducted from his wages for the single visit by the doctor in the oriental port. It was simply taken from his wages and he was powerless to do anything more than protest and get his name on the blacklist for having the temerity to do so. During the recent smallpox scare the Canadian government ships charged every seaman $2.50 for being vaccinated.

The union took the matter up with the port authorities and the vaccination charge was refunded.

The S. S. Canadian Exporter was wrecked in 1922. During the suit of the insurance company against the government it was revealed that the vessel left Vancouver with a green crew, recruited to break the strike of the union seamen for living wages and habitable sea conditions. Capt. Bradley testified that not one member of the crew, apart from the officers, had discharge papers. He had refused to sign them but the shore officials of the Canadian government merchant marine overruled him despite his protest.

Britons May "Never Be Slaves," But They Make Negroes Slaves

SYDNEY (Australia).—On many sheep and cattle ranches in Western and Northern Australia, the ranch owners get a big percentage of their work done by Australian Negroes and do not pay them any wages. The rations served to the slaves are generally sodden bread, diluted tea and baked kangaroo meat or mutton three times daily. There is no variation. In many cases the Negroes are not given clothing except cheap trousers for the men and singlet and loin cloth for the women. In addition to rations the blacks are given at certain intervals a few plugs of cheap tobacco in lieu of cash payment. The ranchowners claim they work the natives solely to prevent them from becoming indolent.

Wage Contracts Expire.

Wage movements are occupying many Chicago unions as contracts expire or near the expiration day. The street carmen's 2-year arbitration award ends June 1 and they are demanding restoration of the 1922 wage peak of 80c an hour.

In the building trades the union tile and marble setters want $1.62½ an hour in place of the current $1.30. Stonecutters have a bid in for $1.07½ an hour, a 5c raise. Derrick men propose $1.10, a 10c raise. Iron workers ratified the $1.37½ figure agreed on by the iron league.

The ice cream wagon drivers, after a day's stopping of work, obtained a 4-year agreement giving them $40 a week for the colder months and $20 for the warmer months, with a 5c a gallon commission on ice cream delivered. The old wage was $21 a week in winter and $10 in summer with 7c a gallon commission. The 7-day week remains.

BUILDERS AT WORK

THEY JUST CAN'T STOP IN DETROIT!

Look Over This Record.

Communism meets the workers in Detroit on the streets, in the shop, the union hall and at his home. And here are the reasons the Detroit local just insists on growing:

They have ordered on at least five different occasions during the last six months, special editions from five to twenty thousand; last week they sold and distributed twenty thousand copies of the May first issue at shops and factories; thousands of copies have been distributed door-to-door during the week of May 4 to 10.

And that's not enough! Not for Detroit where they have fully learned the value of the DAILY WORKER as a means to build the local. Now they will have a DAILY WORKER Month!

From May 15 to June 15, there will be a special sub competition between branches for a red banner. Not between all branches for one banner, but one branch against another. The Armenian branch will compete with the Greek; the English against the Finnish, Hungarian against the German, etc.

Here is a plan the comrades feel is going to get the necessary subs to fill the balance of the quota in the Second Annual Sub Campaign. Comrade Al E. Goetz, city agent and guiding spirit in this splendid local activity is enthusiastic. "The getting of renewals and long term subs," he writes, "is going to be especially stressed and I believe that by the time the drive is over, Detroit will look better from a DAILY WORKER point of view than it has looked for a long time and you won't have to crawfish on any of the very encouraging things you have said about our work."

Such spirit is the kind that is going to help build our movement.

North African Wheat Acreage Above 1924

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—A preliminary estimate of the Algerian wheat acreage received by the United States department of agriculture from the international institute of agriculture at Rome, together with estimates of French Morocco and Tunis, brings the total of the three North African countries reported to date up to 7,570,000 acres against 6,920,000 acres for the same countries last year, an increase of 650,000 acres.

Jobless on Rhine Now Totals 110,000 Mostly Metal Workers

BERLIN, Germany, May 10.—At the end of last month there were 110,000 unemployed workers in the Rhineland who were entitled to the beggarly unemployment doles. One-fifth of this number belonged to the iron and metal trades, which normally employ about 30 per cent of the total labor in the Rhineland province.

Hit Van Sweringen Merger

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Minority stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad threw a bomb today in the Van Sweringen merger plans when they asked the interstate commerce commission to require O. Textile Mills Close.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 10.—In spite of textile mill owners' assertions that wage cuts might enable them to give textile mill employes more work, the Fall River mills are cutting production still further, altho they are operating at 50 per cent to 70 per cent.

Amalgamated Food Workers Organize Shops in New York

NEW YORK, May 8.—According to the statement of the New York commissioner of markets, there are in Greater New York 15,000 restaurants and other public eating places, 5,000 bakeries, 7,000 fruit and vegetable stores, 12,000 retail butchers, 19,000 grocery stores and 4,500 delicatessen stores. Many thousands of unorganized food workers are toiling and slaving under miserable conditions and starvation wages in these stores, shops and restaurants. They should all be organized; they must be organized if better conditions are to prevail for these workers.

So far only a very small percentage of these workers have been organized. The food industry is the poorest organized of all industries. New York City and surrounding territory alone offers such a vast field for organization that it almost staggers the imagination.

The Amalgamated Food Workers' is now conducting an organization drive and is meeting with success in many of these shops.

BIRTH CONTROL UNDER FIRE AT WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Soviet Russia Is Still the Bogey Man

WASHINGTON, May 10—Discussion on birth control and divorce took up most of today's session of the convention of the International Council of Women. Both were hysterically denounced as the greatest menaces facing the world. The solution offered by these backward moving foreign women of the bourgeoisie was stultifying the minds of children with more religious propaganda.

Mlle. Josephine Szebeko, president of the Polish delegation and a member of the Polish senate said the sooner birth control and divorce were wiped out the better she would like it. Mrs. George Morgan of Great Britain advocated birth control among "inferior classes and large families in intellectual circles."

Patriotic Women Rule.

Yesterday's session was thrown into a flurry when women of the Women's Peace Union appeared with pacifist pamphlets and literature. The distribution of these was immediately suppressed. So extreme was the fury of the international council women that a bonfire was ordered to destroy the literature.

The pamphlets destroyed advocated immediate total disarmament of all nations, the outlawing of war by prohibiting appropriation of money for purchase of arms and payment of armed forces, described war as legalized murder and urged complete nonresistance.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt in addressing a mass meeting in the Pan-American Union denounced the discourtesy shown the foreign delegates by the women of patriotic organizations. Their minds, she said, in speaking of the patriotic women, are still suffering from war hysteria and they live in fear of Europe and especially of Soviet Russia. They actually believe that all peace societies in this country are financed from Moscow, she said.

Bread Trust Has Grip on Production, Wheat Price Low, Bread Up

MONTREAL—(FP)—The American bread trust, which has an authorized capitalization of $600,000,000, has acquired control of leading bakeries in Montreal and other Canadian cities. For all Canada the average wholesale price of breadstuffs in February were 106 per cent more than the average for 1913. Bread, tobacco and beverages are the only articles, in the group of commodities classified as "consumers goods" by the Dominion bureau of statistics, which show wholesale price advances of 100 per cent or more above 1913 prices. For the whole group, comprising 98 commodities, the average increase over 1913 prices is 55 per cent.

The relatively high price of bread in Canada is not justified by wheat prices. In February the average retail price of plain bread in 60 cities of Canada was exactly the same as in February 1919. But while wheat prices in February, 1925, touched $2 a bushel and then swiftly dropped to $1.55, wheat prices in February, 1919, were $2.24½, the average price for 1919 being $2.21.

Disappointing the Prophets

It was not at all nice of Trotsky to return to Moscow after a sojourn at a health resort and don the harness of service to the Soviet government at the moment when his free lance "defenders" in all other countries were using up large quantities of glycerine to bring forth stage tears over the fall of another victim of the Bolshevist machine. The Communist Party of Russia is as great a mystery to the bourgeoisie and their literary hacks as is the persistence of the workers' republics in refusing to fade away at a wave of the bourgeois hand.

The enemies of Soviet Russia have always hoped for a split in the Russian Communist Party. Every difference of opinion on questions of policy is seized upon and magnified into the proportions of a serious rupture. During the discussion in the party in 1923, the lying capitalist press had "Zinoviev" and "Trotsky" armies fighting each other. That these reports were later on proven false did not bother the purveyors of adulterated news in the least. They know that the Russian Communist Party is the steel backbone of the Soviet Republic. They know that if the R. C. P. was dangerously weakened, the end of the Soviet regime would be in sight.

But the Russian workers and peasants also realize that it is the Communist Party that led them successfully thru the revolution; that it has guided the feet of the young republic thru the trials and dangers of civil war and is now laying the basis for a Communist society that will mean the end of all exploitation and inequality.

They know that this party is what stands between them and the howling wolves of capitalism who show their fangs on every frontier. They know that if the Communist Party was broken and its leaders overthrown, the czarist forces would be back again supported by the bayonets of the capitalist class of the world. This fate the workers and peasants do not want, so they stand behind the party and behind those who are keeping it along the path marked out by the immortal Lenin.

The prophets of Soviet collapse have drawn on the waters of their optimism until the well has almost run dry. Even Paul Scott Mowrer, who has scoured the sewers of Paris and Berlin for his series of articles exposing "Communism," has to admit that there is no hope for the fall of the Soviet power. This is the way he wails: "Since there seems no immediate danger of factionalism within the Communist brotherhood or possibility of an anti-Communist uprising; since finally the economic situation, tho bad, has improved somewhat and can continue as at present for a long time to come, it would seem that the hold of the arch-conspirators upon the people and territory of Soviet Russia is as complete and unchallenged as even they could desire."

Paul Scott Mowrer does not think very highly of the leaders of Soviet Russia, but he admits they are there to stay. Which means that the rule of the workers and peasants is built on too strong a base to be shaken by the power of capitalism. All you enemies of the workers' republic who have tears to shed prepare to shed them now!

Capitalist Hypocrisy

Calvin Coolidge, chairman of the executive committee of the capitalist class, which rules this country, is delivering the goods. Tho his name will never be inscribed on the honor roll of those who have contributed something to the progress of the human race, he deserves well of his masters and no doubt will be handsomely rewarded by them.

At the very moment when the steel bulldogs of Wall Street were growling at Japan from their kennels in the Hawaiian islands, Coolidge delivered a speech on world peace in Washington.

It was the duty of the United States, he declared, not only to look after American well being, but also to contribute to the organization of all nations toward universal peace. "The same humanity that has been able to erect the rule of law and liberty in the scale of great nations, will at last find institutions by which to place international relations in the same sure foundations," declared the president.

This is hypocrisy of the first water. Talking of peace while the greatest armada that the United States ever gathered together was rehearsing for a war with Japan, over the mastery of the Pacific and the other spoils of the Orient! This peace talk is only camouflage to fool the masses into the belief that our rulers are peacefully inclined, so that when the clash comes, the responsibility for the carnage can be laid on the shoulders of the Japanese, and the workers can be more easily mobilized to save the world from Japanese militarism as they were in the last war to free mankind from the German peril. How German militarism was "killed" can be gathered from the election of the militarist Hindenburg to the presidency of the "royal" German republic. Our rulers don't want to kill militarism. They merely want to get rid of a commercial rival.

The American fleet was not playing around Hawaii in order to erect the "rule of law and liberty." Privates Crouch and Trumbull could testify to that. They were openly and ostentatiously preparing for the coming war with Japan. And the $40,000,000 proposed to strengthen the defenses of the Hawaiian Islands are not conducive to a feeling of confidence in the intentions of Wall Street, "to contribute to the organization of all nations toward universal peace."

The Constitution Among Friends

Laws are made to be obeyed by some and enforced by others. The constitution of the United States is honored by the ruling class when it suits their purpose. Any part of it that interferes with their suppression of the working class is treated with contempt. During the war it was treated with hostility and anyone insisting on his constitutional rights to express his opinions found himself enjoying the hospitality of a government prison. The situation is now different only in degree.

The police have no legal right to prevent speakers from addressing meetings on the streets of this city, where meetings do not interfere with traffic.

But they do it. Members of the Workers (Communist) Party have been bundled into patrol wagons and held under an old ordinance which was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court several years ago, for speaking on street corners. But that does not bother the police. They keep on making arrests, and putting the speakers to the trouble of securing bail and spending valuable time in the courts.

The police take action on the request of the business elements, who do not like to have their petty larceny business tricks exposed to the workers. But their efforts to suppress the truth will prove as ineffective as the attempt of old King Canute to keep out the incoming tide with a broom.

The Workers (Communist) Party will fight for the right to use the streets of Chicago in order to bring the message of emancipation to the working class. The capitalists will undoubtedly continue to violate that part of the constitution which guarantees the right of free speech and free assemblage. They will do this with the aid of their police. But this is an excellent way to teach the workers something that they need to know very badly. It is that this government is only a fake democracy. That it is the government of, by and for the capitalists, and the workers have no rights except those in the exercise of which the workers do not menace the power of the employers.

Only when the workers have their own government and when they own this country and all its wealth, will they be able to enjoy the right of free speech or any other right.

"Equality" in India

It must be admitted that England has ruled India quite successfully—for the English exploiters. Ever since the first band of business burglars got their pedal extremities on the soil of India, the British government has carried on a policy which divided the Hindus, into two factions, the ruling class who sold out to the money molochs of London and the masses who were betrayd by the native rulers in return for a guarantee of security in the possession of their wealth.

Britain has been very careful not to offend the religious sensibilities or disturb the superstitions of the Hindus. The imperial bagman went after the substance and winked at the shadow. The conquered could speak any language they saw fit, worship any god they choose or follow any ancient custom so long as the British capitalists could make profit out of the exploitation of the natural wealth of India and out of the cheap labor of the Hindu workers. When in Rome, Britain does as Rome does, provided Rome lets Britain get away with the silver.

But the British ruling class draws the line where the line should be drawn in the interests of its power and prestige. The natives must be shown that the white man is a superior person to the brown man, that the white soldier is above the brown soldier and that the brown soldier who is used as a tool to keep his people in slavery, is somewhat higher in the social scale than the brown native, the fellow Britain wants to keep at the bottom.

The relative value in the imperial eye of a British soldier, a Hindu soldier and a Hindu native can be seen from the fact that whereas only 13 British "Tommies" can be legally seated in a railway coach, 20 Hindu soldiers can be packed into a similar carriage and when used to transport civilians, the railroad company is permitted to jam 43 native passengers into this traveling prison.

Thus one British soldier is worth more than three Hindu civilians. But the Hindus are learning that British superiority is largely a matter of more guns and knowledge how to use them. They are rapidly acquiring the knowledge and with knowledge will come guns. Before long the British soldier in India will not enjoy special favors.

A sixty-year-old resident of Topeka, Kansas, shot and killed his 45-year-old wife and then turned the gun on himself. The double tragedy has excited considerable speculation. Local authorities are at a loss to ascribe a motive. But the last sentence in the news dispatch may supply the missing link. It reads: "Only $3.00 was found in their effects." Perhaps that is sufficient.

Fight Reaction at Capmakers' Convention

By JOSEPH MANLEY.

BY sitting in the sessions of the capmakers' convention one can readily see the steady and rapid progress being made by the left wing in the trade union movement. Fifty-eight delegates are present in the convention from the principal cities and cap and millinery centers of the country. A number of these delegates from some of the principal cities are the left wing block in the convention. This left wing block is responsible for progressive resolutions and concrete proposals for the strengthening of the organization in its struggles with the employers. The reactionary officials have, as is to be expected, a majority of the delegates in the convention, but the left wing block is on its toes fighting intelligently and persistently for the measures so necessary to the welfare of the organization against the machine control of President Zaritsky, who presides at the convention.

In watching the sessions of this convention, one can easily see, dramatically enacted, the whole struggle in the labor movement between the right wing that stands for class collaboration, and the left wing, which fights for class struggle. At one of these sessions, the financially well established voice of the right wing, Abe Cahan, editor of the Forward, addressed the convention. His speech was carefully chosen in its avoidance of a direct attack upon the left wing. It was a popular appeal to muddleheaded thinking, for all its well chosen phrases. Cahan said he "was wafted into the labor movement thru dreams, rather than reality."

"However, unless a man is backed by reality he amounts to nothing. Your union must provide for materialistic wages, hours and working conditions and it must also provide for the religious or idealistic side." Cahan cited the conquest by the materialistic emphasis in the trade union movement of Germany, and hailed as a great triumph for socialism and the trade union movement, the eight million, who voted for a republic against a monarchy.

"All this," he said, "was accomplished thru them becoming practical." In closing he made a veiled criticism of the left wing saying, "in this country, in the various cities we have on the one hand, Tammany Hall politicians, and on the other hand, those who are dreamers. A combination of practical and idealistic things is necessary, so that you can come to the synagogue on Sunday—the socialist synagogue."

A sharp struggle between the right and left wing is developing and will occur over questions such as endorsement by the convention of the DAILY WORKER and the Freiheit. But, the big struggle of the convention will be on the subject of a budget providing for the activities of the union for the coming two years. The first item, namely, the endorsement of the DAILY WORKER has already been disposed of after a stiff round between the right and left wing, in the midst of which Zaritsky lost complete control of himself and almost lost control of the convention.

The educational committee reported to one of the sessions of the convention, three members in favor of endorsement of the DAILY WORKER, and three opposed. The Zaritsky majority, on finding itself confronted with this deadlocked committee added another delegate, one of its own faction, to this committee. Later the committee reported back, this time three in favor of the DAILY WORKER, and four against. On the report of this committee, a sharp clash occurred between the right and left wing. Delegate Surin of Los Angeles, argued in favor of the endorsement of the DAIIY WORKER. He made a splendid argument in favor of unity in the trade union movement, and pointed out that the DAILY WORKER more than any other English daily in the country advocated trade union unity. In an attempt to answer the argument made by Surin, General Secretary Zuckerman took the floor. His entire speech was an attack upon, and complete misrepresentation of the left wing in the Capmakers' Union. He made a personal attack upon Delegate Sazar of New York, one of the leading left wingers in the convention. The tone of his remarks were of such a petty and scurrilous character that he was interrupted several times by delegates raising point of order, especially when he attempted to say that the left wingers at a meeting in New York tried to bring the whole underworld to the meeting. After several points of order, Zuckerman was forced to confine himself to the question at issue, namely, endorsement of the DAILY WORKER. His indictment of the DAILY WORKER consisted of citing the issue of April 30, in which he said the DAILY WORKER had reiterated its charge that Gompers was a crook. He said, "This is why Sazar and Shafren did not want to rise in tribute to Gompers." Then he launched into a long tribute to Gompers, claiming that Gompers on pain of death went to Mexico, so as to see the operation of a real labor government. Immediately that Zuckerman closed his speech of misrepresentation and personal attacks upon the character of some left wing delegates, Zaritsky was on the floor pounding with his gavel to quiet the uproar which greeted the closing of Zuckerman's speech. Several left wing delegates were demanding the floor, but were not recognized by Zaritsky. On the contrary, he quickly picked up a motion by one of his own right wing delegates to close the discussion. The impartial and democratic Zaritsky acted just like Major Berry or any other hard-boiled labor skate in ramming thru the motion to shut off discussion. He was forced, however, to recognize for a moment or two, the stormy petrel of the convention, Delegate Sazar, who asked for the privilege of the floor to answer the misrepresentation and attacks upon his character made by Secretary Zuckerman. Almost in a twinkling Zaritsky again recognized a right wing motion to deny the privilege and faster than it can be told, the motion to deny Sazar the privilege of the floor was passed by the Zaritsky's machine-like majority. This did not, however, dispose of the left wing, Delegates Sazar, Shafren, Feingold and Surin all peppered Zaritsky with question, as to the rights of his majority to deny the privilege of answering a personal and slanderous attack, based upon lies. Zaritsky, in the midst of this, lost all the sense of superficial dignity which is the mantle of the average general president. In answer to Sazar he said: "You will sit down or you will leave the hall in disgrace." Then calling for the sheriff, who did not appear, Zaritsky continued: "Who the devil do you think you are?" Sazar said: "I am a regular delegate to this convention, and if you deny me the privilege now, I'll get even some day." Zaritsky said: "Yes, outside." Sazar said: "I have no business with you outside," then Zaritsky, the general president of the International Union said: "I'll spit in your face."

It is sure that a real struggle will take place over the report of the minority and the majority of the budget committee. The majority report swallows wholesale an estimate of expense for the upkeep of the union drawn up by the general officers. The minority report, it is rumored, is a real document presenting the point of view the left wing in the union for the efficient and economical operation of the union for a militant struggle against the employers. A report of this will be printed later in the DAILY WORKER.

Will Appeal Arrest of Science Teacher to Highest Court

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 10—The first test case under the new Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools and colleges is in the courts of Dayton, Tenn., the American Civil Liberties Union, which offered to handle any such case, announces. J. T. Scoaps is charged with teaching evolution in his biology class at Rhea Central High School, Dayton, and is appearing before justice of the peace Squire Benson.

The superintendent of schools and chairman of Dayton board of education are co-operating with the high school in the test case and business men of the town, the Civil Liberties Union says, are ready to go on bond for Scoaps. The Tennessee anti-evolution law is the only statute of its kind passed, altho in Florida and North Carolina regulations of the state board of education have the same effect.

The case, if lost, will be appealed to the highest court on the basis that it violates the 14th amendment by depriving a teacher of his livelihood without "due process of law."

OHIO MAKES STEEL.—By Max Salzman

OHIO is a state of many industries. It is one of the really important industrial centers in the United States.

Only three other states excel Ohio in its production of coal. Entering into the darkness of Ohio's mines, the workers young and old alike, dig deeply thru the veins of coal in order to get this necessary product for industry. Th eminers have a 100 per cent organization here. They have won this thru many years of struggle, thru long strikes during which they passed thru a most intense suffering.

Today these miners face severe unemployment. More than half the mines are shut down. Those that work run one or two days per week. The outlook of Ohio's coal miners who risk their lives every day they enter the mines is as dark as the coal itself.

Along the northern part of Ohio on the shore of Lake Erie we find the tremendous iron ore docks, when the massive boats of the United States Steel corporation dump the iron ore which they bring from the iron mining towns of northern Michigan and Minnesota. There was a time when the bulk of workers on these boats were older workers, but now the great majority of men employed on the boats are young workers most of whom are still in their teens.

Working on the boats as coal passers, as deck hands, doing the most menial work under the brutal direction of the captains of these boats these young workers fresh from their schools toil thru day and night in order that iron might be brought from the head of the Great Lakes and coal returned there.

With coal in the southern part of the state and iron ore dumped on its northen shore, it is only natural that Ohio should be a large steel center. Its many steel centers, Youngstown, Cleveland, Martin's Ferry, Yorkville, and numerous others produce the backbone of capitalist society. Under the sweltering heat this black coal and this rusty ore finally merge into steel. No, these steel workers have no unions. At least none to speak of. In most of the small steel towns steel police act as the police of the towns. Union men are taboo. A strange contrast. Scab mined iron ore is brought to scab docks by union railroad men. There it is taken on scab run ships, dumped into union run cars into scab steel mills, where with the aid of union mine coal it is turned into steel.

The outlook might appear black for the steel workers and the coal miners in Ohio who form the most important part of Ohio's industries. It takes black coal with red flames to turn iron ore into steel. We can be certain that the blackness of the outlook for these workers combined with the redness of Communist ideas will steel these workers for the struggle for their emancipation.

You Can Do This!

You can make a real contribution to the revolutionary movement in this country by a simple deed—by getting a subscription from another worker—or giving him one.

That will give him information on the events in the world of labor—on the progress of the Communist movement in every country—and brief, clear, articles daily on the principles of Communism.

If you are looking for a way to "Make Another Communist"—what better and what simpler way is there? You can do this! You know the worker in your shop or in your local union—

McKEES ROCKS [illegible]KERS BACK SOLID WITH P[illegible]L VICTORY; CRAFTS PREVENT STRIKE UNITY

By IRWIN, Worker Correspondent.

McKEES ROCKS, Pa., May 11.—By unanimous vote the strikers of the Pressed Steel Car company of McKees Rocks, Pa., decided to go back in a body on the basis of the concessions offered by the company. These concessions were:

1. Recognition of the workers' committee in taking up grievances of the men.
2. Reinstatement of men discharged during the strike.
3. No further wage reductions.

The company also gave a tentative promise that the 9½-hour workday would remain in effect only for the period of the daylight saving system.

Altho the men made a splendid fight despite the complete lack of union organization amongst them, the mistake made in electing one of their ranks who turned out to be a company agent as chairman of their strike committee, seriously hampered the conduct of the strike before this tool was exposed and driven from his position several men had, by his false representation, been induced to go back to work before the end of the strike.

That the company, once the men again are back, will have no scruples whatever in breaking its promises and start a campaign of victimization, and if possible new wage cuts, is to be expected and will only be prevented to the extent with which the men consciously use their mass power.

Craft Separation Prevents Unionization.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

FRENCH and German steel magnates are planning a giant trust which is expected to knock the British manufacturers out of the European markets and even out of the markets of India and Asia. If blood is thicker than water profits are thicker than both. Jingoistic morons who shouted their fool heads off against the "German Hun" during the war would bash out the brains of anybody who foretold then that French and German capitalists would forget the hatreds generated during the war, once they found it to their interests to do so.

IT is reported that Saar steel will be allowed into Germany duty free. Saar is a part of the former German empire now in French possession but to be returned to Germany after a certain period. Lorraine steel will have to pay duty up to a certain amount. But the Saar capitalists will reimburse the Lorraine steel men for this outlay. Ingenious solution! Saar being technically a part of Germany, British manufacturers cannot object to this most favored nation treatment. Lorraine gets around the law very cleverly. What have the million French poilus who are pushing up the lilies to say about this fraternization? And the Germans who pushed the kaiser's flag almost to the walls of Paris? They are dead.

THE little entente, composed of Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Roumania, are holding a conference in Geneva, that international rendezvous for political crooks. They would like to adopt a united policy against Soviet Russia, but they are deterred by fear of the Red Army. These bandits are usually busy applying the cutlery to each others' throats. The only time their fingers loosen on the dagger hilt is when they sing the hymn of hate against the workers' republic in unison. None of those countries have as much independence as a prostitute who pays toll to the local police captain for protection. As long as they do the bidding of the big capitalist powers they are allowed to strut and pose as independent governments. But if they get back in their installments the lash falls and they squirm.

THE Bulgarian foreign minister is running around Europe looking for help. A substantial part of the help this panhandler is after can be expressed in gold coin of the realm. If those bandit functionaries of the Balkan nations escape the coming debacle with their heads they should be fully qualified to make a good livelihood with the tin pan and the bandaged eye on the corner of Forty-second street and Sixth avenue, New York, the premier stamping ground for beggars.

RAILWAY WORKERS OF GUATEMALA DEMAND 8 HOUR DAY, PAY BOOST

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, May 11.—The employes of the International Railways company of Central America have demanded a 33 per cent increase in pay, an eight-hour day, a six-day week, better living quarters, and better working conditions.

RED BAITERS IN MINNEAPOLIS IN INTERNAL WAR

Anti-Communists Fight Each Other Over Graft

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 11.—This Wednesday evening will witness another bitter clash in the meeting of the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly, now known as the Minneapolis Central Labor Union, because the old name was tainted with Communism.

But instead of a united front against the Communists, as organized and carried out by the Gompers regime, more recently displaced by the equally conservative reign of "Bill" Green, there will be revealed the first open manifestations of an internecine struggle

PAINTERS' UNION LOCAL CALLS OTHER UNIONS TO PLEDGE LABOR TO INTERNATIONAL UNION UNITY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 11—Painters' Local Union No. 1348, on the occasion of its celebrating the International May Day, adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"Whereas successful negotiations are conducted for some time to unite the existing workers' internationals into one powerful world international of labor unions;

"And whereas thru the organization of such an international the working class of the whole world will gain a mighty force for organization and education and a tremendous power in their actual class struggle,

"Therefore, be it resolved that we pledge our full and undivided support to these efforts for world trade union unity. We denounce each and every one who is trying to block or to hinder this world labor unity movement. We also call upon all labor unions to do the same.

"This resolution to be printed in all labor newspapers.

SOVIET STEEL INDUSTRY IN BIG EXTENSION

New Railways Unite Coal and Iron

NEW YORK, May 11.—Investment of 35,000,000 rubles in development of a great steel industry for Siberia is contemplated by the council of labor and defnse for Russia, reports the New York offices of the Kusbas colony. The proposed project would unite coking coal of Kusbas with iron ore of the Tablass region to the south.

The series of railroad lines that is expected soon to be laid across central Siberia, communicating with China, Persia and the North and Northwest would consume the product. Central Siberia, say Kusbas men, will be to the coming Asia what Pennsylvania is to America.

The Kusbas office officially denies an Associated Press dispatch saying that the Lena Goldfield corporation, an English concern, has secured concessions for Kusbas coal. Soviet Russia is willing to farm out some gold mining lands but is keeping tight hold on coal and iron, the basis of modern industrialism.

FLAG WORSHIP CULT EXCITED AT SACRILEGE

Cal's Bunting Hung at Wrong Angle

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, May 11. — Since Mitchel Palmer and W. J. Burns joined hands with the late Security League to enforce a ritualistic treatment of the American flag, there has not been such a hubbub over irreverence to that much-abused bunting as the one started by the American Flag Association because two flags were draped in front of President Coolidge's box at the opening baseball game of the season. Coolidge is honorary president of the flag-worshipping association, but that did not save him from the protest of his professional priests of the flag religion.

It seems that true believer in the American Flag Association will not permit a flag to be draped, or bunched up in any way, or hung in any fashion except with the stars at the left. Draping two flags with their star fields next to each other maybe artistic, but it is sacriligeous and treasonable, and smacks of pro-Germanism and Bolshevism.

The White House has declined to comment on this protest at the mistreatment of the national emblem. Unofficial apologies are made by underlings—for instance, that under these rules it must be wrong to let the wind whip the flag about on a pole, and that pretty soon we will have to paint the flag on the White House front, to be sure that it stays in a correct attitude.

However, the president will not publicly laugh at the crafty hypocrisy involved in the whole flag etiquette system. Nothing that is effective in creating awe and a sense of inferiority in the minds of millions of the people will be laughed at by the chief of the administration

ARMY AUTHORITIES FORGE FALSE RECORDS OF CROUCH AND TRUMBULL "TRIALS", SUPRESSING EVIDENCE

HONOLULU, Hawaii, May 11—The [illegible] army authorities, who sentenced Paul Crouch and Walter T[illegible] Hawaiian Communist soldiers, to 40 and 26 years in federal prison [illegible] Communist views, have issued a forged "stenographic record" of Cr[illegible] trial. In this false report, documents presented by the defense are not even mentioned. Crouch's testimony is perverted, and whole passages changed entirely.

The testimony given by Crouch, in answer to questions of army officers, revealed their complete ignorance of working class organizations. Crouch's testimony would have hurt the government as it showed up the absurdity of the court martial. The government authorities issued these froged documents and manufactured reports to the newspapers, and issued orders that

SOCIALISTS AID ZANKOV WHITE TERROR MURDER

Women Tortured, Reds Shot Down on Sight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, England, May 11.—That there is little difference between the "democratic pacifist" socialists and the fascist murderers who are ruling by means of the white terror in many European countries, is seen in a letter from C. L. Malone, former member of parliament, sent from Sofia, and printed in the Daily Herald.

Malone tells how the socialists of Bulgaria, in their cowardly fear that the white terror might be inflicted against them, lined up with the fascists in murdering men, women and children known to be champions of the workers.

Malone tells how the fascist Zankov government is torturing and murdering Communists and other militant workers by the hundreds, and how the socialists are approving of this bloody assault upon the Bulgarian workers.

The letter states:

Malone's Letter.

"In Sofia no one is allowed out after 7 p. m. without a special pass. We went out last night, but were stopped every 20 yards by soldiers with bayonets and hand grenades.

"Of course, terrible things have happened since the bomb outrage. All Communists or people suspected of Communist opinions have been rounded up. Reports vary from 500 to 4,000. Many have been shot, strangled or pounded to death. I have seen something in the streets.

Socialists Approve Murders.

"At first the political heads of the government gave us permission to go everywhere, including the prisons, but the military have cancelled that—they are really in control.

"The terrible thing is the bitterness of the social democrats against the Communists. Manulov (right wing agrarian), Pastukov (social democrat editor of Epoch), and Dimo Kassoff (ex-minister) have all published statements in the press supporting the Zankov regime. The social democrats attack the work of Russia and attribute everything to Moscow. The government, however, attributes the outrages to Serbia rather than to Russia.

Torture Women.

"The protests made on the initiative of Colonel Wedgwood by the American and British ministers to Zankov against massacres may save some lives, but I fear that when we arrived on Saturday many hundreds had already perished. I understand that the British minister is sending a strong report to the foreign office.

"This evening we saw some women being taken to be tortured at the Bureau of Public Safety, and many lorry-loads of poor wretches being taken but to be shot, which has made the blood of one of my companions boil so much that he wanted to take off his coat, altho the street was thick with men with automatic pistols who were longing to use them."

India to Export Little Wheat; Held for Home Markets

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—The Indian wheat crop is forecast at 322,000,000 bushels, compared with 364,000,000 bushels produced in 1924, according to a cablegram received by the United States department of agriculture from the Indian department of statistics.

The production reported is just about sufficient for home requirements leaving little or no grain for export. The Indian people, however, are not dependent upon wheat as a food grain, and should good harvests be obtained for other grain crops such as rice and millet, some Indian wheat may find its way to the world markets.

The Indian cotton crop for 1924-25, according to the April official estimate, amounts to 5,069,000 bales of 478 pounds, which is an increase of 58,000 bales over the February estimate and agrees exactly with the December estimate. The 1924-25 acreage is placed at 26,461,000 acres, which is 12 per cent more than in 1923-24.

Recover Dead in River Tragedy

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 11.—The superstructure of the ill-fated steamer M. E. Norman, sunk late Friday in the Mississippi, 16 miles south of Memphis, was being ripped apart this afternoon by powerful derrick boats in an effort to release the twenty-one bodies believed imprisoned 25 feet below the surface of the water in the cabins of the boat. Dynamite may be use in case grappling hooks fail to tear the ship to pieces.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY BOARD AGAINST THE RETURN OF GALLIGAN

HERRIN, Ill., May 11.—Williamson county is not seeking the return of Sheriff George Galligan, now on vacation with pay at the request of Governor Small who sought to settle the klan and anti-klan differences there.

It was reported today that the new county board, dominated by anti-klan members, would pass a resolution this afternoon, opposing Galligan's return. The exiled sheriff recently visited Governor Small presumably to discuss his return. Galligan has a year and a half to serve in office yet.

POLICE CLUBS GUARD GERMAN FASCIST CHIEF

Bayonets Halt Protest Against Hindenburg

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, May 11.—The monarchist-fascist presidentelect of Germany, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, was protected by the guns and clubs of sixteen thousand police, the largest police force mobilized since the republican revolution, when he made his entry into Berlin this afternoon.

The police, at the last moment prohibited the three monster open air meetings arranged by the Communist Party to protest the election of the kaiser's war lord.

Socialists Accept War Lord.

The police force was under the direction of the democratic vice-commissioner of police, who was in the socialist-catholic coalition which campaigned against Hindenburg during the election.

The socialist officials, directing the largest single political party in Germany, made no active protest against Hindenburg, or against the police action in halting the Communist meeting.

Hindenburg Well Guarded.

Along the monarchist line of march, seven miles thru the streets from the Herr Strasse station to the chancellor's palace, police kept close watch over the crowd, ready to shoot down any observer who showed disfavor against the kaiser's friend.

Forty motorcycle police guarded Hindenburg's automobile, and police reserves were stationed at many points thruout the city in trucks, ready to pounce upon any workers who might hold open air meetings not approved of by the fascists.

Two Workers Killed.

On Saturday there was trouble at Odengurg, an outlying town, where two workers were killed by the police.

Tacoma Workers' Meet Demands Two Jailed Soldiers Be Released

TACOMA, Wash., May 11.—At a mass meeting of workers, held here under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party, a resolution was unanimously passed, demanding the immediate release of privates Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, Communist soldiers sentenced to 40 and 26 years for organizing a Hawaiian Communist League.

Glasgow Workers in Poor Health.

GLASGOW, Scotland, May 11.—The Glasgow board of health has issued a report showing that the city's workers are in poor health with many workers in impaired physical condition and struggling to make both ends meet. The cost of living has gone up, but wages are pitifully inadequate.

Irish Republicans Have Envoy.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—On orders from Eamon de Valera, Irish republican leader, permanent headquarters have been established in Washington, Sean T. Kelly, has announced. Kelly will act as "envoy of the Irish republic and personal representative of De Valera."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 11.—An official report received by the Clyde Steamship company today confirmed reports that the freighter Mohigan was scuttled last night to extinguish a fire in its afterhold.

MONARCHIST AND WAR DANGER IN GERMANY IS DUE TO SOCIALISTS, SAYS COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL

(INPRECORR CABLE)

MOSCOW, May 11.—The Executive Committee of the Communist International has issued the following appeal to the workers of all countries, entitled, "Thru Noske to Hindenburg":

"Hindenburg has been elected president of Germany. The 'peaceful, democratic and unbloody evolutionary tactics' have helped Hindenburg to the throne. Noske and Ebert led to Hindenburg, the forerunner of the new Hohenzollern.

"During the years of the imperialist war, the social-democrats had celebrated Hindenburg as the 'national hero, the greatest figure in the history of the world, the noblest saviour of the Fatherland, and the most prominent statesman of Germany.'

"The social-democratic party of Germany shares the responsibilities for the circumstance that the backward section of the masses look upon Hindenburg as a national hero.

Caused by the Robber Peace of Versailles.

"No less have the entente imperialists contributed to this circumstance. Fourteen and one-half million votes were cast for Hindenburg. A part of these votes was cast not so much for Hindenburg as against the entente, against the creators of the Versailles peace, and for the idea of revenge. In the hands of the Hindenburg clique, these votes become weapons of social reaction, white terror and monarchy.

"There are two ways of fighting the monarchy. The first way was demonstrated by the Russian workers in 1917 and 1918; the other way, that of evolutionary democracy, was to be demonstrated by the Second International thru the medium of the German social-democracy.

"The German social-democrats refused to overthrow William II, but they were the first ones to help overthrow the German soviets; they overthrew the workers' and soldiers' councils in 1918. 'Noske is working for democracy and against all dictatorship,' the German social-democrats had told us.

Even the Blind Can See.

"But now even the blind can see that Noske and the social-democratic party of Germany are not opposed to every dictatorship; they are fighting against the dictatorship of the proletariat only, and for the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie, with the result that Hindenburg has ascended to power. By crushing the Spartacus uprising, and by murdering Liebknecht and Luxemburg, the social-

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 11.—Today's municipal election, with its many conflicting political alliances, reveals the material with which Eugene V. Debs, chairman of the "socialist" party, that still maintains a hectic national existence on paper, hopes to rebuild his organization at a so-called membership meeting to be held later in the month.

The size and nature of the corporal's guard left to Debs was in fact revealed during a recent visit here by Birch Wilson, one-time "socialist" state secretary for Pennsylvania, who came on as an advance agent.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE N. E. C. IN SESSION RECEIVES RESOLUTION OF CONFIDENCE FROM THE Y. C. I.

The plenary session of the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League was held on Saturday and Sunday, May 9 and 10. Both of these sessions were public for all league and party members.

The agenda as adopted by the session included reports on the Y. C. I. bureau sessions, the Young Worker, Leninist education, past and future activities.

Comrade Shachtman reported at length on the sessions of the Y. C. I. bureau. The important points considered by the Y. C. I. were the immediate Bolshevization of the leagues, Leninist education anad the activities of the Russian Young Communist League.

Y. C. I. Upholds National Executive Committee.

A lengthy resolution adopted by the Y. C. I. on the American League, reviewing the past activity, was read, which expressed aproval of the past activities as well as expressing full confidence in the N. E. C. and repudiating the criticisms of the minority group, centered particularly in New York City.

The resolution further outlined the future tasks of the league at the coming convention. A resolution accepting the Y. C. I. report and approving the various points included was adopted.

Many Reports.

The reports of Comrade Mass, the acting secretary, supplemented by reports on the east by Carlson, Ohio and Pennsylvania by Salzman and an especially interesting report on the Negro activity by Comrade Phillips, showed that during the past four months, despite many obstacles, a

Chinese March in Protest at Murder of Three Students

PEKIN, China, May 11.—Twenty thousand students demonstrated today before the residance of China's provisional executive, Tuan Chihjui, demanding the dismissal of Minister of Education Chang Shih Chao. The protest against the new education minister grew out of the breaking up of a students' demonstration a few days ago by police, who so severely beat up some of the student demonstrators that three of them died.

Only three hundred students took part in the first student demonstration, in which seventeen students were arrested.

A delegation of one student from each school was finally admitted to present a petition demanding the dismissal of the education minister. Teachers in the government schools took part in the parade before the executive's offices.

SIX POLICE KILLED IN PROTEST OF SOUTH AFRICANS AGAINST THE VISIT OF WALES, BOSSES' LACKEY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, England, May 11.—In a clash between hundreds of native Africans and British police, who commanded native soldiers, in a suburb of Johannesburg, six native soldiers were killed.

The prince of Wales is touring Africa on behalf of British imperialism, endeavoring to pacify the restive natives. The demonstration of the South Africans which the police attacked is thought to have been against the prince's visit, which the native Africans regard as a symbol of the yoke of their slavery to the British capitalists.

within the anti-Communist camp itself.

Quarrel Over Rich Graft.

The battle has started over the easy graft connected with the celebration of Labor Day, not labor's international holday, May First, but the holiday that American capitalism has set apart for its loyal slaves on the first Monday in September.

On the one hand are the forces back of Robly D. Cramer, editor of the Minneapolis Labor Review, supported by Chairman O. T. Anderson and Secretary Roy Weir, of the council, representing what is called the center grouping in the local labor movement.

Against these forces are now arraigned the right wingers headed by James Fullerton, of the Typographical Union, and T. J. Kelly, of the Plumbers' Union.

The Communist-led left wingers have so far played the role of interested onlookers.

Plan to Shake Down Advertisers.

The trouble started when the Card and Label Council, under the control of Fullerton-Kelly element, issued an announcement of the early publication of a "Labor Year Book." Like all similar publications it was to be a shakedown of the business elements for a bunch of easy money.

This immediately stirred Editor Cramer into action. He sent out letters to all of his advertisers declaring that the Minneapolis Labor Review was the only official organ of the Minneapolis labor movement, and it alone was authorized to receive labor advertising. The letter was signed by Chairman Anderson and Secretary Weir.

Tell of "Labor Day Editions."

The next meeting of the Fullerton-Kelly controlled Card and Label Council ordered the sending out of a letter charging that the last "Labor Day Edition" of the Minneapolis Labor Review was a private graft; that only $1,500 was turned into the paper, whereas, from $15,000 to $20,000 went to "outside men," who put the edition over. It was charged that local men had guaranteed a much larger amount to the paper, but that their offer had been rejected by Editor Cramer. It was further claimed that this year's "Labor Day Edition" was being let out in a similar manner, the getting of "ads" going to a man by the name Lewis, of Buffalo, New York. The Fullerton-Kelly crowd, therefore, urged all local business men not to advertise in Cramer's Labor Day edition, since most of the money went out of town. They were urged to patronize a 100 per cent home institution.

Editor Cramer then issued a long statement. He said that the Citizens' Alliance started out four years ago to fight the Minneapolis Labor Review, sending out circular letters urging businessmen not to advertise in it. This drive was kept up year after year, without much success.

Charge Alliance With Big Business.

Editor Cramer now charges that the right wing is doing the job of the Citizens' Alliance thru the medium of the Card and Label Council. He further charges that this group is lined up with the "socialist" renegades grouped about Thomas Van Lear and Lewis Harthill, that they are trying to destroy the Minneapolis Labor Review and make the anti-Communist, red-baiting sheet, known as "The Minnesotan," the official organ of Minneapolis labor.

Delegate Fullerton brought the matter up at the last meeting of the Central Labor Union, but the adjourning hour of 10 o'clock prevented any action being taken.

It is noticeable that since the war on the Communists in the central labor body was started the attendance has fallen from about 200 delegates to the 30 delegates who attended the last gathering. Thus the organized front of the working class in this militant labor center is being weakened in its struggle wih he open shop interests.

Government Gives Railroad Trust a $147,028 Present

WASHINGTON, May 11. — The Southern Pacific company won in the supreme court of the United States, its appeal from the court of claims of a suit asking $147,028 additional from the government for transporting troops and discharged soldiers during the war period.

The company accepted payment from the government for such transportation under provisions of its land grants, but later claimed that national guardsmen and discharged soldiers should have paid full fares because they were not "troops of the United States."

The Western Pacific Railroad company had a similar claim for $11,055. It also won its suit.

There is no effort in behalf of the exploited workers that this omadhaun does not turn his mud guns on. THE workers of Melbourne, Australia, will not welcome the Wall Street navy on the occasion of its forthcoming visit to the Antipodes. The labor council voted not to participate in the official greetings organized by the bourgeoisie in honor of the war dogs of Morgan and company, tho no objection would be taken to the fraternization of the workers with the rank and file sailors of the American fleet. The Melbourne workers took this action as a protest against the imprisonment of their brothers in the United States under the espionage laws. Good for our Australian brothers! Long live this kind of international solidarity!

AN allegorical painting by an old artist almost caused a religious war at a recent meeting of the New York chamber of commerce. It was proposed that the picture be shown thruout the country in order to inspire religious feeling in the hearts of the young men and women of the nation who are on the road to hell—what with hip moonshine, bobbed hair and cross-word puzzles. But there are more gods than one, even if this fact is not widely advertised in a christian country. There are protestants, catholics and Jews in the chamber of commerce, and their respective gods fight like furies on the slightest provocation. For the sake of harmony the embattled christians consigned the picture of Jesus to the garret.

CHINESE FAMINE HORROR BRINGS CANNIBALISM

Report Millions Are Starving to Death

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, May 11—Millions of Chinese in the province of Kwei Chow are famine stricken, many are dying on doorsteps where they beg in vain for food, while the roads are littered with dead, according to the Daily Express Shanghai correspondent. Sixty districts are affected.

Stocks from last year's harvest were exhausted long ago, the report says, and the people of Kwei Chow have been living on grass, after having stripped trees bare of leaves.

Cannibalism has presented another solution to the food problem, and is prevalent in the villages. Many portions of the countryside have been deserted by migration of inhabitants, altho many died en route. Opium traffic in the stricken province is brisk, many wishing to "dream their way to death."

The situation, the correspondent reports is likely to become worse rather than better, for relief on any considerable scale is impossible until the rice crop is harvested five months from now. The provincial treasury is depleted.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE N. E. C. IN FULL SESSION

great deal of activity had been conducted.

The campaigns on child labor, arrest of Hawaiian comrades, against entry of religion in the schools, against the arrest of Comrade Lanzutsky and against Abramovich had all been participated in by the league.

Favorable Organizational Growth.

The organizational growth was also commented upon favorably by all the comrades, there having been organized since January 1, 1925, 21 shop nuclei and 10 branches. These were located principally in Chicago, Pittsburg, New York and other districts. During this same period 10 nuclei collapsed, principally thru the activity of stool pigeons.

Comrade Harvey, the acting editor during the past few months, reported on the necessity of developing the Weekly Young Worker, especially in the field of regular shop correspondence, general news correspondents, etc.

For Leninist Education.

The necessity of Leninist education was stressed in a report by Comrade Carlson. He pointed out the necessity of our entire membership receiving an adequate political-minimum of education and the importance of training leading functionaries so that the directives of the national office would be applied more effectively,

The future tasks of the league during the next three summer and preconvention months was dealt with by Comrade Williamson. The tendency of laxity in the summer months was discussed aand definite tasks adopted for the membership to carry out during this period. These include nuclei organization to be closely connected with membership drives. Every branch is expected to increase its membership by at least 10 per cent before the convention. Other tasks included youth fractions in trade unions, anti-militarist, junior and education.

Unity Behind the N. E. C.

On the basis of the Y. C. I. resolution which called for close unity of the entire membership behind the N. E. C., it was decided to send Comrade Williamson to the New York district to assist the D. E. C. in its activity and consolidation of the entire membership behind the policy of the Y. C. I. and the N. E. C. Other organizational readjustments were made as follows: Acting national secretary, Barney Mass; editor, Shachtman; business manager, J. Harvey.

The spirit of the meeting was fine and portrayed a definite determination to still further increase the activities which have been commended favorably by the Y. C. I.

The tone of the entire meeting was one of constructive activity and the consoldition of the entire membership behind the program of the N. E. C. and the Y. C. I.

Small Attacks Sanitary Trustees.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 11.—Governor Len Small who now has a bill pending before the state assembly which would add new jobs to the state payroll totalling millions of dollars, declared today that he vetoed the sanitary district trustees' proposal to increase the bonding power of the Chicago sanitary dictrict, because of their extravagance.

Small condemned the "publicly notorious extravagance" of the sanitary district trustees. The proposal to increase the bonding power from 3 to four per cent was embodied in the McCluggage bill, which Small vetoed last week.

Small claimed that the sanitary district trustees were using the present income for other purposes than eradication of sewage disposal.

ment for union organization developed; many strikers acknowledged that, after all, that must be their first object. Representatives of the Machinists' District Council appeared at a couple of strike meetings ready to begin organization of all who were willing to join, but were compelled to withdraw when the silly stupidity of the craft union system threw down the bars of jurisdiction.

One international union had already succeeded in organizing the few men of its craft who were employed in the plant and who enjoyed the eight-hour day. Another union was carrying on a so-called campaign also to organize the few men of its craft employed there.

Crafts Objected to Strike Unity.

Both these unions objected to the strike, fearing that their few men may be compelled also to throw down their tools, and, of course, it never occurred to them that even the most elementary principles of solidarity demands that they should have joined hands with the rest of the workers in striking against a lengthening of working hours.

According to the ethics of the craft system the only way open for union organization is for all the one hundred and eleven international craft unions to send their representatives there each to pick out their men and, meanwhile, by no means encourage any united strikes which may cross the border of jurisdiction of one or the other.

Shop Committee the Big Victory.

Many strikers expressed their determination to draw the proper lesson from this experience. Altho they recognized that they did not gain their one big point—the shorter work day, they agreed that their next step must be organization.

The basis laid during the strike will be worked out for permanency: A functioning shop committee represented by delegates from each working department. A shop committee empowered to take up all grievances of the men and empowered to call them to action when necessary, and to further carry on for unionization of the plant.

This organization intends organizing all harbor boatmen into one union and their president and delegate say that an intensive campaign of organization will be started immediately.

democrats have paved the way for Hindenburg.

"By dispersing the workers' and soldiers' councils, by splitting the trade unions, by shooting the revolutionary sailors and workers, by imprisoning the bravest German proletarians, by crushing the uprising of the German workers in March 1921, by helping General Seeckt into the saddle, by the defense of the bourgeoisie with body and soul in 1923, and by shedding the best blood of the revolutionary proletariat, the social-democratic gentlemen have prepared the way for Hindenburg's triumph.

Comintern Proposed Election Alliance.

"The Communist International had proposed to the German Communist Party to support the social-democratic candidate in the second election, if the social-democrats had retained their own candidate. But true to their role of loyal lackeys of the bourgeoisie, the social-democrats dropped their own candidate in favor of the bourgeois favorite, Marx.

"The social-democratic party of Germany tried time and again to eliminate from the arena of world history the 15 million strong German proletariat as an independent political force. The vanguard of the German proletariat, however, refused to be misled. Once again the leaders of the social-democratic party of Germany have demonstrated before the entire world, that they are as doubtful republicans as they are bad socialists.

"There can be no doubt whatsoever, but that the leaders of the social-democrtaic party of Germany and the Second International will try to put the blame on the German Communists. They will try to deceive the masses. They will take up the cudgel against the vanguard of the German proletariat time and again.

"Hypocrites! Demogogues!

A Record of Crime and Betrayal.

"Has not the German social-democracy supported the butcher Zankov? Does not the Hungarian social-democracy and a section of the Second International support the hangman Horthy? What is the difference between Horthy and Hindenburg? Does not the right wing of the Italian social-democracy and a section of the Second International support Mussolini? And is Mussolini perhaps any better than Hindenburg? Do not the social-democrats and the mensheviks in Esthonia support the hangman of the Ethonian proletariat Laidoner? Does not the Polish socialist party, as a party of the Second International, support the hangman of the Polish people? Are not the successors of Gompers in America the supporters of the most brutal bourgeois reaction? Do not the leaders of the Second International, MacDonald and company, bow before the king?

"Such are the fighters against monarchy and against reaction!

"The class-conscious workers of Germany and of the whole world must realize the significance of Hindenburg's victory. Those workers who still follow in the footsteps of the social-democrats must come to the realization that the tactics pursued by the social-democracy inevitably lead to the victory of world reaction. n Germany there is a real monarchist danger. The workers and the Communists must see this clearly.

Communists Always Take Sides.

The Communists cannot adopt the viewpoint that it makes no difference to us whether a monarcny or a bourgeois republic is in power. The Communists cannot remain indifferent to this question; they must take the lead in the real struggle against the monarchist danger.

"Once again the Communists offer their hand to the social-democratic workers, by proposing to them a united front for the joint revolutionary struggle against the monarchist danger.

"The political map of Europe is becoming [illegible]er blacker with the colors of reac[illegible]on. In a series of countries reaction is advancing. Thruout the world the Communists are conducting a struggle for trade union unity. The Second International on the other hand is leading a wild attack against unity, thereby demonstrating anew that it is the most loyal ally of the bourgeoisie.

Socialists Oppose Unity.

"The same German social-democracy which is responsible for Hindenburg's triumph, is, of all the parties in the Second International, the fiercest enemy of trade union unity.

"German workers! Have you not yet realized that the 'triumphant tactics' of the socialist party of Germany are leading you under the yoke of the bourgeoisie and to the restoration of the monarchy? Have you not yet realized that the liberation of the German proletariat can be attained only thru unity of all workers in Germany regardless of party affiliation?

"Of course, unity is to be understood not as unity under the flag of Stinnes, Barmat, or Wilhelm Marx—but under the red banner of revolution. The Comintern calls upon you to close your ranks, to effect the unity of the workers of all countries under the banner of the class struggle, and for the joint struggle against the monarchist danger.

Add to War Danger.

"Remember that the election of Hindenburg does not add to the prospects of peace, but on the contrary, increases the dangers of war. Remember that only the strictest unity of the international proletariat can avert these dangers. Hindenburg's victory should give some thought to every class conscious worker.

"If the toiling masses do not abandon the social democracy even now, then they will help prepare with their own hands, new imperialist slaughters, new terrors and suffering. The great political lessons should not have been in vain. The road from Noske inevitably led to Hindenburg, but the road from Hindenburg must not lead back to Noske.

Unity Could Win Soviet.

"If the fifteen million strong German proletariat were not split and if it were to reject the counter-revolutionary tactics of the social-democrats of Germany, it could liberate its country from the yoke of capitalism, and build up a Soviet republic. Otherwise, the growth of reaction, new defeats of the working class, new wars and the direct restoration of the monarchy, are inevitable.

"The Communist International calls upon you to close your ranks, to establish a united front, in the struggle against the bourgeois reactionaries thruout the world, including the monarchist reaction and for the struggle against advancing fascism; for trade union unity, and for a determined struggle against the danger of new wars.

"Down with the social-democratic lackeys of bourgeois reaction.

"Long live the revolutionary struggle of the international proletariat.

"Long live the unity of the proletarian ranks."

Yellow Press Circulates Fake About Betty Blythe To Jazz Up Its Readers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, another lie is added to this rapidly multiplying breed of the "Brass Check" press. When Ellis Parker Butler, the American author, wrote his "Pigs Is Pigs," telling of the amusing situations arising out of the rapid multiplication of guinea pigs, he made thousands laugh. Millions of workers should laugh at the latest chapter of "Lies Is Lies," as it applies to the falsehoods spread by the yellow sheets that depend upon their working class readers for an existence. They should laugh at the hysterical antics of this frantic press in its efforts to attract attention. Then they should turn their backs upon it. They should turn all workers away from it.

• • • •

The latest episode in American "kept press" perversion took place when the canard was spread that Betty Blythe, the American moving picture actress, had been kidnaped by Bedouins in the deserts of Palestine. Practically every "big business" sheet in the land gave that story big headlines, while semi-nude pictures of the "movie queen" were also given generous display. It was all supposed to produce an "Oh Gee!" kick for the blase readers of these publications.

Hundreds of workers may die in some industrial accident and they would receive far less attention. Tens of thousands of workers might engage in some giant industrial struggle; but the day's news would pass them by, except in the town where the strike occurred, and then it would only be misrepresented. The editor would say, "Our readers are not interested."

• • • •

But Betty Blythe in the deserts of Palestine is "played up." All the thrilling trimmings are put on to jazz up a listless reading public. Two paragraphs are worth quoting here:

> "According to the cable received by Harding (John Harding, Betty Blythe's London agent) Bedouins, fierce nomad horsemen who roam Palestine and Syria, attacked the automobile in which the star was riding.
>
> "Two Frenchmen who were riding with Miss Blythe, a Dr. Markus and Edward Jose, were wounded during severe fighting with the Bedouins, before the actress was dragged from the automobile and carried away into the desert. The cable said troops were immediately dispatched in pursuit."

• • • •

Every editor who published the story knew it was a lie. But it went in just the same because it was "good stuff."

Investigation resulted in Miss Blythe being located at Mount Carmel. It was found that she had not been attacked, and the authorities at Jerusalem are reported as being highly surprised at the published story. It was claimed that this "newspaper fake" was hawked among the newspapers of London, but they refused to accept it. Not until it was cabled to the United States did it receive circulation from the American press.

• • • •

The United States leads the world in the number of kept sheets that publish this sort of stuff. It has 30,000 newspapers. France is a poor second, with only 10,000.

Daily the tens of millions of copies of these employers' publications with their insidious poison are spread among the workers. If the workers can be interested more in the fake escapades of Betty Blythe, in Palestine, than in their own problems, then capitalism is safe.

But the workers in the United States, as in other lands, are building their own press—the Communist press—that fights for labor as the daily press of capitalism fights for the employers. Let the workers rally on the side of their Communist press—the DAILY WORKER. Let the capitalists read their own sheets. If the capitalists alone read them, their influence will be gone. The workers would then be near to the day of their liberation.

REPORT BUILDING STRIKE SETTLED BUT TERMS REMAIN SECRET

The strike of the union building trade workers, employed on the twenty million dollar new market project being constructed by the McLennan Construction company for the Central Cold Storage company, was reported settled yesterday, altho the building trades council officials were in consultation with the contractors and the terms of the settlements were not made known.

The electricians, bricklayers, plasterers, tile setters, plumbers, and iron workers went on strike a week ago against the open shop, in order to force the unionizing of the unorganized "Landis award" carpenters, cement workers and laborers working on the same construction job. Twenty-five hundred workers are employed by the McLennan company.

NEGRO STRIKERS JAILED BY COPS OF WILMINGTON

Given 30-Day Sentence for Picketing Mill

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WILMINGTON, Del., May 11—Negroes employed at repair work in the Kiamensi Woolen mills here, who went on strike for an increase in pay from 30 to 45 cents an hour, were attacked by police. Seven of the Negro strikers were arrested and five of them were sent to the New Castle county workhouse for thirty days, in default of payments of fines of $20.00 each, and costs.

The Negro workers went on strike after Richard J. Cohn, one of the owners of the woolen mills, had violently cursed them when they asked for an increase in wages. The Negroes declare that Cohn made slanderous remarks about their race.

Immediately after the strike, Cohn sent in a riot call, and policeman Bowen, in charge of a squad of highway police force, raided the striking pickets, and arrested seven strikers.

The employer charged that the strikers "terrorised the community, throwing stones at the building, and driving the other workmen in the mill to the streets." The Negro strikers denied the charge, and said that their employer had cursed them and ordered them back to work at the old pay.

Those arrested were Edward Stone, Wilson Harris, John Hill, Sam Elliott, Charles Bailey, Charles Brooks and John Miller. They were "tried" by Magistrate Tinsman, who found them all but Brooks and Miller guilty of "inciting to riot," on the sole testimony of the mill owner.

Big Crowd on South Side Hears Problems of Negroes Discussed

Robert Minor was the principle speaker at a tremendous street meeting at 30th and S. State St., where over 800 people mostly Negroes, listened to the story of the persecution of Negro organizations by the United States government. Several Negro workers took the soap box declaring that these persecutions must be stopped thru the concerted action of Negroes, who must also ask the support of all organizations of white workers.

Minor in his speech showed that it would not be possible to stop such persecutions except thru the establishment of a workers' and farmers' government in this country. Minor told told of an article that appeared in the DAILY WORKER and was reprinted in the Negro World, which gave the Communist position for the emancipation of the Negro workers. The Communists do not believe that the Negroes can achieve anything thru the exit to Africa, but that it is a world situation and that the emancipation of the American Negro must be fought right here. Minor's reference to Abdel Krim, who is driving imperialism out of Africa, brought cheers from the great crowd.

Norval Allen spoke for the American Negro Labor Congress. After the meeting there was a great rush for copies of the DAILY WORKER which were all sold out in no time.

Governor Hits Ford Suit.

JACKSON, Miss., May 11—Governor Whitefield of this state publicly rebuked the state revenue agent for bringing a suit against Henry Ford for $12,000,000 damages, charging that the Ford Motor company violates the anti-trust laws.

Whitefield, in a signed statement, laments the filing of the suit, and asks the revenue agent to drop the suit. The suit alleges that the anti-trust statutes of the state were violated when the Ford company made contracts with local agents fixing the price for products of the firm.

Search for River Dead.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 11.— Maj. Donald H. Connelly, of the United States engineers, asserted today that the steamer Norman, lying at the bottom of the Mississippi, 16 miles from here, with its cargo of human dead, would be jarred loose sufficiently late today to release the bodies of the victims imprisoned within its hull.

Preparing for this possibility, a small fleet of fast motor boats will be kept patrolling the river while the rescue work goes on, on the chance that the bodies, if released, will rise to the surface.

Profiteers Sell Shoddy Houses.

NEW YORK, May 11. — Shoddy buildings are the rule in America, it was brought out at the sessions of the American construction council at the Biltmore. Ninety per cent of the building in the United States is done by speculators and done badly, said Walter Stabler, controller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Houses are difficult to heat and have to be rebuilt in 10 or 12 years, he declared.

FIGHT IN W. VA. MINERS' STRIKE NEEDS MILITANTS

Mass Disobedience is Injunction Cure

By E. STEPHENS, Worker Correspondent.

WHEELING, W. Va.—Despite the weak leadership given their officials and the criminal negligence of real opportunities to organize the unorganized union miners who are now on strike in the northern part of West Virginia, stand solid as a rock.

Wm. Roy, a vice-president of District No. 6, was put in charge of the strike in the Panhandle section. Time after time the local men requested organizers, especially colored organizers. But they were told there were no organizers to get. At the same time organizers and officers in western Pennsylvania go from local to local, attacking and slandering progressive miners.

These officals did not send organizers into the West Virginia field until the companies started to bring in colored miners from the south. Altho the organizers are now in the field, they are afraid to go near the mines owing to a grey-haired injunction the operators want to revive.

The miners of this section remember how Howat and the miners in Kansas struck against the industrial court law and defied the court to stop the strike. As a result of this mass fight by the miners and the aggressive leadership of Howat the industrial court law was killed forever.

Altho the miners here talk of using the same method and defy the injunction by mass action still they realize that mass disobedience of the injunction requires leadership that is not afraid to face the jail if it is necessary. This kind of leadership is lacking among the organizers in this field.

The only militant leadership that is given comes from the ranks of the miners themselves and is supplied by the Communists. The miners are beginning to see who are the moving spirits in this struggle and the need of developing their own leadership.

Painters' Union of Cleveland Shows Fine Class Solidarity

Cleveland Bosses Want Open Shop But Don't Want to Pay

CLEVELAND. — Professional anti-unionists, after working for the chamber of commerce, fell flat in their attempt to kick up Cleveland public opinion against union men. Only $75,000 was pladged, too little for a bitter war on a scale comparable to Chicago's $3,000,000 war on the building trades. The chairman of the chamber's labor relations committee quit his job, bewailing the apathy of Cleveland business men.

RAIL WORKERS' CONVENTIONS RAISE ISSUE

Enginemen Demand An Amalgamation

The Order of Railway Conductors is holding its triennial convention at Minneapolis, having opened its sessions May 4.

The Brotherhood of Railway & Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express & Station Employes began its triennial meet in Kansas City, its original headquarters, on the same day.

On May 12, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen convene in Cleveland.

On June 1, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen meet in triennial session in Detroit.

Conventions and Death Benefits.

Two issues confronting the Railway Clerks are reducing the cost of conventions and putting the death benefit department on a sound actuarial basis. The 1922 convention at Dallas, Texas, cost $263,535.89 for mileage and expense of delegates. The problem is to cut the number of delegates without destroying democratic control of the convention.

The death benefit averaging $290 per deceased member is draining the reserve fund because the assessments for this benefit are practically negligible. Ten years continuous membership entitles the member to a $1,000 death benefit certificate but his total payments in that time will amount to only $12.

Amalgamation Issue with Enginemen.

The locomotive firemen face intricate financial problems in the proposal, so far not completed, to amalgamate with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Negotiations between officials and committees of the two engine service brotherhoods await convention action of the firemen on insurance and other adjustments that must precede amalgamation.

What a Ford Job is Like in Detroit

DETROIT, Mich.—I started in Ford's River Rouge plant about two weeks ago, as a machine hand, No.483.

I lasted two days on their machines and was all in on account of the noise of the machine, dust and dirt and the speed production. I was transferred to the sweeping department. On the eighth day, being a stranger in Detroit, I was put out of my dirty, stinking room by the landlord at 515 E. Congress because, not having been paid yet, I could not meet my room rent. I tried to draw $15 on the $35 I had earned. The foreman gave me an order for $15 on the paymaster in Ford's office.

The Badge System.

Incidently they have a great badge system here. After the third day you are supposed to get a nice metal badge, instead of the dirty temporary one you wear until the third day. But after you get it you are charged $5 if you lose it.

Get in line after eight hours of beastly hard labor, look very apologetic and explain to the flunkey in the badge crib why you want a regular badge. I did that for four straight nights after quitting work, but was never able to get a regular Ford badge.

Ford has "No Money."

Well, when the paymaster looked at the order for the $15, he said they had no money in the office. This was after I had borrowed enough from a crippled fellow worker to pay for my breakfast and dinner. It was all he had.

Now I have known what it is to be on the Bowery in New York City with hat in hand, without a place to sleep or anything to eat, looking for assistance in that hardest of places to get it, but I never realized what it was to be a beggar until I tried to get the $15 from that Ford paymaster, after I had earned it sweeping up the dirt, dust, tobacco, sputuum, grease and filth.

I have worked at Hog Island and almost all the large war plants during the war. Hog Island was known as a summer resort for war slackers and non-workers, especially the office workers, red tape rats. But Hog Island has nothing on the River Rouge plant, for red tape.

They have no police in the place in uniform. They don't need them. About every five feet there is a boss doing a policeman's job, stopping, hollering and motioning. It took me one day to get the job, after the examination and all the rest from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

I have never been in the penitentiary. I often wondered how a convict felt leaving prison after doing a hard jolt. But when a man goes thru the red tape here in Ford's pay office trying to get his final pay, he will know how a convict feels. I finally got out of Ford's jail.—Signed, George Henderson.

HISTORIC PACT OF RUSSIAN AND BRITISH UNIONS ASSURES UNITY BASED ON THE CLASS STRUGGLE

LONDON.—In pursuance of the effort for trade union unity of the world's labor unions, and at the invitation of the general council of the British Trade Union Congress, a joint conference of the Russian and British unions was held here on April 6, 7 and 8.

Soviet Union Delegates.

At this conference which marks a historic day for the world's workers, the Russian unions were represented by the following delegates: M. Tomsky, Olga Chernishova, I. I. Lepse, N. P. Glebov-Avilov, V. M. Mikhailov, G. N. Melnichansky, secretary and V. Y. Yarotsky.

British Union Delegates.

The British union delegates were A. B. Swales, A. A. Purcell, H. Boothman, J. W. Bowen, G. Hicks, E. L. Poulton, W. Thorne, B. Tillet, Julia Varley, R. B. Walker, Fred Bramley, secretary, and George Young. A. B. Swales, president of the British Trade Union Congress presided.

Presages World Change.

After long and serious discussion, negotiation and exchange of documents, an agreement was reached, which will be recommended to the respective councils of the Russian and British unions. If adopted it will change the relations of capital and labor thruout the world, and this fact is already sensed by the British and other great capitalist powers' ruling classes, all of whom have at once launched a world drive to check the westward wave of revolutionary labor from its tower of strength in Soviet Russia.

The text of the agreement follows:

The Agreement.

"1. The joint conference affirms that national and international unity must be recognized as the first essential condition to enable the trade union movement to defend effectively the present position of the workers against attack and to achieve the social and political aims of organized labor as set forth in the declarations made by the workers of many countries.

Reaction Dominant.

"2. The political situation in nearly every so-called civilized country is dominated by reaction and in many countries the increased power of coordinated capitalist interests is evident. This is shown by the continued persecution of leading trade unionists who in the exercise of class prejudice on the part of employing interests are suspected, persecuted, thrown into jail and even tortured by those in power.

"3. In the industrial and economic field the capitalists of all countries are forming their united front—a united front for the exploitation of workers all over the world. The workers in the meantime remain divided, and in some countries are formed into antagonistic groups. Instead of being employed in the task of defense against capitalist aggression they are plunged into bitter quarrels and dissensions.

Workers' Advantage Lost.

"4. In nearly every country, in consequence of the growing power of the capitalist class and the lack of unity among the workers, advantages gained in the direction of reduced hours of labor and increased wages have been lost. Where the 8-hour day has not been abolished, it is imperilled. In many industries the hours of labor have once more reverted to nine, ten, or even more hours per day, and it is only in countries where the trade union movement is strong that the standard in relation to hours is maintained.

Unemployment, Despair and Degradation.

"5. Thru the economic paralysis of Europe caused by the world war, millions of workers are unemployed and with their families are being driven into the depths of despair, starvation and degradation. Wages, never sufficient to maintain a decent standard of life for the workers, have been reduced by 20 per cent, 30 per cent, and in some cases over 40 per cent. The standard of living in many countries is now below pre-war level.

"6. The hope of better times which existed among the workers shortly after the great world war and which they were led by unscrupulous politicians to believe would be the result of their enormous sacrifices, has now disappeared, and given place to despair. The pledges of politicians and the promises of capitalists during the war and directly after it, have been cynically repudiated.

"The blind faith that inspired the workers to fight for respective governments in the universal catastrophe in which millions of their class were killed and maimed, has been shattered. After the greatest sacrifices and the severest sufferings they are now faced with little prospect of a better life for the workers.

New War Preparing.

"7. Already it would appear that a new war, more terrible, more monstrous than anything known hitherto is being prepared. New weapons of destruction are being devised: the chemists and scientific thinkers of European countries are devoting their knowledge and skill to the task of inventing new weapons of torture and destruction for use not only against the soldier, but also against the civilian

"In the meantime so-called disarmament conferences are merely encouraging dangerous illusions.

"They are being used to deceive the workers and lull them into a false sense of security.

"But the capitalist politicians and the employing interests are no longer able to hide the fact that new armaments are being built up, greater than before and more deadly.

No Hope—But in the Working Class.

"8. There is but one power that can save mankind from being plunged into another universal catastrophe.

"There is but one power which can defend the workers of all countries against political and economic oppression and tyranny.

"There is but one power which can bring freedom, welfare, happiness, and peace to the working class and to humanity.

"That power is the working class, if well organized, properly disciplined, self-devoted and determined to fight all who would oppose and prevent its complete emancipation.

"The working classes, if united nationally and internationally, would constitute an insuperable barrier to capitalist oppression and an unbreakable bond of peace and economic security.

"The workers are able to defeat all those who by their reactionary tendencies keep the workers divided. So long as the capitalist system continues there is danger of war. The merciless struggle for supremacy between the conflicting vested interests of competing groups of exploiters will (as in the past) eventually provoke a new crisis plunging the workers of the world into another disastrous war.

Re-Affirm Moscow Agreement.

"For the above reasons the British and Russian trade union representatives re-affirm the agreement made in Moscow between representatives of British and Russian organized labor to promote international good will among the workers as a means of more adequately safeguarding the interests of international peace.

"As a result of the discussions at this London conference and of the agreement reached there, joint efforts as provided in the procedure laid down in the British declarations will be made to induce the Amsterdam International in all good will to agree to a free, unconditional, and immediate conference with representatives of the Russian trade union movement.

For a World Federation.

"We also jointly place on record our determination to maintain and weld closer the friendly relations of the British and Russian trade union movements by taking such joint action as is provided for in the arrangements annexed herewith.

"The representatives of the British and Russian trade union movements herewith declare their intention to do what they can by joint means to bring about international unity.

"The need and importance of international unity is recognized by millions of organized workers thruout the world. Their co-operation in the task of removing racial prejudices, artificial barriers and economic obstructions to their joint development is assured.

"Knowing that unity brings power, we are convinced that the workers of all countries, joining hands across the frontiers, will work together to secure their emancipation.

"The motto to be inscribed on our international banner must continue to be the following:

"Workers of the World, Unite!

"Long Live a World-Wide Federation of Trade Unions!"

• • •

The above agreement has annexed provisions outlining the technical machinery of further joint action and contact for work laid down above.

CARPENTERS' OLD AGE HOME A NICE THING FOR HUTCH

A $420,000 Kitty to Play With

By MIKE ROSS.

For a number of years propaganda was spread by the general officers of the carpenters' union, for the necessity of an old-age home to take care of the old and infirm members.

It seems peculiar that an administration that has persistently defeated the will of the membership and so notoriously worked against their welfare, should suddenly become so interested in the welfare of the old members.

A few examples of their actions are shown in the signing of the Chicago scab agrement by William F. Hutcheson.

Czarist Actions.

In the expulsion of 65 locals of New York by Hutcheson in 1916 because they fought for a higher scale of wages. Lately the expulsion of all those militants who actively fought for the welfare of the membership and the ruling that the progressive carpenters' campaign program, on the basis of which Morris Rosen, candidate for general president, asked the members to support him, is "unconstitutional."

When such a corrupt administration becomes so anxious for the welfare of the old members that it goes to the extent of falsifying the referendum vote and violating the constitution in order to get the old age home, as proven in the evidence published in the pamphlet "What's Wrong in the Carpenters' Union?" then it is high time to wake up and examine the reasons.

Raising the Kitty.

The first thing done was to increase the per capita tax to 10 cents per member per month for that purpose, netting an increase in revenue to the general office of about $420,000 per year.

The second thing done was to purchase the land at Lakeland, Florida.

The inner details of the transaction will probably never be made public, yet there is a rumor that the land was first purchased by a private company in which certain union officials were secretly interested and then resold to the carpenters' union at a great profit to this private company.

Big Graft in Land.

Whether this is true or not, at any rate many people who know the value of land there claim the price paid is greatly in excess of its value.

So important was the old-age home considered that every issue of The Carpenter had articles on it, and at the last convention almost half the time was devoted to it. An appeal for the repeal of the proposition was suppressed and the chief spokesman, Mulcahy, was expelled from the convention.

Despite all this treachery, fraud and corruption, the old-age home was defeated in the last referendum vote after the convention.

Since then many locals have asked that the land be sold and the 10-cent per capita tax per member per month be relinquished, but the officials are in a dilemma. If it is sold it would have to go at a great loss. This would cast suspicion among the membership.

Give Back the Cash!

As to the tax, it is now six months after the old-age home was defeated, and they show no intentions of giving back to the membership $420,000 per year.

In this fight the selling of the land and the dropping of the tax, the militants must take the lead, not because of the tax or land itself, but as a means of rallying the membership around the left wing and exposing the corruption of the machine.

Farm Workers Treated Like Work Animals

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Living conditions for farm laborers, and especially for transients, "were found to be in a deplorable state" on many of the 375 representative truck farms in New Jersey which have been studied by the U. S. department of agriculture, which is seeking to find what can be done to make farm labor more efficient. The official report, just out, is a confession of conditions such as have led to the formation of protest movements in other parts of the country.

"Some cases were found where only a board set on edge marked off family spaces on the floor of shacks used for common sleeping quarters, where straw and rough bedding were laid," says the department. "Sanitary facilities were sometimes conspicuous by their absence, and when found were usually primitive and inconveniently located."

Recommendations include the construction of decent sleeping and cooking quarters, sanitary arrangements, etc., and the giving of more steady employment. It was also the opinion of the investigators that some means must be found to "enforce" school attendance of children of migratory farm workers.

Only one in seven, of the native-born employes, had attended school beyond the grammar grades. About one-half of the native-born had five or more grades of common school work. One-third of the foreign-born had attended school in their native lands from five to ten years, and some had received their schooling in America. Of the 17 nationalities amon the foreign born workers, the Italian were the predominant group.

Nearly 60 per cent of the foreign born could neither read nor write English. Seven per cent could not speak it.

ORGANIZATION DRIVE FOR HOTEL AND RESTAURANT WORKERS ON IN NEW YORK; BIG MEETING MAY 1

By ARTHUR SMITH

NEW YORK CITY, May 11.—The hotel and restaurant workers' bran of the Amalgamated Food Workers is about to start the most significant ca paign to organize the unorganized of the trade ever launched in New Yor

The conditions of the unorganized of the industry are turning from be to worse. It is a generally known fact that hotel and restaurant worke spend half and in some cases even more than a half of a day in filthy cellar kitchens or airless dining rooms making heavy profits for the bosses and getting hardly enough to make a living for themselves. Under such conditions a drive to organize them for the betterment of their miserable lot is very timely.

Organization Drive Proposed.

The recommendations for the drive were put forward by the executive board on the initiative of the secretary-organizer, at the last general membership meeting of the branch. It was a lively meeting. It aroused real enthusiasm among the members.

In view of the fact that the hotel and restaurant trade, particularly the former, went thru a trustification process in the last couple of years, the problem confronting the organization on the eve of an organizational drive on a large scale is very great. However, the suggestions of the executive board seem to have solved this problem at least from a theoretical point of view.

To put it briefifly, the recommendations of the executive board are as follows: To make the campaign a success the organization will charge $1.00 for the initiation of the new members. That is the only charge we make unless the man wants to become a full-fledged member of our organization right away. This amount shall entitle them to a membership and stand good as initiation fee for six months.

No worker shall be compelled to join as a full fledged member until we succeed in securing him the promised betterment of his conditions. For the newly initiated members the union shall organize educational meetings.

In our drive we demand $50 minimum wages for the chefs and waiters, $38 for comis, and $30 for miscellaneous workers (bus-boys, blue jackets, dishwashers, etc.). Our demand for $50 weekly wages for the waiters, of course, means the abolishment of tipping system. To interest the waiters in our drive this is made plain in so many words, by our slogan.

Organized Workers Must Support Drive.

When the floor was thrown open for discussion there was not a single objection. Everybody taking the floor supported the recommendations wholeheartedly. The members readily conceived the great problem before the organization and it was repeatedly emphasized that if we want to make a success of the campaign, we, the organized workers, have to support it to the fullest extent.

The benefit of a successful organizing campaign accruing to us organized workers are immense. The control of the closed shops shall be solidified. The competition of unorganized labor, shall be at least partially eliminated, etc.

Bryant Hall Meeting May 14.

A mass meeting at Bryant Hall, to be held probably on May 14, will mark the start of the campaign.

The drive is centered against the big hotel trust and restaurants simultaneously. The first object being to initiate sufficient number of workers into our organization to paralyze the whole industry in case of a strike.

If the contention that conditions are ripe for such a drive is correct and the organized workers will give their active support to this campaign, it undoubtedly will, in face of all obstacles, be a success. It is on us organized workers of the industry that the success of this drive greatly depends. If the unanimous vote given to the recommendation of the executive board, and the enthusiastic reception of them means something, if it will be converted into active support, we have won the battle.

Jimmie The Faker Changes His Mind

WASHINGTON, — James Duncan, first vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, has withdrawn his resignation from the executive council, which was offered at its December session in New York.

Jobs Are Scarcer in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 11.—Employment in New York state dropped 20,000 to 25,000 from the middle of March to the middle of April, according to figures of the state labor department. Of 55 industries examined only 15 reported increases. Metals and textiles led in the decline.

TAILORS' UNION OF PARKERSBURG IN HARD FIGH

Firm Against Cour and Yellow Scabs

By A. G. MURPHY.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va.—The loc out of the local Journeymen Tailo Union by the National Woolen Mi of this city which became effecti January 24th last, continuer, with th membership of the union, tho figh ing against great odds, refusing t yield to the demands of the mill ow ers that they drop the union and r turn too work on an open shop bas

Contrary to the expectations of th basses, who thought they would hav the union members crawling back t first week, begging for work on an terms, not a member has broken th solid ranks, and not one will.

An Injunction—As Usual.

Early in the lockout the mill ma agement secured an injunction again the union forbidding picketing, a they were also enjoined in this fre doing everything except breathin The union a little later sought to hav this injunction dissolved and many o the members learned then for the fir time that the courts of their countr were class courts, and not workin class, either. The trial judge ga the union short shrift, refusing to di solve the injunction.

Since then, the mill has been ab to secure a few inexperienced wor ers and also some experienced wor ers (about twenty-three) from th force of the United Woolen Mills o Columbus.

Former Unionists Turn to Scabbin

The United Woolen Mills, which ha moved many of its operators fro here last December after their pla here had been burned, is a clos shop concern paying the existing sca of union wages, and yet many of th operatives have sunk so low in d cency that they left there and, thro ing their union principles to th winds, returnd here to scab on fe low workers. They have won th scorn and contempt of all except th business men's clubs and boards o commerce and their ilk.

General Organizer George Sangst who is here conducting the locko for the union, has issued a comp hensive statement of the lockout a bills have been distributed giving th workers' side of the controversy. T local union has also learned in th fight that the newspapers, like th courts, stand for a class, and th class is not the working class by a means.

HILLCREST TAKE BITTER PILL O OPEN SHOP MIN

HILLCREST, Crow's Neft Pa Alta.—The Hillcrest miners have cided to go back to work, the vote ing 123 to 91 against and nine spoil ballots.

Most of the contract miners vot against it. There are a lot of m who can't get back now and are likely to later. Several of them we ordered out of the mine office wh there looking for work.

They went to see the general ma ager. He told them, "The Hillcre collieries will hire and fire whom th think fit." He then added, by way insult, "Who do you think is runni this mine?"

This is only the beginning of wh is going to happen. The men wh have no work have called a meeti of the unemployed, trying to get t men on strike again. It is the on chance they have. Hillcrest is on t road to get a bellyful of open sh conditions. It is up to them. B sticking together they can impro their conditions.

Leaving it to the few militants better things gets them nowher only gets the few blacklisted and t rest are left helpless. The conser tive elements must aid the milita and fight under their direction a learn how to make it a common str gle.

This is what they must do, or el they will always stay beaten do Too many think that if they have job they will not do anything for fe of getting themselves "in wrong." I they find that they get in wrong ul ately anyhow and have no fighti organization to help them after a

Wake up, Hillcrest! You h shown the rest of the Pass that y can fight. You have nothing to l but your bad conditions.

RAISE $100 IN CITY FOR I. W. A. MINERS' RELIEF

The first hundred dollars of Chicago's five hundred dollar quota for the Southern Illinois miners' relief appeal has been passed, with only a small number of branches and individual members heard from. While the "pay envelopes" have not come in as rapidly as was expected, the contributions have been generous, and when the campaign is ended it is expected that the quota will be more than met. Every member is asked to donate one per cent of a weekly wage, and to try to get two friends or fellow workers to do the same. Thus far the contributions have mostly been from members of the Workers (Communist) Party branches, but it is expected that beginning this week the contributions from sympathizers will materially swell the receipts. To date funds turned in are:

In most these cases these contributions reprpesent only a small part of the total ultimate contributions from the branch. They are either the collection at a branch meeting, or, more often, the sums brought in by a single member. All envelopes, unopened, are to be brought to the local office, Chicago Council for Defense and Relief, 19 South Lincoln St., immediately. All unused envelopes must be returned also for control. Every branch must institute an immediate drive to fill its quota and make immediate and full settlement.

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

Los Angeles Juniors Celebrate May Day at Brookside Park

By A. Lyons

More than one hundred and fifty children, mostly all members of the Junior Section of the Young Workers League, showed their solidarity on May First by staying out of school and celebrating the workers' international holiday. Early, in the morning, a group of working class children gathered on the corner of Mott and Brooklyn streets, and by nine o'clock four big trucks, one small one, and a number of private machines were filled to the brim with children and adults.

The place chosen for the celebration was Brookside Park, one of the prettiest parks in Pasedena, fifteen miles from Los Angeles. Games, recitations talks, singing, bathing, etc. was the program of the day. Every one felt in the spirit of holidaying, and thus the day passed quickly. Mother Bloor was with us and gave an interesting talk on May Day in Russia, and she also played games with the comrades.

To complete the celebration most of the Juniors were present at the mass meeting in the evening arranged by the Workers Party and Young Workers' League. Two numbers on the program, chorus singing and a ballet, "Spirit of Communism," were rendered by the Juniors.

JOHN REED JUNIOR GROUP PLANS BIG NIGHT ON MAY 23

Tell it to the kids! No, it ain't about a circus, but the surprise affair that is being arranged by the John Reed Junior Group. They promise an interesting evening on Sat., May 23, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. They won't tell what they are going to pull off, but they assure that it will be a real surprise, dance, and a good time in general. So don't forget, tell it to the kids!

'SOCIALISTS' GO DEMOCRAT AND G. O. P. IN MPLS.

Funny Animal Awaiting Visit by Eugene Debs

gime headed by Thomas Van Lear when he was the "socialist" mayor, sharing the limelight with "socialist" Mayor Dan W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, Wis.

It developed that the four aldermen, reputed to be Albert G. Bastis, A. R. Gisslen, Peter J. Pryts and Lewis Beneke, had no party membership in back of them. Two of them, in fact, had paid no dues for two years. They were in fact opposed to a dues paying membership organization. It might interfere with their political deals in the city council. It is claimed that their object in meeting with Birch Wilson was not to help him resurrect the dead "socialist" organization, but rather to see that he didn't resurrect it; that it was permitted to rest unmolested in its political grave.

Some Grab Elephant's Tail.

This analysis is supported by all the facts. Two years ago both Thomas Van Lear, ex-socialist mayor, aand his man "Friday," Lewis Harthill, the "socialist" chief of police, with Robert D. Cramer, editor of Minneapolis Labor Review, brought pressure to bear upon G. T. Lindsten, who had filed as a "labor" candidate for mayor, so that he withdrew two days after the time for filing had expired. This left the field clear for the "socialists," after double-crossing the militant elements in the labor movement, to endorse George Leach, the republican candidate.

This betrayal was followed in the national elections last fall, when Van Lear and Harthill came out for the straight republican ticket, charging that the farmer-labor movement had been captured by the Communists. Mayor Leach, with his "socialist" following, not only attacked the farmer-labor campaign and the LaFollette candidacy, but gave whole-hearted support to the republican campaign of "strikebreaker" Coolidge. Leach had in fact, been a candidate for governor in the republican primaries.

It is not known that the four other "socialist" aldermen, Theodore Jensen, A. E. Voelker, John Peterson and I. G. Scott, met with Birch Wilson, during his visit here as Deb's emissary. But the glaring fact stands forth that not a single "socialist," who is a candidate for re-election in today's election, is running as a "socialist," not even as a "laborite." What they usually glory in is their "small business support."

Others Follow the Donkey.

In this campaign, while the Van Lear-Harthill-Cramer-Wiggins crowd are supporting Mayor Leach, the other "socialist" wing is backing Harry Lund, a democrat, for mayor. Lund was appointed a collector of customs by President Woodrow Wilson, and has a long record of subserviency to the democratic machine.

The "socialist" alderman, Peter J. Pryts, acted as chairman at one of Lund's meetings in the proletarian twelfth ward, heralding his democratic offering as a "representative of all the people."

The "socialist" Pryts never mentioned the working class once during his talk. He dwelt on street sprinkling, the pavements on Franklin Ave., and the "solid support" that he had won the "Franklin Avenue business-men."

It will be interesting to study what Debs attempts to do with these clashing democratic and republican wings of the Minneapolis "socialists."

In the present municipal campaign, with the class fight thus deserted by all "socialist" elements, it remained for the Communists to put a Workers Party ticket in the field, as the only labor group carrying the standards of the class struggle. It has done this successfully. Thru the Communist mayoralty candidacy of Dan W. Stevens, and several aldermanic candidates, the Communist message has been carried into all sections of the city. When Debs comes here for his "socialist" membership meeting, he will without doubt, find that all "socialist" rank and filers worth while have gone over to the Communists.

Army Authorities Forge Records

Crouch and Trumbull must not answer the reports and must say nothing for publication.

The military laws require that the defendants be given copies of the stenographic letters of the trial. Crouch, when given his "record," could hardly recognize it. Below he tells the story for the DAILY WORKER of how the records were forged by the government, and tells what he did say in answer to questions and what records of the trial were destroyed by the government.

First is given the testimony as printed in the lying government report and then Crouch tells the truth about the trial.

* * *

By PAUL CROUCH.

(From Testimony of Crouch.)

Q. What are your principles of Communism?

A. The state rather than the individuals ought to have control of the instruments of wealth, that they ought to be held collectively rather than by individuals.

(Correct:

Q. What are the principles of Communism?

A. The state rather than individuals should have control of wealth, especially the instruments of wealth production; that is, they should be held collectively rather than by individuals.)

(Reference was made to underground propaganda of the American Communist Party in 1920-21.)

Q. Were you a member of any Communist organization at that time?

A. I was.

(Correct answer—"I was not.")

Government Invents Answer.

Q. Have you got any of those papers with you—any of the clippings?

A. I do not have any with me except an article published by me in the Honolulu Advertiser of the 12th, giving my viewpoint on the matter; and I have a clipping published last year giving my viewpoint regarding the work of President Wilson brotherhood, which I consider identical with the first principles of Communism.

(The above answer is a product of some diseased and abnormal imagination. I never made the statement quoted above or any remotely resembling it. I said nothing about the "President Wilson brotherhood."

Manufactures Nonsense.

Q. Do you believe there are times when rule by a minority against the wishes of the majority is justified?

A. Yes; during a time of national emergency it is the duty of the minority to enforce any measures that may be necessary for society, such as compulsory military service and labor against a man's wishes.

Q. Do you believe in compulsory military service?

A. Not unless it is necessary.

Q. When would you consider necessary?

A. National defense or to prevent a minority from obtaining power.

(The above rot is more manufactured testimony. I said nothing that resembled this nonsense or expressed such absurd ideas. How could a minority use compulsory military service to prevent itself from obtaining power? Perhaps the government "stenographer" thought one minority would use force against another minority while the majority was a disinterested observer!)

Q. Private Crouch, do you know what the membership is of the Russian Communist Party?

A. About 75,000.

(Correct answer: "About 650,000.")

Q. What makes you think that the army does not desire men of radical views?

A. I know that no military service would desire men with extremely radical views.

(I did not make such an answer. Of course, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics desires men with radical views in the service.)

Q. Then are your views opposed to capitalism?

A. Yes sir; but I have never yet made a statement that they were.

(More rot! I made the reply: "Yes sir," without qualification.)

Q. Now, what was your feeling at the outbreak of the Russian revolution in 1916? (Question said, "in 1917.")

A. I was glad to see an autocracy overthrown.

Q. In what respects were you not pleased?

A. I considered the violent outbreak at first to be based on no sound foundation and I believed that the Russian Communists were starting prematurely

(Perverted imagination! I said nothing about "no sound foundation" or that the "Russian Communists were starting prematurely.")

Defense Evidence Destroyed.

Some documentary evidence not included in record of Crouch trial. (But used at trial.)

Letter from Crouch (on letterhead of league) to Lieut. Col. Murphy, written before arrest, protesting against persecution of Communists. Article by Crouch in Honolulu Advertiser, Feb. 12, 1925. Article: "Reasons Why America Should Become Communistic," except one sentence reading, "In fact, the army exists primarily for the purpose of protecting capitalism against its foes, both internal and external."

(All documentary evidence was read to the court and most of the prosecution's documentary evidence was included in the records.)

Stupidity of Army Officers.

From testimony of Creque at Crouch trial.

Q. Did you ever hear of the I. W. W.?

A. I have.

(Correct:

Q. "Did you ever hear of the International Workers of the World?"

A. "I never heard of the International Workers of the World, but I have heard of the Industrial Workers of the World."

Apparently the government did not wish this exhibition of ignorance on the part of the trial judge advocate to be made public.

Testimony Doctored by Government.

From testimony of Trumbull at Crouch trial.

The mailing of the letter to the Communist International by Nadeau was under discussion.

Q. How did he happen to mail it?

A. He was secretary.

(Correct answer: "It was written for the purpose of being mailed.")

From testimony of Crouch at Trumbull trial.

Q. Private Crouch, was, or was not, Private Trumbull, from your personal observation, in your opinion, an inactive man?

A. Yes sir; I believe that he was.

(Answer was "—an intelligent man," not an "inactive" man.)

CAPITALIST LAW IGNORES TRADE DISEASE INJURY

37 States Leave Injured Helpless

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 11—(FP)—A survey of the workmen's compensation laws made by the Workers' Health Bureau since recent legislative sessions closed shows how little attention lawmakers are paying to the victims of occupational diseases.

Such obvious injuries as broken legs, coming under the accident provisions, are grounds for compensation, but the insidious and often deadly diseases that come with chemical poisoning or the inhalation of rock dust are usually ignored.

37 States Ignore Occupational Disease.

Only four states and the federal government have blanket occupational disease laws. Six other states and two territories give protection in a limited number of occupations: Thirty-seven states ignore the occupational disease sufferers entirely.

The federal law relates only to federal employes. No provision is made by either state or federal occupational disease legislation for railroad and marine workers.

Defeated Five Times in Two Year Fight.

In fighting for legislative relief organized labor is advised by the Workers' Health Bureau to work for blanket occupational disease laws rather than to spend its energy on piecemeal legislation covering only certain trade hazards.

This policy is urged as the result of the experience of the bureau and the New York Federation of Labor in the two-year fight they lost for five compensation amendments covering a specified list of industrial diseases. There is more to be gained by striving for blanket laws for the protection of all workers.

FIVE AND TEN CENT STORE OWNERS MAKE MILLIONS OUT OF WRECKED BODIES OF LOW PAID GIRL SLAVES

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Thousands of women deprived of the means to a decent, self-respecting existence, enabled the four leading 5 and 10 cent stores to pile up over $35,000,000 in profits during 1924. By paying the lowest wages the owners of these stores have in 10 years secured profits totalling many times their original investments.

Woolworth's 1924 profits amounted to $20,669,397, a return of 32 per cent on the par value of the stock. The profits would have been much larger but for the expense of opening and stocking 96 new stores, many of which were exceptionally large.

Forty-one Per Cent Return.

Kresge's profits amounted to $10,114,163. After paying preferred dividends the common stockholders got a return of 41 per cent on their holdings. But Kresge's stock dividends since 1916 have added more than 450 per cent to the amount of stock without the investment of an additonal cent by the owners. The 1924 profit means a return of over 140 per cent on the 1916 investment

Kresge's profits amounted to $6,253,768 or $24.45 on each $100 share. And McCrory's profits were $1,988,987 or $4.32 a share with no par value.

Here are the profits per $100 share of the two leading companies since 1915:

Per Share	Woolworth	Kresge
1924	$31.80	$40.66
1923	31.84	38.14
1922	27.11	35.52
1921	20.04	20.25
1920	13.87	26.14
1919	17.11	21.40
1918	9.96	15.61
1917	16.72	17.21
1916	15.57	19.92
1915	13.19	23.24
10 years	$197.21	$258.09

If we make allowance for Kresge's stock dividends the 10-year return on $100 invested prior to 1916 has amounted to approximately $650, or 6¼ times the investment.

Get $10.00 a Week.

Reports of the U. S. women's bureau shows what kind of wages make such profits possible. In Ohio $10.55 a week was the typical wage paid women employed in 5 and 10 cent stores, just about the lowest wage in the state. Taking industry as a whole the typical wage for women was $13.80 or more than $3 a week above the 5 and 10 cent store level. The report for Missouri shows $9.80 as the typical wage paid white women in 5 and 10 cent stores which compares with $12.65 for all employed women. Over 80 per cent of the 5 and 10 cent store employes received less than $12 a week whereas in all industry only 43 per cent fell below that level.

In Kansas, where only one-fifth of all women workers averaged less than $9 a week, four-fifths of the 5 and 10 cent store workers fell below that pauper level. The predominant wage in all industry was $11.80—in 5 and 10 cent stores it was only $8.10.

Such examples show how the profits of a Woolworth or Kresge are made possible by the grinding down of women forced to seek a livelihood in their stores.

The Government Gives an Opinion That the Government Is Right

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(FP.)—Dismissal of over 150 printers, members of Columbia Typographical Local No. 101, from the government printing office two months ago has been held legal and regular, in an opinion sent to the White House by Attorney-General Sargent. The union had protested the dismissals as being in violation of federal law, and had demanded that President Coolidge dismiss Public Printer Carter.

PLUMBERS' UNION WINS FIGHT ON THE OPEN SHOP

Painters Also Gain in National Capital

WASHINGTON—(F. P.)—Union plumbers in Washington have defeated, without a strike, the no-wage-increase conspiracy formed by speculative builders, bankers and real estate operators under the name of the Fair Wage Committee.

The Master Plumbers' Association has signed with the union an agreement calling for a wage increase from $10 to $10.50 a day which will stand until next February, when the scale will become $11 a day until May, 1927. Steamfitters who have made demands identical within a few days.

While the Fair Wage Committee of anti-union enthusiasts has thus far declared that it will refuse to give contracts for work to any master plumber who pays more than $10 a day, the parties to the new agreement predict that these threats will soon be forgotten.

Union painters, on strike for a raise from $9 to $10 remain confident that they will break down the bosses' opposition. After five weeks of deadlock the master painters have begun to quarrel with the speculative builders who drove them into this fight. They find that the employment of strikebreakers is difficult and expensive. and that much of the resulting work is so bad that they are obliged to do it over.

Nova Scotia Miners Have Co-operative Against "Pluck-Mes"

NEW YORK, May 11.—The sum of $42,000, representing a 12 per cent savings return, was distributed in cash to 2,767 members of the British Canadian Co-operative Society in the Nova Scotia mining district, Co-operation, organ of the Co-operative League, announced in its May issue.

The co-operative is made up of miners who are now on strike against the British Empire Steel Co., against whose stores the co-operators have to fight for trade. The company policy is to keep miners in debt to its stores so that their effectiveness in striking is weakened. The co-operative is winning more of the remaining 9,000 miners to its wisdom.

White Collar Union Holds Meeting Right on Morgan's Doorstep

NEW YORK, May 11.—Wall Street's white collar workers are getting the message of unionism at noon day meetings conducted by the Bookkeepers', Stenographers' and Accountants' Union. At a preliminary mass meeting near the stock exchange a big crowd was addressed by Ernest Bohm, president; Leonard Bright, secretary and Nathan Fein, member of the union.

A special drive on bank workers is being made, said Bright. Bank workers are sternly exploited. Long overtime without extra pay is frequent. The noon day mass meetings will be continued with a reinforcement of speakers from other unions.

Strategy of the Communists

The famous letter from the Communist International to the Mexican Communist Party—

In which not only is outlined the policy for the Communist Party of Mexico, based on the facts of the struggle in that country—

But also the strategy for Communists of all countries.

No worker who wishes to understand the fundamental strategy of the Communists should omit it from his reading.

TEACHER HELD WHEN HE TELLS OF EVOLUTIO

Only Evidence is Boo on Darwin's Theory,

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DAYTON, Tenn., May 11.—T. Scopes, who was held for action the grand jury of Rhea county charg with teaching evolution in the Rh county school, pleaded not guilty the ground that the law passed cently by the state legislature is constitutional. The only evidence p sented against Scopes was the book biology which Scopes used as t school's textbook.

One passage objected to by the st declared:

"We have now learned that anim forms may be arranged so as to be with very simple one-celled forms a culminate with a group which conta man himself. This arrangement called the evolutionary series. Ev tion means change, and these gro are believed by scientists to repres stages in complexity of developm of life on the earth. Geology teach that millions of years ago life u the earth was very simple, and t gradually more and more compl forms of life appeared, as the re formed latest in time shows the m highly developed forms of animal li

"The great English scientist, Charl Darwin, from this and other evide explained the theory of evolution. Th is the belief that simple forms of li on the earth gradually gave rise more complex, and that thus ul mately the most complex forms ca into existence."

'Polikushka' Will Be Shown in Pittsburgh District May 16th

In addition to the six showings al ready held in the Pittsburg distric within the last ten days there will b another show on Saturday, May 16, a New Croatian Hall, West Brownsville, Pa. The show begins at 7 p. m and tickets are 50 cents.

The program includes "Polikushka," a feature film made in Russia by the Moscow Art Theater, with Ivan Mosvin in the title role. On the program are a two-reel Russian slapstick comedy, "Soldier Ivan's Miracle," and a news reel giving scenes from the life of Lenin. In this district this program was received with even greater favor than the latest film from Russia, "The Beauty and the Bolshevik."

The same program will be shown at the Eagle Theater, Livingston, Ill. on May 26.

Any labor organization which has not yet run all of the films prepared by the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., should get in touch with that organization at once. There are features which make up an entire evening's educational and entertainment program as well as short films that will round out and furnish a special attraction at meetings, picnics, etc.

Charlie Schwab's Smile

We have heard of the smiling Mona Lisa, whose vampish orbs follow you with an intriguing message, which makes it a matter for public thanksgiving that the coquettish optics are on canvas and not located in an animated piece of protoplasm. Domestic tranquility is thus saved an added strain.

Charlie Schwab is in the field as a competitor to the beaming Mona. If we are to believe John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers Association, Charlie's smile is worth as much to the American capitalist class as Lisa's merry twinkle is to the Parisian picture gallery where she hangs.

But the department of justice is out to rob Charlie of his dimples along with some of his dough. This is how it happened: During the war Charlie was one of those willing patriots who offered his services to the government for one dollar a year when American soldiers were dodging German bullets and French cooties for thrity dollars a month.

But Charlie's steel company could not avoid getting contracts for making battleships for the navy. And the government paid generously in those days. In fact, while Charlie was only receiving one dollar a year he was spending $250,000 a month. This news created quite a sensation at the time and it is a matter of history that Charlie shed tears over the thot that anybody would doubt his integrity or his patriotism.

The tears won for the time being. But the department of justice for some mysterious reason which only the gods can unravel is suing the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation for $11,000,000, alleged to have been disbursed to that company by the government in overpayment.

The soft-hearted editor of the Manufacturers News does not object to the government suing the company and recovering the money, but why hurt the feelings of such a tried and true patriot as Schwab? Isn't he one of the greatest business men of the world? And he did not commit a crime! At the worst he only robbed the government of $11,000,000. And sure everybody knows this is not a criminal case. He might have violated the criminal syndicalism law of Idaho and be a real scoundrel, but stealing a trifle like eleven million dollars in the name of patriotism is the highest compliment that could be paid to his business genius.

Fearing that rough usage may rob Charlie of his eleven million dollar smile which might prove invaluable in the coming war with Japan, Glenn sobbs: "Take the money away from Mr. Schwab's company if it has been overpaid, but leave his smile which will fade if his character is unjustly destroyed." Here pause a moment to fish out a dry handkerchief. Pity Albert B. Fall, and other fallen angels if the D. of J. does not listen to reason.

A Mexican girl attempted to kill the president in order to wrest a catholic church from the hands of a body of Mexican catholics who do not recognize the pope. She was inspired by god. The old fellow is just as bloodthirsty as he was in the biblical days.

Defense Day

Quite a lot of noise was made last year about the designation of November 11, the anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the world war, as "defense day." The pacifists were so vocal that the war department was obliged to soften their wrath by promising that it would not happen again; that it was merely a test to try out certain plans that the military leaders had made for defending the country in case of attack.

But our our militarists do not drop a good idea very quickly. The war department has now announced that it intends to make "defense day" a regular annual event. The date will be November 11. A good day to get the masses excited! It is now distant enough so that the war agonies have lost their sting and life under this monotonous capitalist system is so sordid that even the job of dodging bullets will look more inviting than the prospect of spending a lifetime listening to the whirr of an automatic machine.

The war department is planning to militarize this country to an extent never even dreamed of by the German kaiser before the world war. And this militarization is not directed against an outside enemy but against the enemy within, which is, in the eyes of the capitalist class the labor movement.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

Illinois state legislature the DAILY WORKER declared that this bill, tho endorsed by the leaders of the Illinois Federation of Labor and supported by Governor Small, was just as vicious as the Dunlap bill which was the first preference of the open shop manufacturers.

The employers preferred the Dunlap bill, but it would appear that their opposition to the Barr substitute was only a sham one calculated to deceive the workers. The Chicago Tribune came out boldly for the Barr bill, holding that it established the principle of state police and was a step in the right direction. Now we have the same opinion, tho somewhat stronger, expressed by the Manufacturers News, which is edited by John M. Glenn, notorious open shopper and secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Associaiton. The editorial is quoted in full so that the rank and file of the labor unions in this state will see what a collection of sapheads their sagacious leaders, Walker, Olander and Fitzpatrick are. No doubt they will not feel comfortable in the same boat with John M. Glenn, but there is where the traitors belong.

The editorial reads:

"Illinois is to be congratulated. After a number of years' efforts—tacking, shifting sails—running aground and wallowing in the trough of the sea—we are going to have a state police law. It is the Barr bill which was passed by the senate last week by a vote of 34 to 9. It will be passed by the house also because nearly everybody is in favor of it.

"'What's in a name?' It does not matter whether it is the Dunlap or Barr bill so that we have a state police force that will effectively patrol Illinois highways and stop crime that has been a bad advertisement for the state.

"As Manufacturers News sees it, there is not much dfference between the Barr bill and the Dunlap bill except that the Dunlap bill provided for 450 men and the Barr bill has a limit of 750 men. Under both bills the police can be used to enforce law and order. They can oppose crime wherever they see it. Their officers can send them wherever needed. They can be mobilized if necessary for any purpose.

"It has been charged that the Barr bill will provide for a political police force. It will be no more political than the police force would have been under the Dunlap bill. Its use, its activities and its policies will be directed by public sentiment—the strongest force in the world. Governor Small; if he wants to, can make the Illinois state police the most efficient state police in the United States. It would be the most popular thing he could do. It would be playing the kind of politics that would make a hit with the public. We believe he will do it."

The official organ of the open shoppers has as much faith in Governor Small as the labor leaders have. Neither the labor leaders nor the employers will be disappointed. But the workers will have their eyes opened sooner or later and their heads perhaps by the clubs of the state cossacks.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

An Oily Investment

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gave a gift of $625,000 to the fund collected for the upkeep of five American colleges located in the oil areas of Asia Minor. A budget of $2,500,000 is being raised to keep those colleges going for five years. The ease with which this money is raised indicates the importance attached by the American capitalists, interested in the exploitation of Asia Minor to the kind of education their future slaves should have inside their domes.

It is a safe bet that the professors hired with the money donated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will not tell the workers and peasants of Asia Minor, that the mineral resources of their country belong by right to the people of that country who apply their labor power to the task of creating use values of this raw wealth. On the contrary they will be told what blessings the big trusts have brought to the people of America and how much happier the inhabitants of the Near East will be when they develop a crop of pious millionaire Sunday school teachers.

So far the war between the rum runners and the American navy seems to be a draw. Perhaps the noise that sounded like the discharge of guns was only the popping of champagne corks. The fight may not prove decisive, but it will be spirited.

Curtailment of liberty is alright, provided the object in view is the prevention of the working class from throwing off the chains of slavery. But suppression of the license of a few exploiters to rob the majority is a horse of another color.

The Chicago Tribune admits that liberty in Italy under Mossulini is somewhat emasculated, but perhaps, says the Trib, the Italians like their freedom that way. Only Americans like it unadulterated, like their moonshine.

THE question of the driving forces of the Russian revolution loomed big at the last discussion within the ranks of the Russian Communist Party in connection with the publication of Trotsky's Lessons of October. In connection with this discussion, some comrades in the Comintern expressed the opinion that the difference between Trotsky and Lenin is that Lenin contributed much more to the development of the Russian Revolution than Trotsky could have done on the basis of his theory of revolution. This is a thoroly erroneous viewpoint, for it does not show any basic and essential difference between Lenin's theory of revolution and that of Trotsky.

In his appreciation of the character and driving forces of the Russian revolution in 1905, Lenin pointed out to the mensheviks that they held erroneous views of the peculiarities of the Russian bourgeois-democratic revolution. The judgment of the mensheviks followed the usual conventional historical lines. Their idea was that if the revolution is a bourgeois revolution its main driving force must be the bourgeoisie. Lenin on the other hand pointed out that the Russian bourgeois-democratic revolution was an agrarian-peasant revolution. Lenin had come to this conclusion when studying the peasant movements in 1902-03. The liberal bourgeoisie, far from supporting these peasant movements, resisted them with all its might. On the basis of an economic analysis of the tendencies of the development of econimic life in Russia, Lenin came to the conclusion that two types of evolution were possible for the Russian of those days. On the one hand, the American type—total abolition of servitude, latifundia, elimination of medieval agrarian relations large scale development of an untrammelled capitalist system of agriculture. On the other hand the Prussian type—slow evolutionary transformation of large estates into capitalist concerns. From the viewpoint of objective economic development both these types were possible and the task of the party of the working class did not consist in meditating fatalistically on objective historical development, but impressing energetically on the scales of history and contributing to the development of Russia by means and methods most advantageous to the working class. Lenin never tired of exposing the erroneous interpretation given by the mensheviks to the nature of the Russian bourgeois-democratic revolution. Lenin pointed out altho the Russian revolution had to be socially and economically a bourgeois-democratic revolution, its main driving forces had to be the working class and the peasantry. The mensheviks, as well as the authors of the well-known theory of permanent revolution—Parvus and Trotsky, fail to understand these main historical peculiarities of the Russian revolution. The mensheviks asserted that the Bolshevik formula "revolutionary democratic dictatorship of the proletariat and peasantry" would inevitably lead the working class to socialist exaggerations and illusions, and will be the grave of the socialist ideal for a long time to come. The advocates of "permanent revolution" said that the task of the working class consisted in initiating immediately the socialist revolution. Parvus and Trotsky's main political slogan was: "Without teh czar, but a labor government." On the other hand Lenin considering the concrete international conditions under which the revolution of 1905 had developed, and the social class structure in Russia, said that Russia was not on the eve of a socialist revolution.

AFTER the defeat of the revolution of 1905 the mensheviks adopted a liquidator's point of view. They considered the bourgeois-democratic revolution accomplished. The mensheviks supported the "Stolypin" "Prussian" form of government for Russia.

During these years their dispute was not about the character of the revolution, but about the possibility of revolution in general. The advocates of "permanent revolution" were at that time on the side of avowed mensheviks. The agrarian program is so to speak the mirror which reflects the character of this or that fraction of Russian social-democracy.

Supporters of the theory of permanent revolution whilst retaining their revolutionary character in a general abstract form, accepted the menshevik agrarian program with its medieval agrarian conditions.

Strange revolutionaries indeed who proclaimed immediate straightforward socialist revolution and at the same time supported feudal agricultural relations. But this only showed that the advocates of "permanent revolution," as well as the mensheviks failed to understand that the main peculiarity of the Russian-bourgeois democratic revolution is that it is an agrarian revolution. The advocates of "permanent revolution" and the mensheviks failed to understand that the main task of the bourgeois-democratic revolution in Russia was the solution of the agrarian question.

ALL the errors of Trotsky's revolutionary theory as applied to Russian conditions originate in his overestimation of the elements of capitalist development in the country. In his estimate of the significance of the peasantry for the pending Russian revolution, Trotsky wrote in 1915 "The experience of the Russian revolution and the reaction which followed it shows us that now, even less than in 1905 we can depend on the peasantry playing an independent and decisive role in the development of revolutionary events, insofar as the peasantry has remained in a state of feudal slavery, it remains in its elemental opposition to the old regime all the economic ideological insularity and political and cultural backwardness and helplessness which paralyzes the social energy of every movement and compel it to stop short where real revolutionary action should begin. But, insofar as the peasantry has made during this epoch economic and cultural progress, this progress is in the form of bourgeois development and is therefore bound to contribute to the further development of class differences within the peasantry itself. This means that the industrial proletariat is confronted now much more than in 1905 with the question of drawing to its side the proletarian and semi-proletarian elements of the countryside, and not the peasantry as a class."

BY this statement, Comrade Trotsky shows that he failed to understand that the peasantry as a whole could rise against medieval agricultural conditions. History has shown us that this is possible. For the countryside the October revolution of 1917 began as a bourgeois-democratic revolution. The whole peasantry supported the Soviets in the struggle against the landowners' medieval agrarian conditions. It was only in the middle of 1918 when the "committees of poor peasants" were organized that the class struggle began to permeate the villages and that the upper stratum of the peasantry dissociated itself from the revolution. The slogan of the struggle for land played a very important role in the organization and mobilization of large peasant masses. It was a great advantage to the Russian revolution that the proletarian revolution coincided with the "peasant war" against the landowners. What Trotsky's revolutionary theory failed to take into account is that the Russian revolution of 1917, which began as an agrarian peasant revolution, will develop into a socialist revolution.

IN his book The Proletarian Revolution and the Renegade Kautsky, Lenin wrote on this subject as follows: "It has happened just as we said. The trend of the revolution is a confirmation of the corectness of our reasoning. At first together with the peasantry against the monarchy, against landowners and medievalism (and to this extent the revolution remains a bourgeois-democratic revolution.) And then together with the poorest peasantry, the semi-proletariat and all exploited against capitalism, including the village rich, the kulaks and speculators and in this respect the revolution becomes a socialist revolution. To endeavor to erect an artificial Chinese wall between the former and the latter, to separate them for each other by any thing else but the degree of the preparedness of the proletariat and the degree of its unification with the village poor, is a flagrant misinterpretation and degradation of Marxism, tantamount to substituting it by liberalism . . . In the meantime, the reason why the Soviets are a much higher form and type of democraticism is that by uniting and drawing into politics large sections of workers and peasants they provide in close proximity to the 'people' (in the sense of Marx's statement in 1871 on a real people's revolution) a very sensitive barometer of the development and growth of the political and class maturity of the masses." Lenin being a brilliant dialectician, fully understood the development of the bourgeois-democratic revolution into the socialist revolution. Therefore we say that those comrades whom we mentioned in the beginning of our article and who are of the opinion that the Russian revolution could have been begun on the Trotsky theory but could not have reached such an advanced state of development on the strength of that theory, are wrong. For Trotsky wanted to skip over the link of the agrarian-peasant revolution, which had to be taken hold of in order to develop the fight for socialism.

"If the Bolshevik proletariat," said Lenin, "without waiting for the class struggle to get hold of the villages and without preparing it and making use of it, had tried to 'decree' civil war or the 'introduction of socialism' in the country, if it had attempted to do without a temporary bloc with the peasantry as a whole and without a number of concessions to the middle peasantry, etc.—this would have been a Blanquist perversion of Marxism, an attempt of the minority to force its will on the majority, a theoretic absurdity, a failure to understand that a general peasant revolution is still a bourgeois revolution and that it is impossible in a backward country to make it a socialist revolution without a series of transitions and transitional phases."

FOREIGN TRADE OF RUSSIA IN BIG INCREASE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—The growth of Soviet Russia's foreign trade has made tremendous strides in the past year, it is admitted even by the anti-Soviet secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover.

In the nine months ending in March 1924, the portion of Soviet Russia in Europe imported $4,121,167 worth of products according to Hoover's figures. Imports in the nine months ending in 1925 to Soviet Russia in Europe amounted to $6,135,094, according to these figures.

In the month of March, 1925, the imports were $1,259,806, a jump from $680,499 worth of imports in March, 1924.

Exports also soared during the last year, the department of commerce figures show. The value of exports in nine months ending March 1, 1925, was $33,373,474, compared to $7,456,292 in the corresponding nine months of 1924. The value of the exports increased four times in one year.

In March, 1925, $7,353,265 worth of products were exported and in March, 1924, $2,999,940.

None of these figures included trade carried on by the portion of Soviet Russia outside of Europe.

LEWIS MACHI[illegible]NG TO SAVE JACKSONVILL[illegible]GREEMENT WHICH BOSSES BOAST DESTROYS UNION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 12.—The international executive board of the United Mine Workers today met in special session to consider the strike situation and discuss ways and means of keeping the Jacksonville agreement in effect.

Representatives of the miners' union from districts where strikes are in effect, including Kentucky, West Virginia and Canada, were here today to submit reports on the situation to the board which will continue in session for several days.

Out of the meeting, it was stated, is expected to grow a definite plan of campaign to be pursued in the strike regions.

Operators' Journal Says West Virginia Strike Crucial.

The critical nature of the West Virginia strike to the U. M. W. of A. is clearly pointed out in the current issue of Coal Age, in an article by Paul Wooten. The writer for the operators' magazine which says it is "devoted to the operating, technical and business problems of the coal mining industry," declares that in the West Virginia and central Pennsylvania districts bordering on much nonunion territory that "the real fate of the United Mine Workers' present standard of wages and working conditions is hanging in the balance."

Editorially the magazine comments that "The time is approaching when the dislocation of a nation-wide strike, as it is termed, will concern no one. There will be plenty of mines to supply the coal and probably plenty of equipment to haul it . . . During the past year big strides were made to bring about this consummation, and in a few months the public may rest easy, strike or no strike. The union will then find its supremacy is a thing of the past."

The editors may be premature in predicting the practical demise of the miners' union but there is no doubt of the seriousness of the situation due to the increasing number of nonunion mines opening as union mines close down.

Union Leaders Partners to Union's Destruction.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

SECRET documents get mislaid even in the British foreign office once in a while, tho it must be admitted, these accidents do not happen as often as we would wish. A secret memorandum intended only for the eyes of the members of the tory cabinet fell into other and less secretive hands. It is one of those things that a government would give its collective eye tooth to hold inviolate from prying eyes. But even the strong boxes of the British government are not infallible.

THE memorandum was intended for a basis for the determination of Great Britain's attitude towards the European problem. It recommended an alliance with the countries bordering on the North Sea and particularly with France and Belgium. The proposal did not meet with approval of the majority, however, as Austen Chamberlain believes that an alliance with Germany against France is better for the empire. Where are the allies of yesterday? It is interesting to note that the document refers to Russia as the "most menacing of our uncertainties."

WITH all the talk of world peace and world courts that has polluted the ether since Woodrow Wilson, history's champion political mountebank, floated his fourteen points, one would imagine from reading the secret British document that it was written by some literate axman of the middle ages. It looks at the situation frankly, refers to the league of nations as a papermache shield that could not resist the assault of a bumble bee, not to speak of a strong imperialist power. Germany is returning to power, it says, and will upset the Polish apple cart. France is returning to the idea of holding on to the Rhine. The sword is in the saddle.

• • •

WITH all these things liable to come to pass, what is the dove of peace doing flitting around his coat of mail? Indeed, Mars never had such a brilliant prospect as this minute. Even the pacifists have become pessimistic about peace. A collection of ladies of many vintages recently met in Wash-

SOVIET INTERNAL LOAN OF 45 MILLION RUBLES IS OVERSUBSCRIBED

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, May 12.— The four day's subscription is closed to the new internal 5 per cent loan, issued for one year's term at 82, to an amount of 10 million gold rubles. Over 45 million rubles have been subscribed at Moscow and Leningrad alone, without counting the provincial results.

At the distribution of the bonds preference will be shown to the underwriters of the smaller obligations up to 500 rubles.

The press rejoices over the successful results of the loan, to which result the papers attach a great importance, as they tend to show that there is an amount of free capital in the country sufficient to ensure the possibility of further government credit operations in the home market.

TAILORS STRIKE IN LOS ANGELES AFTER LOCKOUT

Discharge of Unionman Brings Conflict

By PAUL REISS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 12.— A strike of the 90 employes of the Golden State Tailoring Service shop has just taken place.

The Golden State Tailoring Service shop at Court and Spring streets served notice on the shop committee elected by the workers, that they will not deal with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Local Union No. 278, any longer.

When the cutters came to work Monday morning they were informed that one of their co-workers was discharged last Saturday and when they inquired for the cause of discharge, they were told to go back to work and mind their own business.

In reply to this, the cutters insisted upon getting an answer. The owners then told the cutters to leave the shop, in other words, they were locked out. The workers of the other departments upon learning about this fact walked out in a sympathy strike. As a result of the lock out, the workers responded to the strike call, one hundred per cent.

This house employs about ninety people and is one hundred per cent organized. The management of the shop officially stated that now is the opportune time to wreck the union and are determined to do so. The chamber of commerce and the M. and M. have their white hands in this affair. The enthusiasm and solidarity among the workers is very strong.

FARMERS FROM 9 STATES MEET TO DENOUNCE CAL

500 Delegates Demand Immediate Relief

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DES MOINES, Ia., May 12.—Drastic criticism of President Coolidge's agricultural commission and of Secretary Hoover's policies was meted out today when 500 farmers of the middle west met here to make definite plans for relief for their industry.

In a speech loudly applauded by the audience, in which sat representatives of Farmers' Union, farm bureaus, granges and allied organizations, Geo. N. Peek, president of the American council of agriculture, Moline, Ill., said that the middle west had been betrayed by the agricultural commission and that the secretary of commerce was attempting to usurp the functions of the department of agriculture.

The meeting was called to order by Milo Reno, president of the Iowa Farmers' Union and Charles S. Barrett, Union City, Ga., president of the National Farmers' Union, presided.

Nine States Send Delegates.

Illinois, Colorado, Montana, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma and the Dakotas sent delegates.

Leaders stated that it was probable that a committee would be appointed to draft a program which would "get the farmers somewhere in his effort to get a decent return for his products."

They said the present conference meant a fusion of cliques and factions which in some particulars have worked at cross-purposes.

"Progressives" Present.

United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart and congressman L. J. Dickinson, of the tenth Iowa district, and author of the substitute "agricultural relief" bill were present.

Wife's Suit Haunts Klan Attacker in Indiana Murder Case

INDIANAPOLIS, May 12.—The Fidelity Deposit company of Maryland entered a categorical denial in superior court number 1, here today, to allegations it is holding property of D. C. Stephenson, former K. K. K. leader under indictment for murder in connection with the death last month of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28.

The company posted a $25,000 bond to obtain Stephenson's release from jail when the first series of indictments was returned against him and Mrs. Nettie Stephenson Brehm of Poteau, Okla., alleged divorced wife of Stephenson who is suing him for $17,000 support money, thru the attachment proceedings against the company to tie up any collateral he might have given the company to go his bond.

STRIKE AGAINST "OPEN SHOP" ON NEW MARKET ENTERS SECOND WEEK

All conferences of the building trades council officials and the non-union McLennan construction company officials failed to bring a settlement of the strike of the electricians, ironworkers, bricklayers, tile setters, plumbers and plasterers employed on the new market project at 14th St. and Racine Ave.

The work was at a standstill on the twenty million dollar structure, and many of the Landis award unorganized laborers, cement workers and carpenters were laid off yesterday.

The building trades workers who belong to the union are striking against the Landis award "open shop" conditions. They demand that the non-union workers be organized.

DELEGATES TO PA. LABOR PARTY HIT 'BOB-CATS'

Call for Organization Based on Unions

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 12.—Sixty delegates to the Pennsylvania labor party assembled here from all sections of the state, representing various organizations.

James Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania state federation of labor, spoke, criticizing the practice of labor organizations lobbying to influence old party candidates.

Contrary to the action of the executive session held in the afternoon the delegates representing the officialdom of the LaFollette movement tried to choke the organization.

Comrade Otis made a speech criticizing the chairman's report, the C. P. P. A., and also the LaFollette movement, calling upon the delegates to acknowledge that they had made a mistake in entering the LaFollette movement.

Comrade Otis called upon the convention to build a state labor party with the trade union members as the basis. The rank and file delegates backed Comrade Otis' demand for a labor party.

Two More Murders Makes Chicago Total Six for Three Days

Two more murders, making a total of six for the last three days, were added to Chicago's crime record today.

One victim was Joseph Saitta, 40, whose bullet-riddled body was found this morning in the rear of a house on the near north side. A curt telephone message: "There's a dead man in the rear of [illegible]711 N. Lockwood street" advised police of the killing. They ascribed the slaying to a black hand war.

The other target of the gunman was John Tubacek found murdered in his store. Sixty dollars in his clothing and $4.15 in an open cash resister had not been touched.

The day's police blotters also listed Stanley Brokowski, 52, Chicago's ninety-sixth victim of moonshine since Jan. 1.

REFUTE LIES OF U. S. KEPT PRESS AGAINST RUSSIA

Counter-Revolution 'in Anatolia Explained

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, —(By Mail).—Refuting the absurd allegations of a part of the American press accusing the Bolsheviks of taking a hand in the rebellion in Eastern Anatolia, the semi-official Angora organ The Hakimiot Millie writes, in an editorial article, that "the relations between governments that act in accordance with the spirit, feelings and wishes of their peoples respectively, cannot possibly be affected by any changes of a passing political nature.

"As it happens, the diplomatic relations between the Turkish and the Russian peoples fall under this head. As a matter of fact, any counter-revolutionary move that happens to arise in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics or Turkey only tends still further to consolidate the friendly relations existing between the two countries and offers a fresh opportunity for the manifestation of mutual sympathies.

New Russia Greets New Turkey

"Moreover, it should be perfectly clear to everyone that between new Russia and new Turkey there now exist such relations as would have been impossible under the czarist regime and the Khalifate.

"When the Chicago Tribune pretends to believe that the insurrection in Eastern Anatolia was engineered by the Bolsheviks with a view to erecting a barrier between Turkey and Soviet Caucasus and thus stem the spread of Turkish influence, it is hardly necessary to demonstrate the

COMMUNIST DEPUTIES QUIT THE REICHSTAG IN PROTEST AGAINST THE MONARCHIST PRESIDENT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, May 12.—The Communist deputies in the reichstag rose and left the chamber in protest when Paul von Hindenburg, monarchist and war lord, began his first speech as president of the German republic.

The Communist Party has declared a general twenty-four hour strike against the monarchists, and thousands stayed away from work today.

Hindenburg Enacts Farce.

Altho Hindenburg went thru the farce of taking the presidential oath of allegiance to the German republic, his followers greeted him in the street demonstrations as a monarchist and militarist.

The monarchist black, white and red flags under which the Hohenzollern kaisers ruled far outnumbered the "official" red black and gold republican banners.

Hindenburg recognized that he was elected as a monarchist and a militarist, issuing a separate inaugural declaration to the German army and navy.

A Militarist Demonstration.

It was a militaristic demonstration for Hindenburg. After he was sworn in as president, Hindenburg rode between squadrons of Prussian lancers to the presidential palace. Sixteen thousand police lined the streets, prepared to beat down protests against the monarchists. Altho music was forbidden, the crowds of monarchists societies sang "Deutschland Uber Allies."

Socialists Do Not Protest.

The socialist deputies, who wore red carnations, did not join in the protest of the Communists. When the Communist deputies walked out, the socialists remained in their seats, taking part in the inauguration ceremonies.

GOVERNMENT BUREAU IN ADMISSION THAT A LOW WAGE KILLS BABIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—Poverty kills babies. This ancient fact has again been determined by a study of 23,000 babies born in eight American cities, by the children's bureau. "Irrespective of all other factors," says the report, "it was discovered that the infant death rate varied inversely with the earnings of the father." Also, babies had less chance to live if the number in the family was large—with an average income to feed them.

PEKIN, China, May 12.—The Soviet Russian ambassador to China, L. Karakhan, has sent a sharp note of protest to minister of foreign affairs, Shen Jui-Lin, demanding that the Russian counter-revolutionists in the Chinese army be dismissed.

Karakhan declares in the note that the Russian white guards were given Chinese citizenship papers in violation of Chinese law, and of the Russo-Chinese agreement, and strongly hints that future negotiations with China will be held up pending a satisfactory adjustment by the Chinese republican government at Pekin. The note follows:

LEN SMALL'S HOUSE KILLS WOMEN'S EIGHT HOUR WORK MEASURE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 12.—The death knell as far as the house is concerned, was sounded in the 54th Illinois general assembly today for the women's 8-hour bill. By a vote of 72 to 61, the lower branch which is controlled by Governor Small, definitely killed the measure Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil of Downers Grove has fought for many weeks to pass. It polled five less than a constitutional majority.

A similar bill, introduced by W. S. Jewell of Lewistown, rests in the senate. Although efforts to pass it is expected, legislative prophets say the upper house stands ready to administer another defeat.

Seventy cossacks, formerly whites, have returned with the ship and have now been amnestied.

Teapot Dome Farce Continued.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Fall-Sinclair-Doheny oil leases were again brought to the attention today of a federal grand jury here. Appearing "for the government," Special Counsel Atlee Pomerene and District Attorney Peyton Gordon appeared before the jury to ask the indictment of ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall, Harry F. BULGAR WHITE GUARDS MURDER RELIEF FUND CUSTODIAN AND STEAL $5,000 RELIEF FUNDS

(INPRECORR CABLE)

MOSCOW, May 12.—The executive of the International Red Aid has addressed a written protest to the Bulgarian ministerial council, against the persecution of those who participated in the relief of the victims of the terror regime, in particular against the execution of Theodore Dimitrov Michailov, who was to transmit the $5,000 collected by the I. R. A. sections of the various countries to the families of those arrested or shot.

The International Red Aid demands the return of the confiscated money, which is to be handed over to the Bulgarian Teachers' Union for distribution among the families of the victims of the terror. The various sections of the International Red Aid are determined to continue the relief work in aid of the victims of the predatory regime in Bulgaria.

Three courses are open to the union, ccording to Wooten's analysis of the West Virginia and central Pennsylvania situation: (1) the union "might ight for the scale, but if it does," ays Wooten, "it is foredoomed to deeat, which means the loss of its hold on these highly important outlyng fields. To this end the Bittner policy is leading."

(2) The union "might permit these outlying districts to make separate negotations looking to the reduction of the scale." If this is done it can hold under nominal allegiance a considerable block of tonnage in northern West Virginia and some in central Pennsylvania. The result of such autonomy would be an urgent demand from the central competitive field for a corresponding reduction."

What the Operators Want.

The third course open to the union, Wooten sees, "would be to recognize that the jig is up and consent to the negotiation of a lower scale. The loss of Fairmont and central Pennsylvania creates a dangerous salient in the Pittsburgh sector of the union line," Wooten continues. "In fact, the Pittsburgh district itself becomes a salient, which in time probably will be pinched off by the pressure from each side."

Drift Toward Disaster.

The probabilities pointed out by Wooten and supported by other careful observers of the situation indicate that the union will continue, thru its officials, a drifting policy leading to ultimate disaster. The union cannot afford to lose any more territory to nonunion operators and must make its fight in West Virginia a real test of its strength and endurance or it may cease to figure as a power in the coal industry.

TIKHON URGED FOLLOWERS TO BACK SOVIETS

Admitted Their Hold on Russian People

MOSCOW. (Rosta).— The papers publish a lengthy manifesto of the late Patriarch Tikhon, which bears his fascimile, and which the deceased, a day before his death, handed to his first assistant, Archbishop Krutitzky Peter, for publication.

In this manifesto, Tikhon calls upon all the believers that, while they should rigidly observe their religious belief, they should maintain a sincere attitude vis-a-vis the Soviet power which, being a true people's power, has strong and deep roots in the people and is unmistakable.

In an important manifesto, appearing over the signatures of the Leningrad Archbishop Benjamin, president of the synod, (head organ of the reformed orthodox church), other archbichops and bishops and, also, learned theologists, the synod explains to all the clergy and believers, in reference to ex-Patriarch Tikhon's death, that the movement that arose against Tikhon and culminated in his deposition, in 1923, was aimed not against his personality, but the tendency he represented and his church policy, which was detrimental to the church.

Now, the death of the patriarch, whose name was the emblem of internal strife within the church—the authors of the manifesto declare—lays a moral obligation on all the orthodox believers to work for the re-unification of the orthodox church, which is actually split in two hostile camps.

In conclusion, the synod calls upon all the clergy, without distinction of political tendencies, to work jointly to prepare the church convention, which is to be held in a near future and whose aim is to put an end to the internal strife of the orthodox church.

The Election in Moscow.

MOSCOW.— The latest results of the election to the Moscow Soviet show that 2,554 Communist and 1,308 non-partisan candidates have been returned. Out of the newly elected members, 933 are women.

This time, as seen from the above figures, the percentage of non-partisan members is 34, while in the last Soviet it was 12.8.

Refute Lies of U. S. Kept Press Against Russia

absurdity of such an asseveration, lest the reader may be inclined to attach more importance to it than it really deserves.

"The American paper ought, however, to understand that such stuff cannot in any measure affect the Turkish-Soviet relations.

"Indeed, the Turkish people fully realises that, in the given case, the Chicago Tribune is but vainly trying to sow discord between two great nations. People venturing in this way upon a discussion of relations between Turkey and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics seems to forget that the wishes and sentiments of diplomats are not the only factors that bring these two nations closer to each other and determine their political interrelations. Indeed, the policies of the two great neighbor states are definitely outlined by the history of the recent revolutionary struggle.

"In fact, the statesmen of both countries could not possibly altar their present policy while the feeling and sentiments of the people remain what they are.

"New Turkey pursues no aims other than to live and exist in the limits of her national frontiers and develop her national economic and cultural resources.

"As for revolutionary Russia, she knows our national aims better than any other state, since for the last years she has herself been fighting for the independence and liberty of nations. Neither the Chicago Tribune nor, for that matter, any other such like organ, need worry about it; never shall we forget the sympathies shown and the support lent us by our great neighbor not only in these days, when the Turkish republic has grown stronger, but also previously—when we were fighting for our national independence.

See Triumph Over Reaction.

"The Soviet statesmen firmly believe that young Turkey will triumph over and crush all the forces of reaction. And," concludes the mouthpiece of the Angora government, "we deeply appreciate such an attitude on the part of the Soviet."

SOVIETS ARREST OFFICIALS FOR MISUSING FUNDS

Teapot Dome Methods Not Allowed in Russia

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, May 12.—The Transcaucasian federal government has ordered the arrest of a number of high and other officials of the Nakhitchevansk Autonomous Republic, among them being the people's commissaries of interior, of agriculture and of finance.

This measure has been undertaken as a result of a special revision effected by a committee of auditors instituted by the Transcaucasian government at the initiative of Rykoff, president of the council of people's commissaries of the U. S. S. R., who, during his recent tour of Transcaucasia pointed out the unsatisfactory economic conditions and the defective organization of power in the Nakhitchevansk Republic.

This committee of auditors discovered numerous misdeeds and abuse of power on the part of those new arests, most of whom are wealthy Beks and former czarist officials, with a very bad reputation among the peasants.

The people's commissary of interior had embezzled fifteen thousand rubles of public funds, while several of the others had at the time lent active support to the Turck anti-Soviet faction.

In their report, the auditors recommended to the federal government to increase the credits to the Nakhitchevansk peasants, whose economy has greatly suffered from civil war and intervention.

When East Meets West.

HARBIN.—The first cargo of German goods has been received at Harbin sent from Germany via the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The goods are sent to the address of the local branch of the "Dobroflot" (Volunteer Fleet). Part of them are for the local Harbin market, another part of them will be immediately sent on to Shanghai.

The local papers remark, in this reference, that the direct overland goods service between the Far East and Europe seems now to have become an accomplished fact.

Spoil Tokio-Paris Flight.

TOKIO, May 12.—Moscow's refusal to permit the plane to fly over Russian territory beyond Moscow has temporarily disrupted the proposed Tokio-Paris flight sponsored by the Tokio newspaper Asahi Shimbun, it was learned here today. The Soviet government would permit a flight to Moscow, it was said, but would not allow the plane to leave the Russian capital for Europe. The flight, however, was expected to be continued over China and India, starting within a few days.

Japs Seek Concessions.

MOSCOW.—Ever fresh offers are continually being received from Japanese firms asking for the grant of concessions for the exploitation of gold mines in Siberia.

Japs Deny Loan Report.

TOKIO, May 12. — The Japanese finance ministry here today denied New York reports that Japan was negotiating a $25,000,000 loan for the reconstruction of Tokio.

MEETING OF WORKERS CORRESPONDENTS IN NEW YORK SATURDAY

NEW YORK CITY, May 12—A meeting to organize a Workers' Correspondents Club will be held at 7:30 Saturday evening, May 16 at the party headquarters, 108 East 14th street. Any worker interested in a course in Communist journalism is invited to come.

CAL WORRIED BY FRANCE'S DEBT OF 280 BILLION

Wall Street Wants German Payments

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, May 12.—"I think that reparation receipts from Germany by their nature should be applied to special purposes," Finance Minister Caillaux told the members of the finance commission of the chamber of deputies this afternoon.

"They should serve in their entirely to complete the reconstruction of the liberated regions devastated by the war and to amortize allied debts under such arrangements as will be made.

"The government will float a loan covered by expected payments from Germany. These loans will be used to restore the devastated regions and for improving the state railways."

The Coolidge government, thru Ambassador Herricks, is constantly dunning the French government for the war debt to America, and Caillaux is anxious to keep German payments in France. "France's domestic debt amounts to 280,000,000,000 francs," he said. "The nation must bear an increase burden amounting to $3,500,000,000. This sum is indispensible."

France's Note To Germany

PARIS, May 12.—The Painleve cabinet meeting with President Doumergue, unanimously adopted the text of Foreign Minister Briand's two notes on Germany at noon today.

The first, dealing with alleged German infractions of disarmament provisions, will be handed to the council of ambassadors Friday. The second, the reply to the German security pact proposals, will be sent to the allies immediately. The second note demands Germany's entrance to the league of nations, which is used by the world powers to plunder the weaker nations.

Railway Heads Go to Moscow.

HARBIN.—It is reported in the local press that the Chinese members fo the board of directors of the Chinese Eastern railway have received an invitation to come to Moscow to get acqainted with the working of the railways in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The idea seems to have been willingly accepted and the directors are saaid to be contemplating to start soon for their visit, which, however, can be but of a short duration in view of their many duties on the line.

Like Soviet Pavilion at Leipzig.

MOSCOW.—The Tribune, a leading paper of Rome, writes about the Leipzig fair that "an excellent order reigns in the Soviet pavilion, and the Soviet halls at the fair are wonderfully well arranged.

"The show made at the Leipzig fair by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics further evidences that the Union is an important factor of the economic life of Europe and that it is in fitting order to set out for the winning over of international markets."

Youth's Execution Postponed.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 12—Stays of execution until Friday, Dec. 18, 1925, were granted by Governor Ed Jackson today to Edward Barber, 19, and Joseph Parker, 22 who were to have been electrocuted in the state prison at Michigan City on May 29.

Kameneff Heads Moscow Soviet.

MOSCOW, May 12.—At the first session of the newly-elected Moscow Soviet, held today, Mr. L. B. Kameneff (assistant president of the council of people's commissaries) was elected president of the Soviet without a dissenting vote.

ANDY FURUSETH SAYS SEAMEN REJECT 'TIPS'

Subsidy Disguised as Bonus; Draft Rumored

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 12.—American seamen will have none of the "wage bonus" scheme which T. V. O'Connor, once head of the Longshoremen and now chairman of the shipping board, has proposed as a camouflaged shipsubsidy grant from congress to the shipowners. They have protested, thru Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's Union of America, against having a "tip" system forced upon them. As "free" men they earn their stipulated wages; they ask industrial justice thru fair enforcement of the seamen's act; they refuse "the crowning disgrace of being known and considered as 'tipsters'."

Andy Writes to Cal.

This protest has been embodied in a letter from Furuseth to President Coolidge, who was reported as being interested in O'Connor's plan of subsidy.

In his letter, the seamen's executive points out that this is a revival of part of the Gallinger subsidy bill of many years ago. That bill, supported by a republican administration, was beaten in congress. It was strongly opposed by the organized seamen.

It is the seamen's contention that this O'Connor scheme would be made constitutional only by enlisting the merchant seamen as naval reserves. That is the French system, and "would destroy our merchant marine as surely as it destroyed that of France."

BRIBERY, BOOZE CHARGES HURLED IN KLAN FIGHT

Springfield Judge and Police Chief War

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 12. — Springfield's police department and judiciary plunged deeper today into a bitter warfare.

Justice of the Peace C. C. Bierman carried to Mayor S. A. Bullard his fight against Police Magistrate Frank E. Early. Bierman conferred with the mayor on means of removing Early from office.

"I accuse Early of unfitness for office and of holding court while intoxicated. His conduct in office has caused everyone who knows of it to lose respect and regard for him and his position," Bierman said.

The developments followed a bitter arraignment of the magistrate in his office by Bierman who hurled invectives bristling with personalities and charges that Early had been indicted in Sangamon county for malfeasance in office, accepting a bribe, and criminal contempt of court, and had been sued by the city of Springfield for being an inmate of a gambling house.

Meanwhile, further complications arose when Austin Jones, a free agent responsible only to Chief Morris, a klansman, said he would investigate rumored liquor scandals and bribery inside the police department "involving high officials." The klan is said to be in control of the police department and attacking anti-klan judges.

PICNIC MAY 30 TO DRAW CROWD OF MILITANTS

T. U. E. L. Group Gets Altenheim Grove

The first workers' picnic of the year, given by the Trade Union Educational League of Chicago, will be held on May 30, Decoration Day, in Altenheim Grove, to be reached by direct route on the Forest Park elevated line, and by transfer from the Madison streetcar to a suburban car.

Branches of the Workers Party are taking part in this picnic of the Chicago militant unionists, and contests between the branches are being arranged. Two language federation groups are slated for to put on a "tug-of-war," and some of the labor athletes are volunteering to stage exhibitions.

Every party branch is supposed to get in touch with local headquarters and to furnish some feature of entertainment, game or contest.

Angora Fire Under Control.

LONDON, May 12.—A Central News dispatch from Constantinople today reported under control the fire which destroyed 600 shops in Yezgad near Angora Monday. The damage was $5,000,000.

MacDonald, the Traitor, Announces That He Does Not Like "The Red Flag"

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, James Ramsay MacDonald, "socialist" and late labor premier of Great Britain, joins the capitalists in hostility to "The Red Flag," the workers' revolutionary song, second in popularity only to "The International" itself.

MacDonald says he wants something "more tuneful and soul stirring," and he has no doubt found it in the British royal anthem, "God Save the King," as played by the British monarch's picked military band. For it was MacDonald's job while premier, and he is still at it, trying to save the king from the red flag.

MacDonald has his king and Gustav Noske, the German "socialist," has the makings of a new kaiser in Paul von Hindenburg, in whose honor Noske made a farewell speech at Hanover, on Monday, as the German militarist left for Berlin. It was Noske who led the war against the German Communists, and whose hands drip with the blood of Liebknecht and Luxemburg. Noske will join MacDonald in hostility to the stirring strains of "The Red Flag," that heartens revolutionists in their struggles the world over, and cheers them on to new battles.

• • • •

It needs nothing more than a reprinting of "The Red Flag" to discover why MacDonald doesn't like it. MacDonald proved the best agent of British imperialism, to keep the workers in submissive obedience to "The Empire," in all the colonies as well as at home. "The Red Flag" sounds a note of solidarity for workers everywhere and is an inspiration to revolt against "The Empire," whether British, American, French or German. Here it is:

The people's flag is deepest red
It shrouded oft our martyr'd dead.
And ere their limbs grew stiff and cold,
Their heart's blood dyed its every fold.
CHORUS:
Then raise the scarlet standard high!
Within its shade we'll live and die!
Tho cowards flinch and traitors sneer,
We'll keep the Red Flag flying here.

Look round: the Frenchman loves its blaze;
The sturdy German chants its praise
In Moscow's vaults its hymns are sung;
Chicago swells the surging throng.
CHORUS:

It waved above our infant might,
When all ahead seemed dark as night,
It witnessed many a deed and vow,
We must not change its color now.
CHORUS:

It well recalls the triumphs past,
It gives the hope of peace at last,
The banner bright, the symbol plain
Of human right and human gain.
CHORUS:

It suits today the weak and base,
Whose minds are fixed on pelf and place,
To cringe before the rich man's frown,
And haul the sacred emblem down.
CHORUS:

With head uncovered swear we all
To bear it onward till we fall;
Come dungeon dark or gallows grim
This song shall be our parting hymn.
CHORUS:

• • • •

British workers will not stop singing "The Red Flag"; not even if MacDonald wishes it. Rather they will sing it all the louder, since they are recognizing more and more that MacDonald belongs to the capitalist class, not to the working class. MacDonald's attack on this revolutionary song of the workers will only serve to make it more popular with those who are enslaved by the social system that MacDonald so valiantly defends.

• • • •

The loyalty of another "socialist," the late Fritz Ebert, president of Germany, whom Hindenburg succeeds, to "the reich," is also to be rewarded. The "Baroness" Katherina von Oheimb—they still have the titles of the German kaiserdom in the republic—has opened a campaign to get an annual pension of $7,500 for Ebert's widow. The "baroness" heaps glowing eulogies upon the memory of the late "socialist" president, who sent thousands of Communists to prison. It is from these prisons that the strains of "The Red Flag" come in unceasing refrain. So it is all over the capitalist world.

Labor will treasure its song, "The Red Flag," more than ever since the traitor, MacDonald, like all of his kind, has now openly turned against it.

RUSSIA'S RED ARMY CHIEF KEEPS WATCH ON BALTIC WAR MANEUVERS

MOSCOW, May 12.—That the Soviet government had paid close attention to the recent joint conference at Riga of representatives of the general staffs of the Baltic states and Roumania and Poland, was stated by Frunze, people's commissar of war, in the course of a speech delivered at Rostov-on-Don while on his way to Tiflis to attend the congress of soviets of the Transcaucasian Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Having to go thru internal difficulties, some of the neighboring states, Frunze observed, were apt, under influence from without, to be tempted by somewhat adventuresome combinations.

Tho the Soviet government was well aware, the people's war commissary declared, of the irritation prevailing in the public opinion thrount the Union of Soviet Republics at such intolerable facts as raids by regular Polish army units on Soviet frontier posts or the murder of Baginsky and Weiczerkowicz, or, again, the support openly extended by the Roumaniaan government to Petlura's bandit organizations, the government's main object being, now as heretofore, to work for peace on all the frontiers of the Union.

HERRIN UNDER ANTI-KLAN MAYOR CALLS IN KLUXERS' TIN STARS

HERRIN, Ill., May 12.—With several hundred tin stars, made by the late Glenn Young out of tomato cans, called in, new badges issued and new oaths taken, Herrin was under new city rule today by an administration distinctly anti-klan.

Mayor Marshall D. McCormack, whose store was bombed just prior to his election by klan forces, asserted:

"We shall have a better and cleaner Herrin under the new regime."

Rockefeller Invests $625,000 in Colleges for U. S. Imperialism

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, May 13—The committee that is carrying on the drive to raise $2,500,000 for the support and maintenance of the five American colleges in the Near East has announced thru its chairman, Cleveland H. Dodge, that John D. Rockefeller, Jr. has donated the sum of $625,000 to the fund.

The colleges, which are maintained by churches and missionary societies, are located at Constantinople, Sofia and Smyrna. The Standard Oil company has a large plant located in Smyrna and the connection between a Rockefeller maintained college and a Standard Oil plants is very clear.

The near East countries, especially Turkey, have since the war entered upon a period of industrial development with the result that a strong working class has come into existence. Trade unions have sprung up and have conducted campaigns for the improvement of conditions.

The leadership over such young movements generally fall into the hands of the petty bourgeoisie and the intellectuals. And what better place is there for the education and development of such intellectuals than the American maintained colleges, supported by the big American capitalists?

The role and history of the missionaries and churchmen in the colonial countries is well known: the forerunners of the capitalists seeking a place for investment and exploitation. Rockefellers' missionaries are fulfilling their task very well.

Cleveland H. Dodge, who is himself a well known banker made the following significant statement. "The colleges have given fifty years of service in the Near East and are responsible for many of the changes that have taken place in that time."

Rap at Farrington in Warning Purchasers of Union's Property

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 12.—The membership of District 12, United Mine Workers, have their doubts as to the honesty of Frank Farrington, district president, and in resolutions being spread throut the district, are giving "due warning" to all business interests, bonding companies, mortgage firms and corporations, that any acquisition of property, moneys, liberty bonds and other securities belonging to the union, unless such are acquited by consent of the membership, will be at the risk of prosecution.

"This movement must be made at once to protect the property of the Illinois mine workers and also keep the books and bonds intact so that the membership will be able to investigate the same should they desire to do so to see what has become of the remaining property and funds, and to see if transactions by Farrington have been legal or not," reads an announcement of the miners.

"To see what has become of the remaining property and funds," appears to indicate that the miners find something missing which Farrington, as president, was supposed to safeguard.

Strengthen "Co-ops" in U. S. S. R.

MOSCOW.—The people's commissariat of finance has been instructed by the government to draw up, in an urgent manner, a bill providing for facilities in alterations of the taxation of private capital.

At the same time, the government is devising measures for consolidating the basic capital of state commercial firms and the enlargement of the corporations of co-operative organizations, ten million rubles having been apportioned for this latter item from the state budget funds.

THE VOICE OF LENIN TO BE HEARD IN CHICAGO SUNDAY, MAY 24

Something new and different is being arranged by the Russian branch of the Workers Party for Sunday, May 24, at the Workers' Home, 1902 W. Division St. It will be a Lenin Evening, with Comrade Nicolai Lenin as the chief speaker. This is no joke, as the talk by Comrade Lenin will be heard from a phonograph record, as well as speeches by Comrade Lunacharsky, Trotsky and others.

Comrade Alexander Chramov, national organizer of the Russian Section W. P., who is touring the United States, will bring the records to Chicago. He will also speak on Lenin as a leader of the masses. A good musical program is also being prepared. Tell your friends about it. Let them listen to the voice of Lenin!

UST TOOL OF FARRINGTON IN MINERS' FIGHT

Parry as President Reinstates Watt

Farrington had appointed his own enchman "Jackey" Walker, to take he place of Freeman Thompson, sub-istrict president, and Walker at nce appointed another poor fish, nthony Shymansky, to take Watt's lace as secretary. These worthies, ealing that altho their appointment as illegal, Farrington would back hem up with all his usurped power, arried things off with a high hand. hat was round one for Farrington's achine.

Round Two.

Round two went to the sub-district hen "Jackey" Walker, who has [illegible] chief mining experience in estling washing for his wife and afing around poolrooms, was dis-overed to be delinquent in the min-rs' union and legally ineligible for e job to which Farrington had ap-ointed him. In fact he was no longer member of the union.

When Joseph Angelo, secretary of ocal 412, notified Faker Farrington at the local had formally declared alker not a member, Farrington got l "het up" and wrote back that the cal had "overstepped its power." e said that, by the eternal, he was istrict president, and advised the lo-l to "be careful" and that a little ique was trying to "dictate." He ded by saying he would appoint a mmittee himself to do the dictating d "investigate" the matter in the me way as the Duncan McDonald se.

A Hard Thing to Swallow.

The local secretary replied that the cal had merely obeyed the plain con-titutional requirement of demanding at a delinquent go to work and be gularly re-instated and that Walker ould appeal if he thot he was still a ember.

The next round seemed to go to the b-district progressives, as Farring-n backed up, and wrote the local at he had notified Walker to respect e local's decision until reversed by higher union tribunal.

Putting the Skids Under Jackey.

This automatically put "Jackey" alker out of office as sub-district resident and by the same token put Tom Parry, a progressive regularly lected as sub-district vice-president, to the presidency from which alker had ousted Freeman Thomp-n.

As soon as Tom Parry took over the ce from the dazed "Jackey" Walker, wrote to Walker's appointed secre-ry-treasurer, Shymansky that since alker had been in office illegally hen he appointed Shymansky, there-re Shymansky was also illegally ap-inted and not being authorised, was dered at once to turn over all books d funds to none other than the de-sed John Watt, who was simultane-usly re-instated by order of Tom arry, acting as sub-district president.

The matter seems to indicate that arrington has the next move to ake, and that the case of Freeman hompson awaits threshing out in a b-district convention. Tom Parry ys, "Business is open and every-ing is harmonius in the sub-district dministraiton." Meanwhile "Jackey" alker has gone home to watch the ife hang out the neighbor's washing d Shymansky wanders about the treets with a dazed expression on his ug.

MINERS IN PITTSBURGH DISTRICT CHEATED BY BOSSES, DESERTED BY UNION HEADS, LOOK TO COMMUNISTS

By A COAL MINER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DAISYTOWN, Pa., May 13—I am now working at the Vesta No. 4 mine of the Vesta Coal company, which is a subsidiary of J. Laughlin Steel company. They were working full time until a few days ago, and now are working three days a week. Vesta Mines No. 5 and 6, of the same company, have been working only two or three days a week and they are producing very little coal.

These are non-union mines, where the wages have been cut to the 1917 scale.

Working Conditions Rotten.

The working conditions in these mines are rotten. When a coal loader finishes a place, he has to wait two weeks or longer until he gets another place to work in. If he is the bosses' pet lackey, however, he does not lose a day.

If a man lays off for any reason whatever, he is penalized at least a week's work when he returns. But the worst part is, that the boss will let men come into his working place before telling him that he is penalised. As this is a big mine, the poor man has two or three hours' to walk before he gets out.

Posts, rails, spikes and other supplies are scarce. I know a man who was laid off because a pit wagon got off the track in his place. This could not be helped, as the miner did not have the rails to lay a long rail, so he used two or three short pieces. The heavy wagon forced the short pieces apart.

Forced to Work in Water.

Men are forced to work in water, and no extra compensation, as provided for by the contract, is paid. If the pump breaks down as it will occasionally, the men working in the entries that are wet have to stay home for a week or longer. I know of an instance where the men came in the mine and went out again for 20 days in succession without getting any kind of compensation whatever. The boss would not tell them that the pump was not fixed.

The yardage paid for slate in narrow work is at the option of the boss. Here is the way they work it: The section boss will come in and measure the yardage, write the figures in his book, and let the men se ehim doing it. But when he goes around the corner he uses the erasing end of his pencil, and of course the men are short on the next pay. When they kick, the bosses' excuse is that he entered the actual yardage in his book, but the clerks in the office made the mistake. Then he gives the men shortage for last pay, but when he gets around the corner he earses it again and the loader is always short.

Get Short Pay.

Then the company changes section bosses and the new boss says he is not responsible for any shortage his predecessor made. There are 99 ways to skin a cat, and the bosses use every one of the 99.

I know a man here who has worked at this mine for 20 years and contracted asthma and rheumatism, which became so bad he could not work. So he went to the coal company doctor and the doctor gave him a card explaining to the superintendent why this man could not work in the mine. But to date, he has no job outside, and the family is pretty big. All must eat, so the poor man went back into the mine, knowing it will be his death in a short time.

Some will say why doesn't he go somewhere else, but who will take on a husk of a man after the coal company has been squeezing the life out of him for 20 years at one mine?

Weighing Scales Crooked.

The weighing scales here are the worst I ever heard of, men are cheated out of tons of coal every pay day, the men always being given short weight. As there are over 1,000 coal loaders, it pays the company to have such scales.

Drinking water is so bad at the Daisytown camp it smells like rotten eggs, and if a person is not used to it he cannot stay in the house when the water is brot in. I heard the doctor giving advice to a friend of mine to move away if he wanted to have his children in a healthy condition. The local union of the United Mine Workers of America is very weak. It used to be a good local, but when there was any kind of a grievance it was taken out of the local's hands and given to a higher official and that was the last ever heard of it. If a decision was handed down, accidentally, it favored the coal company.

Union Officials Desert Miners.

These elastic interpretations of the contract gave the coal company officials a chance to chastise the unruly spirits. Victimisations against individuals were daily occurences, and it got so that many militants were driven out to other fields and most of those that are left are too scared to say anything, fearing the same treatment.

Communists Take Lead.

There is a big responsibility for our comrades here, in this local, as conditions are getting worse, and the miners will be ripe for Communist leadership. I hope the comrades will respond to the call as Communists should, that is, be first to respond to every call to action by which the working class will profit to any extent. Some of us will be victims of the coal company officials, some of us may lose our jobs, but that should not stop us.

CONDUCTORS ABSORBED IN RELIEVING BOSSES FROM ALL COMPETITORS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 12. —Declaring that thousands of railroad conductors have been forced out of their jobs and compelled to take less lucrative positions as a result of alleged unfair bus company competition with the railroads, delegates to the national convention of the Order of Railway Conductors today mapped out a nation-wide campaign for more stringent regulation of busses.

Debate on the question of merging the pension and relief departments of the order was all that prevented delegates from plunging at once into the issue of bus regulation after the meeting got under way.

JOBLESS YOUNG WORKER, WIFE AN EXPECTANT MOTHER, STARVING AND FACING EVICTION, ONE IN MANY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, May 12—A young worker, just one of many thousands out f work in this city, applied to police for aid for his wife, who is about to ecome a mother. The police found that the man, a cripple, was on the erge of starvation, and his wife had nothing to eat. The landlord threatened eviction.

The application was made on the steps of the East 104th street police tation by the young man, not over 25, who limped slightly. He asked for ood. The request was so straight-rward that the policeman, without estion, invited the young man down e street to a restarant. The young an explained to him that the food as for his wife, younger than he and out to become a mother.

The young couple occupied a fur-ished room in Lexington avenue, ear 107th street. That they would uch longer occupy even these quar-rs was extremely doubtful, the ung man explained, as the rent—$7 would be due tomorrow, and there as no money to meet this item. An vestigation of the shelves in the cor-r, on the lower of which stood a [illegible]burner gas plate, showed there as no food. Two small kittens, eir playfulness gone, lay asleep on e window sill. The young man had t eaten for three days. His young wife was subsisting on one meal a day.

The young man explained that he was unable to do heavy work, due to an injury received in an automobile accident, but he said he would welcome a position driving any sort of vehicle. But there again lack of money stood in the way. There was none with which to procure a license. He told of how he had walked more than 200 city blocks in answer to advertisements, only to arrive after the places had been filled. There was no money for car fare. An out-patient card from Bellevue Hospital was on the bureau, calling for treatment for the injured leg three times weekly, but the young man explained that the leg was usually worse after the long walk to the hospital and back home.

RIFFIANS KEEP FRENCH FORTS DESPITE ATTACK

Moroccan Tribes Join Anti-Imperialist Move

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, May 12. —Native North Africans living in French Morocco have joined the Riffian rebels who have entered the French colony from Spanish Morocco. The native Moroccan troops still have most of the French outposts surrounded, despite airplane reinforcements which have been brought up by the French.

More French troops have arrived, and now 70,000 troops are in northern Morocco, with the total number soon to exceed 100,000, it is announced. Artillery reinforcements have also arrived, preparatory to an attack on the Riffians along a 60-mile front.

Britain Keeps Hands Off.

LONDON, England, May 12.—Great Britain will not take part in the French imperialist action in Morocco, Austen Chamberlain told the house of commons today. The foreign minister said that while the English government "sympathized" with the French troubles, it was a "domestic matter." France is exerting every effort to defeat the Riffians, as her foothold on the continent of Africa has been seriously threatened.

Use Planes Against Riffs.

PARIS, May 12.—French airplanes may bomb Riff supply centers in Spanish Morocco, it was indicated at the foreign office today.

The foreign office said that semiofficial negotiations between the French and Spanish were under way to permit the French airplanes to operate against the tribesmen in Spanish territory.

Soviet Bank in Japan.

MOSCOW.— It is announced that the local Japanese authorities have granted the request of the Far Eastern Bank of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to open branches of the bank at Kobe and Tsuruga.

COOLIDGE BARS NEGROES FROM DIPLOMAT CLASS

Youth "Deported" to Minor African Post

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—Discrimination against Negroes by the state department of the United States government, with the approval of President Coolidge and the republican party, has just leaked out.

Clifton R. Wharton, Baltimore Negro who was formerly a law clerk in the state department, has been sent to a minor diplomatic post in Monrovia, Africa, to get him out of the way so that the white members of the state department will not have to associate with him.

Wharton Only Negro.

Wharton was one of nineteen out of a field of one hundred, who passed examinations to enter the foreign service school, which President Coolidge established in June, 1924, to provide American diplomats with a one-year's course of training.

The school opened on April 20, 1925. Wharton was the only Negro, and the embryo diplomats and republican officials in the state department objected to him.

"Lily White" Government.

So Coolidge and Kellogg put their heads together, and found a way to get rid of Wharton. He was declared a graduate of the school before it started, and on March 21, a month before the opening of the school, was appointed secretary of the American legation, at Monrovia, declared a full fledged and graduated diplomat, and ordered to leave at once.

The Negro is now in Africa, and the foreign service school is in session, all of the students being white. The news of the appointment was kept out of the press.

WINNIE'S BUDGET READS JUST LIKE PHILIP SNOWDEN'S

Right Wingers Threaten the Left Wingers

By R. STEWART.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DUBLIN — (By Mail)— Winston Churchill who takes Snowdon's place as chancellor of the exchequer in the British parliament has introduced his first budget, which is so much like that of the labor government as to leave these pitiful revisionists with scarcely any ground for criticism at all. Social reform at the expense of the working class with a sop to the boss and his lackeys of sixpense off income tax, and also a bit off the super tax to relieve Winnies' 'special millionaire friends, are the features of the budget.

Sob stuff around old age pensions and widows' allowances covers the gifts to the plutes, it is all so irritatingly patent and part of the game. The capitalist press shouts, see how good we are to the poor, to the aged, to the widows, while the Federation of British Industries issues a challenge to the engineers to work fifty-one hours instead of forty-seven. The mine owners challenge the miners to work an eight instead of a seven-hour day. The railwaymen are attacked all along the line. Oh, yes the reaction has set in, the British Hindenburgs are in the saddle and for the same reason—that the labor leaders of Great Britain like the German social-democrats prepared the way for them. Still there is a kick left, and strikes or threats of strikes are common. A big fight lies straight ahead. McDonald, Thomas & Co., have got nervy and are threatening to run a Sunday paper to counteract the new Sunday Worker of the left wing.

Write for Boss Press.

Internal quarrels in the labor party are intensifying. There are fierce complaints against McDonald, Clynes, Thomas, Snowden, Hodges, and the other "twicers" who add to their parliamentary wages by writing to the capitalist gutter press, which is prepared to pay big prices for their attacks on the Communists and the left wing.

MacDonald declares war to the death on A. J. Cook for venturing to criticise him in his own parliamentary constituency.

The Morning Post has got the Red scare badly, and sees assassins under the postage stamps. Chamberlain's life is supposed to be in danger and the Daily Mail shouts for the deportation of the Reds of which there are supposed to be millions in these islands.

How we wish there were!

LEISURE CLASS STUDIES PLAGUED WORKING CLASS HOUSEWIFE AS A SUBJECT FOR PITILESS EXPERIMENT

By ROSE LAND

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 12—Permit me thru your paper to comment on an article which appeared in one of the N. Y. capitalist papers.

In this article a professed connoiseur of women thru various studies, "established" a very interesting fact; that women always lose things, and numerically the articles far surpass those lost by men.

Our great "student of the habits of mankind" had a wonderful opportunity to expound on the reasons underlying this sad fact; of mislaying things, losing parcels or dropping the silly, everdangling purse from the arm. However, either the superficial knowledge, or hypocrisy, which is the lot of all the bourgeois experts, prevents him from going any further than merely theorizing on women.

As a matter of fact it is mostly with the poorer women that it happens thus. Rarely with the women of "high society."

It is the woman of the working class who is in a rush all her life; first to get wherever she needs to go quickly, and then rush home to her endless tasks. Her mind is a kaleidiscope, working constantly under a nervous tempo. If one could only look into her mind while she is away from home.

Worries of a Housewife.

It registers something like that: "O, I wonder whether the key I left in the corner of the hall was found by the children as they came to lunch from school, or probably some one watched me while I put it there, and got into the house? I hope the kids have eaten their lunch, without me. I hope Kate eats, she left without breakfast. Goodness! Is it raining? and I hung out the clothes to dry! It is terrible! After all the morning I spent washing! Well, maybe I'll arrive in time to get it off damp, just for ironing. By the way I did not yet iron the clothes I washed last week . . . I must stop to buy some meat. The children I suppose are home by now and are hungry again, after all I left them a small lunch . . . O, if things were not so dear! What can I make for supper that costs little and is decent? .

"Lamb chops? O, no, they cost sixty cents a pound, and I would need at least two pounds. Impossible. Gracious, it is five o'clock! John will be home from work soon, and I have to stop at the butcher shop! . . . Five o'clock!! O, there is my stop."

The poor creature runs out with the rushing crowd before the door slams on her, makes a few steps towards the exit, and utters a shriek . . . The box with the dress she bought as a big bargain she left in the train. The train is off. O, horrors—she spent almost the last penny on it, and Kate needs the dress so badly . . . she hardly has enuf money to meet the expenses to the end of the week, till John will bring the pay.

She blames herself. Why did not she hold it in her hands? O, yes, she rembers the skin is off her hands in many places from washing the clothes and the string of the box hurt her so, and cut it so painfully . . .

Not a Woman of Leisure.

Yes this is the life we women of the working class lead today! We have no means of getting away from our cursed drudgery. It wears out our bodies and brains. Life is a torture. Always work, wash, cook, shop, sew . . .

We not only loose packages and purses, we loose our health, often lose our minds, and are taken into the insane asylums; we loose our lives prematurely. All as the result of the hurried wretched life we lead.

No wonder the "students of the habits of mankind" do not know all that! How should they know? Their wives need not work at all. They roll in wealth. They have no petty household worries; how much a pound of chops costs; their heads do not whirl to insanity how to make ends meet; their hands are not sore from washing clothes. Their wives ride in their own cars and the chauffeur attends to their things if they are left there.

Is it not high time for us working class women to change this miserable existence and show the "sagacious theoreticians" that a woman can rise to a better, higer life and not lead the life of a beast of burden?

Metric System on Soviet Railways.

HARBIN.—The management of the Chinese Eastern Railway has taken up the question of introducing the metric system on the line. Ivanoff considers this matter as an urgent one, since all the railways of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics have already adopted the metric system of weights and measures.

In the report submitted to the board of directors, it is proposed to adopt the following equivalents: 1 Russian pound (weight) equals 0.4 kilograms; 1 pood equals 16 kilograms; 1 metric ton equals 1,000 kilograms., etc.

New Plague at Nome.

NOME, May 12.—Twenty-five were sick here today from drinking water which had been polluted by graveyard seepage, according to Dr. Curtis Welch, assistant United States health officer in Nome. Dr. Welch himself was sick from this cause. All water is being boiled and pumps are working night aand day to disinfect the contaminated supply.

Scab Hat Man Takes Job of Pawnbroker to White Guardists

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(FP).—John B. Stetson, Jr., heir to the business and fortune of the late anti-union hat manufacturer of Philadelphia, has been appointed as American minister to Finland, whose anti-labor government was established by joint American, allied and German imperial aid in 1918. American aid in overthrowing the Finnish Soviet republic was exerted thru economic blockade.

Minister Cagey, who now retires from the Helsingfors job, is reported to have bought paintings, family heirlooms and other valuables, at bargain prices from Russian aristocrats as they fled thru Finland to western Europe. He will now rest.

URGES A. F. OF L. COUNCIL TO BAR RACE PREJUDICE

But Negro Plea Gets No Reply

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Whether the American Federation of Labor is to become in fact a national labor movement, or whether it is to remain a labor movement for the white race, was again put up to the executive council of the federation on May 7, by a Negro spokesman, T. Arnold Hill, director of the industrial relations department of the Urban League.

Hill testified that the colored workers are anxious to organise, and that the delegation of which he was chief had come to Washington to meet the trade union authorities and offer cooperation in a campaign of bringing all the unorganized into the fold of unionism.

He read to the council a statement by the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, in its 15th annual conference:

> "Intelligent Negroes know full well that a blow at organized labor is a blow at all labor; that black labor today profits by the blood aand sweat of the labor leaders in the past who have fought oppression and monopoly by organization."

He urged the council to bring about a more tolerant attitude on the part of national unions and local unions and central bodies, so that Negroes would feel that they were welcome, and not that they were unwelcome or rejected, in the labor movement.

No definite reply was given.

COAL OPERATORS ASK INJUNCTION AGAINST MINERS

Courts Asked to Issue New Anti-Picket Order

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WHEELING, W. Va., May 12.—The coal operators today filed a bill of complaint asking for a new injunction against members of the United Mine Workers of America, to supplant the present injunction under which the miners are arraigned in federal court for contempt.

The new injunction is more drastic and is modeled after the injunction granted some years ago to the Hitchman Coal company against John Mitchell, then miners' union head, and other mine union officials.

The West Virginia courts are at the beck and call of the mine operators. No judge can be elected in the coal field districts unless he has the backing of the coal operators, who control the politicians.

The new injunction, which was asked for by the West Virginia-Pittsburgh Coal company would forbid all activities by the union or its members and would supplement the injunction now in effect which the court last week ruled must be amended to permit of "peaceful persuasion."

Those named by the operators in the new bill of complaint today are International President John L. Lewis, Philip Murray, national vice-president, and Van A. Bittner, national organizer; President Lee Hall of Sub-District No. 6, of Ohio, his vice-president, William Roy and Secretary-Treasurer G. W. Savage; President Frank Ledvinka of Sub-District No. 5; Secretary-Treasurer W. T. Roberts and Joseph Angelo, organizer.

The United Mine Workers called a strike in the organized W. Va. field, but no real effort has been made to get the non-union miners into the union.

Painters' Union Joins Demand for Probe of Attacks on Insane

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MARION, Ill., May 12.—Investigation into alleged cruelty to inmates of the Anna state insane asylum was demanded by the sheriff of Williamson county today following the death there of Walter Fosard, Marion decorator, whose body on examination bore indications of having been beaten and trampled to death.

Fozard was committed to the asylum last week. He died Sunday and with the return of the body here it was found one rib had been broken, his scalp gashed, both eyes blackened and his body made a mass of bruises.

Albert Troutman, brother-in-law of Fozard, told the sheriff that when he visited the asylum Sunday morning, every effort was made to keep him from seeing Fozard, but finally gaining admittance to the man's room, he asserted Fozard cried: "Don't beat me any more, boys, don't beat me. All I want is a square deal." That afternoon Fozard died.

A committee representing the Painters' Union has joined the sheriff in demanding a state investigation.

HOTEL BOSSES SPEED WORKERS IN DIRTY HELLS

Morrison Says Meat and Eggs Taboo

By PASQUALE RUSSO.

It was the policy of the hotel owners in the days when King John Barleycorn was on the throne to furnish their employes with a fairly good brand of whisky, wines and beer. They aimed to keep the cooks and other employes under the influence of liquor in order that they might the more easily be exploited.

The policy worked well. The slaves were willing to work seven days a week, twelve and sixteen hours a day, so long as there was something obtainable to drink. Since the passing of the Barleycorn regime the policy has changed and the hotel owners now do not furnish the employes with liquors. In some few cases nearbeer is furnished.

With the coming of the eighteenth constitutional amendment the hotel owners were compelled to discontinue the dole of liquors for the employes. In one sense this was a very beneficial thing. The slaves have now clear minds and it is possible to appeal to the reason of those employed in the culinary industry.

Big Profits to Hotel Owners.

The workers in the past have produced an immense amount of wealth, most of which has passed into the hands of the barons of the food trust. It was the daily cry of the food barons that they were losing money and for that reason were compelled to pay poor wages.

We now know this to be a flagrant misrepresentation. The Palmer House management is now building a new hotel that will cost forty million dollars when completed. The La Salle is planning a larger hotel that will cost fifty millions, and the Morrison is building an annex that will come to five millions in money.

While these various hotel owners are spending millions of dollars building new hotes their slaves are suffering a hellish life. The conditions surrounding them are unbearable; they work in unsanitary kitchens where the air is impure. Such conditions are not confined to the Hotel La Salle, but prevail in all the other leading hotels, including the Morrison.

It is quite generally supposed that the Morrison is a union house. This is far from the truth. In fact the place is a sweatshop. The motto of the management is "Speed, speed and more speed." Which is enforced in order to accumulate more millions for Harry C. Moir.

In our investigations we find:

The Kitchen.

The main kitchen is located in the basement, and here the cooks work in a perfect living hell. The ventilation is poor and the heat intense, somewhat similar to that of the steel plant. There are some small, inadequate electric fans, but are so few in number as to be of no value. Nor are there shower baths provided for relief from the heat. Many of the poor slaves have worked here for many years. They are forced by necessity to toil under such unbearable conditions in order to support their families.

The walls of the kitchen are covered with signs. Of the many interesting ones there is one referring to speed. It reads.

are held responsible for quick and efficient service. Should you have to wait an unreasonable time either at the bar or kitchen, do not hesitate to report to my office the employes causing the delay.—H. C. Moir, President.

The effect of this sign is that everybody must work at full speed. When the waiters give their orders to the cook they insist on quick service. In doing so they create a disturbance with hellish noises, which causes animosity among the cooks and waiters, even resulting in frequent fights. However, this is quite in line with the policy of the hotel owners. They feel that they reap some advantage so long as the employes contend one with another.

Another sign has reference to smoking as follows:

IMPORTANT.

Any employe caught smoking will be fined five dollars, and for the second offense will be discharged. One dollar reward to any employe reporting another for smoking.

The sign serves one purpose, and that is to keep the employes at war, one with another. The slaves at the Morrison Hotel work hard, but receive for their efforts but a few crumbs while their masters are accumulating millions of dollars.

Also, the employes are only allowed certain things for their meals. The following is a letter typewritten on Morrison Hotel stationery:

Mr. Purdy, Steward, Grill Room.

Dear Sir—Don't give the busboys or waitresses meat and eggs for breakfast. They are allowed either meat or eggs, but not both. It has been called to my attention that they are getting ham, bacon and eggs for breakfast. So please see that this matter is taken care of.

EIGEN, Maitre d'Hotel.

Not only are the conditions bad at the Morrison, but in other hotels as well. To remedy this, you workers must wake up and organize. Today is the day of unity. In unity there is power. You have the power to abolish these barbaric conditions and to make the food industry a decent vocation for the workers.

MACHINISTS' DISTRICT COUNCIL DEMANDS U. S. FREE SOLDIER VICTIMS CROUCH AND TRUMBULL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 12.—The district council of machinists in Pittsburgh at its last meeting protested against the savage sentences given two soldiers in Hawaii, Crouch and Trumbull. The delegates not only passed the resolution but they are out to have these soldiers released.

The resolution calls upon the United States senators and representatives to congress of this state to use their power in gaining the freedom for these victims of frameup by the military authorities. The resolution in full is as follows:

Resolution.

"WHEREAS, Two soldiers of the U. S. army, Private Crouch and Private Trumbull have been given savage sentences of forty and twenty-six years respectively by military court martial at Schoffield barracks in Honolulu, territory of Hawaii, sentences that are soldom imposed for the most violent of crimes, and

"WHEREAS, These soldiers were convicted on the evidence of a spy sent by army officials to worm his way into their confidence and perfect a case against them, and

"WHEREAS, The only 'crimes' of which the soldiers have been accused, is that of holding opinions, of possessing literature, of being members of the Hawaiian Communist League organized by themselves with no attempt of secrecy, and with expressing sympathy with the Russian workers, and

"WHEREAS, These actions are rights of all American citizens denied by no law either civil or military, and

WHEREAS, The whole proceeding is a plain case of suppression of freedom of speech, assemblage and opinion on the part of military officers who usurp the privilege of military caste and court martial to obstruct growth of intelligence and gag freedom of opinion in the rank and file of the army, therefore be it

"RESOLVED, That we, the Machinists of District No. 6 voice our severest protest against the high-handed savage unjustifiable court martial that condemned Privates Crouch and Trumbull to inhuman sentences that amount to a living death in a military prison—demand the immediate release of the aforesaid soldiers, and the punishment of the officers responsible for their imprisonment, and be it further

"RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the representative of this congressional district and the senators of this state and the labor press."

No Raise for Lower Paid Workers.

NEW YORK, May 12.— The more poorly paid city employes are discriminated against in the action of the board of estimate and appointment raising salaries of 2,390 city workers. Street cleaners are among the men who are out of luck. Increases of those benefiting range from $10 a year to more than 10 per cent. Possible substantial advances may result from a second ruling of the board, allowing department heads at their discretion to raise the income of 3,000 more workers. In the latter group are some of the lower paid workers, but the total number who may gain is a small percentage of the more than 80,000 employes of New York City.

Lobby of Illinois Labor Fakers Beaten by Small's Assembly

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 12.—With only six weeks left before the adjournment of the Illinois legislature, the lobby of the labor union officials finds itself without a single victory on any measure aimed to help the workers.

The Barr bill to create a state police force of 750 men, was passed without the opposition of the labor lobbyists. The Barr bill, backed by Governor Small, had the active support of the manufacturers' association.

The bill to limit the working day of Illinois women to eight hours has been practically killed, and has no chance of passage. The bill prohibiting the courts from issuing injunctions in labor disputes was defeated. Small had promised to pass this bill, in return for the labor union officials' support of him in the election, but most of the republican senators controlled by Small voted against the bill.

The Barr traction bill, written by Samuel Insull and his associates at the head of the middle western traction magnates' association, will probably be passed, as Small, who controls the legislature, is actively supporting the bill.

The Finnish band will provide the music for the dancing All South Brooklyn comrades are urged to come to the entertainment.

LABOR IN MPLS. JOINS FIGHT FOR SACCO, VANZETTI

Demands Release of the Class War Prisoners

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 11.—Agitation for the release of all class war prisoners was redoubled here today among the workers of Minneapolis, as a result of the very successful mass protest meeting held under the direction last night of the Labor Defense Council, at the Court House Auditorium, demanding the liberation of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, now under sentence of death in Massachuseetts.

Workers present pledged themselves to carry the fight back to their organizations, to circulate defense literature and to gather contributions to carry on the struggle for the release of the prisoners.

Among the speakers were J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER; Dan W. Stevens, Communist candidate for mayor in today's municipal elections; John Gabriel Soltis, Emil E. Holmes, of the World War Veterans, and recent candidate of the Minnesota farmer-labor party for lieutenant governor, with State Senator S. A. Stockwell acting as chairman. Resolutions were adopted as follows:

"WHEREAS, Sacco and Vanzetti have been convicted of murder in the first degree by a biased jury under the instructions of a prejudiced judge on insufficient and conflicting evidence in the state of Massachusetts, and have already been imprisoned more than five years, and,

"WHEREAS, All unprejudiced observers and investigators of the trial and the enlightened public opinion and press of the United States are agreed that this case constitutes a gross miscarriage of justice and a travesty upon American judicial processes, and,

"WREREAS, All efforts of the defense to secure a new trial and the opportunity to present uncontrovertible new evidence of their innocence have been denied by their first trial judge, Thayer,

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we, citizens in mass meeting assembled in the city hall of Minneapolis, May 10, 1925, join in the world wide protest against this terrible injustice and demand a speedy new trial for these victims of race prejudice and class hatred, and,

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That copies of these resolutions be sent to the governor, the supreme court and congressmen of Massachusetts and to the press."

One of the local capitalist sheets, the Minneapolis Journal, opened a campaign to prevent the meeting from being held in the Court House Auditorium. But nothing came of it.

Georgian Bandits, Soviet Foes, Killed Resisting Arrest

MOSCOW, May 12.—The brigands Oziashvili, Maisuradze and Himishvili, active members of a bandit organization which sprang to life after last year's abortive plot in the Caucasus, who had long been hiding were killed near the village of Natartary, in Georgia, while they offered armed resistance to an attempt at their arrest by Georgian authorities.

Those bandits were the authors of numerous robberies and arson in the Duszetak district (Georgia). In particular, it was under their leadership that an attack was organized at the end of last year on the cast of a moving picture troupe of the Georgian State Cinematograph, who were staging a picture in the Caucasusian mountains.

BULGAR WHITE TERROR DRAWS LOCAL PROTEST

Meeting Sunday of All Balkan-Americans

Thousands of workers and peasants have been summarily slaughtered and jailed in the white terror that has engulfed Bulgaria. The ministers to Bulgaria of the allied powers, including the United States, forced the quarreling Balkan capitalist governments to unite against the workers, and especially to massacre the Communists.

In America the workers are called by the Balkan speaking workers residing in America, to protest the continuance of this wave of barbarous reaction sweeping their native lands.

The Balkan federation branches of the Workers (Communist) Party have arranged a mass demonstration meeting in Chicago, to take place on Sunday, May 17, at 2:30 p. m. at Hod Carriers' Hall, 914 West Harrison street, near Halsted.

Speakers representative of the Balkan and American workers will address the meeting. Earl R. Browder, editor of the Workers Monthly and member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, will speak in English. K. Mikalachki will speak in South Slavic, C. Koteff in Bulgarian, and K. Kostis, in Greek. All workers are welcome and admission in free.

FORMER KANSAS GOVERNOR FACES BRIBERY TRIAL

Davis Charges Trusts in Political Move

TOPEKA, Kans., May 12.— When Judge James A. McClure of the Shawnee county district court this morning called the case of the state of Kansas against Jonathan M. Davis, accused of conspiracy and accepting a bribe, a crowded court room greeted the rising of the curtain on Kansas' first sight of one of its governors on trial on a criminal charge.

Forty men and women—many of them farmers—of the special venire of 75 have been called.

Sold Pardon.

Davis is charged with conspiracy and soliciting a bribe in connection with the efforts for a pardon for Walter Grundy, "boy banker" of Hutchinson. Charged with him is Carl J. Peterson, former bank commissioner. Peterson asked for a separate trial and as a result probably will not be tried before fall.

There was an unexpectedly tense atmosphere about the court room when the trial began, due, it was said by court and political persons, to the opinion that the case will be bitterly fought by both sides.

The former governor was one of the early arrivals in the court room.

Charges Arrest Was Political.

Davis said he felt the charges against him were the result of a determination by inimical interests in both parties in Kansas to prevent a "dirt farmer" from again seeking the governorship.

He reviewed the history of his administration on taxation and the revaluation of railroad property in the state, which involves more than $150,000,000 regarding which railroad suits are now pending in federal court. He directly accused the railroad interests of having helped to foster "the religious antagonism" which has been a factor in recent campaigns. It was tacitly understood he was referring to the klan issue.

Trapped Taking Bribe.

Evidence which resulted in charges of bribery against him and his son, Russell, is known as the "Pollman case," in which Russell Davis was trapped in a hotel room here when he received from Fred Pollman $1,000 after bringing to Pollman, a former banker of Lacygne, a pardon issued by the governor.

ington, and after refusing to sit in the same part of a theatre with Negro women, next showed their mettle by making a public bonfire of bundles of pacifist resolutions. They growled for blood like a thirsty tiger on the bank of a waterless river bed.

THE war had a most ennobling effect on the human race, it seems. Shedding blood became such a popular outdoor sport that it is almost impossible to get a jury to hang a murderer nowadays unless the killer is broke. This is a crime that brooks no mercy. But a normal murderer stands a good chance of getting away scott free, even with a lawyer who does not snap his suspenders or lave his necktie with tears. Perhaps the war had nothing to do with this indisposition on the part of juries to send a man to the gallows for snuffing out one life when the Fochs, Haigs, Hindenburgs and Pershings get handsomely rewarded and honored for killing millions.

HOW the secret document got away from the British foreign office is a secret that may remain under somebody's hat for a time. The document was not "made in Berlin," however, like the Zinoviev forgeries. The British take good care of their state documents. They are sent to each member of the cabinet in a strong red box. Each minister has a key to the box, while the foreign office holds another. When the minister reads the document he returns it to the box which he relocks and returns.

• • •

OUR readers are ready to expect anything but common decency from the socialist party of America, yet I doubt if the revolutionary workers are prepared to hear that the official organ of the socialist party of Schenectady is now also the official organ of the General Electric plant in that city. Schenectady once shared the honor of being a "socialist city" with Milwaukee. It elected the notorious faker George R. Lunn mayor. Lunn is now a fixture in Tammany Hall.

• • •

LUNN kicked over the socialist traces and the party dwindled down to a few dozen. It still kept a little sheet, called the Citizen, going. But evidently the going was not very good, so its promoters, being willing to do anything but lie, looked around for a pulmotor. The electric trust stood out like a beacon light to the famished fakers who controlled the Citizen.

• • •

THE present editor of the Citizen is also state secretary of the socialist party in New York. He is actively engaged organizing one of those "yellow" conventions at which Eugene V. Debs, playing the role of a revivalist, is expected to preside. His name is Herbert Merril. He carries a red card. Yet, in a recent issue of the Citizen, Merrill sent out to all subscribers a form letter by the General Electric company boosting that trust. In the wrapper with the paper and the form letter was other advertising matter. And the paper itself carried an article with the information that the great trust is not really owned by the "malefactors of great wealth," but by its employes. That shameless sheet is liable to wind up as the house organ of the department of justice.

Soviet Russia Protests White Guards in Chinese Army

some three or four hundred Russian white guards having adopted Chinese citizenship; that there has been no enlistment of white guards into the Chinese army at Shanghai; that measures are being undertaken for liquidating military action, and that the white guards will be disbanded as soon as the general situation has been settled; and that—lastly—since the above-mentioned white guardist detachment bears no party or political character its existence does not constitute any violation of the Russo-Chinese agreement.

Pekin Official Lied.

I feel bound, to my regret, to bring to your notice an actually inexact statement to be found in the note, as well as the incorrect conclusions arrived at in it that the presence of a white detachment in the Chinese army is not in contradiction with the Russo-Chinese agreement.

1. On the strength of absolutely exact information, I must once more confirm that the white guardist detachment in question numbers over one thousand, and that, having originally been recruited in Manchuria, it was filled up with white guards at Shanghai.

Not Chinese Citizens.

2. Your reference that the white guards in the Chinese army are Chinese citizens seems to be based on a misunderstanding or an inadequate information. Indeed, as is probably known to you the adoption of Chinese citizenship is ruled by the law of 1912, supplemented by special annotations in 1914.

The law provides for special conditions for passing into Chinese citizenship. To be a naturalized Chinese citizen, it is necessary to have lived in Chinese territory during a period of five years; to possess property or some kind of knowledge giving the possibility of earning independent livelihood.

However, what is of particular importance, and a point to which I beg to invite your main attention, is that, according to article IV of the law of 1912, "foreigners or those who have no citizenship acquire the right of Chinese citizenship with the permission of the ministry of the interior."

Now, the local authorities must refer the applications for Chinese citizenship to the ministry of interior, while according to article 6 of the same law of 1912, "the granting of citizenship becomes valid on and from the date of publication in the official gazette."

Names Not in Official Gazette.

Granting that, by their nature and character, the white guards in question satisfy the conditions provided for by the Chinese laws on naturalization—which, of course, would be a matter for the government of the Republic of China alone to decide—I may yet be permitted to draw your attention to the fact that, nevertheless the said white guards cannot be regarded as Chinese citizens for purely formal reasons, namely—because they have not been confirmed as such latter by the ministry of interior, nor have their names been published in the official gazette—an absolute necessary condition of formal procedure to become Chinese citizens.

As documentary evidence of the non-existence of such an altogether unnecessary formal moment, there can serve the official gazette, wherein, in the lists of persons having passed into Chinese citizenship, there are not to be found the names of those thousand odd white guards whom you have erroneously counted among the Chinese citizens.

Generals Usurp Power.

Thus, the white guards who are in the Chinese army, cannot, on the exact and formal basis of the Chinese law, be considered as Chinese citizens.

Moreover, in the present case, there is a very grave abuse of power on the part of those Chinese generals under whose control is the said white detachment. In fact, many, if not most, of the white guards in question have been supplied by these generals with certificates of Chinese citizenship, whereas the procedure prescribed by the law was not followed in regard to them.

Broke Russo-Chinese Pact.

I trust that the competent authorities will take the necessary steps to investigate and, further, to start legal prosecution against those generals who while they illegally supplied Russian white guards with certificates of Chinese citizenship, pursued the injudicious course of nonfulfilment of obligations taken upon itself by the Chinese government by virtue of the agreement concluded between the Republic of China and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on May 31, 1924.

3. However, even if the white guards who are now to be found in the Chinese army did adopt the Chinese citizenship in full accordance with the laws of the Republic of China, the Chinese government could not thereby be freed from its obligation to discontinue the services of the whites in the Chinese army.

By virtue of the exchange of notes of May 31, 1924, the government of the Republic of China, undertook to discontinue the services of the subjects of the former Russian empire in the Chinese army.

Citizens of Russia.

It was precisely with a view to avoiding any possibility of abuse of power and patronizing on the part of reactionary Chinese generals in revolutionary elements having fled from the territories of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to China, that the government of the Union has insisted on the broad formula of "all the subjects of the former Russian empire"—so as not to give an opportunity to Russian white guards to masquerade under any foreign right of citizenship, including the Chinese.

Whatever the citizenship adopted by a subject of the former Russian empire, he will never cease to be a subject of the former Russian empire. In other words, one physical person or another having been a subject of the former Russian empire is a fact having existed in the past, and whatever the status of such a person at the present time, a fact which existed eight years ago cannot be altered by the new judicial status of that person.

Consequently, by adopting the right of citizenship of the Republic of China, a white guard cannot thereby abolish the fact that he had formerly been a subject of the Russian empire. And it was precisely that criterion of one's having been in the past a subject of the Russian empire that both parties were guided by when they agreed about the discontinuance of the services of the above-mentioned category of persons in the Chinese army.

Cannot Twist Agreement.

It is but natural that by altering "post-factum," that is after the signature of the agreement, the status of the Russian white guards, the government of the Republic of China cannot free itself from the obligations it took upon itself. In any case, the Chinese government cannot be exempted from a loyal execution of the agreement of May 31, 1924, by the fact that generals under whose command is the mentioned detachment of Russian whites, are trying to avoid the execution of this agreement by turning either the law (in fraudem legis) or the agreement itself.

4. As regards the statement made by you to the effect that as soon as the general situation will have been settled, the military detachment in question will be disbanded, I feel constrained to state that it is a matter of deep surprise to me. Indeed I cannot possibly admit that the presence in the Chinese army of a white guardist detachment is a sine qua non condition of the liquidation of war in Soochow and Shanghai, just as it is difficult for me to argue that the white guardist detachment is necessary for settling the general situation.

White Guards Must Go.

However, even if the Chinese army did badly want a white detachment to restore order (which is open to strong doubt), I would still object in the most categorical manner against such a justification of the presence in the Chinese army of a detachment of white guards.

In view of the foregoing, I have to protest in the most energetic manner: —first, against the attempt of Chinese military chiefs to pretend that a white guardist detachment consists of Chinese citizens, which is in contradiction with the facts and the law; secondly, against an attempt to escape the execution of an obligation without the slightest good reason; and, thirdly, I must insist most resolutely on the immediate liquidation of the white guardist detachment in question, and I would much appreciate if I were favored with a reply as to the lapse of time during which the said detachment will be liquidated.

Future Agreements Doubtful.

At the same time, I may be permitted to invite the most serious attention to such an attitude in regard to avery essential part of the agreement signed on May 31, 1924, and stress that, with this attitude of the Chinese authorities towards obligations undertaken by them, there become quite doubtful the expediency and successful outcome of new negotiations and fresh agreements that it is proposed to conclude at the pending conference.

I shall greatly appreciate if you will be good enuf to let me know the duration of the term of liquidation of the above-mentioned white guardist, and I would be glad to have a reply before the opening of the mentioned conference.

(Signed) L. KARAKHAN.

COMMUNIST-CHILDREN'S-COLUMN

Young Spartacus Heard From.

Dear Juniors:—We, the members of the Young Spartacus Junior group (formerly West Side) have decided to help revive the Communist Children's column of the DAILY WORKER. We passed a motion in our branch that we would do this and we hope that every other Junior group will follow our example. We liked the column and miss it now, and when we asked for it again, we find that there is nothing to put in it unless we ourselves get it to the "Daily." So it's up to us. Are we ready? We'll say so!

I would like to tell you why we changed our name. West Side really doesn't mean anything and we want a revolutionary name so that everyone can tell what we are so we began the search for a name.

After a lot of thinking and debating we named our group after Spartacus, the great leader of the slaves in the real old days. Every member as he joins our group must tell us something about Spartacus. This is sort of an initiation.

We hope to see the column back and once back, we are going to do our best to keep it here. Yours for Juniors,

Young Spartacus Junior group meets every Sunday, 3:15, 3118 W. Roosevelt Road.

RED AID ASKS PROTEST UPON BULGAR TERROR

Suffering Thousands in Need of World Support

MOSCOW, May 12.—An appeal of the International Red Aid reads as follows:

"The Bulgarian workers and peasants are undergoing frightful sufferings. In the land of the Zankov terror and of endless political murder, blood-reeking terror is raging again with renewed force. The workers are undergoing the most frightful tortures and horrors at the hands of the Zankov gang.

Prisons Filled.

"The prisons are filled with workers, peasants and intellectuals, including many women and children. Hundreds and thousands of innocent people who have had nothing to do with the Sofia outrage are exposed to the most frightful torture. Bartholomew nights are instituted against helpless and unarmed people.

"The lives of the best sons of the Bulgarian people are in danger. Thousands of families are deprived of their supporters, thousands of children have become orphans and are abandoned to their fate.

Thousands of Women and Children Bereft.

"The number of thousands of widows and orphans left after the September and June blood baths has now enormously increased.

"It is the first duty of the workers, peasants and of all people with a spark of humanity in them, to raise their voice of protest, and to compel the assassins and hangmen in Bulgaria to cease the bloodshed, to save the lives of those arrested and to effect their release. The lives of thousands of innocent people are involved here.

"The International Red Aid calls upon all to protest against the murders and the white terror in Bulgaria, and for the protection of the masses.

"Down with the assassins of Sofia.

"Down with Bulgarian fascism.

"Hands off the Bulgarian peasants and workers.

"Long live international solidarity."

Claims Deepest Mine for America.

WASHINGTON, May 12—America's claim to superlatives was extended today in a government publication to still another field. The deepest mine in the world is not in Brazil, as erroneously stated in many text books, the bureau of labor statistics asserted, but in the copper seam of Michigan. The American man-made hole in the ground is 8,700 feet deep, or at least a third of a mile deeper than the premier Brazilla shaft, in the state of Minas Geraes.

Letters From Our Readers

Conditions of the Farmers.

To the DAILY WORKER:— It might be interesting for the workers in the industrial centers, to get an idea of the condition of the farmers and how they live.

This is a wheat raising country, that is, the principle crop is wheat, but we also raise flax, corn, oats, and all other small grain in abundance.

If you workers could see the piles of grain raised here, the strings of trucks and trams all loaded with wheat, coming to town in the fall after threshing is done, if you could see the trainloads of it, going east, on its way to the terminal market, you would think the farmers were capitalists, but such is not the case.

They are exploited just as much as the industrial workers, by the same interests, but perhaps in a different way, the farmers have the mortgage system to contend with. Not only mortgages on the farm, but on horses, machinery, cattle, and every other thing on the farm of any value. Mortgages are even taken on crops before the seed is put into the ground.

This is done by the small country bankers, the willing tools of Wall Street.

The interest rates are 8 to 10 per cent, yes, it used to be 12 per cent and a 19 per cent bonus, that means if you made a bargain for a $100.00 loan, you received $90.00, and gave the banker a note on which you promised to pay him back $100.00 with 12 per cent interest added. This is business, legitimate business. Is it any wonder the farmers are bankrupt?

Then we have grain gambling at the terminal markets. The local grain buyer who buys our grain at the warehouse cheats us on the weight and grade. If the grain is mortgaged the check is made out to the banker and farmer together, and the banker as a rule, takes it all. At any rate you are lucky if you get enough out of it to pay your expenses in town.

These are some of the problems the farmers are up against.

The struggle between the producing and non-producing class is the same, whether you are a working farmer or an industrial worker. Therefore, we must unite our forces, for a united front of action against the capitalist system, and establish a farmers' and workers' system all over the world.—Andrew Omholt, Williston, N. D.

May Day in San Quentin.

To the DAILY WORKER:—On May Day the sun shone down on San Quentin Prison, the home that the lumber barons have prepared for those who try to organise their fellow slaves. Grey prison walls stood like giant guards over the destinies of three thousand enslaved victims of a capitalist system. Amid this mass of human wreckage eighty men are serving time for no other crime than being members of the I. W. W.

Grey uniforms of the inmates, heavy with filth fit into the picture of hard stone yards and dirty walls. It is a picture of injustice and shows up our rotten system. Force of the exploiters is symbolized in the many guns in the hands of the guards. Silent death lurks over the whole atmosphere. Amid this scene a smile is seldom seen. Civilisation is not represented in California—regardless of the colored advertisements that greet one from the pages of the capitalist press.

May Day in San Quentin prison was a colorful affair. Not only did the eighty wobblies sport red flowers—but about four hundred and twenty other inmates did likewise. It was truly a sight for sore eyes to see that about five hundred out of the three thousand realize their true position in society.

One could tell that the officials sensed that the flowers had a deeper significance than that of being a decoration.—A Wobbly in San Quentin.

Farmers' Colony in U. S. S. R.

(The following is a reply to an editorial published in the Oakland Tribune attacking the American farmers' colony to be started in Soviet Russia. —Ed. note.)

Berkeley, Cal., May 5, 1925.

Editor Oakland Tribune.

Dear Sir: Your issue of May 2 contains an editorial, and within three inches of it the small but significant clipping from the Buffalo Evening News, which is quoted herewith, together with some comments from one of the 60 million "morons":

Editorial, Oakland Tribune, May 2nd.

Soviet Invites Farmers.

The Soviet government in Moscow announces that 405,000 acres in the north Caucasus and Volga regions are to be thrown open to American farmers who have about $1,500 in money, or equipment, and can demonstrate competence in tilling the soil. In all 23,500 Americans can be accommodated in this project, it is said, the inducements extended being renewable leases, cheap railway fares and cheap lumber and credits. The Moscow authorities are either singularly ignorant of the reputation they have won for themselves in this country or else they grade the intelligence of the American farmer extremely low.

Where, in all America, can they find even ten farmers, not to say 23,500, willing to abandon the stars and stripes for the red flag?

Article from Buffalo Evening News.

Morons and Others.

According to "expert" authority quoted by the Illinois Medical Journal, half of the people of the United States are morons, and 30,000,000 more are equipped with intelligence only approximating that of a 12-year-old child.

This leaves only about 30,000,000 of us to indulge in intelligent discussions to just what class we shall assign the "experts."

Local Papers Ignore Workers.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Little is known of what is going on in this town from the local papers. Especially news of what is going on in the mills. Some poor fellow in the mill is rushed to the nearest hospital with a mashed leg from a falling object, or he may have been caught in the wire blocks or been burned by hot metal.

When the evening papers come out there are screaming headlines about some big stiff being banquetted for having been in the service of the steel trust for many years, was faithful and rose to a high position—and that sort of bunk. But not one line about the poor worker who had lost his life or limbs while on his job.

Several years ago when the union miners from surrounding towns invaded Monessen to unionize the steel workers, thousands of miners came, more than the town has ever seen at one time. The local daily came out that evening with about one inch space in one corner of the paper saying "that several hundred miners came here to parade." This paper became a laughing stock among the workers, because these workers saw with their own eyes thousands of miners parading.

This shows those who are interested who the local paper works for.—A. Worker, Monessen, Pa.

POLISH MEETING ORGANIZES FIGHT ON WHITE TERROR

Socialists Refuse to Aid Jailed Workers

The conference called by the national committee of the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland, May 10, at Schoenhofen Hall, with the object of forming a Chicago section of the committee, was a great success, and showed that when Polish workers in this country are brought face to face with the facts of the life and death struggle that their comrades in Poland are carrying on against the white terror, very real interest and feelings of solidarity are aroused.

19 Delegates Present.

Nineteen delegates representing the following organizations were present: Polish Machinists' Local No 830; Polish Carpenters' Local No. 341; two branches of the Polish Workingmen's Sick Benefit Society; White Russian People's Association; the "Sila" Educational Society, and three branches of the Polish section of the Workers Party.

Comrade Marek, as temporary secretary of the organizing committee, opened the meeting. Comrade Jednaki was elected chairman. Comrade B. K. Gebert gave a report on the general aims and progress of the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland, and Comrade George Maurer greeted the delegates in the name of the Labor Defense Council.

Discover the Socialists Support White Terror.

A committee of three, composed of Janicki of the Machinists' Union, Marek and Puhacz, was elected to visit the district convention of the Polish Socialist Alliance, which was holding its meeting at the same time, in order to ask for co-operation in the work of the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland.

The members of the committee were given the floor by the socialists, but the motion not to participate in the conference got nine votes as against three for the motion to participate. One of the union members of the committee remarked that while he had always believed that the socialists represented progress, he now saw that they represented conservatism.

A resolution presented by Comrade Gebert was passed by the conference, condemning the present Polish government for the fact that it was holding 8,000 workers and peasants as political prisoners, greeting the prisoners, and pledging them moral and material support. It was moved that the resolution be sent to the chairman of the sejm, the revolutionary workers' and peasants' representatives in the sejm, and the executive committee of the Trade Union Alliance of Poland.

It was also resolved to organize a Chicago section of the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland, to co-operate with the American section of the Red Aid. The following organization committee was elected: Brzowski, of the Machinists' Union; Puhacz, of the Polish Workingmen's Sick Benefit Association; Podkulsky, of the I. L. G. W. U.; Morowska, of the "Sila" Educational Society, and Marek, of the Polish branch of the Workers Party. The next meeting of the conference will be on June 14.

The tour of Comrade Radwanski, who has been successful in preparing the ground for the organization of local sections of the conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland is coming to an end. The final dates of the tour are as follows: Neffs, Ohio, May 13; Fairpoint, Ohio, May 14; Yorkville, Ohio, May 15; Warren, Ohio, May 17 (afternoon); Cleveland, Ohio, May 17 (evening); Erie, Pa., May 18, and Rochester, N. Y., May 19.

A GENUINE BUILDER FROM MILWAUKEE SENDS ANOTHER CHALLENGE

HOW ABOUT IT, COMRADE LETCHINGER?

A real honest-to-goodness Builder with a union card, who has "heaved" many bricks both of the well known species of "Irish confetti" and the other kind that are subs to build the DAILY WORKER, has for the second time secured subs that give him the privilege to challenge any Builder anywhere.

Read this letter and see how he does it:

Dear Comrades:

I am sending thru Comrade Shklar today two subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER and I challenge Anna Letchinger of Chicago to do the same for our paper.

I like very much the job of being the builder of our paper. I am a builder by trade and a member of a building trades union. For many years I have helped to put up buildings and also carried much mortar and carried many bricks for construction work. So naturally it is nothing new for me to carry the bricks and surely I never enjoyed it as much as when these "bricks" are used for building up our Communist Daily.

Altho Comrade Letchinger is not a builder by trade and she cannot join the Building Laborers' Union, yet I hope she will get busy in getting subs for the paper and in this way qualify to join the Union of DAILY WORKER Builders.

Fraternally yours,
GREGORY PRODANICH.

HOW ABOUT IT, COMRADE LETCHINGER?

It has been rumored that Comrade Anna Letchinger has a ruined hand she is carrying carrying in a sling. But we have seen comrades get subs with one finger and if we know Comrade Letchinger, she will surely answer this challenge by getting subs with all five fingers in use.

OLD GANG GOES, NEW GANG COMES; BOTH HATE REDS

R. R. Clerks Fakers in Fight Over Bank

By J. E. SNYDER

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12.—"All the old gang will go out of office before this convention ends" is the prediction of a delegate attending the railway clerks convention at Kansas City, Mo.

Fitzgerald, the grand president, has called in the cards of the executive board and the executive board has enjoined and fired Fitzgerald.

Result of "Labor Bank"

It's all a fight over the "bank." This organisation made bankers out of its officials and now it is paying the price, for the leaders are capitalists instead of labor leaders. Fitzgerald even went so far in a speech as to cite Stone of West Virginia mine fame as a fine example of success, in the banking business. They are now associating with the capitalist bankers.

There is one thing that all these officials are agreed upon and that is that they must keep the "Reds" from getting control. They brought in the faker Farrington from the Illinois Miners' Union to make a bandstand play against the "Reds." His speech fell flat, and when he said "Why they even call the honorable men you have elected to the office in the labor movement of the country, labor fakers," suppressed laughter went thru the audience and many were heard to remark, "They're telling the truth."

Green also came along with his attack on the "Reds," and this man who is too fat to fight, joins the capitalists in teaching collaboration and has been chosen to lead the three million trade unionists of the A. F. of L. into the shambles, the union of lambs and lions.

"How Come?" Says Green

Green also made a discovery while here. He discovered that there are machinists, teamsters and other crafts in the Railroad Clerks' Union and told the delegates that he was going to seperate these folks from the organization.

There are fifteen hundred delegates attending the convention. The way the officials squander money it is estimated that the convention will cost around $220,000. Practically all that has gone on for the week just past in a fight between the officials to see who will keep control—not so much of the union—as of the banks.

At least another week will be used up in the attempt of the officials to "fix it," and keep their soft places.

A long conference has just been held by the old guard as the rumblings of the delegates are threatening a storm.

Give your shopmate this copy of the DAILY WORKER—but be sure to see him the next day to get his subscription.

Britain and the U. S.

Those who believe that a permanent united front has been established between Britain and the United States should do well to ponder the following excerpt from an interview given by Manuel Quezon, leader of the Filipino independence movement, to an American reporter. Quezon was discussing the danger to the Philippines in a war in the Pacific between the United States and Japan.

Quezon said: "There is no reason to believe that war in the Pacific can only be between the east and the west. Such a war might well split Europe again as in the last war or maybe it might be between the white powers of Europe and the new world. Ninety-nine per cent of all Englishmen and Americans will laugh at this opinion, but it is not impossible that the war will be in the Atlantic as well as in the Pacific and will be between England and America.

"History of the last 500 years shows that England has fought every nation that challenges her supremacy and the United States today is the only nation that challenges England's supremacy. The theory that war between England and America is impossible on account of the kindred ties of race, language and political ideals, both being democratic countries, is poorly founded. While these ties would be strong factors toward the prevention of such a war, if the time ever comes when the commercial efforts of both countries conflict, then all other reasons will disappear. Commerce today is the one reason and cause of all wars."

All modern wars are gigantic commercial enterprises. The theory that the close social relations existing between the financial and industrial magnates of the United States and their British "cousins" will prevent war is not tenable. The leading monarchies in Europe were more closely related to each other at the opening of the late war than are the leading elements of the British and American capitalist classes, but that did not prevent them from blowing each other into the ash can of history.

Britain and the United States agree on a division of the spoils in certain spheres of exploitation but their interests are in fundamental conflict. As Quezon points out, England's historical policy has been to fight her closest competitor for commercial supremacy. All signs point to war between those two mighty rivals, with the workers of both nations doing the suffering, unless in the meantime the workers take matters into their own hands and organize society on the basis of service to all instead of misery for the majority and luxury for a few as is the case under capitalism.

"Muster" Day

Yesterday's editorial inadvertently stated that last year's marshalling of this country's military resources took place on November 11, the anniversary of the armistice day. The correct date is September 12. However, that is a small matter. The important thing to consider is that the government was able to get away with its militaristic test last year and intends to continue it in the future.

Last year the secretary of war got under the skin of the pacifists by designating September 12 "mobilization day." The reserve officers' association has decided that "muster day" is more appropriate and less offensive. It's a rose under another name.

The militarists were satisfied with their first venture. "It was a good beginning, for it completely silenced the pacifists." This is what the committee in charge of the next "muster" day had to say. The pacifists are knocked out, even speechless. The labor fakers are elbowing each other on to the tailboards. The Communists only offer an opposition to capitalist militarism and have a plan which will organize the workers to fight effectively against it.

The stocks of socialism went up a few more points in Wall Street, when Paul Boncour, French socialist, made a red-hot speech demanding guarantees for France and insisting that in default of such guarantees France would be obliged to arm to the eyebrows. This is the language of Poincare and Clemenceau. It is further proof that socialist parties are no longer parties of labor but parties of capitalism.

Calvin Coolidge smokes ten cent cigars and refuses to smoke the higher priced brands even when he receives them free of charge. They might spoil his taste, he says, like the fellow who paid fifty cents to attend an ice cream social, but refused to eat the ice cream. It might spoil his taste for prunes. Wall Street seems to have developed a taste for ten cent presidents.

Shearing Time

Sheep living in the temperate zones are usually shorn of their fleeces in the summer time. The sheep raisers have a lot of consideration for the animals, so they rob them of their warm blankets when old Sol is out to act as a substitute.

Because sheep get shorn with monotonous regularity, the small fry who dabble in stocks are referred to as lambs. But Wall Street has no particular shearing season. It is handy with the shears all the year round.

Wall Street takes an unholy delight in bringing small businessmen and workers, who have managed to save a few dollars, into its parlor. It strings them along for a while before it takes out the clippers and sends its guests home in a barrel.

This is what happened to the little fellows who were proud to think they were a part of the great transcontinental railroad system known as the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, which recently went into the hands of a receiver. Tho this railroad was privately owned and managed, and tho capitalist apologists tell us that without the management genius of the bourgeoisie this great industrial workshop would become a desert, the C., M. and St. P. went broke. It is still running, of course, run by the engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, porters and other categories of labor whose names never figured in the bankruptcy proceedings.

The St. Paul road has estimated assets of over $200,000,000 and estimated liabilities of over $500,000,000. Most of those liabilities are in the form of common stock, owned by the little fellows. The big fellows own the stock that pays no dues or assessments, but gets the cream of everything that is going. It bears the same relationship to the preferred stock that the rank and file of the republican party bear to William M. Butler, "Cal's" political managers. The common stock does the voting and takes its medicine. It will have to swallow the $500,000,000 liability of the C., M. and St. P. or choke.

The common stock of the St. Paul road is today as worthless as the German mark of pre-Dawes days. Small investors have lost the savings of a lifetime. Their money went to lay shining rails from the Windy City to the Puget Sound. The rails are still there, but the money is gone.

To add insult to injury, the common stockholders are liable to be called on for an assessment. This is a legal way of killing the poor things physically. It is cheaper than hiring a gang of sluggers on a commission basis. Those who survive the ordeal will never be their old selves again. Wall Street is putting the road thru a delousing process. When the job is finished the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul will get out new time tables, new stock, bring in a fresh crop of suckers and the shearing will continue. Ain't capitalism wonderful?

Meat for the D. of J.

Not since the Wall Street explosion has any mystery more delightfully baffling come into the web of the department of justice than that presented by a person bearing the name of H. F. Dunn, from the city of Indianapolis. Dunn may be a disciple of Arthur Canon Doyle, noted spook expert, or of any of the professional Communist baiters in the United States from William Green to "Joe" Wise. If you have never heard of the latter, it will not held against you. He is not known outside the Chicago "loop."

Whoever Dunn may be a disciple of, he is a worthy one. He claims to have discovered the most dastardly Bolshevik plot ever perpetrated on the American capitalist class. So startling is this conspiracy in the novelty of its methods that Dunn has lost his senses, granting that such a feat is possible.

The victims of this "physic radio" called on Dunn to act as their spokesman and defender. Where they have their broadcasting stations he does not know. But he wants the department of justice to run them down and out.

Dunn described experiences with the radio Bolsheviks as "so terrifying in their strangeness, so vivid in reality and so filled with phenomena of apparently supernatural character that my days became a nightmare beyond comprehension of the imagination."

This foe of Bolshevism with all its works and pomps claims that "the human brain and nervous system radiate electro-magnetic records which leave the body in ether waves or magnetic lines." This may solve the riddle. Perhaps the vibrations from the bodies of the editorial staff of the DAILY WORKER as they pound their typewriters are responsible for the phenomena.

It must be dolefully admitted that the department of justice is not what it used to be when William J. Burns was its chief press agent. Instead of being received with an arching of the eyebrows and a suggestive nod in the general direction of the nearest psychopathic hospital, Dunn would see a knowing grin blossom on Burn's face before its owner admitted that he had his eye on those Bolshevik radio plotters and would have them arrested "within twenty four hours."

The mystery is not in Dunn's pipe dream, but in the failure of the department of justice to demand a large appropriation to run down the psychic Communist broadcasting station.

Now that the Jewish Daily Forward has donated $15,000 dollars to the socialist party treasury, perhaps Morris Hillquit will engage Billy Sunday for his revival campaign and sack Debs. Old Gene has many fine qualifications for the job, but he uses the word "socialism" too frequently. Abe Cahan is not going to see his money wasted.

Character and Driving Forces of the Russian Revolution

BUT Trotsky did not only fail to understand the dialectical development of the agrarian-peasant revolution into a socialist revolution, his inability to understand it, made it impossible for him to understand the process of the development of the Russian revolution into the world revolution. Thus in 1915 Trotsky dealt as follows with the question of the correlation between the Russian and the international revolution: "Do we admit that the development of the Russian revolution, and consequently the actual movements of the Russian proletariat, depend on the revolutionary movement of the Russian intelligentzia, the urban petty-bourgeoisie and the peasantry? Or do we subordinate the movement of the Russian proletariat to the tasks and aims of the movement of the entire European proletariat, making the Russian revolution dependent on the proletarian struggle in the entire capitalist world? To put it briefly: do we allow our entire policy to be influenced by the national bourgeois revolution or by the international revolution of the proletariat?"[*] This statement shows as clearly as possible Trotsky's failure to understand, within the framework of Russia, the correlation between the national and the socialist revolution and the process of the development of the Russian revolution, into the international revolution. Metaphysically, Trotsky sets the national revolution against the socialist revolution. He judges of this question as follows: either a national or a socialist revolution, ignoring the question of the development of the national revolution into the socialist revolution. This erroneous theoretical interpretation of the peculiarities of the Russian revolution found its expression in Comrade Trotsky's political mistake at the time of the Brest Litovsk peace negotiations when he issued the slogan "neither peace nor war." According to Trotsky, this slogan was to be a challenge of the Russian proletariat to the international proletariat and an indication that the Russian proletariat was placing the fate of the Russian revolution in the hands of the international proletariat. Trotsky did not understand at that time that the task, as pointed out by Lenin, consisted in strengthening and consolidating the union between the Russian working class and the peasantry, in welding together the internal driving forces of the Russian revolution and in "sounding" on this basis the trend of the international revolution. The Brest Litovsk peace had to be signed in the interests of the consolidation of the workers' and peasants' union. But Trotsky, instead of solving these concrete tasks of this special phase of the revolution, limited himself to setting the trend of the national revolution against the trend of the international revolution.

THE mistake of under-estimating the peasantry, which has its origin in the theory of the permanent revolution, was committed by Trotsky in the famous discussion on the trade unions in 1920-21. At the conclusion of the civil war, certain changes took place in the relations between the working class and the peasantry. On the strength of these changes, the party had to adopt the so-called new economic policy. Trotsky just failed to understand that the fundamental peculiarity of the situation consisted in the changes which had token place in the relations between town and country, the working class and the peasantry. He thot that the main thing to do was to tighten the screw of military Communism, to go on militarizing the industries in order to raise the productivity of labor within the industries by means of military pressure. The same mistake was made by Trotsky in 1923 in the famous discussion on planning. When the economic crisis was upon us, Trotsky thot that the remedy was to do away with the disproportion between the various branches of industry, and to make the latter realize the necessity of systematization and planning. But this was not at all the crux of the matter, for the crisis had its origin in the definitely abnormal relations between industry and agriculture, between town and country. In fact the crisis was due to the inadequacy of the internal peasant market. Therefore the economic policy of the Russian Communist Party had to consist in relieving the peasantry of the emission tax by establishing a stable valuta, and in lowering prices, instead of following the path of "maximum profits" as was advocated in the economic proposals of the opposition led by Comrade Trotsky.

THE mistakes made by Comrade Trotsky on the field of practical politics with relation to the peasantry had their origin in the theory of permanent revolution. In his article The Fight for Power, Comrade Trotsky propounded the idea that national revolutions, just like national wars, are impossible in the epoch of imperialism because in the epoch of imperialism, according to Trotsky, it is not the bourgeois nation which is set against the old order, but the proletariat against the bourgeoisie. Such an interpretation of the question is an infringement of the A B C of dialetic materialism. Instead of a concrete analysis of the peculiarities of the Russian revolution, Trotsky refers to the general character of the epoch. Concerning the question of the possibility or impossibility of national wars in the epoch of imperailism Lenin wrote as follows: "Does the fact that the foremost European (and American) capitalism has entered a new epoch of imperialism imply that henceforth only imperialist wars are possible? This would be an absurd assertion, an inability to differentiate between a definite phenomenon and the sum total of the various phenomena of the epoch. The term epoch is applied because it embraces a number of various phenomena and wars, typical as well as non-typical, great as well as small, characteristic of highly developed as well as of backward countries. To brush aside these concrete questions by means of general phrases about 'the epoch' is tantamount to using the word epoch in vain." Materialistic dialetics are not Trotsky's strong point, and he is unable to see the concrete for the general. He frequently skips over the real vital phases of the revolution. Basing himself on such an abstract interpretation of the socialist revolution, Trotsky underestimates not only the peasant but also the colonial-liberation and national movements. In his book The Peace Program, he speaks of a simultaneous isolated socialist revolution in the chief and highly developed capitalist countries. In 1923, Trotsky gave a new Communist coloring to his old slogah "the united states of Europe," starting from the fact of the "Balkanization" of Europe. Trotsky deems it necessary to issue in addition to the slogan of the workers' and peasants' government the slogan of the Soviet united states of Europe. According to him, this slogan makes the slogan of the workers' and peasants' government more concrete and complete. But this slogan is not by any means acceptable to the Communist movement in the present stage of its development. In this, Trotsky shows again that he underestimates the national movements. At the present stage it behooves Communists to use the national movements of the oppressed nations for the purpose of bringing them over to the side of the revolution by insisting on the realization of the national self-determination slogan. Oppressed nationalities distrust the oppressor nations, and therefore we cannot raise the question of the federation of peoples before we go thru a period of national separation and individualization, when the proletariat by helping the backward nations will gain their confidence and will lay the foundation of a comprehensive European Soviet federation. But to make the establishment of such a federation an immediate task is tantamount to losing opportunities for the winning over of the national movements, in fact it is tantamount to skipping over a definite stage of the revolution. One had to adopt Lenin's viewpoint to be able to initiate and continue the Russian revolution. One had to understand the importance of the peasant, national and colonial-liberation movements for the Russian revolution. In the same way it is essential to accept the Lenin theory of the proletarian revolution to be able to initiate and continue the movement of the proletarian revolution in the other countries. But Trotsky's theory of revolution does not give us the possibility either to initiate or to continue the proletarian revolution wherever it may be.

GENE! AND MAURICE ON THE GOLDEN SHORE TO SOCIALISM

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

(Federated Press Review by Samuel S. Shipman, former labor manager of Kuzbas Colony, Siberia.)

Commercial Year Book of the Soviet Union, 1925, compiled by Segal and Santalov. B. W. Huebsch, Inc., 30 Irving Place, New York. $2.50.

THE 1925 Commercial Year Book of the Soviet Union presents for the first time in English a conpact and conveniently arranged summary of the economic life of Russia since the revolution.

The main sections deal with statistics and descriptions of the agricultural and mineral resources of the Soviet Union and the extent of their exploitation, the output and condition of the industries, the development of the export and import trades, the financial situation, and the transport and communication facilities of the Union.

The statistics and explanations are complete and have been compiled mainly from official Soviet reports. Most of the figures go down to the end of 1924—an important consideration in dealing with a country where conditions change as rapidly as they do in Russia today.

THE organization, powers and responsibilities of the various government departments and institutions of the country are described as are the regulations relating to the conduct of foreign trade and concessions by private corporations.

Other sections contain brief discussions of the political organization and constitution of the U. S. S. R., foreign relations, including summaries of treaties, the co-operative movement and internal trade, labor conditions, and the deucatinoal system.

THRUOUT the book is maintained a tone of objective painstaking accuracy, controversial matter is avoided and unpleasant facts are not glossed over. Here one may see in cold figures the efforts being made by the Russian people to rebuild their material destinies and the slow but steady progress in that direction. Here one may learn the details of how the fiscal miracle of balancing the budget and consequent stabilizing of the currency was accomplished.

For the business man or student the facts collected offer a complete and accurate picture of the economic conditions of Russia; for the general reader interested in Russian affairs the descriptive sections dealing with other phases of Russian life should prove illuminating.

ONE might wish that the co-operative movement were given the fuller treatment it deserves, and that the discussion on internal trade contained more information on retail trading with particular reference to the part played by private business since the introduction of the new economic policy. Especially since on the latter point there seems to be a profound misunderstanding on the part of foreign observers of Russian affairs. But these are only minor defects in a valuable and useful handbook.

By A. TIALA.

YOU can't find a definition of the word "Gudok" in your dictionary, for wise as the compilers of dictionaries are, they cannot anticipate all the tricks of the "Reds," who keep on importing one darn thing after another from Russia. None other than Wm. Z. Foster is guilty of this late deviltry against good Americanism; and he has the unspeakable nerve to tell all about it in the Workers' Monthly for May.

AS a matter of fact, the issue is chock full of stuff which reveals that the Tribune's master minds have yet much to learn about the doings of Communists. For instance, the monthly tells us that there is a "Lenin School" in Chicago which means that Superintendent of Schools McAndrew is to be replaced by a statue of Lenin—marble for a block of wood.

And Communism goes parading on the streets of America. It's a fact. Earl Browder will swear to it. He proves it by pictures taken by a regular photographer, not a Communistic one, so the pictures must be unbiased.

THE forty pages are just crowded with fights, probably inspired by Jack Dempsey passing thru Chicago. Anyway, there's the story of the "Fight for Unity in Minnesota," of which an Englishman with the euphonious name of Hathaway is referee

And there's the story of the election fight in Halle, Germany, which should have been entitled, "Socialists Paint the Fatherland Red," but wasn't entitled that because the stairway broke down and the red blood of the workers was discolored with bruises.

BETWEEN the flamboyant covers there's evidence of immorality, too. A picture on page 297 is evidence in question. Two of the Russian girls in the picture have dimpled knees.

Furthermore, what do you think of a poet who starts out like this:

> "I'm a happy-go-lucky son of a reckless brood—
> Painter of smoke stacks, steeples, flag poles, and sky-scraping cornices.
> Give me a piece of rope and I'll climb to God-knows-where, and dance a sailor's hornpipe a' top of it."

The man hasn't even affixed his signature at the end. He's probably a conceited kind of cuss who thinks that his poetry is known by its quality, like the rare real stuff in bottles, and doesn't require any labels for advertising.

WE'VE read the darn thing from beginning to end now a half dozen times and we're going to read it some more. It's the darndest, bewitchingest thing. But to get even with the author, we're going to tell here who he is. Oh, heck! He's no real poet from Greenwich Village. He's just a working stiff in Cleveland. His name is Jim Waters.

THERE'S a lot more unmentioned stuff—some perhaps unmentionable—in the May issue of the Workers' Monthly. It's the kind of stuff that makes the little jackasses who get out Liberty and Saturday Evening Post have nightmares. But a sound old working horse can relish his bit of wild oats among his firmer intellectual grub.

THE newspaper editors who [illegible] clined to be critical of vo[illegible] denburg before his election are now veering gently with the breeze coming from the counting houses of the bankers who supply the political wind to the sails of the kept press of America. Evidently the old field marshal has agreed to the terms laid down by Wall Street, and if he keeps his word, or if those who put him in the presidential chair keep their word there is no reason in the world why our bankers should be particular whether a social-democrat or a monarchist occupies the nearest thing to the throne in the royal German republic.

JOSEPH CAILLAUX is by no means as unpopular with the American newspapers editors as he was during the war when Clemenceau went after his scalp and almost got it. It is quite likely that the old "tiger" now regrets that he did not get his fangs into Caillaux's jugular vein when passions were high and blood was cheap. Dead men tell no tales. Caillaux was a "traitor" during the war. He wanted peace with Germany and an anti-British entente. But now he arrives to bring France out of the financial muddle and favors paying the French debt to the United States. That intention wipes out a multitude of sins.

BRITISH RULE ENDS EGYPTIANS "PEACE" IDEAS

Parliamentary Illusions Destroyed by Tyranny

By A. R.

CAIRO, May 13.—On March 23rd at 10 a. m., all the correspondents of European newspapers who were in Egypt telegraphed to their editors: "The Egyptian parliament has just been opened." On March 23rd at a few minutes past 8 p. m., the same correspondents of the same papers telegraphed to their editors: "The Egyptian parliament has just been dissolved."

Egypt is a land of miracles. English technique increases these miracles, nevertheless this "rapidity" and this "rush of events" was something unfathomable to the Egyptians who are prepared for anything.

English Trickery Facts.

Things occurred as follows: when, after unspeakable terror, bribery and impudent cheating at the ballot, which were employed by the present government of Siwer and Sedki (the direct and open agents of the English residency in Egypt) in the election campaign, it nevertheless became evident that Zaghlul had the majority (117 to 89), the minister of interior declared: "If the new parliament does not exhibit more 'sense' than its predecessor, we shall dissolve it and call for new elections."

From March 12th (the day of elections) to the 23rd there were eleven whole days, and what could not be done in this space of time! We must give the minister of interior his due—render unto Caesar the things that

FORGET WORKERS IN GOSSIP AT PA. LABOR MEET

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 13.— At the opening of the convention of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, James Maurer, president, warned the delegates that the workers must go either forward or backward against international capitalism.

Maurer spoke of the unemployment in the textile and mining industries. He submitted a report containing a criticism of the unfriendly acts of the legislature, but gave no solution for organized labor's problems. The report contained on mention of the industrial problems of the workers.

Kate Richards O'Hare spoke on prison goods and the effects of convict labor in cutting the living standard of the "free" workers. Other speakers touched on nearly everything from prohibition to children's playgrounds, but the strengthening of the power of the workers was not discussed.

In the evening a session of the Pennsylvania state labor party was held.

GOVERNMENT RUSHES POLICE TO CLUB NEGRO STUDENT STRIKERS; REACTIONARY KELLY MILLER HISSED

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Police reserves were called out today to break up meetings of striking Negro students on the campus of the government-operated Howard university.

The students are striking in protest against compulsory military drill, and have halted all classes by picketing the university buildings.

Every effort of the students, both men and women, to get together in the vicinity of the university buildings were blocked by the police, who ordered the strikers away under penalty of arrest.

Dean Kelly Miller of the university was hissed down when he attempted to tell a crowd of the students that Capt. Robert E. Doyle, in charge of the police detail, was their "best friend."

"If I were you," Captain Doyle told a group of the students, "I would go back to school and get the education you are paying for."

"If education doesn't include standing up for our principles, we don't want an education," was the reply of one of the strike leaders.

A meeting of the faculty was called "to consider ways and means of dealing with the strike."

PARIS, May 13.—France is willing to negotiate with Germany regarding Germany's security pact proposal, but the negotiations must be based on the Versailles treaty, said a high official of the foreign office today.

Foreign Minister Briand's note answering Germany's proposal would courteously and concisely state this premise, he said, even tho Germany is not yet a member of the league of nations.

BULGAR REGIME PLOTS FURTHER BLOODY RULE

Minister Visits London for Aid

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, May 13—The foreign minister of the white guard Zankov government of Bulgaria, C. Kallov, will arrive Friday in London for conference with the reactionary foreign secretary of England's government.

Kallov comes strangely for a supposed "free and autonomous nation" to report to the British government. The report is unquestionably to be the basis of asking further continuance of the additional 10,000 white guard troops recruited largely from the remnants of Wrangel's and Denikin's counter-revolutionary forces, which addition the league of nations kindly offered the murderous Zankov government to help massacre the rebellious workers, and peasants.

The Bulgarian army was fixed at a set number by the treaty of peace, and the additional 10,000 troops were given as a special favor by the league of nations and against the wishes of Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria's hereditary foe.

The conference between Austen Chamberlain and Kallov will certainly result in further murderous offensives upon the workers and peasants of the Balkans.

LISBON, May 13. — The former Crown Princess Cecilie of Germany, accompanied by her sons and Admiral von Karpf landed at Lisbon today enroute to Hamburg. The former Crown Prince Wilhelm is said to be negotiating to buy a villa in Italy for his family.

BULGARIAN MONARCH ADMITS SOCIALISTS AID MURDEROUS TERROR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, May 13.—King Boris of Bulgaria, in an interview with the London Express admitted that the socialists and other 'democratic' bourgeois parties are aiding the murderous Zankov white terror.

"The struggle has been wholly internal and solely against Communism," Boris said.

"The government has the support of the other parties and there is no truth in the suggestions that we have designs against Serbia and Greece."

BRITISH GOVERNMENT BEGINS ILLEGAL DRIVE AGAINST COMMUNISTS

LONDON, May 13.— The Daily Chronicle said today that the British government had decided to "thin out" the Bolshevik ranks in England.

The government, it said, was cancelling passports of many Russians and others were not being permitted to enter the country. Scotland Yard detectives have raided offices charged with distributing Communist literature.

8-HOUR LAW FOR WOMEN DEFEATED IN SPRINGFIELD

Ordered by Big Business to Kill Bill

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 13.—The 8-hour bill for women, one of the laws promised to organized labor for the support of the republican candidate, Gov. Small, when he ran for a second term, was killed in the house. The bill failed by four votes receiving 73 out of the necessary 77, a majority of the house.

This labor bill is one of the leading measures of reform with which the Chicago labor officials came before their memberships to win votes for republican politicians. It was embodied in a plank in the republican platform framed at Kankakee in August, 1923.

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, sponsor of the bill, in discussing the vote said that she is now convinced that in Illinois "the big money interests wield a powerful influence in the legislature." She said she herself witnessed a concerted drive of the big money interests in all parts of the state within the last few days. Members of the house were commanded by powerful constituents that they must not vote for this bill.

A similar bill for the 8-hour day for women in industry is pending in the senate but the chances of its passing at this session are nil.

Sugar Trust Cuts Mellon.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Directors of the American Sugar Refining company declared the regular dividend of $1.75 cents a share on the preferred stock today. No action was taken on resumption of dividends on the common stock.

COMMUNIST CANDIDATE MAKES GOOD SHOWING IN MPLS. ELECTIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 13.—Dan Stevens, Workers (Communist) Party candidate for mayor in the non-partisan primary elections, was credited with 1,658 votes. Comrade Stevens, according to the figures as counted by the politicians in control of the balloting, ran fifth in a field of eight candidates.

C. A. Hathaway, Communist candidate for alderman in the first ward, was credited with 55 votes. L. A. Roseland, Workers Party candidate for alderman in the 10th ward, was given 197 votes.

Many votes for the Communist candidates were thrown out by the politicians, it is thought here.

RUSSIAN TRADE MISSION VISITS PACIFIC COAST

Seattle to Be Center of Increased Soviet Trade

By AARON FISLERMAN.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., May 13.—In the first interview granted to a newspaper in America by Comrades Rasumovsky and Levanoff, representatives of the Far Eastern branch of the Soviet Russian department of foreign trade (Dalgostorg), Haborosk, East Siberia, just arrived on the President Jefferson for the purpose of establishing a commercial shipping point in Seattle for the Far East, stated to the DAILY WORKER correspondent that apparently some of the businessmen in America are opposed to trade with Soviet Russia, but overproduction of commodities and necessity of foreign markets will eventually force America to enter into commercial relations with Soviet Russia.

This is the first time such a mission has come here and the Dalgostorg have met with great success. A large number of representatives of the business concerns of this city extended them the greatest courtesy and signified their willingness and anxiety to enter into negotiations with the Russian representatives.

To Make Seattle Shipping Point.

"We are accorded the finest courtesy by local businessmen," said Comrade Rasumovsky to the writer "and the more we meet them the better and greater understanding and the more anxious are the American businessmen to do business with us."

The desire of the Dalgostorg representatives to make Seattle the shipping point for the Far East is because

STRIKERS WIN FIGHT AGAINST THE 'OPEN SHOP'

The strike of the union building trade workers employed at the new market being constructed at 14th St. and Racine avenue, by the McLennan Construction company who walked out against the "open shop," has ended with a victory for the striking electricians, bricklayers, ironworkers, tile setters, plasterers, and plumbers, according to J. J. Conroy, secretary of the building trades council. The men were ordered back to work yesterday.

The strike was called in order to force several hundred unorganized laborers, cement finishers and carpenters into the union. One report given the DAILY WORKER by an official of the bricklayers' union was that the cement finishers and laborers will be brought into the union, but that the carpenters, because they are not affiliated with the council, remain outside the union.

It was stated at the offices of the building trades council by Conroy, the secretary, that President Sullivan, head of the building trade council, has the complete terms of the settlement, but that Sullivan was still in conference and could not be reached.

Bulgaria Holds Onto Army.

LONDON, May 13.—Foreign Minister Kalkoff, of Bulgaria, arriving tomorrow, will seek Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain's approval for retention of added forces in Bulgaria beyond May 31. It was believed at the foreign office the extension, affecting 10,000 troops, will be favored by England.

PROTEST OF AMERICAN WORKERS FORCES GOVERNMENT TO REDUCE RED SOLDIERS' PRISON SENTENCE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, May 13.—Forced by the protest of the American workers to reduce the sentences of Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull from 40 and 26 years at hard labor to three years and one year respectively, Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, commandant of Schofield barracks, has referred the case of the Communist soldiers court martialed for forming the Hawaiian Communist League, to the judge advocate general at Washington, who will review the case.

The young red soldiers have not changed their principles to obtain this "leniency." In the latest written utterance of Comrades Crouch and Trumbull, just received by the DAILY WORKER, the young soldiers declare, "It was the purpose of the Hawaiian Communist League to agitate against the American imperialism which makes wage slaves of Hawaiian workers.

"Because of our efforts to combat lies about Soviet Russia and to tell the truth about the American dollarocracy to Hawaiian workers, we were sentenced to 40 and 26 years in prison. We expect to be sent back soon to the mainland to serve our sentences."

"But even in prison we will continue to preach the principles of Leninism to our comrade fellow prisoners—victims of the present system of social injustice. We do not yet know the place of our future imprisonment.

"Of course, we are atheists and consider religion as one of the principle props of the brutal capitalist system."

Protest to Continue.

The reduction of the sentences by the army authorities does not change the status of the case. Altho the government is running for cover from the storm of protest that arose against the inhuman sentences, the reduction cannot change the fact that these soldiers are to be sent to jail by the United States government for expressing their adherence to the principles of Communism.

The young Communist soldiers were confined to the guardhouse for several months, and deprived of the comforts and privileges accorded to the ordinary prisoners.

The official "stenographic" records of the trial were doctored by the government, Crouch reporting that he found 79 lies in the records after a hasty examination. Lies about the Communist soldiers have been spread in the capitalist press, and Crouch and Trumbull have been forbidden to answer these attacks.

Demand Immediate Release.

The Communist soldiers do not ask for a reduction in their sentences. They do not ask for a "pardon." They demand their immediate release on the ground that they have a right to express their opinion; that their court martial "trial" was illegal, that the records of the case have been changed, and their defense papers stolen.

The reduction in the sentences of these Communist soldiers will not halt the protest of the American workers against the imprisonment of the Communist soldiers who are being persecuted for fighting the oppression of American imperialism and defending the workers' government of Soviet Russia. The campaign for their unconditional release will continue.

BRYAN CRUSADES TO KEEP TRUTH OUT OF SCHOOLS

"Hand that Writes the Check, Rules Schools"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 13.—"The hand that writes the teacher's pay checn is the hand that rules the schools." These words were not spoken by a "red" this time, but by none other than William Jennings Bryan, in a speech before the Pittsburgh presbytery.

William Jennings Bryan was telling them that he has been chosen and has accepted the "call to champion the cause of the holy bible" against the teaching of evolution. The scratching of a pen on the dotted line of a check has a particular appeal to Bryan, and he is pleased to peddle the religious dope of the check writers.

Bryan will represent the christian fundamental association in the prosecution of J. T. Scopes, Dayton, Tenn. school teacher charged with [illegible] of the [illegible] the teaching of evolution in schools supported by the state funds. This association is promoted by bankers and manufacturers who are afraid the country's potential workers will learn the truth in the public schools.

Bryan called the teaching of evolution a shocking decline in the spiritual life of our schools and colleges. He bewailed the census report which shows that at least 45 per cent of the students in colleges do not believe in religion.

"If you allow them to put the hypothesis of science above the word of God, what is to become of the church?" Scientists, he said, should be kept out the schools.

J. T. Scopes is charged with teaching evolution in his biology class at Rhea Central High School, Dayton, Tenn. The American Civil Liberties Union is raising funds to carry the case awaiting action by a Rhea county grand jury to the supreme court, if lost.
